SGA Makes Plans, Discusses Problems And New Reports Group Picks Morrissey As New Secretary

By RONNIE BUTLER

When it rains it pours! A secretary was elected, and parking problems, movie prices, bus prices, Stylis, the budget, and requisitions were discussed at the Monday night session of the Student Government Association.

First, assembly members elected Pat Morrissey for their new secretary. Miss Morrissey, a senior, will replace Lois Smith, who is now teaching at Cynthia.

Second, Edward Johnson, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, told SGA members that "we've just about got this parking problem licked."

He reported that eight of the 12 parking areas available on the campus were taken by members of the faculty, and that only one of the remaining four, number seven, was used exclusively by students.

"We've had a lot of complaints," Johnson said, "but I still think we've solved most of the problems."

Third, C. Turner, chairman of the committee studying the possibility of combining the Student Directory with the Faculty Directory, reported that the total cost for 3500 directories would be $600.

Turner also said the cost for printing an extra 80 copies would be $50, and that it would cost over $100 to add the Faculty Directory to the Student Directory.

According to Turner, Mrs. Sarah Holmes, Dean of Women, said that there is not yet an accurate compilation of members of the faculty. Along the same lines, Turner said that his committee still needed the names of the presidents of the 200 various campus organizations.

Fourth, Jim Perry, chairman of the Budget Committee, told Assembly members that his figures would not be ready until all requisitions had been taken in. He said that he would "probably have them ready at the next meeting."

UK Students Win Ag Scholarships Thirty-eight students in the College of Agriculture received scholarships for the fall semester, according to Dr. Dewey O. Steele, assistant dean.

SWEATER SWING IN SESSION - A typical crowd at a Tuesday night sweater swing is shown above. Sponsored by the Student Union Board, these Tuesday night sessions give newcomers as well as returning students an opportunity to get acquainted and have an all-around good time. All students may attend, with or without dates.

BEAUTY FROM FLORIDA - The University Wildcats may have kept victory in Kentucky last weekend at the UK-Florida football game, but they were unable to keep these four Florida beauties as permanent residents of Kentucky. Parading before the opening of the game, the four beauty queens were escorted by UK men.

Library Receives Rare Folios

A rare collection of Shakespeare Folios has been received by the Margaret I. King Library from the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington. The books were put on display today adjacent to the circulation desk and will be exhibited through Oct. 22.

This is the first traveling exhibit of early editions of Shakespeare ever to be put in circulation. It consists of a copy of each of the four Folio editions of the dramatic works and two Quarto editions of single plays. In addition, the Folger Library has sent a number of prints, facsimiles, and reprints illustrating the life and times of Shakespeare.

The volume contains the first printing of half of his plays, which otherwise might be known to us only by title. A copy of this book is the coveted possession of every Shakespearean scholar for its rarity and value. It was published in 1623, seven years after the author's death.

Dr. Blyton Names UK Debate Topic RESOLVED: That We Should Adopt a Policy of Free Trade will be the subject of this year's debates, Dr. Clifford Blyton, UK debate chair, announced this week.

Members of the debate squad include Wayne Carroll, Theodore Creddman, Charles English, James Dundon, Jacob Mayer, William Douglas, Noah Menck, Patricia Toy, George Shadoff, and Charles Bruchett. Debates are planned with Eastern, Centre, Georgetown, and other Kentucky colleges.

Two unselected teams will attend the Tau Kappa Alpha Regional Conference at the University of Cincinnati on Nov. 7, and another set of teams will attend the Invitational Debate Tournament at Purdue University Nov. 19-21.

Registration Date For Informal Rush Announced by IFC Signing-up day for informal rush will be between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., Oct. 21 and 22 in Room 127 of the Student Union, according to Jess Gardner, president of the Interfraternity Council.

Formal bid day will be on Oct. 23, same place and same time, Gardner said. Improvements for the rush system were suggested by various campus fraternities at the first meeting of IFC Tuesday night, and the group also decided to charge each fraternity man $2.00 for the annual IFC fee.

The dance, which will feature Stan Kenyon, has been tentatively scheduled for Dec. 12. Arrangements for the site of the dance have not been made.

Several fraternities also proposed setting up a "good squad" for the next formal rush period. A "good squad" would be composed of five or seven men who would check each fraternity house and local taverns and bars to prevent rule infractions, Gardner said.

Along the same lines, it was suggested that "rings" be set up for formal rush. It was explained that "rings" would consist of men, not known to the fraternities, who would go through rush to check infractions.

