UK may raise tuition up to 10 percent

Unless the state gives UK more money than expected, UK will have to increase costs to make up for loss

By Rebecca Neal
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

Tuition may increase between eight to 10 percent next academic year if the economy doesn't improve, President Lee Todd said. "If things keep going the way they are, we'll have to have some kind of increase," he said.

Todd said the exact amount of the increase will be easier to determine once the Kentucky Legislature passes a budget in the spring, but said that he expects a cut in UK's funding.

"Right now, we're not sure what the increase will be, but it looks like there will have to be one," Todd said.

In the meantime, he said UK is working to be fiscally responsible in the face of more budget cuts.

"We know students don't like it, and we try to cut spending wherever possible," Todd said.

The Legislature cut UK's funding for the next two years in the spring by nearly $31 million, forcing UK to implement a 14.5 percent tuition increase for the current school year.

Currently, resident undergraduate tuition and fees are $2,280.25 a semester. Tuition for non-resident undergraduates is $5,613.25 per semester.

If the 10 percent increase is passed, tuition for residents would rise to $2,508.28 per semester. Fees, which are included in that preliminary total, could be increased separately.

The Board of Trustees, which approves tuition increases, has already discussed a possible increase. It approved the forecast of a four to 10 percent tuition increase at its Sept. 16 meeting. Student Government President Rachel Watts said. Approval of the forecasted increase does not mean it will actually go into effect in the 2004-2005 school year, said Watts, who is a member of the board.

Watts said she voted

UK broadening its policies on family leave

The definition of family has been expanded, and the "66-day" rule has been eliminated

By Amanda Duckworth
STAFF WRITER

UK has expanded the use of temporary disability leave and funeral leave, allowing employees more time off for family emergencies.

One change to the UK Human Resources policy governing leave is the definition of family. Previously, family only included an employee's spouse, any unmarried children living at home, or any other relative living in the household.

Family will now include a spouse, children, grandchildren, mothers, fathers, grandparents, brothers, sisters (including step, half-relatives, and in-laws), or any legal dependent of the employee, regardless of residence. Accumulated leave may be used to care for any other person who lives in the employee's household that the employee is obligated to take care of.

Also, the "66-day rule" has been eliminated. This rule stated that an employee must have a balance of 66 days of accumulated leave before being granted time off for the illness of a family member.

Richard Siemer, the executive vice president for finance and administration, said the policy changes are great but that they do not come without cost, especially to the medical center. If any employee there takes extended leave, they will have to be replaced, whereas in other departments, they would not, he said.

In the past, UK employees could use only five consecutive working days of leave for one family illness or injury or five working days used separately over a period of six months. Now, they are eligible to use 30 working days of accumulated leave over a period of one year and no longer have to have a leave balance of 66 days before using it for these purposes.

Another major change deals with the funeral leave policy, formerly known as the Funeral Attendance Leave policy. The number of days off with pay that an employee is allowed to take for the death of a family member or friend has been increased.

"Many times, especially with closer relatives such as parents or children, an employee needs the extra time to not only make satisfactory arrangements but also sufficient time to grieve," Karen Combs, co-chair of the UK Work-Life Task Force, said in a press release.

In the event of the death of a parent, brother, sister, spouse, child, any other relative the employee is responsible for, or any other person who resides in the employee's household, time off has been increased from three working days to five working days. If extensive travel is involved, the employee has two additional days.

In the event of the death of a direct descendant grandparent, a grandchild, aunt, uncle, niece, nephew, or in-law relative, time off has been increased from one working day to two, with two additional days available for extensive travel.

Francie Chassen-Lopez, a history professor, said she feels that the changes that were made are good ones. "Anything that is more understanding of home life is a move in the right direction," she said.

Ban could affect 'social smokers'

UK professor says drinking and smoking are associated; students say they often smoke more when drinking

By Ryan Garrett
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The proposed smoking ban, which will be considered by the Kentucky Court of Appeals today, won't just affect the everyday smoker — there's a whole crowd of so-called "social smokers" who will have to give up their habit of only smoking when they drink.

And, many say, that will be hard to do, since smoking and drinking often seem to go hand-in-hand. "If I go out to a party drinking all night, I'll probably smoke a pack," said Jon Sanning, an English sophomore.

"There is a definite association between smoking and drinking, particularly for the occasional smoker," said Ellen Hahn, a nursing professor and an advocate for Lexington's smoking ban.

Jessica Manning, a sports management graduate student, said that although she smokes about half a pack of cigarettes a day, she easily goes through the other half when she is drinking.

"A lot of people say they only smoke when they drink," Manning said, "but I just think that it's an excuse."

While many smokers say they are less likely to become addicted since they only smoke when consuming alcohol, Hahn said that is not necessarily true.

