Letter To Legislators

Members of the Kentucky General Assembly
Frankfort, Kentucky
Gentlemen:

Sometime this week there will be offered for your consideration and approval the state budget for 1942-43, providing for the University of Kentucky an appropriation with an annual increase of $365,000 over last year's.

The students of the University would like to take this opportunity to request your serious consideration and support for this item.

As you probably know, the University has been operating on depression standards for ten years now. The decrease in the University appropriation, made during the depression year of 1931, has never been restored, and the University, with an increase of approximately one-third in number of students, is still operating on a budget of $127,207 less than it received in 1931.

We here at the University can well realize what this means, for we see the needs of the school around us everyday. We can see professors and instructors, most of whom have Ph. D. degrees and are recognized as outstanding men in their fields, working sometimes for less than $2,000 per year. We see them occasionally take on outside work—often to the detriment of their University duties—to make up for the small salary allowed them by the University. We see the cream of the University's crop of instructors being hired away by other—and often smaller—schools which can offer them more.

In our classrooms we find laboratories insufficiently equipped, much-needed facilities unprovided, important work for the benefit of the state and the training of its future citizens and voters undone. A recent survey found the men's dormitories, had men from all over the state are housed, in bad need of certain supplies and equipment and service which have to go unprovided because of insufficient funds.

The General Looks Ahead

From the office of Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, of unenviable yoo-hoo reputation, comes an announcement this week which indicates that the nail-biting old war horse of the Second Army is as wide awake to the mental needs of his men and his nation as he is to their needs for marching practice.

For—and we believe this is an unprecedented movement in Army training—the general is going to make sure the buck privates and the colonels of his army know what they are fighting for. Beginning January 13 the officers and enlisted men of the Second Army will be required to attend two lectures weekly for 13 weeks, intended to give them a background knowledge of world geography and history, United States history and democratic principles, and the current world crisis, and one lecture on military subjects not covered in their general training, including information on other areas of the service, the duties of various ranks, and the use of propaganda.

If the lectures express a civilian viewpoint,

SOUR NOTES In The New World Symphony

(This new department is begun in The Kernel to call attention to words and actions of Congressmen and ordinary people who apparently have failed to learn the lesson of the Treaty of Versailles. Keep your eyes on these men; they may turn out to be saboteurs of the next peace.)

Veteran isolationist Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada, 65: "(In any peace treaty) we should take care of America first. Every other country is looking out for itself and we should look out for ourselves. The old German states should be separated and kept separated."

Illinois Senator Scott Lucas, 49: "Japan should be reduced to the point where for 1,000 years she will have no control or force in the family of nations. That goes for Germany and Italy, too."

Nebraska's Senator George W. Norris, 80: "Their (Japanese) cities are open to attack... that is just war that will happen."

Wise ... and otherwise

BY BOB AMMONS

The Kernel's award for Side-Stepper-of-the-Week, with palms, goes to Leslie McComas, mop-headed Commerce student. Just before the Christmas holidays, the story is going around. Prof. James A. Martin passed out to his public finance class some mimeographed sheets of facts to be used in evidence in a theoretical tax trial before the state court of appeals. The question: draw up what you believe the court would rule in this case.

At the end of the class, the papers, some of them three and four pages long, were turned in. And among them was McComas' almost-blank sheet, with the brief answer: "In a McComas' case as important as this, I believe the court would rule there was not sufficient evidence."

You're-In-Kentucky-Just-As-Sure-As-You're-Born-Here

A story on the first baby born in Fayette county in 1942 was placed on the front page of the Leader with a one-column head almost at the bottom of the page. The first foal in the county rated a three-column picture at the top.

Reflection on hemisphere solidarity:
It takes a crisis to unite.
Things are pretty dark, we'll admit, but there is one sign of hope: girls have quit wearing angora sweaters.

What with the odd assortment of names on the floor Saturday night at the Xavier-Kentucky game announcer approached the verge of neurosis several times with situations like: "Up from the back court to Back in the front court; a fake to Akers who passes to Staker; Staker to Brewer, taken by Krueger. And then... and then... there's Gates wide open!"