Ginger Asks Students To Help Amend Law

Change Is Sought In Fund Distribution

By RONNIE BUTLER

An appeal for students to help amend Section 186 of the Kentucky Constitution was made before the Student Government Association Monday night by Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, of the UK Department of Education. Dr. Ginger is also president of the Kentucky Education Association.

Section 186, which deals with the distribution of funds to schools in the State of Kentucky, reads as follows: "All funds accruing to the school fund shall be used for the maintenance of the public schools of the Commonwealth, and for no other purpose, and the General Assembly shall by general law prescribe the manner of the distribution of the school fund for public school purposes, provided that each school district in the Commonwealth shall receive on a census pupil basis its proportionate part of at least 75% of any fund accruing to the school fund from the sale of any fund accruing to the school fund may be distributed upon other than a census pupil basis."

Speaking against the present system of fund distribution, Dr. Ginger said, "Kentucky is now number one in illiteracy. He blamed the high rate of illiteracy on Section 186 because "it allows funds to be distributed on a per capita basis."

"Because of this," he explained, "there are certain districts in Kentucky that receive more funds because of their high population than need the money urgently." He went on to say that some districts, with higher populations, have fewer children in school than less densely populated areas.

"When the present system was established," he said, "there were fewer children in school. There are now 470,000. Because of this increase, there are not enough schools, or teachers, to handle the situation with the funds now available."

Dr. Ginger called the opposition to the amendment, "a committee of 100 that has appointed itself the guardian angel of Section 186."

He then asked the SGA to help amend Section 186. He suggested that SGA ask students of voting age to apply for absentee ballots for the voting on Nov. 3. "We'll furnish a large permanent trophy will be given to the winner, along with the big rotating trophy presented to the winning pledge class and the personal individual ever cup. The awarding of the trophy is awarded on a total point basis, in which three points are given for first place, two for second, and one for third in each contest."

At the conclusion of the final event, the Sigma Chi Derby queen will be selected. Two pledges from each sorority will stand behind a cardboard form representing what the Sigma Chi's consider the perfect female. The girl most nearly representing the form will be chosen as queen.

WBKY To Present Program In Grill

"Melts at the Grill," a popular expression of so many of the students at the University, is the new show that has been added to the programming schedule of WBKY radio station.

Jack Oldman, a senior from Port Mitchell, Ky., will be the host, along with his aid Nancy Don Fred, a junior from Charleston, W. Va. The show will come direct from the grill, the meeting place for everyone on the University campus. It will consist of questions asked by Jack and answers given by the students in the grill. The program will be broadcast from 9-9:15 p.m. each Friday.

Jack and Nancy Don plan to give a few prizes to students giving outstanding answers. A riddle question will be asked, but neither of the two expect an easy answer to this. Everything on the program will be directed toward the life of the students and their activities on campus. One question might be "Why a college guy will date a girl four times, though he'd get kicked the first three?" Boys, could you answer that?

For the last two years the University Department of Geography has offered this international summer school in Geography at the Instituto Tecnológico at Monterrey, Mexico. Courses totaling eight semester hours either upper division or graduate credit may be taken.

Arnold Blackburn, assistant professor of organ, will begin the annual series of Sunday Afternoon Musicales with a concert at 4 p.m. Sunday at Memorial Hall. Blackburn, who is teaching in Kentucky as a recitalist and teacher, he serves as organist and choir director of Christ Church in Lexington. He is a member of the American Organists. During the past year Mr. Blackburn has made recordings for the National Council of Episcopal Churches. These recordings include "The Mass" recorded with Dr. French and English organ schools from the 18th to the 20th century.

Blackburn holds his Master of Music degree from the University of Michigan and taught organ at Oberlin Conservatory before joining the University faculty. The concert will be presented on the relatively new Holmquist organ which is considered one of the finest of its type in the United States. The program for the concert will include three verses from his Te Deum, the Tu Petrus - Tu Davidus - Judex Credaris, by Anonymous; the Komm, Süsser Tod and Friede and Fugue in B minor by J.S. Bach; the Choral in E major by Cesar Franck; and the Sonata on the Ninety-Fourth Psalm by Jean Reulicke. This series of Sunday Afternoon Musicales was established by the late Dr. Frank L. McVey and are now being made recording for the first time. These concerts are performed largely by faculty artists of the Music Department. An exception to this will be the concert of Andre Marchal, French organist, on Dec. 9. Other features of this concert will be the joint concert by Forrest Conaway, pianist, and Blackburn, with organ and Dr. Hugo Zeller, visiting professor from the University of Vienna. This new feature will be presented by the University Band to be presented in the spring. Nathaniel Patch, associate professor of music, will give a piano recital on October 25, and the Quartet, which includes Marvin Rubin, Ken Wright, and Gordon Kenner, family members, and Joseph Pinal from Lexington will perform November 22. Anso Kivimäki, tenor, and Janice Stille, dancer, will also be on the program.