"The more you smoke, the more likely you are to be addicted," she said. "It doesn't have anything to do with drinking." It's not hard to distinguish those who smoke occasionally from the regular smokers, said Shaun Tucker, a bartender at Pazzo's Pizza Pub on South Limestone Street.

"They never have their own cigarettes," he said of the occasional smokers.

Tucker said he rarely sees patrons smoking while not drinking at the restaurant, where smoking is limited to one of its three levels.

But it's that mix of cigarettes and alcohol that ban advocates and others often have a problem with.

Even though Manning is a smoker, being around all the second-hand smoke affects her health, she said. "I always get a bad headache," she said.

Cigarette smoke also aggravates some casual smokers.

"You always get smoke in your face working in smoking (sections)," Tucker said. "In non-smoking, you have the choice of whether you want to have smoke in your face or not."

Hahn said second-hand smoke is one of the most dangerous aspects of smoking.

"Workers in smoky bars are nearly two to six times as likely as other workers to develop heart disease, lung cancer and other respiratory problems," she said.

Still, students say they enjoy getting a smoke and a beer.

"You get a better buzz sometimes," Manning said.

Others said it's a good combination.

"Since nicotine's an upper, you can drink a lot longer if you're smoking," Sanning said. "If I wasn't smoking, I'd probably pass out a lot earlier."

Smoking ban hearing

The Kentucky Court of Appeals will address the smoking ban proposal at 11:30 a.m. today in Frankfurt.

The Lexington-Fayette Urban County Council approved the ban, which was set to start Sept. 29. Businesses that would be affected by the ban have been attacking the ban, though, saying it will hurt sales.

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

The Low-down

Local athletes, coaches honored

Thirty-six Olympic athletes and coaches who have lived in Fayette and surrounding counties for at least two years were honored Saturday at Transylvania University. The group, which included Tubby Smith and Adolph Rupp, was honored at the annual Hellenic Ideals Program of the Bluegrass. More than a dozen of the honorees attended or had representatives present at the ceremony. William Collis and his wife, Connie, started the Hellenic Ideals Program 23 years ago as a way of honoring and promoting ancient Hellenic principles. During the event, Ralph Miller and former Lexington mayor Pam Miller were honored as "The Central Kentucky Persons Who Best Exemplify Ancient Hellenic Ideals." Ralph Miller is a skier who competed in the 1956 Olympics. For more than 20 years, he held a world record in downhill skiing. He was clocked at 109 miles per hour. Some past recipients of the Hellenic Ideals award have been William T. Young and Otis and Gloria Singletary.

McDonald's changing its nuggets

CHICAGO — McDonald's plans to introduce a new, all white-meat Chicken McNugget with less fat and fewer calories, the latest move by the fast-food giant to offer healthier fare. In the next six weeks, McDonald's will begin offering the smaller McNuggets in all of its 13,600 U.S. restaurants. The revamped McNuggets are designed to meet a growing consumer preference for chicken breast meat. The change is a big, and some say risky, move for the Oak Brook-based company. Ever since McDonald's first unveiled McNuggets in 1983, they have been one of the restaurant's most popular entrees, especially among children. But the company says extensive consumer tests over the past six months show the time is right to shift from a McNugget that is 30 percent dark meat to one that's 100 percent white meat. In September, the hamburger chain unveiled it was test marketing an adult version of its Happy Meal. Rather than a burger and a toy, the new Go Active meal will include a salad, an exercise booklet and a pedometer meant to encourage walking. The new six-piece McNuggets will contain 290 calories, down from 310 calories, and 16 total grams of fat, down from 20 grams. William Mikel, a UK professor and specialist in meat processing and product development, wonders if consumers will reject the new McNuggets the way they rejected Coca Cola's New Coke in the mid-1980s. "I think they probably have a good idea, but we as consumers, we're a fickle bunch," he said.

Woman opens fire in church

ATLANTA — A woman opened fire at an Atlanta church before services started Sunday morning, killing her mother and the minister before committing suicide. Congregants of Turner Monumental AME Church said Sheila W. Chaney Wilson, 43, was agitated when she came to the church. She was sitting with her mother, Jennie Mae Robinson, and the Rev. Johnny Clyde Reynolds in the sanctuary after Sunday school when Wilson opened fire with a handgun, police said. No one else was in the sanctuary. Police did not say how many shots were fired. Reynolds, 62, was pastor of the church in the Kirkwood neighborhood, on the city's east side. Assistant Pastor Christy Miller said Reynolds had just finished teaching Sunday school and was walking through the sanctuary when she stopped to talk with Wilson and Robinson, 67. Soon after, other congregants heard shots in the sanctuary, Miller said. Police spokesman Sgt. John Quigley said officers don't know of any possible motive. Worshipers who knew Wilson said she was disturbed and that something set her off Sunday.

