STUDENTS TO HEAR McVEY AT TODAY'S CONVOCATION

Traditional Assembly Is Set For 10 a. m. In Memorial Hall

The traditional opening convocation of the year, at which new and returning students are officially greeted by President Frank L. McVey, will be held at 10 a. m. today in Memorial Hall. All third hour classes will be dismissed for the occasion.

The subject of Dr. McVey's address will be "The Answers In The Book." Each year this customary convocation is held at the opening of school in an effort to acquaint freshmen and transfer students with routine university life, and to make new students feel that at the end of their first week of school they have become a part of the University.

This may be the last time that Dr. McVey will officiate at this annual opening ceremony that he has made a custom since he assumed the presidency of the University in 1917. Dr. McVey is to retire next June, after 23 years of service to the University.

STAFF CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED

Board Gives Approval To 53 Revisions

Fifty-three changes in the personnel of the University have been announced by the Board of Trustees. The Board also announced the appointment of two new members, Louis E. Hillenmeyer, Lexington and Marshall Barnes, Beaver Dam, as a special committee to make plans for the University's proposed new field house. Governor A. B. Chandler, ex-officio chairman presided over the meeting.

Prof. Lawrence Yates, department of English, and T. Hayden Rogers, assistant in agronomy at the Experiment Station, were granted leaves of absence for part of the coming year. Mr. Annette Zink Davis, law librarian, was granted a leave for one year and Prof. Frank Murray for the academic year 1939-40 to teach at Ohio State.

Appointments approved by the board included those of Miss Ruth B. Haugen, field supervisor and instructor in case work, department of public welfare administration, and director of the band; Robert Burgess, custodian of the Carnegie library; Miss Murray for the academic year 1939-40 to teach at Ohio State.

Those students who make a standing of two or better during the first semester of the present year may be added to the staff at the end of this semester.

Two Sophomores Injured In Practice

Two of the most promising sophomores on the Kentucky football team, Billy Black and Jack Waters, were forced from the squad by injuries received last week.

The recurrence of an old knee injury as well as a new one, cracked vertebrae in the neck put Waters, 190 pound guard from Louisville on the bench.

3,629 REGISTER TO MAKE RECORD UK ENROLLMENT

Six Days Still Remain For Students To Sign

Smashing the all-time high and with six more days before registration's close, enrollment figures skyrocketed to 3,629 yesterday afternoon.

Officials of the registrar's office indicated that a 3,700 to 3,800 total was expected by Monday, October 2, when the last registrant has signed.

Today's mark is 198 higher than the enrollment at the same date last year, 25 higher than last year's total.

FORUM TO OFFER LECTURE SERIES

Kaltenborn Will Speak October 5

With perhaps one of the greatest groups of authorities on the international situation to be found in America scheduled to speak, the Lexington Public Forum, composed of civic-minded individuals desiring to give Lexingtonians authentic information and intelligent insights into the present situation, will present the first in a series of six discussions on Thursday, October 5.

Mr. H. V. Kaltenborn, who has recently risen in prominence with his program, "Kaltenborn Edits The News," will conduct the first public forum for Lexington on Thursday, October 5.

Following the October 5 forum, Dr. Albert Edward Wigman will appear on November 9, speaking on the subject, "Your Abilities—How To Discover Them."

On December 7, Will Irwin, author of numerous books and novels, will address the forum audience on the subject, "Propaganda In The News."

The following two discussions, scheduled for January 4, and February 18, 1940, respectively, will be on the subjects, "If Marco Polo Had A Camera," while the latter one will feature a discussion on "Children In Court," by Judge Hatfield, a juvenile court jurist who has spent six years during the past six years.

COMMITTEE MEN SOUGHT BY UNION

Positions On 8 Groups Are Open To Students

Committee work, which makes possible smooth functioning of varied activities carried on by the Student Union, is being brought to the fore again by a call for students to serve on various committees.

On an application blank to be found elsewhere in today's Kernel, students are asked to fill out first, second and third preference for committee work. Committees open for election are: Publicity, finance, admissions, forum, public relations, and art.

