THE SECOND REPORT ON THE ANNUAL ALUMNI ROLL CALL for 1956-57 shows an increase of 1723 new members and $10,730.50 since July 1, when the first report was published. This increase is most encouraging, and brings the grand total to 2,500 members. It is still short of last year's total of 4,600, and we are hoping to exceed this figure during the month of November.

30% PARTICIPATION MEANS 7,200 ACTIVE MEMBERS. What per cent of the alumni in your college are members in 1956-57? We solicit your help in reaching this goal by November 30, 1956. The publication of the complete Alumni Roll Call, with the name of each contributing alumnus, has been held up until our goal of 7,200 active members is reached.

Yours for a greater University of Kentucky.

President Dickey

Dear Members of the Alumni Association:

By the time this message reaches you, the 1956-57 school year will be well underway. We are now engaged in one of the largest and most comprehensive programs upon which the University of Kentucky has ever embarked. You can be very proud of your University, its faculty and staff, and the student body. We have our headaches and our problems, but it is our firm belief that this will be the greatest year ever experienced by our University.

We sincerely hope that you can visit with us on the campus in the near future and see the interesting work which is taking place here. Whenever you come, you will be more than welcome. In the event we do not see you prior to Thanksgiving and the Christmas season, may we take this opportunity to wish for you the best of everything.

Very sincerely yours,

Dr. William Willard Of Syracuse U., Is Dean Of Medicine

Dr. William R. Willard, dean of the Syracuse College of Medicine assumed the full-time duties as vice president of the UK Medical Center and dean of the College of Medicine, last summer.

A native of Seattle, Wash., Dr. Willard received his Bachelor of Science degree in 1931 from Yale University and M.D. degree from Yale in 1934. He interned at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore in 1934-35 and was assistant resident at Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, N.Y. He received the degree of Doctor of Public Health from Yale in 1937.

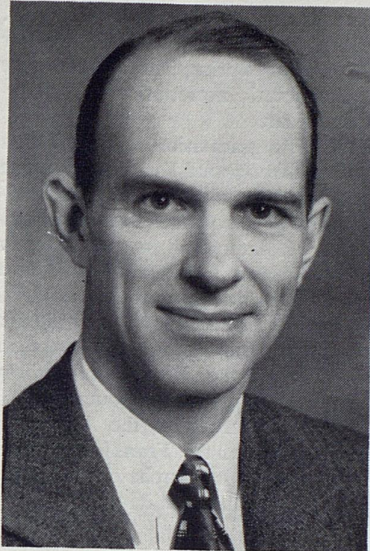

The new medical dean is a fellow of the American Public Health Association and a member of the American Medical Association. He has been active in the Handicapped Children's Association and the Veterans Hospital in Syracuse and has been associated with the Blue Cross Group Hospital Service.

A College of Medicine was formally established by the Board of Trustees on June 1, 1954. The 1956 General Assembly appropriated $5,000,000 for construction of the first unit of the medical center, the Medical College Basic Sciences Building. An additional $6,000,000 has been pledged by Governor Chandler for construction of a teaching hospital and other needed facilities.

The center, which eventually will include a College of Dentistry and a School of Nursing, will be located on 39 acres of the Experiment Station Farm adjacent to the campus. Plans call for the first class of medical students to be admitted in the fall of 1959.

Dr. Willard has met with university officials, architects, and contractors regarding preliminary plans for construction of the medical center. Ellerbe & Company, St. Paul, is the consulting architect for the project. The Minneapolis firm designed the world-famed Mayo Clinic. Meriwether, Marye, & Associates, Lexington architectural firm is the local architect.

lutionary methods of instruction in the new school, but plans to concentrate on the individual student in a small-group-unit plan of teaching.

An interchange of UK faculty members with faculty members of the medical school "would serve a most useful purpose and we plan to do just that," Dr. Willard stated.