Oldest American passes away

TRENTON, N.J. — Elena Slough, documented as the nation's oldest person, died Sunday at the nursing home where her daughter died three days before. She was 114 or 115, according to different sources. Slough died in her sleep at the Victoria Manor Nursing Home, where she and her 90-year-old daughter, Wanda Allen, lived, according to Judy Moudy, a supervisor at the Lower Township facility. The Gerontology Research Group said Slough was born on July 8, 1888, making her 114 years old at the time of her death. But Krista Rickards, director of marketing at Victoria Manor, said Slough's son had a 1950 document that listed his mother as being born in 1888, which would have made her 115. What is not in dispute is that Slough had been the oldest person in the United States since April, when 113-year-old Mary Dorothy Christian died in San Pablo, Calif. Christian was born on June 2, 1889. "Slough is the oldest living American as of the time she died," Dr. L. Stephen Coles, executive director of the Gerontology Research Group, said Sunday. The organization, which is affiliated with the UCLA School of Medicine, maintains a Web site of the oldest people alive. Three different types of documentation — birth or baptismal certificates, marriage certificates and census data — are used to verify ages. According to the organization's Web site, Slough was the third-oldest living person in the world. Kamato Hongo turned 116 last month, and Mitoyo Kawate turned 114 in May. Both are Japanese. The oldest person on record was Jeanne Calment, a Frenchwoman who was 122 when she died in 1987. Slough, who was born Elena Rodenbaugh in a log cabin in Horsham, Pa., lived through 21 presidents and seven U.S. wars.

Town's leaders leave for Iraq

BRADFORD, Ark. — The mayor, police chief and school librarian are all leaving for military duty Monday that is expected to take them to Iraq, and the residents left behind in this tiny town of 800 are scrambling to fill their roles. At the local cafe and in school hallways, the call and what to do about the loss of city leaders is the talk of the town. At city hall, meanwhile, officials have been rushing to prepare paperwork necessary to transfer the mayor's power to a 78-year-old retired school teacher. The soon-to-be acting police chief says Bradford is just one example of how the war in Iraq has affected small town America. "One way or another we're going to handle it," said Michael Ray, who will become the new police chief, along with his job as a school resources officer. "It's going to be OK. I'm going to run it the same way as if the chief was here." In addition to Mayor Paul Bum, Chief Josh Chambliss and librarian Nolan Brown, five other citizens of this farm town have received orders to report to Fort Hood, Texas. There, they will prepare for a tour of duty in Iraq that is expected to put them in Iraq by Christmas. Grebe Edens, the town's recorder-treasurer, will take over for the 35-year-old mayor. Previously, she spent 24 years as Bradford's fourth-grade teacher.

Local ministers vexed by large gay numbers

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Religious leaders are troubled that Lexington has become a flash point for gay issues because of a vocal and growing homosexual population.

According to the 2000 U.S. Census, Fayette County leads the state in the concentration of households headed by same-sex partners. On a national level, Fayette ranks 153rd out of 3,141 counties.

David Cupps, a steering committee member of the Bluegrass chapter of the Kentucky Fairness Alliance, said Lexington is developing a reputation as a haven for gays and lesbians throughout the state.

Last week, state Sen. Ernesto Scorsone identified himself as a "gay Kentuckian," an announcement Cupps saw as another positive step.

Still, resistance is strong. Earlier this year, Mayor Teresa Isaac made Lexington the first Kentucky city to offer health benefits to domestic partners of government workers, but the measure was temporarily halted by the Urban County Council.

On Thursday, Kent Ostrander of the Family Foundation organized local ministers to discuss the mayor's policy of extending health insurance to same- and opposite-sex partners of city employees.

Isaac quietly implemented the plan in July, but the council quickly moved to freeze enrollment for any future domestic partners. Council members objected on a variety of grounds, from budgetary to procedural to moral. A council committee is expected to decide the future of the policy on Monday.

At their private meeting last week, the ministers frowned upon the recognition of unmarried couplings, Ostrander said. "This was not a group to bash gays," he said. "It was just a group to protect marriage and its definition. "I believe what we're seeing today is the second generation following the sexual revolution of the '60s," Ostrander said. "Then, it was sex between non-married people being equated with married people. Now, it's sex of any kind between non-married people that is equal with married people."

While discrimination still exists, many gays credit the 1999 passage of the Fairness Ordinance with lightening the burden of gays who felt they had to harbor a secret.

Since the ordinance was passed four years ago, the city's human rights commission has records of more than 60 complaints that invoke rights provided in the law. Many cases have been litigated, and at least two have resulted in settlement money.

