COLLEGE OF LAW

The College of Law of the University of Kentucky was organized under the provisions of an act of the legislature of the State of Kentucky passed in 1908 as one of the first steps in the development of the law school for the admission of students in September, 1908, and the first class graduated in June, 1910. The present session is the eighteenth session of the College of Law. The school has always been open to men and women students.

Within four years after the organization of the school, it became a member of the Association of American Law Schools, and it has endeavored to advance steadily the ideals of legal education in the state. In 1921, the American Bar Association recommended the standards for law schools, colleges of law, and in 1924 the College of Law of the University of Kentucky was placed on the approved list by the American Bar Association as a class A school. Beginning with the present session of 1925-26, the College of Law requires two years of college work for entrance. It is the purpose of the school to maintain the standards prescribed by the most competent authorities in the field of legal education in America and to give to the young men in this section of the country the opportunity to prepare themselves for the bar in the most thorough and scholarly way. It is believed that the lawyer can be worthy of the great profession he represents only if he has had adequate preliminary education and a three-year intensive study of legal principles through the use of leading cases.

The enrollment at the present session is 106, which is only four less than the enrollment at the first session of the year. This is an extremely creditable showing in view of the fact that the entrance requirements have been increased. From this session on the law school practically ranks as a graduate school for the reason that the great majority of students in the law classes have received preliminary degree or will receive it before graduating from the law school.

A student must now give five years to college and law work in order to obtain the law degree alone, and with one additional year, making six in all, he can obtain both the law and law degrees. Every student is urged to take this combined course.

An indication of the general recognition in Kentucky of the fact that higher standards should be required for admission to the bar is the fact that the Kentucky State Bar Association at its last meeting approved the recommendation of its committee looking to higher standards. The changes suggested by the committee are: First, that the general educational requirements shall be a high school course of minimum; second, that study in a law office be not regarded as fulfilling the requirement of law study; and third, that the applicants for admission to the bar must be graduates of a law school. These recommendations are decided steps in the direction of a well trained bar. These recommendations are to be taken up with the court of appeals which has the power to amend the rules of the bar. It is confidently expected that the court will make the changes suggested by the State Bar Association.

The design of the College of Law is to train the student in the fundamental principles of English and American law, and to equip him to practice his profession wherever that system of law prevails. As a number of the students intend to practice in the state of Kentucky, special emphasis is placed on the decisions of that state, but only as representing the current of judicial authority and precedent. The method used in all classes is the study of cases, the method of instruction followed in all the leading law schools of the country. Credit is obtained by the successful passing of the examinations. The student who successfully completes the course is awarded the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

Some indications of the high scholastic standards which are maintained in the College of Law are found in the fact that for several years past the grades in the law school correspond quite closely with the curve of grades generally recognized by institutions of high rank throughout the country. This curve is as follows: 10 per cent A grades; 20 per cent B grades; 20 per cent C grades; 20 per cent D grades; and 10 per cent E grades. A recently published statement from the office of the registrar indicates that the Law School has an average of 85 per cent in the first year, 75 per cent in the second year, and 65 per cent in the third year. The Law School faculty is an extremely gratifying showing as it indicates that the Law School faculty is definitely holding the students to high standards of work.

The ideal held before the student body is the lawyer who is honored not only as a successful attorney before the courts but also as a useful citizen in his community. At no time has the lawyer enjoyed a larger opportunity to serve the cause of justice and good will through his professional skill and right judgment than at the present time. The purpose of the College of Law to graduate only those who by reason of adequate preliminary education, diligence and ability in their professional studies in the law school and sound character are qualified to be lawyers in the highest sense of the term.

Instruction is not limited to those who choose the law as a profession, but is open also to students who desire to take the whole or a limited course in law as a practical adjunct to their education. The law is recognized as an important part of a liberal education and as an excellent foundation for a career in financial or commercial circles.

The Kentucky Law Journal is a publication issued four times during the college year by the College of Law, and has for its chief purpose the dissemination of legal literature among law students and members of the bench and bar. It is published by the law students, with the aid of law teachers and members of the bar both in and outside the state. This journal has been made the official organ of the Kentucky Bar Association.

The Journal is edited by the law students. The members of the faculty, Prof. W. L. Roberts, and the board of editors is selected from the student body. Appointment to the editorial board is regarded by the students as the highest scholastic honor in the law school, and the editorial work affords the students a valuable opportunity for accurate legal analysis and discussion.

The highest honor in the College of Law is the Lafferty Medal for Scholarship, given to the student who receives the law degree in honor of the late Judge William T. Lafferty, the founder of the College of Law and its beloved dean from 1908 until his death in 1922. It is awarded to that member of the class who has had the best general average for the three full years in the law school.

The library of the College of Law is an excellent working library consisting of about 10,000 volumes. It contains the reports of the highest courts of all the states of the United States. The library was kept up to date in 1885 have not been obtained. The need of filling this gap is the one outstanding need of the library.

In addition to the reports of the American courts there is a complete set of English law reports of the supreme courts and federal reports and a great number of annotated sets, digests and text books. The library has the finest collection in the South of bound volumes of the Law Journals from all the states of the United States. The library is kept up to date and current reports, law journals and text books are added as they are published.

