High School Press Conference Will Meet Today, Tomorrow

Committee Plans Banquet, Dance, Round Tables

Reservations nearest 200 last night as high school journalists from 41 Kentucky member schools made ready to attend the annual Kentucky High School Press Association conference on the campus today and Saturday. Dr. Niel Plummer, head of the journalism department and chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, announced.

Round-table discussions dealing with problems of newspaper and yearbook publication, a special edition of the Kernel, evaluations of school papers, a luncheon, banquet, and dance are included on the two-day program.

For the first time in the history of the meets, work tables will be held in which the high school journalists are given actual practice in newspaper problems.

Registration of delegates will take place from 8 to 10 a.m. today and early registrants will be taken on a tour of the campus. Evening round-tables and two work-tables will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. and from 11 a.m. to 12, concluding the morning's activities.

Dan Bowman, promotion manager of the Lexington Herald-Leader, will speak on "The Newspaper in Community Service" at a luncheon meeting of the association at 12 o'clock in the Bluegrass room of the Union. Dean Paul P. Boyd, of the arts and sciences college will preside, and Dr. Henry H. Hill, Dean of the University, will extend greetings.

Further discussions are scheduled from 2 to 4 this afternoon. From 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. the delegates will witness a preview and exhibition of Kentucky's 1941-42 basketball team.

DANCE TONIGHT

The University Troopers will entertain the convention at a banquet and dance to be held in the Bluegrass room of the Union building at 7 o'clock tonight.

Delegates will see a special edition of the Kentucky Kernel to go to press in the sub-basement of McVey hall at 9 a.m. Saturday.

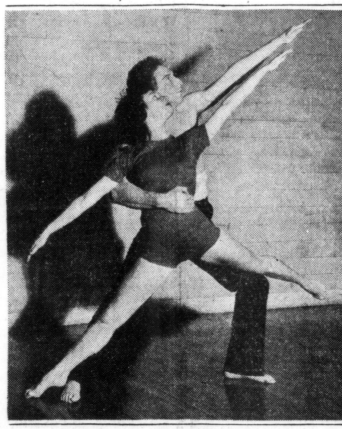

Members of the Journalism staff will evaluate and discuss newspapers submitted by the various schools from 10 to 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

A business session of delegates, with election of new officers, will take place at 11 o'clock. At the same time, all advisers will hold a business meeting.

The convention will officially end at 12 noon Saturday, when members will witness a broadcast of the "Wildcat Review" at the radio studios in McVey hall. Representatives from two of the schools will compete in a spelling bee as a part of the program.

Speakers included on the round-table program are Dr. Niel Plummer, Prof. Victor R. Portman, Prof. W. C. Tucker, and Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, all of the University Journalism department; Alex Bower, sports editor of the Lexington Leader; A. Garver; Miss Jacqueline Bull, assistant reference librarian; Charles T. Hoy, president of the Journalism staff of the Cincinnati; Elmer Sulzer, director, University Bureau of Public Relations; J. Francis Adams, state editor of the Kentucky Kernel to go to press, the Lexington Herald.

Robert Ammons, editor of the Kentucky Kernel; John Carrico, Kernel sports editor; Fred B. Hill, columnist; Robert Hillemeier, Kernel business manager; William Hopewell, assistant director of student publications; Helen Kestel, assistant in the bureau of public relations; Mary Louise Naive, secretary of the Kernel business office; and Jay Wilson, advertising manager of the Kernel.

ELIZABETH LEWIS and GLEN HARNEY... two of the UK Troopers who will help entertain the high schoolers tonight with a floor show in the Union ballroom.

UK Philharmonic Orchestra Will Present Third Musicales

The University Philharmonic orchestra, with Prof. Carl Lampert, head of the music department, conducting, will present the third musicale in Memorial Hall. There will be no admission charge.

Organization in 1938, when Professor Lampert came to the University, the Philharmonic group gives one credit a semester for participation. Now in their thirteenth year on the campus, the weekly musicales were founded by President Emeritus Frank L. McVey when the organ, piano and piano were installed in the then new Memorial Hall.