'Siegfried & Roy' star in critical condition

Roy Horn was dragged off stage by the show's tiger; attack injured his neck, barely missed an artery

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS — The future of the famed Siegfried & Roy show was in doubt Sunday with illusionist Roy Horn still in critical condition after a tiger mauling. Employees of the show were encouraged to look for other jobs.

MGM Mirage officials said Sunday that Horn remained on a ventilator but was able to communicate with doctors. Even if he recovers, they said, it's unclear whether he would ever be able to perform again in the rigorous show.

Horn, who was bitten in the neck and dragged off stage by one of the show's signature white tigers, underwent surgery late Friday and Saturday at University Medical Center. Mirage officials said it might take another day or two before doctors have a prognosis.

It was a good sign that Horn's condition had not changed since he last underwent surgery, the duo's long-time manager, Bernie Yuman, said Sunday afternoon during a news conference.

"The doctors are cautiously optimistic," Yuman said. "The doctors are telling us that the more time that passes, the better we are."

Horn, 39, was heavily sedated but able to respond to voices and touch, MGM Mirage Resort chief executive Bobby Baldwin said.

"We are guarded, optimistic," Baldwin said late Saturday night outside the hospital. "We are pleased the news isn't worse than it is."

It was halfway during a Friday night performance at The Mirage hotel-casino that Horn appeared alone on stage with a 7-year-old, 600-pound white tiger named Montecore.

Horn told the tiger to lie down. When it refused, Horn tapped the cat on the nose with a microphone. The animal grabbed at Horn's arm, causing him to stumble.

The tiger then lunged at Horn, who tried to beat the animal away with the microphone. Audience members said the tiger dragged Horn off the stage by the neck. The attack barely missed severing Horn's carotid artery.

Horn and longtime partner Siegfried Fischbacher have been a Las Vegas Strip staple for years, performing their magic show to sold-out crowds. The shows, with their white tigers and lions, are among the best-known and most expensive on the Strip.

"For more than four decades, I have had the great privilege of standing at the side of this remarkable man, and I will continue to do so during this very challenging time," Fischbacher said in a statement Saturday.

Mirage spokesman Alan Feldman said late Saturday the show was closed indefinitely.

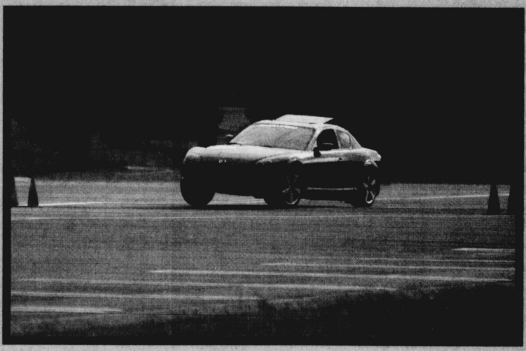

Montecore was quarantined at the hotel, officials said. Feldman said the animal had been used in the show for several years.

Siegfried and Roy signed a lifetime contract with The Mirage in 2001. The German-born pair perform six shows a week, 44 weeks per year and have been onstage in Las Vegas for more than 35 years.

Racing Days

Scott Bourne of Georgetown, a specialist for Paul Miller Mazda, puts a Mazda RX-8 through its paces on Sunday at an autocross track that was set up in K-Lot. The autocross racing, in which drivers navigate a course of orange cones, was part of an event held by the Central Kentucky Region of the Sports Car Club of America. Mark Manuel, president of the group, said that it has roughly four events each year at UK on Sundays in the K-Lot. Manuel said the club rents the lot from UK, and that money is then donated to UK's Society for Automotive Engineers.

against the proposal.

"We need to make sure it's affordable for students here," Watts said.

Watts said the board is researching tuition increases at UK's benchmark universities.

Some schools, including Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green, are implementing mid-year tuition hikes, she said.

UK's tuition remains low compared to most other benchmarks, she said.

"We're pretty low on the totem pole as it is, but in my mind, 10 percent is a lot," Watts said.

UK's most expensive benchmark competitor, Penn State University, costs resident undergraduates $8,382 a year in 2002-2003. The cheapest benchmark to attend, the University of Florida, charged $2,981 a year in 2002-2003.

Most of the benchmarks' non-resident undergraduate tuition is significantly higher than that of UK.

University of Michigan at Ann Arbor was the most expensive at $23,365 a year in 2002-2003. University of Texas at Austin was the cheapest at $10,490.

A student's tuition and fees covers about one-third of what it will actually cost to educate the student, Todd said.

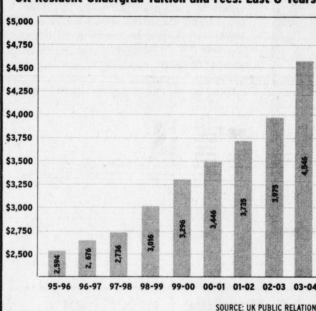

"The state is expected to pick up the rest of the tab, and when they can't, it creates problems," he said.