"With particular respect to appointment of our faculty, we expect to have the co-operation of practicing physicians in Lexington and surrounding territory in the teaching of our students," the new dean said.

PRES. DICKEY, DR. ADAMS WRITE BOOK

President Frank G. Dickey and Dr. Harold P. Adams, associate professor of education are co-authors of a book on student teaching.

The book, "Basic Principles of Student Teaching," was prepared by the UK educators to guide prospective teachers in their student teaching experience. It is organized around basic principles of educational practice.

This is the second book written

Joe Roberts Named Vice Pres. of Co.

Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has just announced that Joseph K. Roberts, formerly of Lexington, general manager of the research and development department has been elected vice president of the company, in charge of research and development.

Joe Roberts is the son of the late Prof. George Roberts and Mrs. Roberts, and was graduated from the University in 1925. He has been a director of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) since 1947. He joined the research department in 1928 and was made director of research at the age of 33, one of the youngest men ever to head a large scientific organization. Mr. Roberts also holds a degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Friends of UK May Join Alumni Ass'n.

A special membership has been established by the University of Kentucky Alumni Association for the benefit of those who are interested in the institution's activities, programs, functions and welfare, but who did not attend the school.

The special classification—associate membership—was approved recently by the alumni executive committee following a study conducted by William M. Gant, Owensboro, a member of the committee.

Miss Helen King, director of alumni affairs, explained that the plan resulted from the numerous requests received from parents of UK students and friends of the University.

Associate memberships will be issued with each contribution of $5 or more to the UK alumni fund. Associate members will be entitled to all privileges of regular members, except those of voting and holding office.

jointly by Pres. Dickey and Dr. Adams. In 1953 they wrote "Basic Principles of Supervision." The authors have also written extensively for educational journals and have developed various bulletins for the Bureau of School Service in the College of Education.

Herndon J. Evans Of Pineville Made Editor, Lexington Herald

Herndon J. Evans, '21, former owner and editor of the Pineville Sun, has become editor of the Lexington Herald, following the death of the late editor, Sen. Thomas Underwood.

Evans has been a staunch supporter of UK since his undergraduate days when he was active in student affairs. He was a member of Strollers, campus dramatic organization, Kappa Sigma social fraternity, university basketball team and the first president of Suky, student pep organization.

He is a former trustee of the university and is now a member of the executive committee of the Alumni Association. Within the past year he directed publicity work for the Kentucky Medical Foundation which waged a successful campaign to obtain establishment of the university medical school.

A past president of the Kentucky Press Association, Evans owned the Pineville Sun for 32 years but sold it to Charles Adams of Warsaw, incumbent president of the Kentucky Press Association.

He has been active in Democratic politics for many years and has served as publicity chairman for Sen. Earle Clements and the late Sen. Alben W. Barkley. He also directed publicity for Bert Combs during the latter's race for Democratic nomination for governor last year.

Following graduation in 1921, Evans traveled throughout Kentucky for one year organizing alumni clubs and seeking athletic prospects for the university. He later worked as a reporter on the Frankfort State Journal, as a proofreader and reporter for the Lexington Herald and as a legislative writer for the Associated Press at Frankfort. He then became state editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

He had returned to the Associated Press as head of the Frankfort bureau when, in 1923 he purchased the Pineville Sun and assumed its editorship.

Terrell Says More Engineers Needed

The annual demand for engineering technicians on a national scale "greatly exceeds the supply," stated Daniel Terrell, dean of the College of Engineering recently.

Dean Terrell said he received figures on national engineering enrollment and needs from the Technical Institute Division of the American Society for Engineering Education, and that they show that the number of engineers is far short of present needs.

"It is estimated that the annual demand for engineering technicians is approximately 40,000 to 50,000," he said, "nearly five times the number graduated from full-time programs the year."

investigator for the project. One specific problem Dr. Kern said, will involve the measuring of the speed of neutrons.