The great need of the College of Law is for a building. The faculty and students are looking forward eagerly to the time when they can move into the old Chemistry building. This building can be put in excellent shape for the use of the law school. It is planned that at least one of the rooms can be arranged in the form of a court room, where court practice work can be held. Another room will be set apart as a smoker for the students. In no other college is it more important that there be quarters where the students can assemble to talk over matters of common interest. The new building will contain adequate class room facilities, offices for the faculty, a large well lighted room for the library and a girls rest room.

The Law School continues to add an additional instructor beginning with the fall semester of 1925-26. The present staff consists of Judge Lyman Chalkley, Prof. W. Lewis Roberts, Prof. H. J. Scarborough and Dean Charles J. Turck. A fifth fulltime instructor will permit an enlargement of the curriculum of the law school. The new building will contain adequate class room facilities, offices for the faculty, a large well lighted room for the library and a girls rest room.

The faculty has the assistance of a group of distinguished lawyers and judges who without compensation have conducted classes at the school. Honorable Richard C. Starnes, judge of the circuit court of Fayette county, conducts a special course in private corporations during the month of January. Other lecturers are: Flen D. Sampson, justice of court of appeals of Kentucky; James Park, referee in bankruptcy; Hugh Riddell, present Kentucky State Bar Association. The Hobson, commissioner of court of appeals of Kentucky; David C. Hunter, William E. Nichol, George W. Vaughn, Chester D. Adams, all of the Lexington Bar.

ON TO CENTRE!

Last Saturday afternoon the Kentucky Wildcats swept down Stoll field upon the Tigers from Sewanee with the spirit of win or die in their breasts and emerged victorious from the battle by the score of 14 to 0. The "Jinx" which had been overshadowing their fair for the past few seasons and which had again established itself in Coach Murphy's camp at the beginning of the present season had fled to the timber before the ferocious attack of the Wildcats and Kentucky was once again free to take an easy breath.

Tomorrow the Kentucky-Centre game, which has always been the "piece de resistance" with all Kentucky and Centre students and which has for years served to bring together enthusiasts loyal to both institutions, will be played on Cheek field in Danville. It has uniformly been, however, a sportsmanlike contest in which gentlemen meet gentlemen in tests of physical prowess, gave and received scars of battle with fine sportsmanship and walked off the field at the end of each contest without malice. It is, therefore, the football classic of Kentucky.

But what the Kernel started to say was that loyal U. of K. adherents, while desiring greatly to win the battle, are more interested in the good conduct of our students upon that day than they are in the possibility of victory.

Therefore, fellows, let's make it a day long to be remembered for good comradeship, for good sportsmanship and for good conduct in the friendly neighbor city of Danville; and above all, let us be there in a body and yell for old State!

PLAY THE GAME

On the night of Thursday, October 22, a meeting of the presidents of all fraternities and sororities, their Pan-Hellenic representative, alumni advisers and several of the most prominent alumni of the University of Kentucky met in the Lafayette hotel for the purpose of trying to thrash out the question of "What is the Matter With School Spirit and the Football Team at the University?"

This meeting of the heads of various fraternities and sororities was called because alumni felt that they could get closer to the student body through them than by any other means.

The accusation was made by several alumni present that fraternities, although not entirely responsible, to a certain degree for decadent school spirit which has been contending was prevailing throughout the student body and the team, in that politics was being played by members of various organizations represented by the team and in this way were putting royalty to their fraternities above loyalty to the university. Several instances of this statement were cited, just illustrated, such as for example: A representative of one fraternity is playing right end, his brother is playing quarterback and a man of another fraternity is playing left end. When play for a forward pass is called both of the ends go down to receive it, but the quarterback, desiring that his fraternity shall get credit for the gain, throws the ball to his brother. This keeps up indefinitely until the man playing left end becomes so disheartened because he never made the receiving end of a play, that he finally quits going down for the pass altogether. This breaks the unified spirit of the team and makes each play individual, a thing which cannot be practiced by any football eleven successfully.

The writer of this article is a fraternity man and whether the foregoing is being practiced by the members of the Wildcat aggregation he cannot say; and although he does believe that fraternities are, to a certain extent, responsible for the school spirit which prevails at this institution, he does not think that any of the members of these organizations, girls or boys, have been placing their loyalty to their group above their loyalty to the university unless it has been done so unwittingly. But, if this is true, it is the duty of each fraternity to correct such spirit in its own organization by getting out among the rest of the student body and trying to influence them to work toward a greater and more unified spirit.

Students who compose fraternities and sororities are considered leaders of the student body and, of course, should have great influence over the rest of the students. They should be "models" and what they do should be considered exemplary by those students who are not members of such organizations. Therefore, it is the duty of fraternity men and women on the campus to set the right kind of an example by showing true school spirit and perhaps, in this way, get the rest of the student body to follow.