Prof. Blackburn was born in South Bend, Ind., and came to the University in 1950. Prior to that time, he had been instrumental music director at Louisville Alberton High School.

Prof. Blackburn will be the organist for the concert.

UK Interfraternity Council Fails To Function As Cooperative Unit

The Interfraternity Council appears to be defeating its purpose in having formal rush when it allows the fraternities on campus to ignore the rush rules and, instead, literally go all out after prospective members.

as likely to be filed under "Not Called For" as the first invitation. When the rushee came to pick up his bid, it could not be found.

During fraternity rush this fall numerous reports of rush rule infractions circulated about the campus. A large number of these "rumors" were well-founded. It is becoming evident that practically every fraternity at the University has resorted at one time or another, to what is aptly termed "dirty rushing."

Students Asked To Help Amend Ky. Constitution

University students will have an opportunity to influence the education program in the state of Kentucky by merely exercising the right to vote.

No one fraternity can be expected to shoulder the blame. The IFC is designed to prevent such infractions. But so far this year no constructive step has been taken in that direction.

An effort to amend a state statute regarding distribution of public school funds is being promoted in this area. An appeal was made before the Student Government Association in an attempt to get students interested. At present an SGA advisory committee is studying the proposal before endorsing it.

At the IFC meeting this week several suggestions for remedying the problem of "dirty-rush" were brought up for consideration. Formation of a "zoo gang" which would inspect the fraternity houses during rush was suggested. In short, this would be a group of "strong-armed" guys who would go bursting into each house.

In short, the program is designed to make the public aware of Kentucky's needs in the way of public school education. And there are inadequacies that deserve to be brought to light.

Another idea mentioned was the use of "ringers" or out-of-town men posing as rushees in order to gain entry to the frat houses. Since these men would be entering under false pretenses, the actual legality of such a plan might be questioned.

The classrooms in many of the state schools are overcrowded, thousands of the buildings are outmoded, transportation to and from the schools is sadly lacking. Thousands of emergency teachers are required to fill vacancies which have been left by teachers seeking larger-salaried jobs elsewhere.

During the meeting it was decided that fraternity men who had failed to turn in their rush reports on time were to be fined $5 the first day and a dollar each day thereafter. The decision was made at a vote of 11-10, indicating that the vote was influenced by fraternity men who had themselves neglected to submit the reports on time.

Largely at fault is the manner in which state school funds are being distributed. In accordance with the present law, at least 75 per cent of state funds for education must be distributed on the basis of the number of school-age children living in each school district, whether or not they are in public schools. Since the money is not allotted with regard to the number of children in school, it would appear to discourage attendance.

Actually, this decision should take effect immediately, and should not be concerned with delinquent reports heretofore. A legitimate complaint went up from the fraternity men who turned in tardy reports . . . "We didn't know about the fine; why didn't you notify us?"

At present, children in Kentucky do not have equal educational opportunities. The committee attempting to amend the statute has found that some districts have 50 times the ability to support education as other districts. Also one district receives $140 per pupil in average daily attendance from the State Per Capita Fund, while another district receives only $40. Another finding was the fact that the range in teachers' salaries is from $5,100 to $736.

"We're deciding it now," was the answer. This $5 fine will apply to all infractions. If it is to bring results all guilty fraternities must be penalized and not just a select few.

How do University students fit into all this? They have a chance to help amend the constitution on Nov. 3. They can approve an amendment removing this per capita requirement. Parents, too, can be influenced. It's to your advantage.

One occurrence which the IFC might find worthwhile investigating: During fall rush, a number of rushees failed to receive their invitations to preference night parties. In some cases, when the fraternity discovered that the rushee never received the bid, a second invitation was sent to the Student Union for the boy to pick up. This one was just

You're Another One

News has come that UK's 1954-55 budget is to be cut. Now that's heartening information.

Those gentlemen in the legislature apparently don't know how much it costs to run this organization. Those parking tickets are expensive!

Traffic, after Saturday night's Wildcat-Gator football game, was tied up for blocks and wasn't cleared until approximately 11 p.m., an hour and a half after the game.

Just one more indication that Lexington hasn't grown with the University. City and auxiliary police did their best; but, with choked streets through which to channel traffic, their best was not good enough. There's a solution, fellows. It lies in wider and better-paved streets.

The theme for the 1953 State Speech contests to be held on the campus Oct. 28, will center around a firmer foundation for education. We disagree! It's the build that counts, Dad. A good firm build takes all in our book.