The grant is the largest ever received at UK from the Atomic Energy Commission. It will enable physicists to continue a study of nuclear experiments and their application which started several years ago.

The University's atom-smasher will be used in the research. A Beta-ray spectrometer will also be used during the experiments.

Education College Offers New Program

The College of Education is offering a new type of cooperative educational program which began with the fall semester whereby students will "earn while they learn."

The program will cover a five-year period, the first two of which will be campus classwork. The last three years will be operated on a cooperative basis, with students spending alternate semesters at the University and in on-the-job training stations in business or industry. An advisor will work with the students in coordinating the overall program, and will serve as a liaison agent in helping the employer give the students practical training and experience.

Students entering the cooperative phase must have completed 65 hours of college work and have a "C" standing. Deadline for selecting this plan is during the first semester of the junior year.

President Frank Dickey initiated the early planning last year while he was dean of the College of Education.

President Dickey Speaks at Summer Commencement

President Frank G. Dickey told the summer graduates at commencement exercises that "we must look toward the harvest of the future, whether we are thinking of an institution or of our own lives."

Dr. Herman L. Donovan, who retired as president of the University Sept. 1 conferred a total of 374 graduate and undergraduate degrees.

Praising President Donovan and President McVey, Dr. Dickey explained that such men have reflected great glory on the University and have made contributions of lasting value.

Glen E. Brolander, assistant to the comptroller at Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill., received the first master's degree with a major in College Business Administration ever granted by UK at the August commencement exercises.

Grad Named "Man of Year" at Ohio State

A University of Kentucky bacteriology graduate who is now a member of the faculty of the Ohio State University College of Medicine has been chosen as "man of the year" by senior medical students there.

He is Dr. Samuel Saslaw, who was awarded the master's degree in bacteriology by UK in 1939.

The University graduate now holds the positions of associate professor of medicine and bacteriology, chief of the infectious disease service at the Ohio State Health Center and assistant professor of preventive medicine. He serves as a faculty member in both the College of Medicine and the College of Arts and Sciences there as the Department of Bacteriology is a unit of the College of Arts and Sciences.

In awarding the honor to Dr. Saslaw, the medical seniors declared that "he has come to represent a monument toward which we aspire to achieve in our profession and to respect in society."

Ohio State's "man of the year" may best be remembered by many central Kentuckians as a professional musician. He paid for his master's degree by playing in dance bands in the Lexington area.

Prior to enrolling in the University as a graduate student, he held a four-year scholarship in music at Transylvania College. He also performed with local dance bands during his four years at Transylvania.

An Ohio State publication announcing Dr. Saslaw's selection as "man of the year" noted that he "hails from a long line of musicians." The Spitalny's Phil with his All-Girl Orchestra and Maurice—are his cousins, and there are several other well-known musicians in the family.

Only 41 years of age now, Dr. Saslaw earned his Ph.D. degree in bacteriology at Ohio State in 1942. In 1946 the Without any ceremony Dr. Frank G. Dickey quietly moved his office across the campus August 30th and became the fifth president of the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Dickey, who was dean of the College of Education, accepted the keys to the president's office in the administration building from Dr. Herman L. Donovan, the retiring president. No arrangements were made for a formal inauguration.

Dr. Dickey expressed his preference against such a ceremony and said he strove to talk everybody out of it.

Dr. Donovan's retirement will not mean seclusion from university life. He will be president emeritus and professor of history of education. He plans to write a report of his administration and to travel abroad with Mrs. Donovan.

same institution awarded him the M.D. degree.

From 1947 to 1950, Dr. Saslaw served at the Walter Reed Army Hospital, and he emerged from the Army with the rank of captain. During his last year in the Army he also served as assistant professor of medicine at Georgetown University.

Presently Dr. Saslaw is heading a tularemia vaccine testing program at the Ohio Penitentiary under sponsorship of the Army Chemical Corps. He has published approximately 70 scientific papers in the field of infectious diseases.