The statement was also made at this meeting that at the beginning of the season this fall, Kentucky had a squad of about fifty-five men, fifty of whom were fraternity men, that now, she has a squad of thirty Wildcats, twenty-seven of whom are fraternity men. This fact was set out as a liability to the team because, it was said, there are so many fraternity men on the squad that non-fraternity men who wish to try-out for the team do not feel that they have an equal chance against such odds and, therefore, stay out of practice. It is very natural that athletics in such an institution as the University of Kentucky should be controlled by fraternities because at the beginning of each year all fraternities are on the lookout for such men, and if one puts in an appearance who has the other qualifications upon which fraternity men are generally picked as well as athletic quality, he usually makes a member of one of these organizations. Every fraternity makes it a goal to have the most prominent men on the campus and athletes ranked among them. But, if non-fraternity men do feel that because most of the members of the squad are fraternity men they would not have a chance to make the team it is the duty of fraternity men to go after these men and convince them that the coach at the university picks his team "On the standards of football and not on the standards of fraternities," and endeavor to induce them to come out for the team.

The student body has been criticised perhaps rightly for not helping the members of the football squad keep in training. The chief reason for this is that very few students know what the rules are. The chief rules, according to Coach Fred J. Murphy, are:

1. Not to drink.
2. Not to smoke.
3. To be in bed by 10:30 o'clock every night during the season.

It is as much the duty of each student to see that these men keep the rules as it is of the coach. We all are a part of the same institution, striving for the same goal. Girls can play as potent a hand in this as boys, by discouraging all athletes from participating in drinking or smoking if he has the desire to do so.

No one can say that the alumni of the University of Kentucky have not supported their Alma Mater loyally. This is definitely shown by the fact that the stadium and the new basketball building were built mostly by money contributed by them. These men and women do not feel that the student body of the university is showing its appreciation of these gifts as much as it might, and it is the duty of that body to get behind the alumni and plant a spirit in the institution which will carry the Wildcats to victory over any team in the South.

This great spirit should be established in the fraternities and sororities first, and they, in turn, should pass it on to the others.

COURTESY

It requires a certain temerity to write on the subject of courtesy for the reason that the reader naturally asks whether the writer practices what he preaches. Just a few days ago at a dinner table, the writer was so absorbed in a train of thought suggested by one companion that he broke in on the remarks of another. Not until later was he conscious of his rudeness. What will the gentle lady who was so rudely interrupted think if she reads this editorial?

Perhaps, however, even the horrible example is useful. Our standards of conduct are sometimes strongly modified by disgust with the conduct of others. The attractive power of goodness and beauty and truth may be stronger, but there is something to be said for the repulsive power of badness. High lights are made emphatic by the shadows. A thing may be better understood if we know what it is not. So the sinner, as well as the saint, may serve some useful function in the progress of manners and morals.

So much by way of discounting in advance the tu quoque retort, and the criticism that the only proper way to recommend courtesy is to hold aloft its noble ideal and cite its many, many beautiful examples.

If we should attempt to set down all the major and minor discourtesies which we ourselves have observed and endured at various times we would assemble a list longer than Homer's catalog of ships. There is the discourtesy of the superior in rank toward his subordinate, of the subordinate toward his superior, of parent toward child, and of child toward parent. We hear of the discourtesy of the housewife toward her servant, although it may be said that economic conditions have made the housewife more circumspect than formerly. We sometimes see or hear of the despicable snobbishness of some society woman, ancestor-worshipper or those who are money-proud. There are the discourtesies that we visit on our rivals, or our enemies. There are the discourtesies that we inflict upon our friends.

The man who smokes to the annoyance of others, the audible gum-chewer, the person who puts up an umbrella just in front of you at the ball game, the road-hog, the movie-talker, the shover in the crowd, the man who doesn't offer his car seat to the lady and the lady who glares at him in his remissness, the man who answers discourtesy with discourtesy, he who commits halitosis, or broodiness, these, and many others are "on our list."

And we often commit discourtesies in a more subtle way. We may say the nice thing at the proper moment, we overlook sending our regrets when unable to attend the party, we disparage by innuendo we over-indulge in the pleasures of sarcasm, we keep silence when others are slandered, we ignore in our prosperity old friends, those who have helped, and those who are in need of help.

The world is so full of discourtesies.

Man escapes 'em not, wherever he fees.

Discourtesy may be found in both the thoughtful and the thoughtless. It may be conscious or unconscious. It may arise from ignorance and it may result from too much concentration of attention. It may be due to egotism, selfishness, pride, self-consciousness, fear, jealousy, insincerity, or temper.

Is there insurance against discourtesy? Yes, so far as your own action is concerned, is it not altogether a matter of the etiquette book? It is not entirely a matter of humility, which is largely negative. It is rather a matter of heart and mind.

Do you really desire strongly to be a true lady or gentleman? Do you have a genuine respect for the personalities of other people? Have you learned the wisdom of Emerson, that everyone can teach you something if you will but listen? Do you value yourself rightly—not too highly, nor yet too meekly? Do you recognize not only your rights but the rights of others? Are you in favor of the Golden Rule?

So it comes down to this. Your heart must be right.

But, in addition, your mind must be alert to make the promptings of your heart effective. You see, when the writer "batted in" at the dinner table his heart was fairly right, but his mind was not properly on the job.

Big Records with Corn Gluten Feed

The sensation of the Three Big Dairy Shows of 1925 was the great herd of 100 grade cows—the pick of 200 herds in 11 States. Every one of them was fed Corn Gluten Feed.

Successful dairymen in 38 States are feeding Corn Gluten Feed because it supplies protein in its safest and most easily convertible form.

The famous cattle feeding experiment at Odessa, Iowa, 23 years ago, resulted in a victory for Corn Gluten Feed as the protein feed that pays a profit.

