A STEP FORWARD

This issue of the Kernel marks one of the most important forward steps in the history of the university department of journalism and the school paper. Today the paper enters an entirely new field of news editing and publishing as it discards its weekly edition and assumes the added responsibility of a semi-weekly paper, appearing each Tuesday and Friday morning.

Editors of the Kernel have long set up a cry for a daily paper at Kentucky, but conditions have been such that they have not justified one. There will, no doubt, be a daily at the university sometime in the future, but it cannot be obtained at once. There must be a gradual preparation leading up to it. The appearance of a semi-weekly paper is part of that preparation, and as such is a significant step toward a future daily.

However, a daily will never come to Kentucky unless the entire institution cooperates with the Kernel in making the new semi-weekly an unequalled success. Every department here should notify the paper of whatever news items there are at hand, no matter how important or insignificant they may seem to be. Complete heretofore receiving small space will be given larger headlines and more complete composition. It is hoped that those with information for the Kernel will release it as soon as it is obtained so that editing may be facilitated. A story turned in at the last moment stands an equal chance of appearing in the waste basket or the paper.

So with the appearance of its semi-weekly editions, the Kernel hopes to enter a broader field than that occupied by it in the past—that of greater service to the University of Kentucky.

CAN YOU WRITE?

To the Editor: And so it came to pass that on the morning of the first day, the Philistines were slain by the Israelites as they (the Philistines) advanced upon the stronghold of their enemy. The gates to the city immediately were ordered closed and preparations made for an extended siege of the city. The advancing hordes of the enemy by sundown had encamped all over the plains encompassing the city, and thousands of campfires attested the strength of the invaders, come to despoil the country and carry off their rival's women for the purpose of bearing sturdier children.

On the morning of the second day, the beleaguered people made ready for the attack which came as soon as there was sufficient light to permit placement of the huge rams to be used in battering down the gates. The Philistines gathered around the walls with all their instruments of war, only to be met with a hail of javelins, stones and boiling water. They were repulsed, but gathered anew and, undaunted, attempted to breach the walls. So it continued all through the day until the sun sank behind murky clouds in the West. And the war had not been won.

On the third day, things began to look bad for both invaders and defenders. The Philistines had not many men beneath the walls, while the Israelites discovered that their water supply was rapidly vanishing. So it was that on the morning of the fourth day, both were contemplating surrender.

And so it is with the Can You Write? column of the Kernel. We have been beleaguered with the envious of the news room, wondering about student reactions and viewpoints. We inaugurated the column, and immediately were attacked by a few students who had ideas and could write sufficiently well to express them. Then, after a time, students lost interest, resulting in contemplated surrender on both sides. We hope it is not possible these students at the University of Kentucky cannot write letters. It is the same thing as admitting that they are uneducated. So, the Kernel challenges you—Can You Write?

TRADITIONS UPHELD

In a recent issue of The Russian Student, Nicholas Chapeleff, Russian engineering student at the university, has an article on "Go South, Young Man!" In it he writes a foreigner's conception of Kentucky and its university, gathered from actual experience. Only a few years ago Mr. Chapeleff came from Russia to study engineering; and, as few others have done, chose the south for his training. He tells now of his reaction and that of the people on this campus, since he has been here.

Kentucky folk, who pride themselves on their hospitality, will find in the account that this is not false pride; but is accepted as a fact by this stranger. Concerning it Mr. Chapeleff says that hospitality and fellowship, especially toward students that enter in our institutions of learning, is one of a Kentuckian's best qualities.

The culture of natives of our state, he says, which has produced more statesmen and educators than any other state must have something of the higher cultural life in it. Further the foreign student finds in the South people that are by nature sympathetic and understanding. They are willing to bear his mistakes in speech, his actions and his behavior. He will find in the South the sort of people that will help him to understand American manners and ways.

We appreciate such comment from one who has had opportunity to judge us. It gives us. It gives us a feeling after all; that the accusations that university students are snobs must be, at least to a certain degree false. Especially may the engineering college and its constituency be pleased with such praise; for it was among them chiefly that Mr. Chapeleff must have garnered his knowledge of the university.

What's life to one is wife to another. Wisconsin's football coach declares women to be the biggest drinkers in college. That shows why he's coaching football.

We want to know how the devil you're supposed to keep your word when someone's always taking it.

Sneers Snickers Scandal

By WILLIAM ARDERY

Introducing, ladies and gentlemen, the new child of the journalism department, the Kernel staff, and members of the composing room force. The Tuesday issue of the Kentucky Kernel makes its initial appearance after one of the dullest, stupidest, most uninteresting week-ends ever experienced at the University of Kentucky.

Has everyone seen the painting of "Shipwreck" Kelly at the tender age of five which is displayed in a downtown store window? The famous back is mounted on a vicious looking pony with a small white dog behind him. It has always perplexed us that no one ever thinks of displaying our picture at any age in any story window or anywhere else.