Last year 15,000 persons heard the Sunday programs, an announcement from the music department states. This year, an even greater number is expected. It was added, Professor R. D. McIntyre of the commerce college faculty has been chosen director of the programs for the last ten years.

The Philharmonic group has chosen for its program Mozart's Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Haydn's Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Adagio, Allegro, Andante, Moderato, and Allegro spiritoso; Tchaikovsky's Andante from the Symphony No. 4 in E Minor; and Strauss' "Perpetuum Mobile."

East, West All-Star Gridgers To Meet In Charity Tilt Here

Lebanon Junction To Battle Burgin In Six-Man Contest

Kentucky became a state divided against itself Saturday when the high school sons of two sections, the East and the West, clash on Stall field at 2 o'clock in the fourth All-Star charity game sponsored by the Oakes temple of the Shriners.

The East squad, composed of youths on the sunrise side of US 21, is directed by Roy King of Everts with his assistants, Tony Jones of Ashland, and Cassius Hatcher of Mount Sterling. Fayne Grone of Pikeville.

The Westers, taken from the opposite side of the Dixie Highway, are coached by Paul Jenkins of the high in Louisville. Ken Sidwell of Tompkinsville, Ty Holland of Murray, and Cooskey Crawford of Henderson, assisting him.

SIX-MAN GAME

The All-Star tilt will be preceded by a six-man football game between Lebanon Junction and Burgin which will begin at 12 o'clock.

The Eastern squad received a new member when Tom Bales, Pikeville, replaced John Kohlar, Belkville, who suffered a rupture. Turner Burton of Benham was confined to his hotel room Wednesday with an attack of influenza but he is expected to play Saturday.

Because of its heavier line, the East runs a very slight favorite, but it has the advantage with a fast running attack and an aerial offense.

EASTERN LINE

Eastern linemen who have shown well in practice sessions are Frank Dexter of Danville, center, and Bill Thomas, tackle, of Henry Clay. Frank Wheeler of Ashland, guard, is another outstanding inman.

Eastern backs are Odel Eby of Corbin, Russell Lehman of Pikeville, Elmer Wachman of Newport, and Jack Green of Shelbyville. Bryley Corbin, Russell Lehman of Pikeville, Elmer Wachman of Newport, and Jack Green of Shelbyville, Bryley Corbin, Russell Lehman of Pikeville, Elmer Wachman of Newport, and Jack Green of Shelbyville.

The West backfield is studied with high school backs who have some capable performers as Jack Thompson of St. Xavier, Bob Shippen of Manual, Dick Holmes of Sturgis, and Ock Damron of Owensboro.

HOW THEY STAND

The All-Star game was originally held in 1938. In the three-game series there have been two ties and one Eastern victory. The lone triumph was that of last year when the East stopped the West running attack and went on to win 11-7.

Admission to University students is 50 cents with the activity book for a reserved seat in the stands.

The probable starting lineup will be: East—Ed Wilder of Pineville and Wilbur Sch of Versailles, ends; Thomas and Greg Anderson of Pikeville, tackles; Wheeler and Jack Cook of Highland, guards; Dexter, center; Green, quarterback; Lehman and Wachman, halfbacks; and Bryley, fullback.

West—James Sags of Henderson and Larry Nohls of Fulton, ends; Paul Herron of Sturgis and Jack Tush of Fulton, tackles; Gene Bayfield of Paducah and Ed Gray of Mayfield, guards; Mark Sowers of Male, center; Thompson, quarterback; John Hall of Henderson and Holmes, halfbacks; and Damron, fullback.

Yearbook Queen, Court, Most Popular Man To Be Named At Dance

JOE BOHNAC and GEORGE NOLLAU... will be in charge of the Kentuckian dance Saturday night in the Union Building.

CROSS TO PLAY AT ANNUAL BALL Judges to Select Queen Friday Night In Memorial Hall

Coronation of the 1941 Kentuckian queen and election of the "most popular man" on the campus will highlight the annual Kentuckian Ball from 9 p. m. to midnight Saturday in the Bluegrass room of the Union building. Four attendants will compose the queen's court, which will be announced at the same time.