Officials revealed last week that four female applicants were denied admission to UK due to insufficient dormitory space. Now, we don't think that was necessary. We feel sure some of the Scott Street students would have been more than glad to make room for them.

TV's 'Dragnet' Gains Distinction Without Help From Ray Anthony

By LESLIE MORRIS

Having nothing better to do the other night, we brushed the cob-webs from our TV machinery and snapped on that half-hour of nerveless gang-busting, "Dragnet."

Now before the clever expansion of the program's theme by Brother Anthony and the subsequent puerile "Drag-Net" parody, "Dragnet" was just another cop and robbers affair—but it had gained a sort of distinction of its own which was justly proud. Based on factual cases from the files of the Los Angeles police depot, the show, by employing a novel and realistic understatement, immediately caught on when it debuted on NBC-radio about four years ago.

The usual slaughter and clandestine mayhem of the Sam Spade school, had been replaced by the patient investigation of a soft-spoken, deadpan homicide dick named Friday. While the Spade libretto was finally resolved after a hasty spide duel between the heavy and the Achilleian private eye (which according to rule sounded like a point blank skirmish between a pompoon and a French seven-five), our Sgt. Friday rarely ever unholstered a rod.

Accompanied by a jowled and equally silent partner, Friday solved his problems in a less belligerent, but no-less-effective a manner. To the horror of old-time detective fans, the first suspect was usually "it" and more often than not the manly one confessed all after no more than a cold urging by the modest Mr. Friday.

But the show was a smash hit. Fans liked its documentary approach, and its strict adherence to

Monsieur Butler Tells Of Europe In Self-Interview

By MESSR. RONNIE BUTLER

(Mr. Butler feels slightly hurt because no one has made an effort to interview him on his recent trip to Europe. Therefore, Mr. Butler is going to interview himself.)

Mr. Butler: "Sir, when did you leave for Europe?"

MR. BUTLER: "I left on July 3 and returned on the third of September. By the way, do you have a cigarette?"

Butler: "Yeah, here. Just where did you go this summer?"

BUTLER: "Well, I traveled over most of France on a motorbike. Some of the towns I blessed with my presence were: Paris, Versailles, Septeville, Vert, Thory, Chalon, Avignon, Nimes, Arles, Berre L'Etang, and Figalle."

Butler: "What does France look like?"

BUTLER: "The most striking thing about it is the French architecture. It sort of resembles New Orleans."

Butler: "What did you like most about France?"

Butler: "What about the women?"

Butler: "Oh, yeah. Well, it's not true."

Butler: "Oh."

BUTLER: "For the most part, they're like women anywhere, except that they aren't as silly, hypocritical, superficial, stupid, naive, pampered, unformed, egotistical, and hysterical as our own wondrous girls."

Butler: "May I quote you?"

BUTLER: "Sure, I can save money by not dating here."

Butler: "How about culture? Is France still the leader?"

BUTLER: "Definitely not. We Americans have developed arts the French never thought of. They have the Louvre, we got Joviland. They have architectural beauty, we got Neville Hall. They have students interested in politics, national and world, we got the Bachelor's Club of America."

"They had their Lantree, we have comic strips. They had Balzac and Colette, we got Mickey Spillane."

"Offhand, I'd say we're far more advanced culturally than they are."

Butler: "How about politics? Do they laugh at McCarthy? Do they believe that Germany is more dangerous than Russia? Do they hate America? Do they think we're stupid? Do they . . . ?"

BUTLER: "YES."

Butler: "What's Paris like?"

BUTLER: "Great little place. Museums, outdoor cafes, artists on every corner, quiet restaurants, postcards . . ."

Butler: "Tell me, Butler, do you honestly think that the French are having a hard time now? Personally, I think they're all a bunch of lazy, good-for-nothing . . ."

BUTLER: "Butler, you're absolutely right! They throw their money away fighting wars in Indochina. They waste funds rebuilding what the Germans have torn down in two wars. They feed the widows and mothers who lost sons and husbands. In short, they only work about 23 1/2 hours a day."

Butler: "Are they strong yet? I mean, could they add anything in case of another war?"

BUTLER: "Why hell yes, man. They have everything they need to fight, especially manpower. They have US money, US soldiers, US air bases, US industry, why, there's nothing they don't have."

Butler: "Then they wouldn't mind fighting?"

BUTLER: "Of course not. It's like a French sailor said, 'We rather feel that France is going to be the next battle-ground on which the Americans and Russians settle their differences.'"

"They're really looking forward to having their fields plowed, their homes air conditioned, and their excess population thinned out again . . . all free, naturally."