Among the work of the house committee is the conducting of receptions, teas, dances and acting as host to visitors. It also maintains order and enforces the rules of membership.

The music committee has general charge of the music presented in the building, and arranges programs to be presented in the music room.

Planning and booking of dates for dances, campus hops, and private dances fall on the shoulders of the dance committee, which frequently co-operates with other groups for these affairs.

Both the publicity and public relations committees co-operate in releasing news of dances, meetings, art exhibitions, and the presentation of the art committee arranges for exhibitions, prepares and hangs pictures and releases publicity during the year it will sponsor exhibitions.

Main purpose of the activities committee is to sponsor all cultural activities of the Union, in addition to inaugurating new ideas that students may suggest. Last spring the committee sponsored the University Riding Club, and held bridge and chess tournaments.

Both the finance and public relations committees co-operate in releasing news of dances, meetings, art exhibitions, and the presentation of the art committee arranges for exhibitions, prepares and hangs pictures and releases publicity during the year it will sponsor exhibitions.

Property of the University of Kentucky is insured against fire and tornado by the State of Kentucky for $2,485,115 this year according to recent official announcement.

Prior to July 1, 1938, each institution and agency of the State government carried its own insurance, contracted through local agencies. Since that time, however, an insurance fund to cover losses has been set up by an act of the legislature, and the State Insurance Division made as custodian of the fund.

Instead of paying premiums to an insurance firm, the institutions pay into the insurance fund. Buildings insured for more than $300,000 are re-insured with the Springfield Fire and Marine Insurance company.

Insurance carried on individual divisions of the University are as follows: University of Kentucky College Division—$2,074,200; University of Kentucky, Princeton Station—$33,900; University of Kentucky, Experiment Station—$27,005; University of Kentucky, Quicksand Substation—$20,000.

W. Gayle Starnes, assistant director and lecturer in visual education at the University, and founder of the system of audio-visual aids in operation here, has accepted an invitation according to directors of the American Association of Film Libraries at a meeting October 5 in New York City.

586 Express Approval Of Revised Ruling System

Election Draws More Balloters Than Any Held Last Year For Campus Positions

With a larger turn-out than was seen during the course of any election last year, yesterday's vote for ratification of the constitution passed the necessary quota stipulated in the constitution by a margin of 148.

Out of the 619 votes polled, only 33 were cast against ratification of the constitution.

Although members of the committee which drew up the constitution were disappointed at the comparatively small vote, they were somewhat reassured after witnessing last year's election counts.

The Union board election, which dealt in personalities—who always draw votes rather than in a simple question, failed to reach the 400 mark in total of votes cast. In this election, all students were allowed to vote. The freshman cap vote, also open to all students, barely drew 400 voters to the polls.

In yesterday's election only sophomores, juniors and seniors were allowed to vote.

It was expected that the election board will be appointed by President McVey this week and that the board will receive petitions from candidates the following week.

The constitution provides for a legislature composed of the president and two vice-presidents of the student body, two freshmen representatives from the arts and sciences college, three from the commerce college, three from the agriculture college, two from the business college, one from the education college, and one from the law college.

All selections have been made, the present Association of Women Students and the Men's Student council will disband.

WING ASPIRANT HOPES GROUNDED IN OFFICIAL VETO

Flying Corps Training Not To Be Given Say Trustees

Decision not to petition for participation in the Civil Aeronautics Administration's pilot-training program has been reached by the University Board of Trustees, President McVey revealed Saturday.

The trustees felt, the President explained, the University would take too great responsibility for a program to share $5,000,000 voted by Congress for schooling 11,000 new fliers this year.

The two-part training program consists of ground courses on the college campus and flying instruction by commercial air schools.

CONFERENCE SET FOR OCTOBER 27

Educators To Convene In 2-Day Session

The University will play host to state educators next month when they assemble at 3 p. m., on Friday, October 27, in Memorial Hall for the opening of a two-day joint session of the 16th annual educational conference and the fifth annual meeting of the Kentucky Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

President Frank L. McVey will preside over the opening session, as well as at the annual dinner to be held at 8 p. m., that night in the University dining hall.