Dr. Morris Scherago, head of UK's Department of Bacteriology, said that Dr. Saslaw is remembered by members of the University faculty as "one of the most promising and most popular students" to engage in graduate bacteriology study at the institution.

The University of Kentucky has received 80 acres of surplus government property on the V.A. Hospital reservation on the Leestown pike, which land will be used for poultry research,

Policies Planned By New UK President Stress Rules For Better Human Relations

By YVONNE EATON
Lexington Leader

A card, carried by Dr. Frank Dickey in his billfold, which gives some rules for better human relations, may explain some policies the amiable new president of the University of Kentucky wants to put into effect during his administration.

The rule which seems to have great significance with him is the one that says to tell people why changes are being made and why or how it will effect them.

After giving a great deal of thought to his new relationship with the UK students, he has found what he considers two possible approaches to student relations.

The approach toward which he leans is termed a kind of leadership counsel meeting once a month with various leaders of student organizations. The alternate plan would be to have a rotation system whereby he could meet with as many different groups as possible. The young president added, however, that this would probably not be as effective, as there would be a lack of unity.

Deans Hold Meetings

He would also like to call in other administrative officials from time to time for the student meetings. He explained that the deans now have informal meetings much along this line.

He believes that an important job in the University is to interpret more to the enrolled student body just what their school does and what it means and can offer them.

One of the things Dr. Dickey plans to do during the first two years is to go out into the state and talk with the people, particularly through organizations. At the meetings he will discuss various aspects of the school and try to clear up misconceptions about the University.

To Inform Public

Two misconceptions mentioned by him were the belief that housing facilities for women are not adequate and that the faculty or other officials do not work closely with the students. The public must be informed that this is not true, he commented. Without his saying it, one gets the idea this goes back to the rules of human relations.

Another phase in which he hopes the University can advance more is in the giving of scholarships. With a serious tone the president explained that scholarships are inadequate at the state school, and in many fields of concentration it is practically impossible for one to receive any financial aid.

When asked if any academic changes were planned in the near future for the University, President Dickey answered that any judgment on this would be withheld until the Committee of 15 had completed its study on curricula needs. The Committee of 15 was set up by President H. L. Donovan to study the needs of the University by 1965.

To Follow Plans

All the plans Dr. Donovan and the Board of Trustees have made toward buildings and other aspects of the University will be followed by the new president.

The UK president is in partial agreement and partial disagreement with Dr. John Ise, a Kansas educator who believes that "education isn't improving and . . . courses added have meant a degradation of educational standards."

"We are not forsaking education, but there might be some courses that need revising," the UK educator added.

"He has overlooked the fact that our whole American society is based on a plan that requires as high a degree of education as possible, if the democratic way continues.

"We must make it possible for people to have as much education as possible if the people make decisions intelligently. All people are not alike and do not have the same abilities and capabilities so we have to furnish different courses," he continued.

To Dr. Dickey the big question in higher education is what type of education must be provided and his answer is that real leadership must be of all be possible.

He sensed that the Kansan thought the schools are becoming vocational, but he doesn't quite agree with him.

Ise recently finished a year of lecturing at Goucher College in Baltimore and summed up part of his philosophy of education in a lecture on "Prostitution of American Education."

He said he thought a student has less chance of getting an education than he had 50 years ago when most of the few courses were educationally worth taking. He thinks the world is poor, thin, and desiccated.

Dr. Wall Appointed Associate AG Dean

Dr. Stanley Wall, '37, has been appointed associate dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics replacing Prof. L. J. Horlacher. He has assumed full-time teaching.

Dr. Wall, a native of Casey, Ky., was graduated in 1937 from UK with a Master's of Science degree in education and received his Ph.D. degree in education in 1954.

FORMER COED GETS BROADWAY SHOW LEAD

Anne Francis, former UK student from Jellico, Tenn., and more recently of LaFollette, Tenn., known on the legitimate stage as Ann Hillary, in private life as Mrs. Frederick P. Kelly, will have a leading role in the new Broadway show "Separate Tables," which opened at the Music Box on Oct. 25.