Butler: "Did anything funny happen to you?"

BUTLER: "No, except that I lost my passport on my way to Holland."

Butler: "So?"

BUTLER: "I had to hide in the men's room while the little man with the blue cap went by."

Butler: "Did that teach you a lesson?"

Butler: "Learn any French?"

BUTLER: "Learned how to ask directions. Every time I'd ask a Gendarme he'd say, 'Tournez a droit, et puis a gauche. Apres ca, tout a droit jusqu' a le premiere rue a gauche.' That's what they'd say."

Butler: "What's it mean?"

BUTLER: "I don't know, but I think it had something to do with girls."

Our Readers Speak: About School Spirit

Dear Editor: What's the matter with the upperclassmen?

Their school spirit is just about nil. They, who are supposedly the high and mighty of this school, are really dead weight in this respect. The supreme lofty position a senior gains upon promotion is apparently accompanied by an attitude of aloofness and overestimated superiority toward events in his past that impede his march to glory. Things such as cheering, moments of childish behavior, and moods of homesickness which lie only a few months behind them are viewed with contempt by these diploma-seeking creatures.

The upperclassmen have the impression that the University is here solely for their convenience and pleasure. This, of course, is a blaring misconception. However, the condition is still present and, as a result, a few are carrying the load of school spirit which should be shared by all. The freshmen and a few sophomores are the lone standard bearers in the noise-making department at this stage of the season. Should they falter the results could be disastrous.

B. L.

With a top flight sports program at UK, the students' spirit should be up instead of down, as it is at schools where they have mediocre teams. The Wildcats, who have a tough road ahead with teams like L.S.U., Mississippi State, Rice, and Tennessee remaining on their schedule, will need all the help they can get from now on.

Some of this help could come from more student spirit. It is amazing what a team can do when it knows the whole school is 100 per cent behind it all the way. So come on fellow students, let's show the team some noise at the football games and attending the pep rallies. We have a fine coach, team and a good student body, so there is no reason why we at UK cannot be as proud of our school spirit as we are of our athletic teams.

The only thing I have noticed lacking at the University of Kentucky is the school spirit. The foot-

Anthem Not Respected

Dear Editor: I'm a veteran back on the campus and maybe I'm just getting old, but I thought some of our UK students showed extreme discourtesy Saturday night at the football game, perhaps because of their immaturity, as The Star Spangled Banner was being played.

For example, I saw two students ignore the playing of the anthem, and guzzle from a bottle. Directly in front of me two couples laughed and talked. One girl behind me smoked a cigarette throughout the entire anthem. Several others had their backs to the colors.

In the Air Force I saw a much different attitude shown by the boys and girls of the same age, and by many who were much younger. These people showed a mature respect for our colors and for our anthem. Should we expect less here on the campus of a great university where tomorrow's leaders are in training?

Amorphius Discovers Best Gear For Game

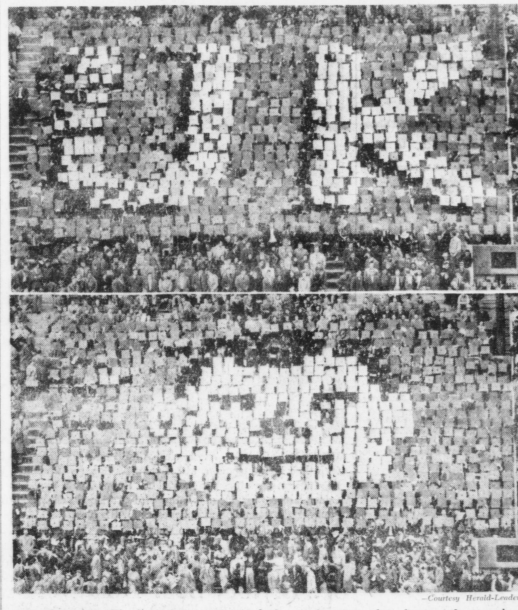

By YVONNE EATON
'I just don't have a thing to wear to this football game tonight,' was the familiar cry down the hall of 30 old Hunt-Hardy dorm.

During a grilling lecture on Friday, Amorphius had extracted a date—a well gotten a date—with Hump Biggie, most popular man of campus.