All in all, it was a grueling night.

Kernel Operator Blasts Writer Of Editorial

To the Editor of The Kernel:

This method is chosen as the one legal channel through which my "sour notes" may be submitted to the rejection of University students and faculty, to fall among the rank and file of similar expressions.

Work for The Kernel in the capacity of a typewriter operator, I am forced to read a large portion of the paper every week, and since it is the lot of an operator to follow copy strictly, my responses have been withheld. Consequently I have learned the meaning of the word "tolerance" mentioned in today's editorial on intellectualism. But, every once in a while the top blows off. The proof-reader, for the sake of his job, may well look out for "sour" interjections in future Kernels.

Today, for instance, the initial statement in the reprinted editorial on college intellectualism has no basis of truth whatever—read it for yourself and see if the writer knows what he is on. The second paragraph may be overlooked with a degree of tolerance with no reflection on the writer.

The third idea—getting down to the point—is "College education is depriving us of emotion, of enthusiasm, national spirit and passion." I ask you, what is this writer doing around a college? Intellectualism which undermines the reasoning ability which higher learning seeks to develop, but in this time especially some clarity of thought should prevail over emotion.

Perhaps this is the kind of "emotionalism" that national spirit and passion? Mr. Cowley means: "Remember Pearl Harbor." (Quoted by President Donovan in his issue.)

"We should take care of America first" where have we heard that?

Calls For 'Dances As Usual'

VICE OF THE PEOPLE BY ROY STENFORD

The next time that I advance in the general direction of a sorority house I'll probably be sorry.

Two of the more prominent lodges last week announced that they had cancelled their annual dances along with the regular Friday afternoon open houses.

The money saved from the reduced social schedule would be donated to our government for national defense bonds. Now the thought of giving the money to Uncle S. is a very noble and patriotic gesture. Uncle Sam, goodness knows, needs the money.

The idea of the younger generation—the college students—forsaking their social life for the promotion of the war made a hit with the public.

The downtown newspapers carried prominently displayed stories. The Associated Press carried a dispatch informing AP readers that the University of Kentucky students were doing their part to defeat the enemy.

Here's a question. What price do we have to pay for the student morale that we enjoyed earlier in the year—before the Pearl Harbor incident.

It seems to me that if we could maintain that spirit that is characteristic of our go-to-hell generation, we would be contributing a large share in winning the war.

President Donovan said at the start of the war that the government had a place for every student.

Mr. Glenn Miller Has High Opinion Of Juke-Box Generation Of 1942

I WITNESS BY BOB BAKER

Glenn on everything he said about us. In this particular, time when we as a whole are apt to get pretty discouraged at times such optimistic faith in us by one of our idols is going a long way toward giving us a lot of faith in ourselves and toward getting us out of a rut.

Probably no one that I know of is more capable of getting people out of a rut than Glenn Miller. If anyone has reason to doubt this just let him listen to Glenn's version of "Chattanooga Choo-Choo."

We believe that the quickest way to win this war would be to install juke boxes in all of our trenches and cockpits and play his "In The Mood" just before they went over the top.

If this wouldn't halt the most hated of our enemies, there is nothing wrong—unless it might be Tommy Dorsey's version of "Swing High" or "Yes Indeed."

DAILY SINKING GET THE JAPS IN DUTCH

When the Dutch first came out of their avowed to sink a Jap ship each and every day the Japs laughed and they were forced to pick the laughter out of their teeth as their ships began to go down with the regularity of the sun.

It seems that the little Nippon has underestimated the nutty kid named Glenn Miller. He has done thus far not mentioned as becoming exhausted.

According to our notes, this was the first totalitairian set-back since the war began which was not explained by pointing out that their army, navy and air force were in violent action gaining just and peaceful conquest but now would be cheating. During a test, if a student sees someone around him cheating, he taps on the desk with his pencil or pen and all the other students join in. This is sufficient to let the offender know that he's been sighted and will give him a chance to change his tactics.

Tapping persists if cheating persists. The idea was introduced as a protective measure for the conscientious students who resented the unfavorable reputation the University was getting from persistent cheating. The campaign is sponsored by Mortar board.