Todd said scholarships can be a way for students to pay for tuition increases.

"With the increases, we're working on attracting more scholarship money for the students," Todd said.

Todd said he has also talked about UK's economic issues with gubernatorial candidates Ben Chandler and Ernie Fletcher.

UK Resident Undergrad Tuition and Fees: Last 8 Years

"We've been talking with both candidates about the need for funding for higher education," he said.

He said he hopes the new governor will be sympathetic to UK's budget problems. "We'll be ready to work with whoever wins to help us," Todd said.

Freshman outside hitter Melissa Popp tries to put the ball over Ole Miss defenders. Popp had 21 kills in UK's victory Saturday afternoon.

By Stacie Meihaus
KED EDITOR

Sarah Spinner killed the volleyball down the left sideline in game four against Ole Miss. After being awarded the point, she jumped up in the air, yelling. Moments later, she had another kill and jumped up again.

Spinner had a lot to yell about, as she and her team defeated Ole Miss 3-1 Sunday and Mississippi State 3-1 Friday. The wins improved UK's Southeastern Conference record to 2-2 and 10-6 overall on the season. Ole Miss fell to 1-4 in the SEC and 2-16 overall.

"These two matches this weekend were very important to us. We knew we had to win them. But we couldn't look past them," said Spinner, a junior outside hitter.

Spinner had 21 kills in Sunday's game, leaving her tied as kill leader with freshman outside hitter Melissa Popp.

UK took the first game 30-18 with seven kills by Spinner and three aces served by senior middle blocker Sissy Canfield.

In the second game, neither team allowed the other to take a big lead. The teams fought for each point, and Ole Miss ended up taking the game by two points.

"Mississippi just executed very well in game two," said head coach Jona Braden.

At the break between game two and three, Braden gave her team a pep talk.

"I told them to turn it up to the notch we were at in game one," Braden said. "We just weren't as crisp in our offense and defense as we were in game one."

Her talk seemed to work. In game three, UK pulled ahead 6-3 on two blocks. After Ole Miss tied the game at 11, UK retaliated with four unanswered points. UK won the game 30-22.

In game four, Ole Miss started out 2-0 early. UK tied the game with a block, and then pulled ahead 9-5. Spinner's kill gave UK 10, and then moments later her second kill gave the team 11.

"Coach told us we needed to have more energy in the third and fourth game," Spinner said. "We were all trying to get pumped up and have more energy."

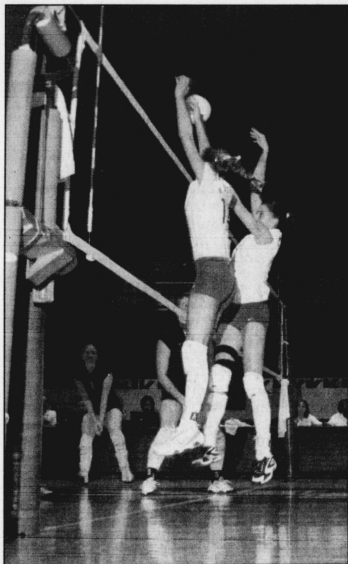

Although the Cats were pumped up, Ole Miss refused to hand over the game, Braden said.

"Mississippi is a fighting team," she said. "They are doing a great job with the program down there."

Ole Miss tied the game at 16, 21 and then took the lead at 22-21, but UK rallied to win 30-27.

The Cats next play South Carolina at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Columbia, S.C. The team's next home game will be against Louisiana State at 7 p.m. Oct. 17.

Women's golf takes fourth place in only home tournament

The UK women's golf team finished fourth at the Wildcat Fall Invitational at the University Club of Kentucky.

The Cats shot a final round team total 320. Vanderbilt fired a tournament low 303 Sunday to take the tournament title.

Freshman Marissa Muir, who came into the final round ted for first individually, shot an 85 Sunday to take eighth.

Senior Eva Gessner fired a final-round 79 to finish 17th individually. Sophomore Erin Faulkner led the way on Sunday with a 76, good for 24th.

Men's golf finishes third while two place in top-10 individually

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — UK's men's golf team shot a final-round 303 Sunday to finish third in the Franklin Street Partners Invitational.

Junior John Holmes (68-74-74 216) finished in fifth overall. Sophomore Matt Kohn (76-71-74 221) finished 10th.

Junior Brad Doster (T-11th), freshman Brad Doster (T-32nd) and freshman Cale Barr (T-41st) rounded out the effort for UK.

The top-10 finish was the third this season for UK.

Five Cats get final-round wins at Kentucky Fall Classic

Junior Aibika Kalsariva won the blue flight singles championship against Notre Dame's Catrina Thompson 6-3, 7-5 Sunday in UK's Kentucky Fall Classic.