After the group of candidates for the queenship has been narrowed down to ten at an elimination contest at 8 p. m. today in Memorial Hall, the queen and four attendants will be selected by three judges.

Voting for most popular man will be done on stubs of tickets to the dance, which will be deposited in boxes at the door. Balloting will close at 10 p. m.

The winning candidates will not be announced until about 10:30 p. m. Saturday when the coronation ceremony will take place.

Kuiper, Shannon, Driver To Lead Open Classes

Lecture Series Planned By College For Second Term

Dr. John Kuiper, Dr. J. B. Shannon, and Dr. R. L. Driver will lead open classes in the arts and sciences college within the next week. Dean Paul P. Boyd announced yesterday.

The first of the three lectures, "The Laws of Thought," will be led by Doctor Kuiper at the fourth hour today in room 205 Prazer hall.

As a part of his course in Early Political Theory, Doctor Shannon will lecture on "The Decline of the Greek City States in Comparison with the Contemporary World" at the second hour Monday in room 301, Administration building.

DRIVER ON FOOD

"The Physical and Chemistry of Food Absorption" will be the subject of Doctor Driver's lecture at the second hour Tuesday in room 313, Biological Sciences building, as part of his course in Anatomy and Physiology 3.

Dean Boyd said that the response to the open lectures was unusually good. Seventy-seven persons attended Dr. E. P. Parquhar's lecture on "How Drama Conveys Life" Wednesday.

During the latter part of the second semester a series of four lectures, known as the College of Arts and Sciences lecture series, will be presented. Dean Boyd announced.

FOUR FIELDS

One faculty member will be chosen from each of the four fields of concentration in the college to present the talks. They include 1) Literature, Philosophy, and the Arts; 2) Social studies; 3) Physical sciences; and 4) Biological sciences. The faculty member representing each field will be selected by the members of the faculty in the field. The series will be open not only to all students and staff members of the University, but to nonstudents as well. Dean Boyd said.

Purpose of the series is to honor some of the outstanding scholars on the staff, and contribute something of real value to the University community, according to Dean Boyd.

Motor Test Laboratory Studies New Engine Oil

Eliminate Carbon On Surfaces Inhibitor Chemicals

By ROBERT BORDEN

A sample of the work now being done at the Motor-Test Laboratory on Rose street across from the men's dormitories is the experiments on airplane engine oils. Laboratory workers under the direction of Prof. A. J. Meyer, national known authority on internal combustion engines, are trying to learn the effect when inhibitor chemicals mixed with the regular aviation grades of oil.

One type of inhibitor chemical, for example, has been found to eliminate the formation of carbon on piston and cylinder surfaces.

$80,000 DONATED

In operation since May, the laboratory, built at a cost of $80,000 which was donated by a Swiss philanthropist named Wenger-Green, has tested nine airplane motors.

When the assembled motor is first sent to the laboratory it is torn down, cleaned, checked and each part weighed. After being reassembled, the motor is set up with a propeller in a room at one end of the building. There is also a wind tunnel for other experiments.

The motor is run for 50 hours, then taken back to the disassembling room. As each part is removed, it is placed in a special rack and later weighed. For example, a carbon covered cylinder is weighed after the test, the carbon is scraped off, and the cylinder reweighed.

This is just one of the checks to find out how efficient the new oil is. Four consecutive tests are made for each different chemical added to the oil.

NEW TYPE MOTOR

Other tests in operation are on a new light-weight motor. For experimental purposes the motor is of small design, and when perfected will be constructed on a larger scale. The motor is placed on a long coil, at the end of which is a large box which is a disc that looks like an old-fashioned speedometer tells the temperature around the motor. In the corridor a man sits looking at dials in front of him and making notations. This particular experiment is an altitude test; however, there are many different kinds of tests to check the oil.

During the tests, flaws are found in many motor parts. Draftsmen, who have a special room in the laboratory, design new parts which are sent to a manufacturing plant

UK's Coast-To-Coast Vocalist Sings For Fort Knox Soldiers

Betty Roberts, Excited, Thrilled, Likes Fan Mail

By ANN SAUNDERS

Betty Wells Roberts, who represented the University on Fred Allen's program in a coast-to-coast broadcast from New York, made an appearance Wednesday night. She sang for the soldiers of Fort Knox at a dance given them by the Louisville alumni association of the University at the Brown hotel in Louisville.