The students at the University of Kentucky are so utterly without the finer points of sportsmanship that when the football team drops two games to two of the strongest aggregations in the South the season has been completely ruined.

The fair ones who make the trip to Tennessee Thanksgiving Day will ride on the train with the band while the many eds will have a train entirely to themselves. The horn tooters can be relied upon to take care of the little girls to the best of their ability. They may not know anything about it, but try hard.

Every member of the Big Blue Band has the impression that he is the one mad moment in the life of Virginia Dougherty, band sponsor. And the little girl remains reasonably sane?

ARMISTICE

Memories of that memorable eleventh day of November when the world laid down its arms and Peace rose triumphant out of the muck of war, today carry men and women back to the time when the stress of years of battle suddenly changed to tremendous joy as tidings of armistices swept across the earth.

Today, we unite in universal observance of the cessation of hostilities, not merely because actual fighting stopped, but for the higher and nobler purpose of paying tribute to those who laid down their lives that this nation and other nations might enjoy the accretions of peace; for the purpose of reminding the world that home fires are more worthwhile than conquest. Today, we look in two directions: Back to the dark days when a murky cloud of slow-burning powder smoke hindered civilization's vision of splendid achievement; forward to the days when the peace we now enjoy will have become a fixed, determinable blessing.

The university is joining in this armistice observance. Its band is expected to play patriotic airs, its military department to join Legionnaires in tribute to those who contributed to the cause. Many students are too young to have actual memories of the celebrated day, but there is something about it that calls them to celebration. Perhaps it is only a vague remembrance of a day when whistles, bells, horns, and voices set up the chant of rejoicing; perhaps it is a desire for continued peace. Whatever it is, it is symbolic of the desire for peace among men.

On past armistice days, we have dedicated ourselves to the cause of understanding and good will. Today, let us rededicate ourselves to that same cause, firm in the conviction that we are contributing to our own future welfare and happiness.

AN ART EXHIBIT

Thirty-six selected canvases and 26 prints, representing what critics adjudge to be the finest collection and exhibition of art in Kentucky in several years, now is on display at the art center. Considerable comment is being aroused by the exhibition, which is said to be an unusual collection of representative contemporary American art.

The persons responsible for bringing the collection to the university cannot be too highly praised for their endeavor to acquaint students with art. The ordinary student knows nothing of it, cares nothing for it because he or she has lacked the opportunity to develop any real interest in the subject. The Kernel feels that everyone who has not viewed the exhibit should do so at once. It will be eminently worthwhile.

Y. M. C. A. DRIVE

Tonight men students of the university will be given an opportunity to contribute funds for the maintenance and furthering of the work of university Y. M. C. A. Seventy-five members of the student body have indicated their interest in the work of the local organization to the extent of assisting in the solicitation for money among fraternity groups and residence groups.

Few causes are there which merit the united support of a student body more than does this campus organization. Among the many services rendered may be listed those of student employment assistance, publication of the "K" book, active participation in freshman week work, and many other individual enterprises aside from its religious work. Money is necessary for the proper continuation of such work. Each student is benefited, directly or indirectly, by the Y. M. C. A. It is therefore not only the privilege but the duty of each man to contribute in some measure to this drive. An effort should be made to see one of the solicitors tonight. However, should this fail, contributions may be made at the office of the secretary in Alumni Hall.

The Kernel wishes the Y. M. C. A. much success in this effort to further its activities upon the university campus.

NEW BUILDINGS

The era of progress at the University of Kentucky has not been discontinued, regardless of the fact that an unfriendly legislature composed of mountaineers and farmers for the most part finds it almost a social requisite to deprive the most important institution in the state of proper appropriations.

Construction of two new buildings is about to get under way. Contracts for them have been let and specifications prepared. The two new structures are the farm engineering building on the experiment station farm, and an observatory for astronomical studies. A long-felt need will have been satisfied upon completion of the work.

The new teachers' training building was completed last summer and put into use with the inception of the present semester. It has not been so long since Memorial Hall and McVey Hall were completed, to say nothing of other structures basically necessary for the continued development of an institution such as the University of Kentucky. Now the two new buildings are to be constructed. "Kentucky Progress" at least may be applied to the university.

Joe College doesn't give a hoot about drawing the line with women, just so he draws one with the least resistance.

OUR UNKNOWN SOLDIER

By Arthur N. Cloyne

There were no leagues so weary but he came,
This son of thine; nor any seas too wide.
Let men remember it and how he died,
Lo! such as this day down by the Marathon.
And now he keeps their souls' proud company,
And brings the brave, the fragrance of thy name.
Who tells somewhere how Liberty lives on,
Cries one sea more on Liberty's fair page.