Prominent speakers will include Dr. Walter C. Ellis, executive secretary of the American Association of Junior Colleges, Dr. William F. Russell, dean of Teachers' College, Columbia University, and Robert B. Cien, principal of Shawnee high school and president of the Kentucky Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

The general theme of the conference will be "Education for Democracy," based on President Roosevelt's message to the recent congress on education for democracy held at Columbia University, in which he said, "Democracy cannot stand unless its foundation is constantly reinforced through the processes of education."

Boys And Girls To See V. M. I. Play Union

Three hundred boys and girls, including about 40 crippled children, will attend the Kentucky-V. M. I. football game Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. at the stadium.

All of the children will be accompanied by social workers and the Shriners' hospital for crippled children, coming from Good Samaritan hospital and the Shriners' hospital for crippled children.

Ice cream, apples and candy will be given to the girls and boys at 11 a. m. accompanying with the Herald-Ledger.

Starnes To Attend Meet In New York

W. Gayle Starnes, assistant director and lecturer in visual education at the University, and founder of the system of audio-visual aids in operation here, has accepted an invitation according to directors of the American Association of Film Libraries at a meeting October 5 in New York City.

Mr. Starnes will advise with the board of the association, which is open in the campus of the American council on education, on phases of audio-visual aids, including the training of teachers and their use in teacher-training.

HAUGEN, PAUL ACCEPT STAFF APPOINTMENT

The University department of social work has added two new members to its staff and booked several lecturers from other departments for new graduate courses inaugurated this fall, according to Dr. Vivien M. Palmer, head of the department.

New members of the staff are Miss Ruth Haugen, formerly a member of the graduate school of social work at the University of Minnesota, and Aaron Paul, chief statistician of the statistical and research section, division of public assistance, of the state department of welfare.

Miss Haugen completed the work for her master's degree in social work at the University of Minnesota and has had wide experience in her field. In 1933 she served with the St. Louis relief committee, and two years later was called to the University of Minnesota to take charge of its training center in St. Paul, one of the first university public welfare training centers to be established. In 1937 she organized the medical social service department of the Free Hospital for Women, Brookline, Mass., and the following year returned to resume her position at the St. Paul Training Center teaching courses in case work.

Having served with the American Red Cross in the Mississippi-Ohio Valley floods in 1937, Miss Haugen has had some experience with the social problems of this region. She is a member of the American Association of Social Workers, the American Society of Medical Social Workers and Delta Delta Delta sorority.

Mr. Paul is a resident of Woodford county, has been a member of the Asbury College with a major in sociology, and an M. S. degree in sociology, and is a member of the School of Social Work and Public Health, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va.

He has been employed with the State Welfare department since 1928, when he served as regional supervisor of old age assistance, then as chief statistician. Mr. Paul, in addition, has been connected with the transfer bureau, community chest, community recreational center, family service department and state welfare department.

ENGINEERS TO SIT ALONE SAYS KURACHEK

Freshmen Engineering Students To Meet Saturday

Freshmen engineering students will meet Saturday morning in the McVey hall according to an announcement issued yesterday by G. W. Kurachek, representative of the engineering section of the student council.

The section will be marked and roped off. "This is a step forward carrying on the spirit that was started in the engineering college last spring," Kurachek added.

Colonel Advocates Constitutional Education For Students And Editor Outlines His Hopes For Campus Improvement

Colonel Observes Publicity Needed For Constitution

Just as we said he would, the Colonel dropped in again last night. Puffing contentedly on his long Kentucky cigar, he settled into the other office chair motioning for us to finish the work we were doing.

Being a bit tired after yesterday's election, the Colonel sat for a long time thinking things over as he usually does before commenting on some vital issue in University life.