Betty Wells, who described her trip to New York as "exciting and thrilling," told the Kernel in an interview yesterday that the best part of the experience is the fan mail that she has received since the program last week.

"There have been letters from Kansas, Pennsylvania, California, Florida, Canada, and Midway Island. Several of them were from women, two or three from soldiers," Betty Wells said.

NOT ROMANTIC

There was one from a man who said that he was married and had three children. In the course of the letter he said, "It is no romantic notion but I would like to have a recording of your voice."

"An interesting point about most of the letters is that they are intelligent and not exactly what you might expect from fan mail. One of the soldiers criticized my voice and seemed to know what he was talking about," Betty Wells pointed out.

Puzzled because everyone in New York considered her a Southern co-ed, Betty Wells said that Fred Allen's first word to her was "congratulations—all-lotions."

"Although I met several celebrities, most of the men were married," Betty Wells added, "but I met their wives, too."

THOSE SHE MET

Among those she met were Jesse Kessick, news photographer for "Twenty-Century-Fox"; Charles Gordon, who wrote "I See a Million People"; Joe Pinkus, casting director and talent scout for "Twenty-Century-Fox"; Mark Hellinger, "Twenty-Century-Fox" producer, and his wife, Gladys Clark, former folkies star; Kenny Baker, singer on Fred Allen's program; Jimmy Wallington, radio announcer; Al Goodman, orchestra leader; and Fred Allen and his wife, Portland.

"I never saw so much milk and cream in my life," Betty Wells remarked in describing her visit to the grand opening of the Co. Bouge, a New York supper club.

Although she did a lot of sight-seeing, including a visit to Central Park and Piccadilly park, Betty Wells regrets that she didn't even see the inside of a store, not even a ten-cent store.

When asked about her hopes for the future, she stated that she is interested in radio as a career but would probably end up as a school teacher, since she is majoring in romance languages and plans to teach French in some high school after graduation.

Besides a singer Betty Wells, who is a senior in the arts and sciences college, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the YWCA. Delta sorority, and the YWCA. Last year she appeared in the Collegiate follies and sang with Bill Cross' orchestra.

COORDINATION WITH DEFENSE PLANNED FOR CPT Physical Exam To Be More Rigid, As For Air Corps

Beginning with the spring session of the CPT course, the University's Civilian Pilot Training will be more closely coordinated with the national defense effort, an announcement from the military department states.

Physical examinations for the flight course will be made more rigid to approximate the physical tests required for admission to the army and navy air corps.

Though the more stringent examination will require a fee of $12 instead of the former charge of $6, applicants passing the examinations may take all the advanced courses offered by the Civilian Pilot Training program without additional physical tests.

'Bank Nights' Are Discussed In November Law Journal

By PATRICIA SNIDER

"Legality of 'Bank Nights' in Kentucky" by Joe E. Johnson is one of the leading articles in the November issue of the Kentucky Law Journal, published by the law college and edited by Roy Vance, Jr.

The article serves to clarify the ruling that no more "bank nights" will be allowed in a state because of their conflict with the state law. Section 225 of the Kentucky constitution reads, "Lottories and gift enterprises are forbidden, and none shall be exercised and no schemes for similar purposes shall be allowed. The General Assembly shall enforce this section by appropriate penalties. All lottery privileges or charters heretofore granted are revoked."

An article on non-resident fee points out that an adult student may pay his fee when he enters the University and live here a year going to school. The next year he may show that he is legally a resident of the state and is domiciled here, but the University still considers him a non-resident and demands such a fee.

Other articles in the journal include comments on cases concerning the National Labor Relations board, the power of the National Labor Relations board to award back pay to employees and to provide reimbursement for WPA payments.

Books reviewed are "Caldwell" News on Kentucky Reports, "Cases and Materials on Taxation," by Paul W. Burton; and "Law and Politics," by Felix Frankfurter.