ADD WAR TOLL

To your list of victims of war rumors, add members of the George Washington University student body.

The day war was declared went got around that there would be no American Lit. class at 11. So half the class stayed away. Those that went were rewarded by a half hour lecture. The remainder of the class to the next class to find they were a period behind in their work. Acquainted to the instructor the moral is, "In time of war go about your daily routine as usual, ignoring all rumors."

ON THE COLLEGE FRONT BY JIMMY HURT

Everyone received a certain amount of satisfaction from the Rose Bowl game this year except the scalpers, who, for one, came out on the short end.

The scalpers who usually greet all unsuccessful seekers of Rose Bowl tickets with the offers of bleacher seats for twelve dollars and up were "scalped" themselves.

As always they were outside the gate advertising their wares—but not as tradition would have it. This time the scalpers were a bit unhappy. Instead of the customary cries of "Bleacher seats, fifteen dollars!" were desperate pleas for takers at "Two for a quarter!"

One story was circulated concerning the scalpers who bought over 200 tickets at $4.00, expecting to "clean up," but ended up eating their own words.

THEY'RE FORTUNATE

'HEY HITLER' IS WORKER'S HAIL

BY BOB BORDEN
"Hey Hitler" and his passing-by words these days. The passer-by, a bit stammered with such a blunt greeting...

Always wearing a sloppy gray hat, baggy pants, and a shabby blue coat, he discusses topics that center in his interests from day to day while working on the campus.

Born and raised in Cincinnati, he attended the German school there. When he came to Kentucky he worked as a share cropper on one of the Fayette county farms.

In 1926 Fitch began working for the University and has been here ever since. "In those days," he said, "the students didn't throw much paper on the grounds."

Next time you pass this singing worker give him a greeting—he's sure to appreciate it.

Pearce Recommends Heels, Stockings, Hats, Nail Polish

By TONI
What do you like in women's clothes? "Women," John Ed Pearce replied promptly. "Men look like hell in them."

Pearce, the Norton, Va., boy who came west and made a big noise, was exploiting and exploiting his views and misgivings on the feminine sex and what they wear and don't wear in an interview yesterday.

The interview had started with a fellow journalist of the former Kernel columnist, now United Press correspondent, but Pearce fumed heavily and decided to air his thoughts on the subject: women's clothes.

"Man, I've got good taste," he boomed when I raised a questioning eyebrow. "With a mother and five children, I don't know how to do it."

The model college woman has a sense of humor, a good figure combined with good looks, and a fair intellectual background. She doesn't drink to excess, and smokes if she wishes, in spite of the fact that "men's taste" is to smoke.

"Skirts and sweaters are overdue. I like 'em. In fact, I like 'em better than the pompadour and 'over one eye' types, which he described with gestures.

Pearce-approved fashions include: strapless and bare midriff forms, upstuck collars, bright nail polishes, gloves in the hair, and on the wrist rather than on corsets.

"That's enough," he decided, leaving with just one more thing to add to UK women—"Always wear high heels and stockings on a date!"

FOUR-TERM YEAR

merly taught by a colleague who has been called into the service.

There will be few graduate assistants available next year. The entire teaching load will likely fall on the regular staff.

"Some members of our faculty will be called into the army, others will be drafted by the government for special assignments, and business may require the services of a few. The president will recommend to the trustees that any professor leaving to serve his country at this time will be given a leave of absence for the emergency."

MORE FINANCIAL AID SOUGHT
The president opened his address on "Some Views about the University" by recounting his efforts to secure additional financial aid to the budget.

"How Dr. McVey and his colleagues have piloted the University through this past decade of financial adversity and kept it a great institution is little short of miraculous. Kentucky owes him and you a great debt of gratitude."

He said that the present state legislature had been asked for an increase of appropriation of a third of a million dollars.

BASE SALARIES FIRST
This would be cause for considerable rejoicing. But staring us in the face is Pearl Harbor—War—war, and the drop in age. If a thousand students drop out of the University we shall be but little better off.

The University Board of Trustees' salaries should be made as soon as funds are available, the speaker asserted.