Nevertheless there was the same old twinkle in his eyes when he finally leaned back in the chair and asked as if all the activities surrounding the drawing up of the student government constitution and its passage by the University senate last spring had been kept a deep dark secret, sechided from the student body.

We looked surprised and the Colonel laughed as he said that he certainly remembered hearing plenty of disturbance, discussion and talk about the constitution last spring. Several times the old fellow said he had dropped into classes concerning government and politics where he had found the student government constitution the principle subject of conversation, or even heated argument.

So we asked the Colonel what made him think the constitution had been such a deep secret. Drawing his answer in his own inimitable fashion and correspondingly rolling his cigar between thumb and forefinger, he said that he had met any number of people yesterday who weren't freshmen or transfer students asking just what the constitution was all about anyway. Some of them had asked the Colonel what they were voting for when they marked X opposite "yes" on the ballot.

We confessed that such things on the surface did look as though the general student body either didn't care about governing itself, or at least hadn't been interested enough to ask what student government was or is and how it will affect each individual student in campus life.

But we replied to the Colonel's good natured prodding that the lack of knowledge concerning the student government constitution evident on the campus yesterday was probably our fault. There has not been sufficient time to review properly for the general student body or to educate new students on what was done last spring.

Thus, those students who had been too busy preparing for exams last spring to pay attention to the final spring publicity were not sufficiently informed as to the progress the constitution has made since then.

Before leaving the Colonel said that from such evidence the next step in the student government campaign was obviously the education of both new and old students in the ways and means for making the constitution work in all cases and under all circumstances. The Colonel promised to drop in again next Thursday and offer suggestions or ideas that he picks up on his campus rounds.

Starlight, Star Bright, First Star, We See Tonight

Outside the office, up in the sky, the first star just appeared. Back in pre-college days, in the old home town, quite a bit of all set to look up all sorts of references, only to find that your shoes have suddenly developed an off-key tenor squeak:

While scanning the Sunday paper, hoping to find a copy-reader's blunder that could be turned into a humorous bit, we happened upon the "parade of youth" column, and found therein a controversy raging as to the merits of swing. Young "Pro Bono Publicus," apparently in answer to a previous letter, were writing in defense of swing as an art.

There was something touching about it, and we felt a twinge of optimism, probably the first since munitions makers decided to end under-consumption of their products. With half the world busily engaged in slaughter, it is comforting to think that American youth can still get excited over swing.

By the way, whatever happened to that governor's race we were having in Kentucky before the war started? And what happened to the Chinese-Japanese war?

Dear Bud,
I suppose you're surprised to see that I'm still here after five years, but due to a slight misunderstanding with the English department, I failed to graduate on schedule year before last. It's been quite some time since I've heard from you, so I thought I'd write and ask how your collection of swing records is progressing. I suppose your collection, like mine, has stopped growing.

It's too bad, isn't it, that swing music had to die out? It was swell while it lasted, but when they ran out of original compositions and had to start swiping just anything, I guess it was just a little too much for people. It all started three or four years ago when Larry Clinton started messing around with Debussy's "Reverie" and the opera "Martha." That was about the same time he was juvin' "I Dream I Dwell in Marble Halls."

The next year it looked like the orchestras were beginning to get pretty hard up for something to play—you remember when they took a strain from Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony and called it "Moon Love." Ravel's "Pavane" was called "The Lamp is Low" and Glenn Miller started imitating tobacco auctioneers. That was bad enough, but as you know, things got a lot worse.

Did you read in the papers about Hal Kemp getting put in the penitentiary and his hand broken up? The guy should have had more sense than to try and get away with swangin' "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder," but I suppose he was pretty hard up for music and was willing to try anything once.

It was too bad about Tommy Dorsey, wasn't it? It was there and saw the whole thing. He was playing you know, here at school for a while when it happened. Everybody was getting pretty sick and tired of listening to Viennese waltzes and started hollering for (Continued on Page Three) star-gazing was indulged in. We liked to look for the first star, just as we enjoyed looking for the new moon, white horses, loads of hay, four-leaf clovers, horseshoes, and the countless other mysterious omens of good luck.