The wife of a playwright, the dark-haired, brown-eyed Miss Hillary had acting experience in summer stock, radio and television, worked as a model in Miami, and previously has had small roles in Broadway shows.

Frazee Hall to Be Rebuilt After Fire

University officials hope to restore Frazee Hall which was gutted by fire on January 24, according to President Dickey.

Plans for restoration include an enclosed fireproof stairway instead of an open stairway which burned in the fire, and rearrangement of some of the classrooms and offices.

The building was extensively damaged internally but remained undamaged around the foundation and walls. The fire is believed to have started in the basement of the building and spread up the stairway. Fire and police officers investigating the cause of the fire believe the fire originated from a deliberately set explosion in a toilet.

Meanwhile the four departments that were housed in Frazee Hall have been placed in various offices throughout the campus. Spread throughout the University are the history department, ancient languages department, philosophy department and the College of Adult and Extension Education.

PANHELLENIC WINS NATIONAL AWARD

The Panhellenic Council was chosen last spring for the Fraternity Month award as being the most outstanding Panhellenic council in the country during 1955.

The council, composed of members from each sorority, was awarded the honor because of its work on campus. One reason for the award was the high scholarship standing kept by UK sorority women. During 1955 the average for all-campus women for the fall semester was 2.63 while the all-fraternity women average was 2.80.

Besides maintaining a high scholarship the Panhellenic offers several scholarships and aids to women students. The council supports a foreign student and also has a $500 scholarship fund gift to the Frances Jewell McVey Fund. During Christmas time each sorority gives a party for underprivileged children.

The largest fall enrollment in the 91-year history of UK, 8,125, has been recorded this semester. The previous high was 7,929 in 1948.

Dr. Lyman Ginger Appointed Dean, College Of Education

Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, '42, has been named dean of the College of Education, succeeding Dr. Frank G. Dickey, the new president of UK.

Following his graduation from Kentucky Wesleyan, Dr. Ginger was a teacher and athletic coach for 10 years at Winchester High School. He became principal at Owingsville High School in 1940 and remained until 1943 when he was appointed principal of the University School in Lexington.

He became acting director of the UK training school the next year and director in 1946. Early in 1947, he was given the additional duty of chairman of the Division of Instruction and Placement in the College of Education. He held both positions until he was named dean of the College of Adult and Extension Education in July of 1954.

Whitehouse Retires As State Leader Of UK 4-H Activities

J. W. Whitehouse, '14, has retired a state leader of 4-H club work at UK after 32 years of service to the youth of Kentucky.

Through the efforts of Mr. Whitehouse in interesting industrial leaders, organizations, and civic groups in awarding scholarships, educational opportunities have become a reality for scores of young men and women.

During the 32-year period, more than 700,000 Kentucky boys and girls have enrolled as 4-H club members under the leadership of Mr. Whitehouse and members of his staff.

High on the list of other achievements was the establishment of two permanent 4-H camps, Bingham in Washington County and Western Kentucky 4-H camp in Hopkins County, for the enjoyment and development of rural youth.

A native of Anderson County, Mr.

Whitehouse received his bachelor's and master's degree from UK in 1914 and 1916. Before becoming state leader, he was the county agent in Daviess County from 1917 to 1922 and district supervisor of county agents from 1922 to 1924.

In recognition of his achievements, Mr. Whitehouse was presented with the Superior Service Award in 1952 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The following year, the Progressive Farmer Magazine named him its "Man of the Year" in Kentucky.

Brig. Gen. Elbert DeCoursey, '24, commandant of the Army Medical Service School at Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, has been made an honorary member of the National Society of Anatomical Pathology of Venezuela.