ACTION BEGUN ON TWO FRONTS BY LEGISLATURE

Pre-Exam Holiday,
All-Student Section
Are Proposed

The Student Government association began action on two proposals at its meeting last night. Committees were appointed to investigate the possibilities of seating all students together at the football games next year and having a one-day vacation before final examinations this spring.

Arthur Walsh was appointed to consult the athletic department to discover if there is any reason the freshmen and upper classes cannot be seated on the same side of the stadium. Sponsors of the proposals stated that they believed this would improve the spirit of the students.

Elizabeth Wigginton was made chairman of the committee to investigate the possibilities of instituting a holiday between the close of classes and final exams for the second semester. This topic has been brought to the attention of the legislature by both students and faculty members. The ROTC field course precedes the finals under the present set-up. About half the student body participates in this and thus are kept from studying before exams.

The committee that has drawn up the proposed amendment to the constitution was authorized to appoint a sub-committee to begin formulating legislation in accordance with the amendment. This is necessary in order to get the bill into effect when it passes.

Rules In Force At Union Dances, Committee Says

The Dance committee of the Student Union has announced that the rules regulating student conduct in Union dances will be strictly enforced, beginning with tomorrow night's Kentuckian ball.

The rules follow:

- 1) Gambling, drinking of intoxicants, entering the building in an intoxicated condition, and bringing intoxicating liquor into the building are absolutely prohibited. Anyone infringing upon the rule is subject to immediate ejection and upon a majority vote of the Union board, may be expelled from membership in the Union.
- 2) Proper conduct must be maintained in the building at all times.
- 3) Smoking at dances in the building is in the Student Union is prohibited.
- 4) Guests, visitors, organizations, and members of the Union are subject to the same rules while in the building.

Annual Announces Year Book Is Prize In Snapshot Contest

A free copy of the Kentuckian, campus year book, will be awarded the winner of the annual snapshot contest which will continue until the second semester.

Pictures of informal campus activities or other snapshots not included in the annual's regular departments may be turned in at any time in the Kentuckian office. McVey hall, it is announced.

Get Your Degree Before The Draft, Journalists Say

Graduate from high school at 18 and from college before your draft number comes up—it can be done under a system which will be presented to visiting high school journalists by the journalism department.

The curriculum prescribed makes it possible to obtain a liberal arts degree in three years of regular class work and three years of summer school. A student entering the University this summer would be able to graduate within three years.

Engineering Group Will Tour South

A group of the electrical engineering department, composed of Professors Elnor Barnert, E. A. Bureau, and 16 students, will leave Sunday for a tour of the South and participation in the southern district convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

A group will travel by car and will visit Norris dam, Chattanooga dam, and the universities of Alabama and Tennessee, before proceeding to New Orleans for the convention.

Kindergarten Of Democracy

In Theory

Ranking high among the incongruities of present day America is the fact that in many instances the educational institutions, which theoretically should be training young men and women to be good citizens of a democracy, actually are doing just the opposite.

From the first day he steps in the red brick school building the student has most of his relations with other students—his own childhood government—regulated from above. The rules of conduct which he must obey are dictated from above. Through grade school and most of high school, when the students are not capable of deciding for themselves, this is reasonable; but often this system is carried over even into the colleges and universities, and that is going too far.

It is a curious attitude on the part of many university faculties and professors, on one hand, that ditch diggers and field hands and garbage collectors should vote on matters of national concern, and then deny, on the other hand, university students—who certainly have a higher average intelligence than the average voter in national elections—the direction of their own local affairs.

It is a puzzling logic which tells students for 16 years "Teacher knows what's best; you do what you are told," and then, on their 21st birthday, shows a ballot at them and says "From now on, you know what's best for you; from here on you tell the government what to do."

In grade schools, of course, and to a certain degree in high schools, it is true that students are not capable of managing their own affairs, but in college it is high time that they began.

If college students, theoretically the potential leaders of their country, are not trained in self-government and prepared for their place in a democracy, who will be? If the colleges and universities do not turn out a body of educated voters, accustomed to directing their own affairs and governing themselves, where are they going to come from?

It seems that an important function of every university should be training in self-government. And the logical means for this is a student government giving the students themselves as much freedom in determining their own affairs as possible.