Miss Jane Haselden Describes Paris Trip

By ANN O'ROARK

"A mid-summer's night's dream," is the way Miss Jane Haselden describes her flight from the states to Paris, France last June 24 prior to her attending the International Federation of University Women conference in Cambridge. Miss Haselden, assistant dean of women, and Miss Margaret Storey, head resident of Jewell Hall, toured Europe together and then attended the international conference as representatives of the University. They crossed the Atlantic on a TWA Constellation plane and landed in Paris, where Miss Haselden had lived before the war. In Paris they spent five days sight-seeing at the Folies, Lily Pond's production of Rigoletto at the Opera House, and the races. In the chateau country, Miss Haselden said she was shocked at the destruction caused by the war, but she marveled at the way the French were restoring their country. The sand-blasted Notre Dame Cathedral was one of the most amazing changes Miss Haselden noticed. From Paris, Miss Haselden and Miss Storey toured through France and spent several days at a sea-shore resort on the Mediterranean coast. Miss Haselden said that all of the American sailors she saw there were engaged in playing ping-pong, which she took "a pleasure many of their mothers."

English Instructor Is Fiction Writer

Theodore Cogswell, newest member of the UK English Department, is a tall, youthful fellow who likes to be called "mister."

Mr. Cogswell, who is now badly clogged in grading freshmen themes, spent four years in the Air Force as a captain.

In addition to teaching, Mr. Cogswell is a writer. So far, he has sold 20 stories, two of them anthologies and one a TV manuscript.

His specialty is science-fiction, that branch of writing which deals with the possible, making use of known facts. He has sold stories to "Astounding Science Fiction" and "Galaxy," two of the better science-fiction publications.

At present he is writing a novel and is working on other assignments. He has a contract with a science-fiction publishing firm.

Mr. Cogswell started writing two years ago. "I didn't have much scientific training," he said. "Some of my friends were science-fiction writers, and when I needed to know something, I used the telephone."

"I hadn't done any writing at all, until two years ago," he said. "My friends and I used to exchange ideas frequently, and one day someone told me to write them. That's how I got started."

"Besties," he added, "speculation is a wonderful field for the beginner. Ideas are what counts, and if you have a good idea, it can make up for indifferent style."

Mr. Cogswell plans to continue writing while he is at the University. "It's not only interesting," he said, "it's paid well."

He has married and has two children.

WBKY Takes Steps Toward TV Facilities

WBKY-TV! No, not yet, but it's on the way.

The Radio Arts Department has taken the first steps toward the addition of television facilities to the University.

Two main developments this semester are helping pave the way: 1. The addition of a basic course in Cinematography offered in the radio arts curriculum.

2. The purchase of a television film camera, making it possible to send local productions to TV stations over the country.

Cinematography, the first fundamental television course ever offered at UK, has been received with enthusiastic response, according to Mrs. Camille H. Hubbard, acting head of the Radio Arts Department.

Final plans for the TV course were not completed in time for inclusion in the college catalog, but even with this lack of publicity, 17 students are now enrolled.

Objective of the cinematography class is to teach the basic techniques of making motion pictures for television, including lenses, lighting, and direction. Mr. Stuart W. Halko, class instructor, includes the filming of a TV picture story by each student as a term project.

UK's first TV instruction is the outgrowth of another public relations idea for the University. Plans call for the filming of local news developments and productions for airing over WHAS-TV, Louisville, and WLW-TV, Cincinnati. In addition approximately 25 educational stations over the country will provide outlets for other local films.

But to follow through on the public relations idea, local officials realized that trained cameramen and production supervisors would be needed. And that's where the course in cinematography comes in.

Students will be trained in the techniques of TV work, providing a skeleton crew for news assignments. TV equipment here includes an Auricon single system, sound recording film camera, purchased last summer. This film camera is ideal for outdoor filming, radio arts representatives say, but studio remodeling is needed before any quality inside TV work can be achieved.

But the beginning has been made, the first step taken toward the time when call letters WBKY-TV will be a reality, not a dream.

Revitalized Cats Face Strong LSU Tomorrow

By BILL BURLISON

The Wildcats are planning on taking their new found claud with them when they go to Baton Rouge this week-end to take on the L. S. U. Tigers. With such an improvement in their offense...

The Purple and Gold Tigers present quite an obstacle to the comebacking Big Blue. They have almost the same team that downed Kentucky 34 to 7 last year.

The Tigers opened the year by stunting a good Texas team 20 to 7. Then they next took on a determined Alabama team that was trying to get revenge for a licking the week before and tied them 7 to 7.

Track Prep Continues As Opener Nears

UK's cross country trackers, headed by returning lettermen Frank Scott and Charlie Wells, will open the season against Cincinnati on Oct. 25.

Coach Don Cash Seaton will be counting heavily upon three new faces to team with Scott, senior veteran, and Wells, sophomore returnee, for the first endurance test of the year which will be a two-and-one-half-mile classic at Cincy.