Freshman Laura Maurer beat Ohio State's Anna Volberg 6-2, 6-2 for the green flight singles championship.

Freshman Sarah Foster beat Notre Dame's Kristina Stastny 6-3, 6-3 in the white flight singles championship.

Freshmen Joelle Schwenk and Caroline Winebrenner took consolation bracket wins.

Women's cross country runners take first place in Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — UK's women's cross country team took its first team title of the year Saturday at the Cardinal Cross Country Classic.

The Cats, ranked No. 34, were led by senior Caitlin Phillip, who has captured first place in both meets she has competed in this year.

Senior Brooke Patterson took third place in the 5,000-meter run.

For the men, freshman John Richardson led UK's freshman squad to 10th in the 8,000-meter run. Richardson finished 17th individually.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

Anything that is more understanding of home life is a move in the right direction."

—Francis Chassen-Lopez, history professor, on changes to UK's family and sick leave policy

IN THEIR OPINION

Though upsetting, tuition increase can't be helped

Once again, UK is looking at less money from the state budget. What this means for students is a huge problem: The price to attend UK will probably rise.

This year, that rise will be eight to 10 percent if the economy doesn't improve, President Lee Todd said. "If things keep going the way they are, we'll have to have some kind of increase," he said.

A rise of 10 percent means about a few hundred more bucks for students to pay the school each year. That's sad news for students, but there's really not much UK can do about it.

Through tuition, UK gets only one-third of what it actually costs to educate a student, Todd said. That means the state budget plays an extremely important part, and the school can't help if the budget isn't up to par. That's the sad reality of the budget crisis.

Even more, an eight to 10 percent increase in tuition would be less than what it was raised to for this school year. Last year, UK raised tuition 14.5 percent. We still hope that was the only option UK officials had left.

It's also important to realize that UK is facing the same sort of trouble that a lot of its benchmarks are having. Nationwide, schools are drastically increasing tuition. For example, non-resident tuition and fees at the University of Wisconsin-Madison have nearly doubled over eight school years.

There can be options to get around this without emptying students' pockets. One is a tuition contract, which is an agreement between the university and incoming freshmen that tuition will remain constant within a certain amount of time. In other words, students should have some kind of safeguard. To do this, though, the new governor would have to cooperate.

We have seen Student Government and the University Senate collaborate on the graduation contract, which obligates the university to provide sufficient courses for students to graduate. Now we would love to see these and other campus leaders work on ways to help students out.

Israeli wall is against own interests

In debates that prove particularly polarizing, I think there is a tendency to base opinions about specific issues on our "side's" view, rather than our own reasoning and principles.

So, when I began considering the wall being built through the West Bank, my pro-Israel instinct told me it was a fantastic idea. However, any reasonable examination of the political and geographic reality of the fence exposes the project for what it is.

The Israeli "security fence," a long, large and expensive endeavor aimed at cutting off the West Bank's access to Israel proper, will likely prove a foolish and embarrassing failure.

Andrew Grossman
KENTUCKY COLUMNIST

Much ado has been made of the "land grabs" during the fence's creation. As many columnists have noted, land has been lost either by being seized for the construction or being on the wrong side of the wall, separating owners from their livelihoods.

The true danger, however, is not the scant amount of land being physically seized and destroyed for the wall's construction, but the fragmentation it will create around Palestinian villages and cities.

There will be few places where the wall can be crossed, and the inevitable security will make passage a logistical nightmare. Since the fence veers far inward to protect politically influential settlers, it eliminates the possibility of a contiguous Palestinian state.

This means there are two possible outcomes of this project, and neither one is in Israel's best interests. First, the fence could be turned down in just a few years as part of a comprehensive move towards peace. Since no Palestinian negotiator could possibly accept a state fragmented by the fence, the expensive wall is destined for a short existence.

Or, if Israel insists on keeping the fence, it may eliminate the two-state option altogether. Demographically, Jews will not remain a majority in the "Greater Israel" between the Jordan River and the Mediterranean.

The hard-liners who support the wall would be well reminded of this fact, and the very democratic nature of Israel's government means that without a Jewish majority, it will not be a Jewish state.

When Ariel Sharon was elected in the wake of a new "intifada," few expected he would be as conciliatory as his predecessor. Still, the fence is over the top, and it will create a serious barrier to an already elusive peace.

Israel would do well to stop construction immediately, before the money has been spent and the investment in a failed venture made. There are other ways to combat terrorism, and Israel has perhaps the best experience and security infrastructure in the world for finding alternatives to the wall.

Until Yasser Arafat has been replaced by someone not tied to a history of terrorism, the peace process will not move forward. However, Israel must avoid taking steps backward in the process.