Corn Gluten Feed in the Poultry Mash is helping to make bigger egg records. Sheep feeders are making cheaper gains with this pure corn product as their protein supply.

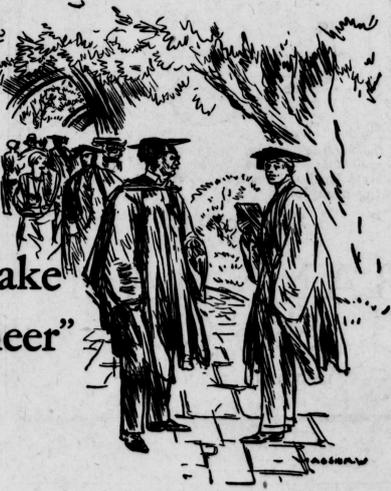

The consumption of Corn Gluten Feed is more than 600,000 tons per year. It is the best feeding part of corn. A single ton contains the protein of nearly three tons of whole grain.

Use Corn Gluten Feed in your own feeding tests. It will help you to make new records for your institution. That will help the feeders of your State to earn larger profits. Let us put you on our mailing list for the new bulletins issued by this Bureau. They will help you in your class work. Write us today.

"You'll never make an electrical engineer"

Carl Taylor

So a blond young man named Taylor, just graduating in electrical engineering at the University of North Carolina, was advised by a conscientious professor. The professor's conviction was based on quiz papers and was amply justified. But the young man was not discouraged; he had other hopes, he said. Today—ten years later—he occupies a peculiarly important position with the Westinghouse Company.

Before Carl Taylor had completed his apprenticeship with Westinghouse he began to sell apparatus to utility-customers. He had previously sold clothing in college. He had selected an electrical engineering course because he believed the industry promising for men of selling interests.

His first actual order—the electrification of a scrap yard—was awarded to him at a higher price than that asked by any other bidder because he had "lived with" the job and given all the service this implies.

Some months later the Company was surprised at a request from him for an indefinite leave of absence. He wanted to take a job with a manufacturer of steel mill machinery, in order better to understand the problems of such users of electrical equipment. His leave lasted two years. He returned from the superintendency of a well-known plant—returned at a lower salary than the superintendency had paid him. But within three years he was

The question is asked: Where do young men get when they enter a large industrial organization? Have they opportunity to exercise creative talents? Or are they forced into narrow grooves?

This series of advertisements throws light on these questions. Each advertisement takes up the record of a college man who came to Westinghouse within the last ten years, immediately after graduation.

manager of the industrial division of the Pittsburgh Sales Office—the largest division of the Westinghouse Company in the entire country. Today he has a sales organization of sixty-five men.

To get the customer's point of view—to go the limit to anticipate his wants and keep him satisfied—this is the Westinghouse sales policy. It is the policy of all enlightened industrial organizations. Men who can exemplify it in their personal careers need have no question about their futures.

"Now don't kiss me—please. As you prize your friends, mother and father, sweetheart or wife—don't!"
"Kiss me, and your friend will turn from you, cold and silent; your mother's sweet words of counsel will assail your ears never more. your sweetheart or, perchance, your wife will forsake you—because your clattering tongue will give their tongues no chance to chatter!"
(Note: Lest the more or less gentle reader turn from these words of wisdom, attributing them to some innocent maid of this generation, we think it only right to add, even at the risk of damaging our reputation for veracity, that the speaker was the Blarney stone.)

ENFORCE TRAFFIC LAWS ON CAMPUS

Automobile Owners Who Violate Regulations Will Be Notified; Third Offense Means Exclusion of Car
EZRA BELL MADE OFFICER

Efforts are being made by university officials to enforce regulations for parking automobiles on the campus. Several spaces along the roadside have been marked in order to prevent parking, and thus decrease the traffic congestion and accidents. Students and all people who drive cars on the campus have been asked to observe these rules.
Ezra Bell has been appointed by the university to enforce the parking regulations.
It is his duty, according to M. J. Crutcher, superintendent of buildings and grounds, to notify automobile owners who have violated regulations. Repeated violations will mean that those autos will be excluded from parking on the campus.
A number of traffic regulation cards have been obtained by the university and one of these will be placed in the car of each violator by Mr. Bell. If the first warning is not heeded by the owner of the machine another card will be placed in the automobile and if this proves insufficient, the license number of the machine will be taken on the third offense and the owner will be asked to leave his machine off the campus.

25 Different Species Represented in Collection; Rarest Ever Found in Kentucky
Theodore Davies, a student at the University of Kentucky, collected during the past summer a remarkable series of molluscs at the zoological laboratory near Quicksand, Ky.
Dr. Henry A. Pilsbury, curator of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, to whom the material was sent for determination, reports that 25 different species of snails are represented in the collection, some of which are very rare and some never before found in Kentucky.
The list is the largest Gastropod list ever reported for the state. Dr. Pilsbury will publish a report on the collection in the next issue of the "Nautilus."