The problem then resolves itself into this: how far should they be allowed to go?

Obviously there are many matters of University administration, such as curricula, personnel, expansion, and the like, requiring professional training and concerning state funds, which are beyond the scope of student government. But there are also matters of student funds, student conduct, and welfare, which come directly in the sphere of the students themselves, and should be regulated by them with a minimum of faculty direction. This is the best way for them to learn from practical experience the problems which they will have to face after graduation if they are going to participate actively in government.

Certainly, they will make some mistakes which might have been averted if everything was run by the faculty, but it is better that they do this and keep their interest in self-government rather than letting George Do It. There will always be available, on request, the advice of the "older and wiser heads" when needed, just as a democratic government calls in experts when they are needed, but the actual student government will be "of the students, by the students, and for the students."

In this way, the colleges and universities should be able to develop a portion of the electorate trained and able, and cognizant of the fact that it is not only their privilege but their duty to take an active part in their government.

In Practice

Right now, the University of Kentucky is faced with the challenge of student self-government. Under consideration by student government leaders is a series of amendments to the SGA constitution which would give students considerably more power in determining their own affairs.

These amendments, in effect, would give students almost complete control of their finances, social affairs, and welfare, retaining faculty members only in advisory capacity. Theoretically, as we pointed out above, this would be almost the ideal set-up. (Exception: matters of student conduct would still be under faculty supervision, with modifications.) Whether it would work out in practice or not is a matter of conjecture.

It may be that students are not yet ready for such power, or they may prove themselves thoroughly capable; student interest may drop off because of the war and the matter have to be shelved until things settle down again, or, stimulated by a realization that it is up to the students or not at all, interest may soar.

At any rate, we feel that, ideally, the new amendments are much needed. We would like to see them given a try.

Thought For The Youngsters

VICE OF THE PEOPLE BY FRED HILL

On a sunny day in early September, 1939, the Nazi machine began its "counter-attack" against Poland.

On that same sunny day a generation began to stumble over its own decadent ideology. A generation exposed to the myriads of words written on the utility of human conflict began to lodge in its own intellectual net.

"That was our Mr. Ammons' 'what the hell' generation. That was the generation that, like turtle, receded into its shell or, like a mad dog, ran wilds about biting at anything it could reach, including its own father and mother.

The name of its father was Democracy, of its mother, America.

From the germs of what may have been righteous anger at its bungling predecessors, that generation spawned a dislike and distrust of the good old American ideals of self-government and democracy.

As a result it has been condemned as one would condemn a rotten structure. It has been left to grope out its own salvation.

Part of that generation ourselves, we feel incapable of adding anything to the saying that would save that has not already been said before.

There are, however, a couple of quotes which, if properly digested, might help in the salvation of those that follow us. There are some of them on the campus today. There are the members of the Kentucky High School Press Association and they are the forerunners of our next year's college generation.

"One comes from a letter from Thomas Jefferson to Dr. Ramsay. It was written in August, 1787.

"I am sensible that there are defects in our federal government, yet they are so much lighter than those of monarchies (you can substitute dictatorships) that I view them with much indulgence. I rely, too, on the good sense of the people for remedy, whereas the evils of a monarchical government are beyond remedy."

The other is an excerpt from a more modern political writer, John Dos Passos, who says in his The Ground We Stand On:

"In times of changes and danger when there is a quicksand of fear under men's reasoning a sense of continuity with generations gone before can stretch like a lifeline across the scary present and get us past that idiot delusion of the exceptional Now that blocks good thinking."

In other words, the main thing for a prospective college person to remember in attempting to classify and evaluate the things they hear and read here is:

That things are no worse now than they have been a lot of times in the past.

Which is an undoubtedly trite thought, but one that unfortunately too many so-called intellectuals have forgotten or ignored in the making of their tones on "world conditions today."

And one it behooves our successive generations not to forget.

Barring Band Members Was Poor Hospitality

To the Editor of The Kernel:

Being a Kentuckian, I have always heard of that good old Kentucky hospitality, and have seen it in practice many times. Last week, however, this great hospitality was thrown in the ash can, and by an organization that should do much to uphold it. The organization: ODK. The occasion: The dance last Saturday.