"It has been my intention to recommend to the trustees that a considerable sum from the increase in our appropriation be set aside for the purpose of improving our salary situation. This will be done if the loss in fees does not absorb our increase in the appropriation."

"You are entitled to know that I will not take any recommendation to the board for a major expansion of any character at the University until we are able to increase to some extent the salaries of staff members. I am receiving both with honors those that fall in the lower ranges," he explained.

"Human resources are far more important to an institution than material things. These human resources must be protected."

In regard to a building program, including construction of the proposed field house, Dr. Donovan said, six months ago it was both ambitious and realistic about building programs for the University. War today is destroying our wealth and material resources on a national scale. It can predict what effect it will have on institutions. The University's building needs will be presented to the people again when it is wise to do so.

BUILDING PROGRAM WISE
"Kentucky could be persuaded to consider a ten-year building program for the University if it were an investment in civilization worthy of a people who possess self-sufficiency."

Quoting an example of loyalty to superiors from a marine enlisted man's letter, the president commented, "If there is one thing above another that I expect to do as president of the University, it is to attempt to discover those men and women who are the superior teachers of the University and duly award them for their work, and this information is not difficult to obtain."

In regard to research work, the speaker declared that, "We shall be pleased to aid faculty members within reasonable limits with their publication of findings of a significant character."

GRADUATE SCHOOL IS GOOD
Explaining the status of the graduate school, he said, "At present the University is recognized as having one of the best graduate schools of the South. Our institution ranks fourth in the number of graduate degrees conferred. We are one of the eight institutions in the South offering the Ph. D. degree."

Law Senior Brock Studies, Makes Laws At Same Time

Hiram M. Brock Jr., a senior in the law college, is also Harlan county representative to the state legislature.

It makes quite a commutator of him as he attends classes 12 hours a week as well as sessions of the legislature. His plan is to take his classes at 8 a. m. or on week-ends so that he can be in his seat when the roll is called in the late afternoon.

So far he has been able to keep his duties and his studies from conflicting, but he said he was afraid that next semester his schedule might make it impossible for him to keep his dual role. The General Assembly, he said, is likely to meet at night from now on to clear business, thus necessitating his missing sessions or turning a risk of having excessive cuts.

The son of a former state senator, Brock is a graduate of Harlan high school. He received his A. B. degree from Eastern State Teacher's College in 1939, and in the same year was married to Eula Nunney of Prestonsburg.

He was elected representative to the legislature without Democratic opposition by representatives of 98 districts in the November election. He was the first representative to be thus elected in the district's history.

Three members of the original freshman class of Queen's college that was graduated in June have returned to the campus as members of the faculty.

Stahr Operates Army Antitank Gun

Lieutenant Stahr Is Rhodes Scholar From State In 1936

The United States Army draws its men from every walk of life and of all degrees of education and intelligence. Lieut. Elvin J. Stahr Jr., of Hickman, Ky graduate of the class of 1936, holder of three degrees from the University and Oxford university, is pictured above operating a 37-millimeter antitank gun.

Enrolled in a company officers course at the Infantry Post, Benning, Ga. Stahr is learning the intricacies of the antitank equipment.

After receiving his A. B. degree from Kentucky, Lieutenant Stahr was named Rhodes Scholar from Kentucky for 1936. At Oxford, he earned the degrees of B. A. and E. C. L., receiving both with honors.

Returning to the United States, he took the New York bar examination while practicing in New York City with the firm of Mudge, Stern, Williams, and Tucker when called to active service.

Lieutenant Stahr received his commission while a University student, being Cadet Colonel of the ROTC units during his senior year. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Chi, Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership honorary; Tau Kappa Alpha; Scabbard and Blade, military honorary; Pershing Rifles, and Sigma Chi, social fraternity of which he is a former national officer. He was president of the class of 1936.

A Kentucky Colonel, Stahr is the son of the Kentucky State Senator and Mrs. E. J. Stahr of Hickman. He is listed in the latest edition of Who's Who in Kentucky. He now has a certificate of capacity for promotion to first lieutenant.