Wildcats Hold Six-Four Record

By KEN KUHN
Sports Publicity Editor

Before the current, topsy-turvy football campaign began, Kentucky's affable grid boss Blanton Collier took careful pains to point out the numerous problems standing between his grid forces and what might be classed as a "successful" 1956 season.

While he did not come right out and put the thought into so many words, Coach Collier left little doubt with many listeners that these problems were acute enough that the Wildcats conceivably would find it hard to win a single game against their formidable opposition.

The fact that the Colliermen, at the November 1st turning point in the difficult campaign, stand all even with six outstanding Southeastern Conference foes stands as more than a mere tribute to terrific coaching effort and determined desire on the part of the players. It is almost in the realm of the unbelievable when consideration is given to not only the obvious pre-season problems but also to the unforeseen rash of plaguing injuries to key personnel and the unexpected trouble experienced in hitting on the right quarterback.

The record could easily stand at 0-6 instead of the three wins offsetting three losses that are on the books.

If you think not, take a look at the problems that faced the Kentuckians before the season started and then run down the many injuries and other difficulties which arose starting in the first quarter of the very first game with Georgia Tech.

First off, there was the job of plugging the gaps left by the departure of seven starters and eight other lettermen reserves—enough of a problem to cause red ink to be written into the season ledger in quantity.

No alibis intended, but the schedule arranged for this year's short-handed Wildcats ranked as the toughest faced by any Southeastern team in '56 and the most difficult ever for a UK eleven. The card included appearances against four teams who were listed in the top 20 of various polls at season's end and five of the teams were bowl-dated last

New Year's Day. And, to stand a chance of capturing any share of the coveted SEC title, the Colliermen would have to forge a superior record out of competition with eight of the other 11 league outfits.

Injuries started taking their toll in the already depth-conscious Kentucky grid camp before the season even got underway. Junior center Dale Waite, number two man behind Dave Kuhn at the time, fractured a bone in his lower leg that still had him sidelined at mid-season. Quarterback Bill Farley, ex-understudy to Babe Parilli who had returned from the service for a final campaign in which he was expected to lend material help, broke a bone in his hand just a week before the opening game.

As the season got underway with the Georgia Tech game, more injuries of varying degrees (none in the serious category) taxed what strength the undermanned Wildcats could muster. Coupled with bad breaks stemming from the usual difficulty in anticipating which "way the ball bounces" and unanticipated trouble in finding a quarterback equal to the big task of filling the shoes of graduated "coach on the field" Bob Hardy, the 'Cats found the road to success a little bumpy in early season going.

Coach Collier, typically, chose to shoulder the blame personally when drugstore quarterbacks started talking after Kentucky succumbed three times in its first four outings against outstanding opposition: "I've been a teacher, in the classroom or on the football field, nearly all my life and I honestly feel that when your students don't pass the test it's mostly because the teacher just didn't get his message across to them."

But qualified observers in the press and radio corps that follow the Wildcats never so much as intimated any criticism of the coach or any individual on the team. To them, it was merely a matter of not having enough "horses" to race with the thoroughbreds on the schedule and the fact that injuries had handicapped for varying lengths of time such stalwarts as fullback Bob Dougherty, guard Duke Curnutte, halfbacks Billy Mitchell and Don Netoskie, center Dave Kuhn, end Roger Pack, and Farley to mention a few of the more prominent.

Most impartial authorities in the fourth estate classed Kentucky's record of three wins and only three defeats at the mid-point of a difficult schedule as almost remarkable, everything considered. Even in defeat, which came at the hands of three bowl experienced outfits, the Wildcats had given a good account of themselves.

A classic example of this was their feat of holding powerful Georgia Tech—the nation's second-ranked team—to a narrow, 14 to 6 victory in an all-out emotional effort. No other team since has come this close to the mighty Engineers of Bobby Dodd. Stretching the imagination only slightly, the Wildcats can be said to have almost pulled off an upset that would rank second only to their historic triumph over Oklahoma in the 1951 Sugar Bowl.