Ken Nachand, returning from a hitch in the armed services may be called upon to fill one of the three vacancies left by Al Wiley, Jay Wallace, and Speedy Price who were dependable standouts on last year's squad.

Tom Sandridge and Ed Shriner, who were members of last year's squad, will also be available for use by Coach Seaton if he needs them. Newcomers to the team are Dave Collett, Don Atkinson, Bill Kasey, and Keith Mahurin, who are fresh and should bolster the team considerably.

SPORTLITES BY LARRY MEYER

We were among the some 30,000 fans who left the Florida-UK game last Saturday night wondering what had happened and who we had seen golding up the Gators from the deep south.

In all seriousness, we don't feel that this will be the last of the wins this season for the Bryants. On paper, some observers saw only a win over Memphis State on the schedule ahead, prior to the upset win.

Coach Don Cash Seaton will be counting heavily upon three new faces to team with Scott, senior veteran, and Wells, sophomore returnee, for the first endurance test of the year which will be a two-and-one-half-mile classic at Cincy.

One unsung hero of the triumph who we feel deserves a pat on the back, and there were others, is Ken Williams, a converted fullback switched to center by Bryant, who did a fine job of relieving the ailing Tom Adkins. He, in turn, was splendidly buoyed by a freshman center, Dave Kuhn, a Louisville product.

The new flag football being played by the Greeks this fall seems to fit the bill in one respect. It makes the running game more possible and thus gives opposing quarterbacks a more versatile attack than the standard passing drives of past years.

George Koper and his well-balanced SAE squad appear to deserve our I-M orchid for their win over the Sigma Chis, 13-0, in what was to have been one of the top games of the season.

When Coach Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech gives his squad a day off, they don't hit the sack or loaf around, but hit the volleyball court for a strenuous session. Dodd is a great believer in volleyball as a mental and physical developer.

In keeping you up to date on how UK opponents of previous games are progressing, we find the Texas Aegies tying Houston, highly touted Southwestern squad and defeating Georgia, 14-12, as extra points again defeated an SEC school, since downing the Cats 7-6.

Upsets have been a dime a dozen this year and we personally feel that the switch to the platoonless system is responsible. It all depends on what the second team can do while relieving the first string and where the regulars have to tave over when they are allowed back in the game come the second quarter and the last four minutes of each half.

We feel like a godfather or a dutch uncle or something. Henry Mayo, one of our sportswriters, is the proud papa of a new baby daughter born Tuesday in Paintsville. The new father was nowhere to be found for a statement.

The announcement that WHAS TV will televise the UK-Tennessee football game will come as a definite relief for many UK fans who were unable to pick up ducats during the preferential sales which found all tickets sold.

The video presentation comes as the result of a NCAA ruling that games between rivals which were sold out could be televised. Mr. Vic Sholis of WHAS says that only a sponsor is needed to go ahead with the plans. This is like asking a manufacturer if they would like to sell a million gallons of their gasoline or two million boxes of everyone's favorite cereal, "Spungies".

Led by the superb quarterbacking of sophomore Bob Hardy, Coach Bear Bryant's Wildcats, supposedly Gator bait, clawed and chewed Saturday night until, at the end, it was the Gators who were the bait, as Kentucky completely outplayed a rough, tough Florida aggregation, with a 26-13 triumph.

Bob starting his first game in Wildcat togs, completed seven out of ten passes for 131 yards and two touchdowns against the team that was leading the nation in pass defense, having allowed only four completions in two games.

Wildcats Down Florida For First Win Of Year

By DON HENRY

Shades-o-Babe! A true wildcat underwent Wildcat team came through in "pussing" style to beat Florida 26-13. Using almost as many quarterbackings as he did plays, Coach Paul Bryant felled an unstoppable eleven which amassed a total yardage of 399 yards against a highly touted, Tech type, Florida. Quite a turn about from 59 yards against Ole Miss.

Bob Hardy, held out last season, Haddock slip-slipped through the made his 1953 debut a success by not being able to get the Gators flinging two touchdown passes.

Hardy and Hunt were responsible after score because the ball was have drifted back a couple of years as he was a continuous receiver throughout the night.

Hardy's Lead Rejuvenation The Wildcats displayed their rejuvenation the first time they had the ball. Under the generalship of "Babe" Bob they marched 92 yards in 12 plays, climaxed by a 20-yard Hardy to Paolone pass for the TD.

Another standout was Ray Correll, the blond bruiser, who is with straight games and who was held to a doubt, the most underrated 9-0 tie by the Floridians, completed only one aerial, that one coming on a desperation heave in the waning seconds. He also averaged four yards per carry with 52 yards in eight rushes.