At the Infantry school in Fort Benning, Stahr is taking a course that will qualify him upon graduation in all fields of infantry arm and company management.

James To Report To Fort Benning
Information has been received at the Alumni office that Ernest L. James, UK graduate of 1933, Clark county agricultural agent for 18 years, has been ordered to report to Fort Benning, Ga., Wednesday.

James, former football player at the University, holds a first lieutenant's commission in the infantry reserve. While at the University, he was a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity; Scabbard and Blade, military honorary; Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership honorary; Alpha Zeta and Block and Bridge, agricultural honorees.

Mrs. James, the former May Elizabeth Bolts of the class of 1933, was a member of the Chi Omega social society and Phi Upsilon Omicron, Home Economics honorary.

Knox, '36; Davis, '29; Are In US Army
David Bennett Knox, graduate of the class of 1936, now is an Army lieutenant stationed at Chanute field, Illinois. He is a son of Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Knox of Scott county.

Chief of the surgical service at Bowman field base hospital at Louisville, Howell J. Davis, University graduate of 1939, is a captain in the army corps. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Davis of 420 West Sixth street, Lexington.

Five Servicemen Are Given Credits
Among students entering United States service this semester one arts and sciences senior, Wayne McKinney of Adairville will be accredited with his work enabling him to receive a degree. A journalism major, he would have finished in January.

A faculty ruling of September 17 made it possible for any student who was accepted into the services of the United States armed forces or as Reserve Officers during the remainder of the semester, to receive credit for each course in which he was passing at the time of withdrawal.

Other arts and science men given credit for their work are: Gayle Alexander, Lexington, junior; Cecil P. Taylor, Beaver Dam, junior; Carleton C. Moore Jr., Lexington sophomores; and Jack S. Gathof, Louisville senior.

In other colleges of the University 30 students have left for either the Army, Navy, or air corps since Christmas, but official records have not yet been received from their stations enabling the deans of the different colleges to give credits.

TERM PROGRAM OF INTRAMURALS IS POSTED

Free Throw Tourney To Start Tonight In Gym Annex

The intramural sports program for the remainder of the present semester has been outlined and posted at the Intramural office by C. W. Hackenschmidt, intramural supervisor.

Preliminary throws in the free throw tournament will be held at 7:15 p. m. today in the gym annex. Final throws will be held Thursday night at the same time.

Entries in basketball for fraternity A, B, C, and D teams, and also for independent teams are due by 4:00 p. m. next Tuesday. Teams entering these leagues should sign up at the Intramural office for at least one practice session each week until final examinations begin.

The deadline for first round matches in handball singles and doubles has been set for 6 p. m. tomorrow.

In a bulletin issued last week, Professor Hackenschmidt emphasized the responsibility and obligation of every individual American to keep himself in physical fit in view of the present world crisis. "That implies not only participation in intramural sports but also in putting in additional hours of physical activity in the gymnasium," stated Professor Hackenschmidt.

"You can not fight a war sitting around talking about it," continued Professor Hackenschmidt. "The watchword is ACTION and plenty of it. You can do your share in many ways, and keeping your body in the best of physical condition is one of these. More than 50 percent of the men are rejected for armed service because of physical defects and because they lack the stamina and endurance to take it."

Huber, Ex-Cat Star, Will Enlist In Navy

Lee Huber, former all-conference basketball star for Kentucky and joiner the Navy soon, he told a Kernel reporter yesterday. Huber, who was graduated in 1941, will be appointed a chief petty officer.

Since graduation Huber has been playing with the professional football team of the professional football club of Akron, Ohio. He played in the All-Star game at Chicago and through last week was sixth in scoring among professionals.

Huber will probably join the Great Lakes Naval Training Station team which has been playing college teams all over the country. He performs at a guard position.

Allen's Last-Second Foul Shots Beat Xavier Musketeers, 40-39

Cincinnati Fans See 'Miracle' In Final Seconds

By JIMMY BROWN, Kernel Sports Writer
Kentucky's Big Blue cagers accomplished the seemingly impossible Saturday night when they nosed out Xavier's Musketeers, 40-39, with a hair raising finish that probably has the 3,000 Cincinnati fans who witnessed it believing that the age of miracles has returned.