With the glare of national television cameras focusing on Stoll Field for the first time, the Engineers were at their best except on one play when a "quick whistle" saved them from extreme embarrassment.

A Tech fullback plowed into the powerful Kentucky defensive line early in the third quarter and was unceremoniously jarred loose from the ball by all-America tackle Lou Michaels. The pigskin sputtered out to be covered by UK's Don Netoskie on the Ga. Tech 47. But, unfortunately, one official had blown his whistle at the moment of impact, ruling the ball carrier's forward progress had stopped at that point. The Engineers retained possession and, on a second chance, picked up the decisive second marker two plays later. Except for the ruling, Kentucky would have had possession in Tech territory trailing by only one touchdown and the complexion of the game might have changed materially in their favor with this incentive.

Cats Now Hold

A week later, a bruised and battered group of Wildcats faced their second bowl champion in a row—Cotton Bowl and SEC titlist Ole Miss at Memphis. Outmanned by the speedy Rebs and playing without the services of full-back Dougherty entirely and center Kuhn in the later stages, UK made a game of it for a while despite Mississippi's obvious plan to reap revenge for the only licking they absorbed last year.

The final margin of 37-7 in Ole Miss' favor hardly told the story completely. Kentucky matched their opponents' scoring punch in the early stages and trailed by only a touchdown and field goal at the intermission. The "roof fell in" in the second stanza when the 'Cats were unable to contain Mississippi on occasions when they had them seemingly under control on third down and long yardage situations.

Just as things seemed blackest, two defeats down and plagued with injuries, a ray of sunshine (even though it was the liquid form) showed up in the form of the season's first success—a 17-8 triumph over Florida at Gainesville. Highlight of the "new look" Wildcat offense was the appearance of a new quarterback, native Floridian Kenny Robertson, in place of Delmar Hughes who opened the first two games at the signal calling post. Operating with all the poise of a veteran, Roby guided his mates offensively without error in a pouring down rain and inspired Kentucky's defense to seize on every opportunity provided by the misguided Gators. The upset win avoided a record of three straight defeats, which no Wildcat team in 60 years had suffered at the outset of a season.

Auburn came next and the third bowl team to face UK made prosperity short-lived. The Wildcats bogged down offensively, but there was something in the way of extenuating circumstances as the record showed bad breaks in the form of their gaining possession 10 out of 13 times inside their own 25 yard line. The necessity to drive three quarters of the length of the field virtually against a good Auburn defense every time they got control of the ball proved too great a task for the physically unsound Kentuckians and they absorbed a humiliation.

Thoroughly mad at themselves for poor showing against Auburn, they determined to prove to their followers that, injuries aside, they were not bad a ball club as their record might indicate, the Colliermen laced Louisiana State next and came on the long end of a 14-0 shutout in many thought their best effort of the campaign. Robertson called a daring gambling attack under instruction from Coach Collier to "fire and back" and it paid off both on the scoreboard and in the enthusiastic reception by the fans. The win owed UK aide Paul Dietzel's Tigers got sweet revenge for a 19-7 upset inflicted by LSU a year ago.

The long-awaited renewal of rivalry with Georgia's Bulldogs was on the agenda as the Wildcats headed into the home stretch of their '56 campaign. Kentucky and Georgia had not met since the Bluegrass copped an upset in a 1949 meeting at Lexington and no Wildcat team ever managed a win on the Bulldog home ground in Athens—scene of the '56 game. But this lack of experience against the men of Coach Wally and Tennessee-type jinx on wins from home meant nothing to the determined men from Kentucky. The two Southeastern toughies "ged" it out with their outstanding offensive lines for more than 58 minutes. Robertson faded back and heard a 43-yard aerial strike to end John Nelius who made a terrific catch for a deciding TD in a hard-earned, 14-7 set.

With a two-game winning streak under their belts and the injury situation improving, the Wildcats were beginning to "feel their oats" and looked forward to the final four coming the season with high expectations, posting a successful record that would stand as a great tribute to a hard band of Kentuckians who never forgot the meaning of the word "quit."