Now we're in college, and supposed to put away childish things, but at the first of the school year perhaps just one lapse will be forgiven. Many things happened last year and are happening now that will take years for completion, fulfillment or settlement, but if that star is on our side and if wishing will make it so, here's wishing:

That they finally obtain enough money, a deep enough well, or enough of whatever it takes to condition, ventilate, and cool the Union.

That the new form of student government will be a success and that eventually fraternities and independents will forget their personal antagonisms long enough to elect the "best man."

That Dr. Frank L. McVey will be succeeded by another liberal, broad-minded and scholarly president.

That, as the years go by, more and more students will come to appreciate the Union, take care of its furnishings, understand the tremendous task of "making it work," and that any one-sided contracts which might be floating around are balanced in the best manner possible.

That no one gets sued over any magazines.

That Memorial hall will be filled at each convocation with students who have learned that most speakers appearing there have something worthwhile to offer.

That the half promise to include the Wasserman or Kline test in the freshman physical examination will be fulfilled.

That Charles V. Maguire will have good luck in molding a bigger and finer "Best Band in Dixie."

That Kentucky's football team will show them a thing or two this year.

That the European war is short-lived, that it remains a strictly European war during that time and that a better treaty than Versailles ensues.

Along the same line, that no more peace warrants have to be sworn out.

That some revision is made in the American educational system—and don't ask how—whereby students will gain a more complete and unified knowledge of the world and its secrets, rather than a smattering of this and a smattering of that.

That the University of Kentucky continues to grow bigger and better with an ever-increasing number of valuable offerings.

And finally getting back to earth—that people will stay off the grass.

Found And Profound

Uphat of the affair over Sour Mash will come to a head sometime this week, according to Frankfort reports, with certain University high-ups on the receiving end of a law suit which will be no less than fifty million dollars. It's a $5000 mark. It's all a pretty shifty mess over who is going to publish the mag which Al Vogel wrestled from his former guardians (with their consent). Now that the officials have the mag back, Al is crying "I was robbed," and demanding plenty valuta for the journalistic football. His lawyer, who claims Vogel has an air-tight case, is a former Ky. law student.

Now with the farcical hilarity of rush-week forgotten, there can be recounted a few of the better-known absurdities that usually accompany the annual child-grab. The Sigma Nu's, so rumor recounts, are having their house reshingled to repair the damage done by the beat from the hot-box. Another story is about a freshman named Beard. While in one of the Greek shacks, Mr. B. was seen to raise the eyebrow at one of the brothers donning a hasty one. "Well," yelled the frosh, "I certainly want to have nothing to do with any fraternity where the boys run around drinkin'." And the pay-off—the boy went ATO.

the best exhibitions any band has put on in many a day, the boys pleased the students to the point of applause, something extraordinary with UKites. If they continue to produce like they started, the school should have two bands of their own that they can be proud of.

At the dance rush No. 1 went to new student cutie Jane Rice, who had the boys gulping. Also in paper circulation was freshman Betty Herr. Consensus of campus opinion gives the current cutie crop a three-bell signal, but swears that last year's crop was a ten-bell alarm.

The Club also enjoyed a bumper crop of students. Satine, as Greeks cast aside rushweek hollows and celebrated and/or mourned the new pledge crop.

Illustrative of the position of the man who declares the wars, was the speech of Maudie Neville Chamberlain to the English people. "I regret to tell you," gushed Europe's most adroit issue-avoider, "that you are at war with Germany."

First fall of leaves brings almost as many new romances, which manage to spring up like mushrooms after registration. Dave Rogan's former five, Gladys Harkness, is being seen about with Bob Brown and numerous others who seem to help her forget... Valdemar Hayden was in last week with a twenty fellow from Mt. Sterling. Hayden declares that he is "just driving her crazy"... Ann Brindgardner is going about with Charlie Garnett, and Freshman Johnny Harper is chewing his nails over Tucky Penn, Georgetown, entry into the freshman race. Mary Agnes Penny back from the summer adorned with a Beta button, recalling last year's juggling act that she pulled off. How many pins have you in the right-hand drawer of the dresser, baby?