For with only eight seconds left in the game, and Xavier controlling the ball with a one-point lead, it appeared that only a miracle could save the Cats from defeat. And it happened in the form of a split-second thinking of Ermal Allen, one of the greatest, scrappiest clutch players ever to wear the Blue. Drooping through two free shots with the coolness of an iceberg as the clock showed only three left, Allen lifted his team from almost inevitable defeat to a hard-earned victory.

The game was a bitterly contested affair all the way, with the exception of a few minutes late in the first half when the Cats gained a 10-point lead. Xavier jumped out in front to start the game, but Kentucky soon drew even and went ahead. The Cats guarded the Musketeers closely during the first half and allowed them only three goals.

The Cat half-time advantage was 22-15.
XAVIER COMES BACK
Xavier, with high-scoring Bert Robben doing most of the work, came back with a rush in the second half, and midway of the period vaulted into the lead, 32-31. From there on till the end of the game the lead alternated, and with Xavier leading, 36-33, with two minutes and a half left, it looked like certain that the Wildcats, Allen and Brewer closed the gap, however, and with a minute and a half left the score was tied 39-39. Then Ramsey was called for charging into Quinn, Xavier guard, and he made it good to apparently clinch things. The Musketeers regained control of the ball and attempted to start the final few seconds. Quinn broke loose for a basket but was called for traveling, and the Wildcats took over. Allen grabbed the ball, took one step over the center line and let it fly goalward. As he shot he was hooked by Foley, and the Cats had the ball game. After the game-winning shots, the Musketeers did not have time enough to bring the ball back across the center line.

Although Allen grabbed a well-deserved lion's share of the glory, he was not the only star. Cat performer Mel Brewer, who did yeoman work at the center post in the absence of Jim King, kept the Cats in the game with five timely field goals, good for high scoring hours among the Blue netters. However, Bert Robben, Musketeer forward from Louisville, led all scorers with 19 points.

THE TENNESSEE SATURDAY
The Cats began strenuous prep work yesterday for their opening Southeastern conference tilt of the season Saturday night at Knoxville, against Tennessee's Volunteers, defending champions of the Big 12.

At present, Johnny Mauer's Athletics share the conference leadership with Auburn, both with two wins and no losses, and a Cat win would average last year's loss at Knoxville as well as Tennessee's triumph in the finals of the SEC tourney. The Vols have only one loss to mar their otherwise glistening record this year. They lost to Duke, 37-35, in an upset, but among their wins are victories over Long Island, 36-33, Alabama, 37-15, and Mississippi, 42-39. They defeated Xavier's Musketeers by a ten-point margin, 40-30.

The Cats have already been promised a stormy visit whether they win or lose. Reports coming from the Tennessee city assure Coach Rupp and his cagers that they will get their usual going-over from "heckler's row." Last year this "jeering" section aroused some controversy between the two schools, but Rupp asserted that he could take it, and the matter was dropped.

UK ATHLETICS RUN AT CAPACITY POTTER SAYS

All-Out Program Would Not Enlarge Present System

Declaring that the University athletic program is operating at its capacity now, Prof. M. E. Potter, head of the physical education department, said "An all-out program of athletics to give physical training to all eligible college men would not materially enlarge the physical education program."

For the past eight years all the facilities available at the University have been used to offer one of the most adequate programs that could be devised, Professor Potter declared.

To illustrate his statement he cited these figures:
Last year 1800 men and women enrolled in the department for regular classes.

In intramurals, which are voluntary and apart from the regular physical education program, 400 boys played basketball, 325 boys played softball, 275 boys played touch football; 100 took part in boxing and wrestling matches 200 took part in track and field events, 150 played tennis, and 100 in badminton matches.

Although admitting that there was some overlapping of enrollees in physical education courses and participants in intramurals, Professor Potter declared that it could be safely estimated that at least 2200 persons took part in physical training courses during last year.