DAIRY JUDGING TEAM WINS CUP

Awarded First Place in Ayrshire Contest and Runs Seventh in Appraising of All Breeds of Cattle

GOLD MEDALS ARE PRIZES
Winning first place in the Ayrshire judging contest and placing seventh in the judging of all breeds of cattle, the university's dairy judging team, coached by Prof. J. J. Hooper, was awarded one of the four cups offered for competition to teams representing 24 of the best state universities and agriculture colleges in the United States and Canada at the National Dairy Exposition held at Indianapolis, Ind., October 10. In addition to the cup, each of the members of the team will receive a gold medal in recognition of their victory.

In winning these honors the team ranks above many of those sent by universities in the so-called "dairy states."
The members of the team are John R. Watlington, Clark Walls, Marshall R. Harris and B. J. Griffin. All are seniors in the College of Agriculture.

KENTUCKY KITTENS MAY WIN STATE FOOTBALL TITLE FROM TIGER CUBS

Georgetown Freshmen Will Furnish Staff Opposition for First Termers at Scott Capital Today

By WARREN PRICE
The University of Kentucky Kittens and the Georgetown College Cubs will tie up in a football game this afternoon, which in all probability will decide the winner of the state freshman football championship. The game will be played at 2:30 o'clock on Hinton field at Georgetown.
With the acquisition of "Mullie" Lenoir as freshman coach, Georgetown has advanced several strides in first year athletics since last year. Lenoir, during his collegiate days at the University of Alabama, made all-Southern, and was regarded as one of the greatest halfbacks who ever attended Alabama.
When Lenoir came to Georgetown this fall he brought along 15 promising football players from southern high schools, for the purpose of entering them into Georgetown College. They, combined with Kentucky high school material, were moulded into a powerful and aggressive squad.

The Cubs have played three games this season, winning two and tying one. The Georgetown varsity and the Sewanee eleven were the victims; the former being defeated by 16 to 0, and the latter 19 to 0. The triumph over Sewanee was a noteworthy achievement, as Sewanee produces every year one of the best first-year teams in the South. The Manual aggregation escaped with a tie, 7-7.
The Kittens have a promising squad, but not near so strong as they have been in former years. If they

Kentucky's "Four Horsemen" will ride out of a gay Blue Grass capital early tomorrow morning in quest of a championship and safely we say they will not court disaster as has been the case since 1916 for—Rubarth, no Covington, no Lemon, no "Red" Weaver—no not one!
From the smoky mountain spires of the Cumberland to the marshes of the far corners of the Penrynire, from Hills Point to the Big Sandy, questionable eyes of the sporting public will be turned to Danville, the former seat of possibly the greatest football team ever turned out by any American institution today for—
KENTUCKY PLAYS CENTRE
It makes no difference how strong one team may be or how weak both teams may be each year, there is always a battle to appease the whims of the most unardent football fan in the state who sees only one football game a year—the Centre-Kentucky classic.
Tomorrow Kentucky will meet Centre as the favorite for the first time in ten years and if Kentucky wins it will be her first victory since the war troubled autumn of 1916 when our Wildcats beat the Colonels in a triumphant battle to win the game, 68 to 0. Then men were men and then we had men who were in the habit of beating Centre.
The score in 1922 was 27 to 3, the score in 1923 was 10 to 0 and the score last year was 7 to 0. According to the law of averages, Kentucky should be defeated by a field goal this time.
But don't misunderstand me! I said BY THE LAW OF AVERAGES! which counts a woefully few times out of every hundred. There's going to be a great CENTRE crowd over there—don't doubt that—but on one side there's going to be a KENTUCKY crowd—a crowd that will have the victory liquors in their pockets and—
BY GOLLY, WE'LL HAVE ONE H— OF A TIME AFTER WE BOUNCE ON THOSE COLONELS FOR SIXTY MINUTES!

ABOUT MALONEY
Maloney is in fo'ad again! And a whole lot of us were mighty glad to see him back Saturday when Pence was removed from the game on account of an injured leg. "Big" Maloney was in every play after that and Kentucky's chances were greatly enhanced by his ability to stop big Helvey and the rest of Sewanee's halving backs.
The aforementioned player was severely criticized for a misdemeanor which he committed as an aftermath to the game with Chicago on October 3 and this consequently led to his suspension by Coach Fred Murphy. Maloney realized he had done the wrong thing and he regretted it. His teammates signed a petition requesting Coach Murphy to reinstate him and he did it.
Maloney stayed out of the Clemson and Washington and Lee games as a result and took the punishment meted out to him as a man would take it. He came back into the fold last Friday and was given a hand when coach sent him into the fray.
He played the game and he played it well and there was not a person who had any ill feeling toward the boy, for—
KENTUCKY LIKES THE MAN WHO PLAYS THE GAME.

"YAS SAR"
The band gave a wee concert between the halves and dwelt upon "Yes, Sir, She's My Baby." One brave and gallant soldier got up before the crowd and gave solo on his clarinet on the very same thing and of course we cheered him along. Sergeant Kennedy had his gang going good over the week-end and should have the boys rounded into the form showed by the band in 1923 by Thanksgiving. Strut y' stuff, Sarge!

SOME M'NEYS FOR YOU!
AT ONE TIME DURING THE GAME THE CENTRE ENGAGEMENT WAS SOME MIXUP OF NAMES IN THE LINEUP. FOR INSTANCE, MALONEY WAS PLAYING CENTER FOR KENTUCKY, MOHNEY WAS CALLING SIGNALS FOR KENTUCKY AND MALONEY WAS PLUNGING KENTUCKY TO DEATH ON THE OTHER SIDE.