Behind The Eckdahl
By ANDREW C. ECKDAHL

We can't vouch for this, but Political Science's Mr. Truman Morris swears it is true. He says that while passing the capron recently he picked up a few words of conversation between two freshmen:

Says one:
"Boy did I have a wild time this summer. I was up in Columbus, Ohio, and one night I went out and made the rounds of the taverns. Then I went to a ritzy nightclub. When I got home I only had 35 cents left—and I started out with a dollar sixty-five."

P. S. We don't either.

Being an ardent disciple of Robert Benchley, we were appreciative when a national weekly recently appeared with an article concerning the humorist.

The article was full of Benchliana—humorous little bits that we have filed away to be dragged forth when we want to liven up after-dinner conversation.

Probably the best is the story of the time a prep-school instructor assigned a theme on how to do something practical. Benchley handed in, thoroughly illustrated, a theme titled "How to Enshrine a Corpse."

Columnist Jim Caldwell comments that if John Nance Garner is as CIO-race John L. Lewis claims, "a poker playing, whisky drinking, evil old man" it is apropos that he should be vice-president.

Plug of the Week

List to the sad fate of Sidney B. Buckley, whom oldsters will remember as editor of last year's Kentuckian and leader of an anti-Japanese committee.

A few years ago Mr. Buckley, who claims Sturgis as his home, decided he didn't want military training. So he managed to prove he was a Canadian citizen. The University retaliated by charging him out of state tuition, and everybody considered the matter closed.

But now the Dominion is at war, and drafting of citizens is imminent. We can see Citizen Buckley, all dressed in kilts, as a member of the "Ladies from Hell."

Now your KERNEL when they come to class, get it all wrinkled and unfolded, and run it in your face the minute the prof steps into the room.

Seriously fellow students, why should the United States even consider the possibility of getting into World War Secundus? After all, as George Lamason says, we have no axis to grind.

He ought to have known it was against the law, but he evidently didn't, and was dooned right from the start. Well sir, a squad from the first platoon of a company K came in on the run, arrested him and drug him away. At dawn the next morning they took him down behind the army and show him. He died like a true band leader. He was a martyr, I guess.

It was soon after that that they passed this bill outlawing any sort of swing music. We here, of course, were against it, but the Metropolitan Opera Association was demanding its passage, and who were we to argue with the Metropolitan Opera Association? I think we owe a vote of thanks to the four Congressmen and two Senators who voted against it.

The law may be all right, but I'm getting pretty dad-blamed tired of dancing to these minuet and quadrilles. But then again, you can't have everything. There's nothing much else to tell you except that I heard the other day that the Smithsonian Institute has offered $500 for a record of Artie Shaw's "Begin the Beguine." Tak, Tak. And I can remember when you could find the thing or practically every nickelodeon in town. It's a sad world, ain't it? Your chum, Shag.

Calling 'Em Wild

By Joe Creason

Before all the summer leaves have been burned by small boys at the instruction of their mothers this Kentucky football team is going to develop into a real giant killer. That's a prediction, passed without the aid of any Oriental magic, destined to make me look good as an oracle.

The tip-off to this sad state of affairs (Kentucky's football recovery) came in Saturday's practice game with the freshmen, regarded as the most bountiful first year grid crops in many moons. Believe it or not, you could distinguish the varsity from the freshmen by the calibre of their play.

Despite the fact that Coach Ab Kirwan used more Cats than Clyde Beatty does in his circus act, four complete Kentucky teams alternated in rolling out points faster than a streamlined adding machine. An auditors check after the game registered the final tally as being 50-0. The Wildcats tore into their frosh opposing partners with the nonchalance of hounds scenting a rabbit and counted eight touchdowns.