KERNEL SPORTS Sporting Way

BY JOHNNY CARRICO

"It was like sitting in the electric chair, strapped and ready for the executioner to throw the switch, and then having a fellow dash in and yell, 'Hold it, we got a reprieve.'" That was the way Adolph Rupp described his feelings over the way Kentucky took away Xavier's candy Saturday night in the Cincinnati field house.

"There were eight seconds left, we were one point behind, and Xavier had the ball. If that isn't sitting in the hot seat ... That boy doesn't have any blood in him; he's all ice."

Ermal himself says that he was sure that he was going to sink both of them. Every voice in the field house was strained to its utmost to upset the little Kentucky forward when he stepped to the foul line. "They didn't bother me a bit; I just concentrated on that hoop," he said.

The pressure must have been terrific. With the thunder from the stands practically shutting out everything else, and the tension on the floor tight enough to give him the "bends," Allen coolly and deliberately let loose the sinkers that rocked the Musketeers' dream boat.

The ball didn't even touch the hoop on either tries. There's something about the Cincy field house that stimulates the Cats to do the thing up brown. Last year Milt Tico set a scoring record for the field house when he tallied 26 points. This year Allen stood 'em on their heads. Next season we expect to hear that Adolph himself counted 15 points in the last 15 seconds to beat the Muskies.

Word comes from the local papers that the Knoxville fans are practicing their throustest catcalls and their most boorish boos in anticipation of Kentucky's visit to the Vol stronghold Saturday.

"The outcome of next Saturday's game may be in doubt, but this much is certain—the redoubtable Mr. Rupp will get a classic going-over from the gallery that will be heard all the way to Lexington." This reads the story concerning the preparations for Rupp's visit.

Last year Rupp took his boys to play in the Vol gym and it was like throwing the Christians to the lions—that is, except for the fact that no self-respecting lion would be associated with the animals that inhabit the heckling gallery organized to ride the Baron and his boys.

Rupp took the attack with good grace, although the episode was highly repugnant in every aspect. The Vols came to Lexington later in the season and were treated to every consideration on the part of the crowd. The jacks in Knoxville were dismayed, expecting that their boys would be treated to the Tennessee brand of hospitality.

The pack on the Hill should have learned a lesson from last season—that you can win a game without harassing tactics from the spectators. But I guess not. Evolutionists tell us that it took several aces to bring man from the monkey stage; it's probably asking too much to change hyenas in one season.

Stealing Game From Xavier, Allen Becomes 'Cat Burglar'

By JOHNNY CARRICO Kernel Sports Editor

Ermal Allen's grand larceny of the Xavier game Saturday night projected him into the ranks of other Wildcat burglars who stole games in fleeting seconds of combat.

With only three seconds of play left, Allen stepped to the foul line and, with the entire house roaring in his ears, coolly dropped in two free throws that broke Musketeer hearts.

Allen's three-second reprieve is a record for Kentucky thefts. Keith Farnley pilfered games twice—once with eight seconds left and another with 19 seconds remaining. Farnley brought Kentucky a Southeastern conference championship in 1940 when he fired a field goal that gave the Wildcats a one-point margin. Eight seconds remained in the contest.

Last year Farnley netted a birdie that defeated Vanderbilt 51-50. Ten seconds before the Commodores were already counting their chickens.

The legendary last breath recovery was turned in by Joe Hagan against Marquette in 1938. With only 12 seconds separating the Wildcats from defeat, Hagan fired one from the middle of the floor which gave the Big Blue a one-point victory. A nail in the floor of Alumni gym commemorates the spot from which Hagan shot.

Kentucky has not always been so fortunate. In their first appearance in Madison Square garden the Wildcats were defeated when with 12 seconds left, a NYU player converted a free throw to master the Wildcats.

One morning, Mrs. Edwards saw something in her newspaper that she had been waiting for... an advertisement which read: "A few new coats Specially Priced at $49.95." Mrs. Edwards went right down town and bought one. It was exactly what she wanted, at exactly the price she wished to pay. The transaction was quick, pleasant, and extremely satisfactory to all concerned. Mrs. Edwards knows a thing or two about VALUES. Furthermore, she knows how to SHOP. She reads the advertisements in this newspaper carefully, every issue. And then she buys. That's the way to save time trouble and money.