Bush's so-called "road map" has all but failed, but someday the two sides will have to forge a peace, and the last thing they need is a new issue to resolve before Palestinian statehood.

WEEK IN REVIEW

Here's a look back at events and issues from last week. If you want to sound off on any of these, e-mail the Dialogue desk at dialogue@kykernel.com

MONDAY

The Kernel reported that the Lexington City Council on Sept. 26 approved a proposal to turn some abandoned warehouses on South Broadway into apartment buildings that could house about 900 students in 332 units. The $25 to $30 million project will include vinyl and brick buildings with two or three stories, to be completed by 2005.

The project developers are discussing the possibility of a pedestrian and cycling bridge with Norfolk Southern Railroad, which has railroad tracks nearby.

Area residents have said they are concerned with how an influx of students might change the neighborhood's atmosphere.

TUESDAY

Architecture professor John Russell "Russ" Groves died Sept. 27 in a plane crash, the Kernel reported.

"It is a devastating loss for us, not just for the college, but because of the man," David Mohney, Architecture dean, told a Kernel reporter.

Groves had a Ph.D. from the UK College of Education and was a graduate from UK's Architecture, Law and Paterson schools. He was also a major general in the U.S. Army and served six years as Kentucky Adjutant General, the commander in chief of the state's armed forces, the department of emergency management and military adviser to the governor.

WEDNESDAY

Professors and women's rights advocates from around the world met Wednesday and Thursday for a discussion of preventing violence against women.

UK's Center for Research on Violence against Women sponsored a national conference, "Toward a National Research Agenda on Violence Against Women" at the Marriott Griffin Gate Resort.

Participants included UK faculty and students, local advocates, researchers from 40 universities and a delegate from Nepal.

Major topics in the symposium included the physical and mental health implications of violence, methodologies, offender typologies, the responsibility of the justice system concerning women's safety and risk factors of violence.

THURSDAY

The Lexington City Council is discussing whether to extend the mandatory bar serving times from 1 a.m. to 2 a.m., the Kernel reported.

The proposal comes as a way of appeasing bar owners who expect to sustain financial losses from Lexington's smoking ban, which the Council passed but is currently on hold by an injunction from the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

While a survey by the UK Survey Research Center found that the smoking ban would not heavily dampen businesses' revenues, many bar and restaurant owners say they would be in favor of lengthening hours to pad a possible blow from the ban.

FRIDAY

An association of 16 Lexington churches has called on public officials and agencies to correct what the churches say are social injustices and inequities in the community, the Lexington Herald-Leader reported on Friday.

The interracial, ecumenical churches have joined as Building a United Interfaith Lexington through Direct-Action, or BUILD.

BUILD members have identified three issues they want to address in a meeting with public officials Nov. 3 at Shiloh Baptist Church: drug problems in neighborhoods, communication with the elderly, improving the high school experience for students, with focus on alleged injustices at Bryan Station High School.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

SG's goal is advocacy, diversity

I am writing this in response to the Sept. 26th opinion column and quotes from students. The purpose is to clarify what student government does.

First, the role of SG is to be a student advocacy group. However, this does not mean that social events are clearly outside the bounds of SG's responsibility.

Events such as Gator Roast were organized as a response to students' complaints that there were few of any of those types of events on campus. SG took the lead last year as student advocate and set up Hoosier Daddy? and Gator Roast.

The partnership with SAB this year reflects the fact that while this was established by SG as a response to student desires, these are functions that also step into SAB's jurisdiction.

Second, the Student Government does not have free reign to give and spend money anywhere. A number of student quotes that ran beside the opinion recommended that SG spend money in places such as the Art Department and parking. These fall outside of the mandate of SG.

SG uses the money to fund activities that are set up by the various student organizations on campus or SG for the use and enjoyment of all students. These include legal counsel, tax service, and funding grants for activities.

SG can and does advocate for a better parking system and now has control of parking appeals, but we cannot simply subsidize the parking system.

Third, SG does provide money for scholarships as well as child care grants. We are also doing more to publicize all of these and we encourage all students to apply for them.

But as the student advocate, we must represent the diverse interests of all of UK's student body. That is why we have big events such as Gator Roast in addition to all that we already do.

Forwards Ramsey, Jones help defeat Arkansas

By Tim Wiseman
STAFF WRITER

Seventeen seconds nearly spoiled Sunday afternoon for the UK women's soccer team. But UK freshman forward Elisabeth Jones made sure that did not happen.

Less than two minutes into overtime, Jones scored to give UK a 3-2 victory over the Arkansas Lady Razorbacks.

The goal saved the day for the Cats (5-1, 3-0 Southeastern Conference) who saw Arkansas (5-4-2, 1-1 SEC) erase UK's two-goal lead in a span of 17 seconds in the second half.