I was told that every member of ODK voted not to let the Tennessee band members in at the dance, and there were only five or six that stayed to go to it. Last year at Knoxville, every member of the University band was admitted to a dance free, and treated swell. Surely it wouldn't have strained our hospitality, and surely not our pocketbooks, to let just five or six band boys in the dance free.

Being just a band member, I probably can't conceive the social indignation that would be caused by the act, but I do know that it was very poor hospitality, and very poor publicity for the University.

JUST A BAND MEMBER!

Dissenting Opinion . . .

By BOB TANNER
Kernel SGA Reporter

Endangering cooperation of the University administration and the student government by limiting faculty influence in executive departments is a fallacy of the proposed amendment to the SGA constitution.

According to the bill the only function of faculty members would be on committees appointed by the Student Legislature to advise or investigate departments of the SGA. A faculty member with a rank of associate professor or above would be placed on each committee.

The SGA was created and operates with the cooperation of the University administration. This is a vital factor without which it is destined for failure. The elimination of faculty representation seems to be the first step toward a breach between the bodies.

One of the objections to faculty members has been their domination of committee meetings. This accusation is probably true since faculty members are prone to express views more fluently than students. It cannot be said, however, that they usurped power from the students.

Speculation is that this proposed amendment is an outgrowth of campus politics. This is not likely—the originators, Jim Colliers and Richard Adams, are too intelligent leaders to jeopardize the entire student government system for political motives.

In due respect to the proposal and its benefits, it might be suggested that such an amendment be carefully considered from this point of view prior to submitting it for enactment.

"Sacred to the Memory of Jared And Years to be Comforted." These lines, inscribed on an ancient headstone in a Lincoln, Me. cemetery, bear witness that even 140 years ago there were those who realized that it pays to advertise.

The Party Line

BY MARGARET CANTRILL

Wow, I nearly talked myself out to that telephone operator Tuesday and don't you know, I don't think she was very much impressed with what I had to say! When I got through talking, all she said was "Thank you"—and she says that to everybody... So I'm mighty glad you called, Dawson. You might be more interested. Well, as I was saying the Bluegrass room of the Union is going to be a bit overworked this weekend. The High School Press association is having a dinner and dance Friday night and then there is the "much-looked-forward-to" Kentuckian dance Saturday night.

There have been parties going on all week. Two were Zeta Tau Alpha rush parties. The Tuesday night party was a "bovery party" checked clothes and candles in bottles lent much. Thursday they had a smaller group to the atmosphere of the party, for a luncheon at the chapter house. All this week Mrs. Harold Helper, national president of Zeta Tau, has been a guest at the sorority house. She is also an adviser for this section of the country and her territory includes Kentucky.

Tuesday night the Kappa pledges gave a party for the members of the active chapter at the home of Jacqueline Hugueter on Richmond road.

The Chi Omega pledge-active buffet supper is a bi-weekly affair. This afternoon they are planning an open house for the Delta Tau Delta members. After the open house the delts will have a buffet supper for the ChiOs.

Other open houses planned for this p.m. include the Tri Delta party for the Kappa Alphas and the Alpha Xi Delta open house for the Phi Deltis. And oh, yes, I forgot to say anything about the Alpha Xi rush party when I was on the subject of rush parties. It was Wednesday afternoon at the chapter house.

Think that about covers everything, my fran. Be good and keep beautiful and they may choose you for the beauty queen. Bye now.

Cage Cats' First Casualty Is Akers' Sprained Ankle

England May Start Opening Game December 6

By JIMMY BROWN
Kentucky's cage cats met their first casualty of the year Wednesday with Marvin Akers, all-Southeastern conference guard suffered a severely sprained ankle during a scrimmage session.

Akers, whose sharpshooting from out in the court is expected to be one of the main cogs in the Wildcat offense this year, will probably be sidelined for a week or more. In fact, it is uncertain that he will go, his place will probably be taken by Ken England, a junior.

Carl Staker and Akers are the only two Blue performers who seemed to be sure of starting positions, although Mill Tocco, the Jenkins flash, has the inside track for one of the forward posts. The other forward spot and the pivot position seem somewhat in doubt. Either Lloyd Ramsey or Waller White will get the opening forward call.