ABOUT KENNY KING
Guess I'll have to give Kenny King the fur lined bathtub this week. He did play one whole of a game at end and was responsible for Kentucky's final touchdown when he recovered a fumbled punt on Kentucky's three-yard line. Smith took the ball over. Then King put up a nice defensive game, snaring runners many times for losses or no gains. Don't be surprised to see him start the game against Centre tomorrow.

BETTER COORDINATION
Kentucky's backfield and line played coordinately against Sewanee for one of the few times this season. The line held nicely and the backs toted the cowhide for 132 yards from the line of scrimmage, which is not all bad for the kind of field which was made by the weather man for the game the night before.

NO PASSES HERE
Sewanee's famed passing attack was a complete fizzle, in direct contrast to the aerial attack of Washington and Lee. Out of 18 passes tried, the visitors connected with two for a net gain of 21 yards. The hill-toppers were relying on a baffling aerial attack to whip the Kentuckians but it was not to be, for Coach Murphy had drilled his cohorts on the gentle art of breaking up passes.

ABOUT ROSS
Ross played a great game, both on the offense and defense. He poked the Sewanee line to pieces at the right time and backed up the Wildcats' forward wall splendidly on the defense. It appears that this boy is doing more than his part this year and all fears of the cynical that he "lost the team" when we lost Sanders have been dispelled by the performances of this Somerset gladiator.
Smith and Tracy also performed to the satisfaction of the few thousand in the stands. Smith is one of the leading scorers in a Southern Conference this season, having five touchdowns to his credit. Tracy doesn't make so many touchdowns but he is a mighty good war horse when it comes to bringing down passes.

NO, NOT THIS TIME
THE WILDCATS DID NOT REDEEM THEMSELVES BY ANY MEANS BY DEFEATING SEWANEE. THEY HAVE A MIGHTY GOOD CHANCE TO DO THIS WITHIN THE NEXT TWO WEEKS.

"EK" BURSTS FORTH
Ray Eklund, freshman coach, scouted the Centre-Western Normal game last Saturday and he brings back the glad tidings that we should defeat the Colonels by at least three markers.

BATTALION GRID TEAMS ARE ORGANIZED
Two football teams were organized Monday and Tuesday in the two battalions of the military department at the University of Kentucky and practice started at once under the direction of varsity men. The action is the result of combined efforts of the athletic and military departments to get more men in the university to play football.
At present there are 1,337 male students enrolled at the University of Kentucky. The varsity squad includes twenty-eight players and the freshman man squad only about a dozen more than this number. Both the athletic and military departments, feeling that this was a small representation of students playing football, devised the plan for battalion teams. There are approximately seven hundred and thirty students, mostly freshmen and sophomores, enrolled in the military department. Each battalion team will have three companies from which to draw candidates.

Monday afternoon the initial practice was held under the direction of Capt. M. H. Schmid and four men from the varsity squad. There were approximately seventy-five men on the field from one battalion. The following afternoon uniforms, which are being furnished by the athletic department, were issued to candidates for the other battalion team.
The squads will be divided, one group containing 40 men under 150 pounds and the other group all those weighing more than 150 pounds. Capt. James Taylor, one of the leaders in the movement, said that this plan proved a success, the departments hoped to follow the same plan in basketball, lacross, soccer and speed ball. He seemed encouraged over the outlook.

BASKETBALL PRACTICE IS STARTED; SUCCESSFUL 1925 TEAM IS INTACT

Carl Rohs Is Only Player From Last Year Lost to Squad; Big Ten Conference Members on Schedule

Coach Eklund has begun his basketball call, and to it has responded one of the greatest arrays of basket stars ever to don the Blue and White of Kentucky.
With the exception of Rohs, all of last year's letter men are back, and with these, supplemented by such outstanding performers as Ropke, Mohney, Ellis, Jenkins and Phipps, from last season's freshman team, Coach Eklund should be able to build a quintet which can give a good account of itself against any varsity five in the country. Indeed, it shall not be surprising if, when the curtain falls at the climax of the ensuing season, the Kentucky team will have duplicated the feat of the team of '21, which attained the pinnacle of basketball fame when it journeyed to Atlanta and fought its way to the southern championship in the annual S. I. C. tournament.
Under the leadership of Captain Carey, the squad is holding practice sessions three nights a week, until the regular season opens, when the men will report daily.

PASSING ATTACK OF VISITORS IS RUINED BY 'CATS

Tigers Are Able to Complete Two of 19 Passes For Total Gain of 21 Yards

KEN KING IS IN LIMELIGHT

Frank Smith Makes Both of Wildcats' Touchdowns; Crimson Tide Next

Sewanee, the University of the South, famed for its powerful aerial attack on the gridiron, was unable to gain against Kentucky's powerful Blue eleven on Stoll field Saturday afternoon and the Tigers returned to the mountains of Tennessee with a 14 to 0 defeat handed them at the hands of the Wildcats, the third loss in as many years.

"All for one and one for all." That is the way the Blue and White did the deed last week. Kentucky had a long list of stars and every man seemed to do his duty and do it at the right time. In other words the Blue and White warriors came to themselves and played real football for the entire sixty minutes.