Early in the second half, Arkansas freshman midfielder Christina Burger sprinted past the UK defense and then knocked one past UK's frozen freshman goalkeeper, Anne Ogundele.

Seventeen seconds later, Burger did it again, scoring on almost the same play from almost the same spot.

"There was a five-minute lapse in our game," UK head coach Warren Lipka said. "After those five minutes, we took the game back."

Prior to that, UK had control of the game.

Three minutes into the game, UK senior forward Lauren Russell put away a one-touch pass from senior forward Elizabeth Ramsey to put the Cats on top 1-0.

Late in the first half, Ramsey set up another goal, this one by sophomore forward Courtney McCrudden. That second assist moved Ramsey past Annie Gage as UK's career assists leader.

That solid play is just what Ramsey does, Lipka said. "She is the backbone of this team," he said. "I think people don't actually appreciate her until they see her play in person."

Ramsey played every minute of Sunday's physical contest which saw hard hits and four yellow cards, including one for Ramsey.

In overtime, Ramsey sparked the Cats' final scoring opportunity. Ramsey lobbed a pass into the penalty box toward Russell. Arkansas freshman goalkeeper Carrie Dillsaver met Russell in front of the goal as the pass arrived. The two collided, and the ball bounced away — right to UK's Jones.

UK's bench mobbed Jones while Arkansas players pleaded for the goal to be disallowed.

"It wasn't much of a goal, but it went in," Jones said.

Jones may not have been that impressed by her first career goal, but it meant a great deal to the Cats. The goal kept UK undefeated in SEC play and completed a UK sweep of the weekend's pair of home matches.

On Friday, UK defeated Louisiana State 2-0 behind goalkeeper Anne Ogundele's second straight shutout. Ramsey and sophomore forward Ashley Schillig scored for the Cats.

The SEC wins also made history for Lipka, as he became the second coach in SEC history to reach 50 conference wins.

The Cats next play at Alabama at 7 p.m. Oct. 10.

Cool Cats drop two games in series with Rivermen

With depleted benches due to injuries and penalties, Cats get first losses of year against Missouri-St. Louis

Ben Roberts
STAFF WRITER

The Cool Cats dropped the second game of a week-end doubleheader to the Missouri-St. Louis Rivermen by a score of 7-4 Saturday.

After jumping out to an early 2-0 lead, UK's defense surrendered five goals in the latter half of the second period. The Cool Cats never recovered.

The Cats fought back with two early third period goals to cut Missouri-St. Louis' lead to 5-4, but that was as close as UK could get.

Although they fell short on their comeback bid, the players said the way they came out ready to play in the third period was a positive they could carry into the future.

"We came out in the third period and skated our butts off and that showed a lot of heart," defender Chris Zaremski said. "Hopefully we'll be able to carry that momentum into practice."

Zaremski and forward Alex Poulos led the Cats offensively with one goal and one assist apiece. Forward Lee Napier assisted on two goals for UK.

Depleted by injuries, the Cool Cats (4-2) lost both games of the series to suffer their first setback of the young season. They played without injured team captains Colin Hoss and Justin Smither. Forward Matt York and defender Rob Dennis were also out with injuries.

Defender Dustin Hamilton was suspended for Saturday's game stemming from an on-ice incident the night before. He will also be suspended for this weekend's games against DePaul because of an altercation with Rivermen players after Saturday's game.

Despite being shorthanded throughout the weekend, UK head coach Mike Sosnowski stopped short of blaming the losses on the team's injuries.

"Injuries hurt us, but every team's got them," Sosnowski said. "That's the reason why we have 22 guys on the roster. We can't blame these losses on injuries."

Sosnowski said every healthy player on the team saw considerable action in Saturday's contest.

Until the injured Cool Cats return to the ice, those UK players that aren't out with injuries said they know in order for the team to be successful they will have to improve their play.

"We're going to get them back," Poulos said. "Until then everybody knows that we all have to step it up a notch." In addition to the injuries, infractions on the ice further cut into the Cool Cats' bench. UK committed 12 minor penalties and one major, which kept them on the penalty kill for much of the night.

Although they only gave up one power play goal, the team had difficulty adjusting to the tight officiating after loosely called games against Tennessee and Eastern Kentucky.

"We went from the past two weekends when the referees were handing out minor penalties for fighting to tonight, where you got a penalty for touching somebody," Zaremski said. "It was a tough adjustment."

But after losing their first games of the year, the Cool Cats exited the locker room Saturday night with a positive attitude.

"I don't think it will be a setback," Poulos said. "We had a bad weekend, but that happens to the best of teams. We all agreed that we're not going to let this faze us."

Sosnowski had no doubt that his team would be able to put the losses in the past and prepare for the series with DePaul next weekend.

"I guarantee you by Tuesday night at practice this will all be behind us."