New Deal in Blocking To these prejudiced eyes, the greatest encouragement came from the way the entire team blocked. When cat blockers connected they rocked the foundations. Last year, with Kentucky going no place except to the end of the schedule, the Wildcats were greener than spinach at blocking. This, I am told, is one of the Golden Rules of football and is extremely unbecoming to top notch football teams.

But in Saturday's preview bout Kentucky blockers showed the freshmen about as much mercy as

4 Full Varsity Teams Roll Up 50-0 Score On Freshmen Gridmen

3,000 FANS SEE PRACTICE TILT SATURDAY

Springing an offense that was as tireless and relentless as Old Man River, Kentucky's varsity football team rolled over the strong freshman crew by a 50-0 score Saturday afternoon on Stoll Field in a game length preview performance.

Some 3,000 fans, who sat patiently in the sun drenched stands, watched Coach Ab Kirwan alternate four full teams in tearing the Kitten's to shreds. On the other hand, the heavy frosh backs were able to dent the stubborn Wildcat line for but two first downs.

Not only did the game prove conclusively that the Cats can substitute freely without weakening the team too greatly, but it marked the debut of Captain Joe Shepherd as a ball carrier. Previously Shepherd had been cast in the role of a blocker and punter. Kentucky lead-off with an all-veteran team on the field but this combination was replaced after rolling up a 13-0 lead.

Kentucky's six touchdowns were all scored without resorting to any play more complicated than a reverse. The power of the Cats' passing attack was also kept under cover except for one try, a 43 yard heave, Zoeller to Hardin, good for a marker.

It took the Cats just two minutes to score. After Spears had blocked Cutchin's punt on the 10 yard line, Zoeller flashed around end for 7 yards and Combs hit over tackle for the score. Hardin's try for extra points was perfect. Three plays later the varsity took the leather on their own 45. Shepherd rounded end for 15 and then Zoeller faded back to the 43, took aim, and rifled a pass to Hardin in the end zone.

Black and Waters Out The only discouraging feature of the rehearsal for the more serious drama to come was the presence of two swell sophomores, Billy Black and Jack Waters, on the bench. Black, who does everything a good halfback should do but sew, is probably out for the year with the mumps as he had knee. Black's team runs with a peculiar change of pace, was rated as one of the best from Kentucky's crew of fine sophomore backs.

Waters, a 183 pound guard, reputedly cracked vertebrae in the Kentucky game, but never with so much encouragement as I saw Saturday. Don't get me wrong, I'm not envisioning any Rose Bowl team. In fact, there's several wrinkles yet to be ironed out before the team will be ready for a tough assignment.

Encouraging Signs For 10, these many months, I've been trying to spread the Kentucky gospel, but never with so much encouragement as I saw Saturday. Don't get me wrong, I'm not envisioning any Rose Bowl team. In fact, there's several wrinkles yet to be ironed out before the team will be ready for a tough assignment.

Rules Given For Card Stunts At VMI Game

The cooperation of every student in the card stunt section is essential for the success of the venture. Please abide by the following instructions at the VMI game Saturday.

- 1. Please leave the cards alone until asked to use them between halves. They are purposely tucked on the front of your seat out of your way. 2. Be sure that there is one person to a seat and that no seats are left empty. The seats have been marked off and numbered for your convenience. 3. When instructed at the half, lean over and carefully tear the colored cards and the smaller white "program" card from your seat. Look on the white program card and be sure the number on this card corresponds with the seat number. 4. Keep the colored cards on your lap all the time between stunts. This prevents them from "flashing" and tipping off the crowd as to what is going to happen. 5. Look on your card and see which color you are supposed to show in the first stunt. Put this color in the bottom of your pile of cards and place them on your lap. 6. Lean over forward and flip the cards in both hands on the short sides. Then when the gun goes off (you will be warned) raise up to sitting position and bring the cards smartly in front of your face so that the bottom card is showing. Hold them there until the whistle blows, then put them back on your lap. 7. Now look at your little white program card again and see which color you are supposed to show for the second stunt. Place this color on the bottom of your pile and you are ready to do again. Please do not look out between the cards. Do your best! The success of the stunts depends on you.