For the last two years the score has been 7 to 0 in favor of the Blue and White, until last Saturday the Kentucky team managed to double this count, the first time they have obtained a 14-point margin since 1908. In the years that intervened neither team has been able to win by a margin of more than one touchdown. By winning from the Tigers the Wildcats increased their percentage to .667 in the Southern conference standing.

Score in Second Quarter
 The Wildcats annexed their points in the second and fourth quarters, the first coming after Mahony Tiger full-back, made a bad punt, the ball going out of bounds on his own 29-yard line with the oval being Kentucky's at that point. A forward pass, that netted 20 yards, and successive line bucks placed the ball on Sewanee's one-yard marker where Frank Smith plunged over the last white line for the first score of the contest.

The second seven points came late in the last quarter, when Kenny King, having substituted at right end for Schulte, scooped up Powers' fumble of a Kentucky punt on Sewanee's eight-yard line and raced to the three-yard line before he was downed. A buck by Tracy netted two yards and from here Smith took it over the goal line. Ross' place kick was perfect.

Kentucky completely upset the Tigers' aerial attack and the visitors were able to complete only two passes out of 19 attempts. Ten of their passes were grounded and seven intercepted. Kentucky tried only three passes and completed one for 10 yards. One of their passes was grounded and one intercepted by Captain Barker of Sewanee in the final minutes of play. The Tigers' two passes netted 21 yards and Kentucky's one annexed 10.

Kentucky was greatly strengthened by the return of Maloney to the lineup after an absence of two weeks. Maloney went into the lineup late in the contest when Pence was hurt and he was in every play, making the majority of the tackles, considering his time in the game. The Kentucky line performed as a unit against the last Sewanee backs and very little ground was gained by the visitors in line plunges.

Weight Proves Fatal to Tigers
 Sewanee displayed a light but fast backfield, but the men outweighed by the heavy Kentucky Blue could not make gains for any considerable distance. The Wildcats' next conference opponent is Alabama, which team they will play next Saturday at Birmingham. Last year the Crimson Tide loded the Blue and White out and left them pondering over a score of 12 to 7. This year Kentucky has hope of bettering this count, although Alabama rates about two touchdowns better than Coach Murry's warriors. This was the last game that the Wildcat followers will see on Stoll field until the home-coming game on Thanksgiving Day, when the University of Tennessee will come here for their annual fray. During this interval the Blue and White will play our games on foreign soil, the first being at Danville tomorrow with the Centre Colonels.

The lineup and summary follow:
 Kentucky (14) Pos.                      Sewanee (0)
 Kirwan                      L. E.                      Gooch

 Mayfield Woman Named President at Meeting

At the annual meeting of the home demonstration agents of the College of Agriculture, held Tuesday evening in the ballroom of the Lafayette hotel, Miss Ida Hagman, of Mayfield, Graves county, was elected president of the organization. The other officers elected were: Mrs. Roxie Perkins, of Harlan, vice-president; Miss Jessie Yancey, of Lexington, secretary and treasurer.

 Approximately thirty members of the central office staff attended the banquet and Miss Grace Frysinger, of Washington, spoke to the organization on the work being done by home demonstration agents throughout the country.

Supper Postponed

Illness of Guest of Honor Is Cause

The buffet supper which was scheduled for Sunday evening, Nov. 1, at Patterson hall has been postponed on account of the sudden illness of the guest of honor, Dean Agnes Wells, of the University of Indiana.

 Although Miss Wells has had to postpone her visit to Kentucky on account of ill health, she hopes to be able to come to the university later in the year. All women students were invited to this supper and a lecture on campus problems in general had been planned.

The new colors put more life into o'coats

We desire to emphasize especially the color trend prescribed as most fashionable for this winter. Brackens in Scotch plaids and plain colors of the brown cast are exceptionally good. Blues in dark and grey-blue tones are exceedingly popular. Stone grey is another good shade. They're all here in various styles of quality Overcoats to please every possible preference.

KY. MET CENTRE FOR FIRST GAME IN STATE IN 1891

two banners have floated together in drawn battle.

Statistics of games show that Centre has garnered 496 points to our 216 in the 30 contests. In the early years Centre but twice failed to vanquish the "Wildcats." In the early years of the twentieth century the worn turned and the annual classic was changed into a merry track meet in which the State boys contested with each other in hundred yard dashes down the field. Old-timers still point with pride to the year 1904, when in two games Kentucky routed their ancient rivals 40 to 0 and 61 to 0, the latter game furnishing the biggest margin of victory enjoyed by either team in the 34 years.

After the memorable victories of 1904, things progressed as usual—State winning practically every game up to 1912 when, for four years the annual game was discontinued. When it was revived in 1916 it was a farce. The quarters were shortened to 12 1-2 minutes and Kentucky put in practically every substitute in winning 68 to 0. The townspeople thought so lightly of it that they paid, all told, less than $100 for admission tickets and "Doc" Tigert, then the coach, went to scout Vanderbilt, missing the game to do so.

Game Revived in 1916

Since 1916 the game has revived and grown into the annual classic which it furnishes today. Last year over 15,000 people were present for the home-coming, dedication of the stadium, and the Centre game. But with this growth Centre has held the edge and has won every game since 1916. Even worse is the fact that Kentucky has only once scored since then. This was in 1922 when a field goal saved her from a 27 to 0 defeat.