EASTERN FROSH DEFEATED BY KITTENS

The University of Kentucky Kittens under the leadership of Coach Pribble journeyed to Richmond Saturday, and defeated "A" Portwood's Eastern frosh by a 22 to 0 count. Although the score seems to indicate a rather one-sided affair, it was not the case at all. The Kentucky freshmen had to fight every inch of the way.

In the first and third quarters the Kentucky yearlings were held scoreless by the Portwood crew, but they broke through the Teacher's team in the second and fourth quarters for 14 and 18 points respectively. Reserve material was used quite extensively in the game.

The Kittens scored first in the second period when Bach ran 35 yards and out of bounds on the one-yard line. Kercheval went over and added the extra point. Gaining possession of the ball on the Teacher's 40-yard line and only eight seconds to play, Bach faked an end run and passed 25 yards to Kercheval, who scored again and added the extra point.

Portwood's men threatened twice in the third period, once when they took the ball to the one-yard stripe and again when they advanced to the 15-yard line. Both times, however, the Pribble men held for the last kick.

Two scores were added by Bach in the last quarter, one with an eighty-yard line back and the other by a wide end run for 40 yards. Kercheval scored when he ran a punt back 35 yards. He was knocked down, but recovered in time to cross the goal. Kercheval missed all the three extra tries in the last half.

Kentucky Press for October is Released

The October edition of the Kentucky Press has been released by Professor Victor E. Fortman, editor. This magazine is the official publication of the Kentucky Press Association. The current issue contains "Circulation Audits" which are reprinted from the 1929 minutes of the National Editorial Association. The 1931 edition of the Association will be held at Atlanta in May and the Press Association hopes that all Kentucky editors will take their vacation at that time in order to be present at the meeting.

UNIVERSITY HIGH LOSES GAME 25 TO 0

University High gridders Friday fell before the onslaught of Harrodsburg by a 25-0 count the battle being staged at Harrodsburg. The tilt was marred by fumbles and penalties of both teams.

Harrodsburg's initial tally came in the first quarter when Ruse snagged a pass and dashed 20 yards to a touchdown. University High came back in this frame in a desperate effort to even the count, but a 15-yard penalty put an end to their attempt.

In the second quarter Bonta crashed through the Purple defense 60 yards for a touchdown. One of the most brilliant plays of the game was turned in by University High when Bishop ran back the opening kick in the third quarter 45 yards.

Bare feet on damp floors may give you "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

ON the floors of showers and locker rooms, there the little ringworm parasite that causes "Athlete's Foot" is right at home. Tinea trichophyton is the name, and in colleges as far apart as California and Pennsylvania it has been found that 50% of the men have it. Again, the U. S. Public Health Service reports that "at least half of all adults suffer from it at some time."

"Athlete's Foot," golfer's foot, toe itch, driblet-itch—there are many names for the same thing, and the symptoms are redness between the toes, with itchy-bling—or a thick, moist skin condition—or a dryness with little scales. The danger signals vary, but authorities agree that they are all traceable to the ringworm germ, tinea trichophyton.

It lurks in the very places where we all go for cleanliness and health—on the edges of swimming pools and showers—in gymnasiums—on locker and dressing-room floors. In spite of modern sanitation (you have to boil socks 15 minutes to kill it) this fungus parasite infects and re-infects bare feet almost any time they come in contact with damp floors.

Absorbine Jr. kills the germ of "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

Tests in a famous New York "lab" have revealed that Absorbine Jr. penetrates flesh-like tissues deeply and that wherever it penetrates, it KILLS the ringworm germ.

It might not be a bad idea to examine your feet tonight. At the first sign of the symptoms mentioned, douse on Absorbine Jr. And keep a bottle handy in your locker as a preventive. Use it after every exposure of bare feet on damp floors. At all druggists—$1.25. W. F. Young, Inc., Springfield, Mass.

"What impresses me most in Canada is the high standard of beauty prevailing among the women, especially the co-eds," declared John Mitchell one of the visiting British debaters, when interviewed by a McGill University student. His colleague H. Trevor Lloyd differed however, saying that the little girls were not out of the ordinary. In the short time that the debaters were here they were surprised to note that the students had more loyalty and pride in their university than in Great Britain. Both debaters were extremely interested in the fact that the routing of the university students was so well organized and commented upon the viciousness of football.

Although they may be worth their weight in gold to their families and sweethearts, the 204 freshmen of Emory University would be worth only ninety-eight cents apiece, were they sold to Able, the junk man, or some enterprising and broad minded fertilizer factory. This estimate is based on the potential material in the human body for the manufacture of glass, wax, ivory and bone meal. The figures were obtained by adding the combined weight of the entire class which was eighteen tons.