InFINNities

By BOB FINN

Police sergeant: "College student, eh?"
Prisoner: "Yes, sir."
Patrolman: "It's a stall. I searched his pockets and found money in 'em."

A college man was telling a friend about his date the night before. "There was a swell moon and we walked along a country road," he related. "She sighed and said: 'I'd just melt in your arms if you'd put this top down.' And do you know that I got that top down in ten minutes flat." "Ten minutes?" exclaimed his friend. "Why I can lower mine in three minutes!" "Yes, know," said the Romeo, "but you've got a convertible."

Job Applicant: "I'm Gladys Zell, Personnel Manager." "I'm pretty happy myself. Have a seat."

A hillbilly came to town carrying a jug of liquor in one hand and a shotgun in the other. He stopped the man on the street, saying: "Here, friend, take a drink outa my jug." The man protested he didn't drink.

The hillbilly leveled his shotgun at the stranger and said: "Drink." The stranger drank, shuddered, shook, shivered and coughed. "God, that's awful stuff."
"Aint it?" said the hillbilly. "Now hold the gun on me until I take a gulp."

"I nearly ran over a pedestrian a few minutes ago and I think he was from Miami."
"How do you know he was from Miami?"

"Well, when he reached the sidewalk I heard him shout something about the SUN and the BEACH!"

A young man, engaged to one of a pair of lovely blonde twins who looked and dressed exactly alike, was asked how he managed to tell one from the other. "I don't try to," he confessed. "They're both sweet."

Scherago Compares Hawaii And Mexico

By David G. Coapman

An island of scenic grandeur and spotlessness, contrasted to a country where deplorable health conditions exist, was the description given by Dr. Morris Scherago, head of the UK Bacteriological Department, of his trip to Hawaii and Mexico this summer.

Dr. Scherago's first trip took him to the Army Schofield Medical Laboratory, located a few miles from Honolulu. There he did research on tropical diseases, a study he had begun the year before in St. Paul.

After completing this scientific project, he flew to Mexico City, where he engaged in the same type of work. While there he addressed a conference of epidemiologists and other public health officials on the topic, "Problems in the Production of an Effective Typhoid Vaccine."

His address to the conference was held in connection with a typhoid vaccination program currently being carried out in Mexico.

"The Mexican health conditions in Mexico are just the opposite of those in Hawaii," Dr. Scherago commented. For instance, in Mexico the infant mortality rate from intestinal infections is from 55-75 per 1,000. Other leading diseases are TB, typhoid fever, brucellosis, and diphtheria.

With regard to Hawaii, the health situation is extremely good, reports Dr. Scherago. However, food poisoning is the most important problem.

Honolulu has one of the most remarkable pieces of sanitary engineering that I have ever seen," he said.

Applications for the examinations may be obtained at any first or second class post office except in a city where a Civil Service Commission headquarters is located. Further information may be obtained on request at such post offices.

Oriental Theme Used In Ballroom Redecoration

By AUDREY LOONEY

The atmosphere of the Orient has been imported to the campus with the redecoration of the Student Union Ballroom Room.

Under the direction of Miss Anne Worthington Callahan, who has been associated with the Art Department for the past thirty years, the wall panels were painted in the softest tones of turquoise with accents of coral and gold.

The draperies are of hand painted antique satin with a special coated lining for blackout purposes in showing movies and slides.

Every piece of ballroom furniture has been upholstered with new material. The one hundred chairs have been covered in coral, magenta and the cushions have been done in gold.

The painting and upholstery were done by the Division of Maintenance and Operations.

Belgium Girl Gets Pan-Hell Grant

Claire Renders from Brussels, Belgium has received the Panhellenic scholarship this year. Miss Jane Haselden, assistant dean of the UK, announced she is working on her Master's Degree in commerce.

As has been the custom in the past, Claire will eat her meals at the various sorority houses on campus. During the first three weeks she ate at the Tri-Delt house. She is now taking her meals with the Chi Omega.

The Panhellenic meeting was held last Monday and the committees were set up for Panhellenic Day, which will be Nov. 12.

Also discussed was the outcome of rush this fall. Miss Haselden commented that things had gone very well on the whole, except for the number of girls who did not pledge.

Campus Group Hears Dr. Morris Scherago

A critical shortage of medical technologists exists in the United States, especially in Kentucky," Dr. Scherago said. The shortage of technicians, Dr. Scherago said, shows no improvement due to the fact that the number of students enrolled in medical technology throughout the country is too low to take up the slack in the field.

Following Dr. Scherago's talk, the society made plans for a picnic to be held Sunday at the Lexington City reservoir.