Such briefly is the history of the State-Centre classic from its inception to the present day. May the chronicler of 1926 and of every following year be able to record how in 1925 even worse is the fact that Kentucky has only once scored since then. This was in 1922 when a field goal saved her from a 27 to 0 defeat.

NEW COURSE ADDED TO COLLEGE OF COMMERCE

speaking and general English literature.

Popular in Northern Schools

Northern universities have been training men along this line for some time. Illinois now has 27 positions filled by graduates of the course. But Dean Wiest said that so far as he knew, no southern university had before given the course, and that his problem was especially to train southern men for the job of working in southern cities.

Students admitted to the curriculum will be selected, since not every one is fitted for this type of work. Special technical courses will be given them. It is not expected that the college will turn out men prepared to step into organizations as thoroughly equipped technicians, but that a graduate will be competent to take charge of the ordinary chamber of commerce and manage it efficiently. The honorary commercial fraternity is doing a great deal to further the success of the College of Commerce. Outstanding men are chosen each year who are representative of work the best done during the year. These men, at a smoker given by them Tuesday evening at the Phoenix hotel, in honor of the faculty and students of the College of Commerce, resolved to make arrangements whereby examinations in the college would be conducted under the honor system. This is a progressive step to obtain knowledge fair and square. The members of the honorary are Dr. Edward Wiest, Messrs. H. R. Brown, Lyle Croft, C. M. Wheeler, Cecil Carpenter, George P. Young, Thomas Neblett, C. F. Rouse, V. O. Watson, W. Emmett Milward, W. L. Richards, W. A. Thomason, Jr., H. B. Moore, Sterling R. Kearns, Elmore Vossmeier, A. W. Kittinger.

and its interest to the freshman girl. All of the speakers stressed the point that high scholarship was essential for participation in campus activities and urged each girl to decide at the beginning of college where her main interests lie so that she may work with the possibility of distinction in that line as her goal.

"CANDIDA" SCORES BIG HIT AS FIRST PLAY AT ROMANY

an 18-year-old poet, hopelessly in love with the exquisite Candida, and he played the part so brilliantly that all who saw him felt that here indeed was real genius. The play, by Leer Buckley, of the Stagecrafters of Transylvania, appeared well in the minor role of the Rev. Lexy Mill, and Wallace Sanders well-known in Lexington theatricals, skillfully carried the part of Mr. Burgess, father-in-law of "Candida's" husband, James.

Stage-Setting Is Striking

The stage-setting and costuming of the play were equally striking and appropriate. The production was built under the direction of William Burks and staff, and painted by John Loving and the Stage Craft class of the university. The furnishings were loaned by Jack Jones and arranged by Mrs. A. C. Callahan of the art department. The scene is laid in the living room of the clergyman in the month of October, calling for the rich fall tones. The costumes are in the nineties, reviving the costumes, which were designed by Miss Virginia Anderson, of the drama club. The set, with the high collars, large sleeves, and full, trailing skirts of the day.

the vacation schools in Greater New York. It was an honor justly awarded and supported probably to such a degree of earnestness that when she returned to her duties this fall she was thoroughly run down. She kept to her work, however, until the Tuesday before her death when she was unable to go to school. Her family was notified and relatives were with her when she died of diabetes on Sunday morning.

KY. ARISTOCRACY BLOODY, WRITES FORMER STUDENT

of living and doing the job up brown. He recites the glories of the aristocracy of the Blue Grass whose pleasure and whose fame was wine, women and horses, and announced, as a sort of final word on the subject, that "all that is now in the past, Kentucky is no longer a commonwealth; it is merely a common province of the United States." (My gosh, what an epigram!)

Very Effective Advertising The article may have been designed to stir up comment in Kentucky about the Mercury, and also, Mr. Clugston himself probably thrives on the nectar of notoriety, or fame, as he would call it. Such a method of advertising is very effective, however despicable it may be. Last month one could have carried a copy of the Mercury across the campus, and a few students would have glanced at it casually and asked what that green-backed magazine was. Next month, almost every student on the campus will know that the Mercury is a monthly magazine edited by H. L. Mencken, and devoted to criticism, literature and so forth, with the latter article in the majority.

And then again, it may be that Mr. Clugston thinks he is a Columbus who has discovered a new America for the intellectuals of the world to flock into. Maybe he thinks he is telling us boys and girls something we had never thought of before. Democracy always lifts the plebian and drags down the aristocrat; there are no political boundaries and certainly no state lines that can abrogate this law which is as absolute as the law of gravitation. Kentucky will weather the gale of this "calamity," notwithstanding Mr. Clugston's epochal discovery. Clugston, undoubtedly ate too much supper before he went to bed.

"Turn thee, turn thee on thy pillow; get thee to thy rest again."

Then come four home games in a row, Berea, furnishing the opposition on January 9, followed by three Southern Conference members, Georgia Tech, January 16; Auburn, February 8; and Vanderbilt, February 20. In all nine conference games will be booked for the season. Under a new ruling passed by the Southern Conference, only 16 of the 22 institutions constituting the association will be allowed to participate in the Atlanta tournament, and eligibility to compete in it will be determined by each team's relative standing at the close of the regular season.