Mel Brewer, six-foot, five inch junior from Jeffersonville, has been occupying the center post during most of the practice sessions. However, Jim King, whose play in the Southeastern conference tourney last year earned him a berth on the all-conference team, may oust him. King suffered an attack of pneumonia and Washington Lee, of the Southern loop; Nebraska, of the Big Six; and eight Big 12 opponents.

One more game was added to the Cat schedule this week when South Carolina was carded for a December 22 contest.

The Rumpmen will meet the representatives of five conferences. They are Ohio State, of the Big Ten; Texas A&M, of the Southwest conference; South Carolina and Washington Lee, of the Southern loop; Nebraska, of the Big Six; and eight Big 12 opponents.

Independent universities appearing on the card are Notre Dame, Miami, Xavier, and Mexico. The only extended trip the Cats will take this year is a three-game jaunt through the South. On this swing they will play Tennessee, Georgia Tech, and Georgia.

Brown University, which has been mentioned as an addition, will not be played. Vanderbilt, which has appeared on the Cat schedule for the last several years, is also absent. Vandy does not begin its season until after the first of the year, and no dates could be arranged.

It is estimated that at least half of 124,000 manufacturing plants in the United States may be affected by defense material rationing.

"Colonel" of the Week

This week's "Colonel of the Week" goes to Bill Fortwood, outstanding end on the Wildcat football team. Bill, who lives in Midway, is a sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Bill insured his place in the hearts of Kentucky fans by catching the pass that brought the Wildcats their first touchdown scored upon Tennessee since 1936. His outstanding all-around play in the Tennessee game won him a place on the Southeastern Conference's sophomore team of the week. To show our appreciation for these achievements we invite you to come in and enjoy any two of our delicious meals.

KERNEL SPORTS

Sporting Way

BY JOHNNY CARRICO

The high school All-Stars take up this week where the Wildcats left off last Saturday. The boys, brought in from all over the state, have been practicing since Monday and both teams have taken shape rapidly.

This is the fourth annual meeting of the best squads from Eastern and Western Kentucky. Sponsored by Oleika temple of the Shriners, the entire proceeds go for charitable purposes—to help crippled children. Adolph Rupp, Kentucky basketball coach, has been chairman of the event, and it is due largely to his efforts that the contest has been such a success.

To enhance the value of the All-Star tilt, another show is offered—a six-man football game between Lebanon Junction and Burgin. Considered a gridiron orphan, football as practiced by a sectette has not been recognized or accepted widely. Regardless of what it is, the national champion of six-man football should be a good one, since Lebanon Junction is the national champion of six-man football.

Volleyball Finals Begin; Wrestling, Boxing Set

Bowling Tournery Draws 20 Teams; To Close In March

By HAROLD WINN

Nine A league and six B league teams opened tournaments in volleyball last night as play began to determine the campus champion in the two leagues.

Volleyball teams have been competing for several weeks and the teams that finished in the upper bracket are entered in the final tournament.

Those making the A league tournament are: Alpha Gamma Rho, Phi Delta Theta, Triangle, Sigma Nu, Phi Kappa Tau, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Delta Tau Delta, Alpha Sigma Phi, and Delta Chi.

B league contenders are Alpha Tau Omega, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha Sigma Phi, Triangle, and Delta Tau Delta.

Boxing is scheduled to get under way Tuesday when several lightweight events will open the intramural card. Wrestling will begin Wednesday night.

The Intramural department announced that Bob Featherstone, Golden Glove referee, will officiate at the boxing with Billy Wray, for many years a judge of amateur and professional bouts, and Lee Allen Eaton of the State Department of Safety, serving as judge.

Fred Hill, former intramural wrestling champion, will officiate for the wrestling matches. Hill has been serving as coach for the wrestlers during their training period.

The boxers and wrestlers were required to go through a training period and must pass a physical examination at the dispensary to be eligible to compete.

The annual bowling tournament began last week at the new Colonial alleys with twenty teams participating. The tournament will continue through the winter months with events scheduled to be completed around the last of March.