The average freshman weighs 130 pounds, is seventeen years old and is five feet eleven inches high. Prowling seems to be an intentional habit among colleges these days, judging from a clipping from the Michigan State News which read "A prowler" was found barricaded on the first floor sleeping porch of the Therman house last night and although sorority members broke down the door, the would-be-burglar made his escape through the house in the midst of much commotion. Evidently there are brave girls in Michigan.

Unaffiliated co-eds at the Ohio State University have organized an independent women's council which will give them the same social and political opportunities which heretofore have been enjoyed only by sorority members.

The first issue of the Kentucky Wesleyan Undercurrent arrived last week after approximately two months delay, struggling for breath, and dripping with perspiration, according to the present editor-in-chief. It was estimated, after the resignations of a procession of editors and business managers that the average life of an editor-in-chief was something less than thirty-six hours, and the life of a business manager not quite twenty-four hours.

AT THE SHOW

When Raoul Walsh was preparing to film the Indian attack in epic of the pioneers "The Big Trail," there was a rebellion on the part of hundreds of Indians who were to take an active part in the big scene. They refused to wear anything but eagle feathers. Two Crow Indian girls on location solved the problem by offering to sell from their stock on hand. They had plenty. And they charged plenty. Clever people, these educated Indian girls. This Fox Movietone opened at the Ben All theatre Sunday.

The same sort of thrill devices which Harold Lloyd used in "Safety Last," his famous building-sealing film, are to be seen in "Feet First," the newest Lloyd offering at the Kentucky theatre—but in this case they are even more effective.

"Feet First" reveals Harold as an ambitious young shoe-clerk who falls in love with his boss' secretary. In his endeavor to impress the girl with his affluence he takes a trip aboard a Pacific liner on which she and her employer's family are passengers. The thrills come near the finale when Harold returns to the city in a mail sack, carrying an important document.

At last Wallace Beery, famed in filmland as the moon incorrigible of "picture stealers," has met his Waterloo! The victor over Beery's rubberized facial contortions is a baby seal, picked up in Catalina waters by a whaling ship used in sea scenes for "Way for a Sailor." John Gilbert's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talkie showing at the Strand theatre.

Director Sam Wood put the seal in a scene with Beery. No matter how bad Beery barked or smirked the seal went him one better "stealing" all his laughs. Lella Hyams plays opposite Gilbert in the new film and the supporting cast includes Jim Tully, Polly Moran and Doris Lloyd.

Convention for Music Majors
 The second convention for students who are majoring in music at the university, was held Wednesday afternoon at the music building.

The group was addressed by the head of the music department, Prof. Carl A. Lampert. He spoke of the aims of the department, the type of student who is desired, and the satisfactory work now being done by former graduates.

Following the regular business session an interesting program of vocal and instrumental numbers was presented by students of applied music.

Mr. David Welsh, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Ben Stark; Miss Beryl Hoody, pianist; Miss Mollie Mack Orfitt, soprano, accompanied by Miss Loreta Bitterman, and Miss Marjorie Boggs, pianist. At the close a delicious ice course was served.

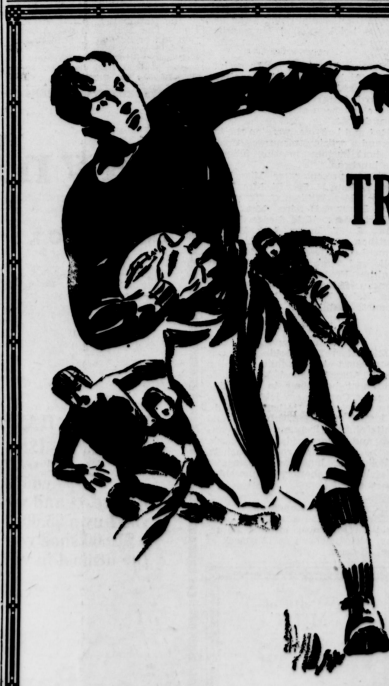

Scribblers Club Meeting
 Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Miner were hosts for the first meeting of the Scribblers club Wednesday night at their home, which was lovely with candle-light, chrysanthemums and snapdragons.

Miss Mary Shouse contributed to the program by reading two humorous short stories; Mrs. Benjamin Van Meter read a clever modern one-act play, and Dr. Miner read an essay on the progress of speeding up modern progress.

Following the program, a delicious buffet supper was served. Those present were: Dr. and Mrs. Frank McVey, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Good, Mr. and Mrs. Preson Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Ramsey, Mr. Frank Fowler, Miss Mabel Follitt, Miss Mary Shouse, Mrs. B. F. Van Meter, Mr. Grant Knight, Mrs. Sallie Bullock Cave, members of the club, and the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Meicher, Mr. Horace Miner, Mrs. W. T. Lafferty and her daughter, Mrs. B. L.