Dr. Carl C. Faith, '51, a native of Covington, has been appointed assistant professor of mathematics at Michigan State University.

Rupp's Boys Must Pull Rabbit Trick

By KEN KUHN

U.K. Sports Publicity Editor

Thirteen hundred and forty-seven points . . . Twenty-six feet and four inches of height . . . Thirty-eight rebounds a game . . . Ingenuity and experience of three starters and a key reserve who between them saw extensive action in a total of 238 varsity games.

In capsule form, that's what Kentucky's cage miracle man, Adolph Rupp, will have to replace in order to come up with anywhere near a representative Wildcat basketball team in 1956-57.

And, in case you don't think that is a tall order even for the fabulously successful "Man in the Brown Suit," you have the word of the usually-optimistic Rupp that the outlook is for "possibly the weakest Kentucky team of the past 15 years."

The starting trio, whose departure occasions a complete rebuilding job along the front line, included All-America pivot ace Bob Burrow (6-7, 528 points and 364 rebounds), forward Jerry Bird (6-6½, 421 points and 295 rebounds) and forward Phil Grawmeyer (6-8, 219 points and 281 rebounds). Missing on account of scholastic inefficiency is key reserve forward-center Phil Johnson, a 6-6½ lad who contributed 52 more points and 38 rebounds to the cause.

The Wildcats of last season were a far from typical outfit, posting a record of 20 wins against six losses through NCAA Tournament play—a mark most schools would be proud to own, but ranking as the poorest for the usually unbeatable Kentuckians since 1943.

Most observers figured the record was amazing in itself for the material Rupp had available and represented one of his greatest coaching jobs even though Kentucky failed to win the Southeastern Conference title that they have owned no less than 16 times since the league was organized in 1925 and were eliminated in the regional finals of the National Collegiate Tourney in which they hold all-time records of most championships (3), most games won (14), and most appearances (8).

Only a shadow of Kentucky court powerhouses of the past and definitely weaker than a year ago, the 1956-57 quintet will have to be moulded from a squad of 18 which includes only 10 returnees who averaged less than 10 minutes of game action per man last season.

Heading the list of returning lettermen is guard Vernon Hatton, a hometown product of Lexington Lafayette who garnered Southeastern Conference "Sophomore of the Year" honors in two separate polls of newsmen and coaches for his sensational play in the last campaign. The blond-thatched, six-foot-three-inch sharpshooter, who was an All-America high school pick and ranks as the Wildcats chief hope for national honors this season, proved one of the brightest surprises in the national picture a year ago as he posted a respectable 13.3 scoring average and stood second in conference statistics on shooting from the field with an accuracy mark of 49.4 per cent.

The only other regular back in the fold also is a guard—5-11 senior Gerry Calvert. A ball-control artist extraordinary, the diminutive red head from Maysville, Ky., started all 26 of the Wildcats' games last season but may be in for a rough time in the jostling for starting jobs on the 1956-57 aggregation.

Chief threat to Calvert's job will be transfer Adrian Smith, a native Kentuckian from Farmington by way of Northeast Mississippi Junior College. The six-foot speedster is regarded as an outstanding long shot artist and thus fills a gap that has been the trademark of great Kentucky teams of the past. Smith is the third junior college transfer to perform for the Wildcats, succeeding All-America pivotman Bob Burrow and center Roger Layne (1950 and '51).

Also in the transfer category, but more of an unknown, is 6-3 guard John Hardwick. A Lexington boy, he played high school ball at University High and had a freshman collegiate season at Duke before returning to UK last year.

Two other "new faces" will be evident among the '57 Wildcats. They are 6-5 center Dick Howe of Carbondale, Ill., a holdout last season, and 6-4 junior letterman Earl (Brother) Adkins of Ashland, a promising guard who was out of action a year ago due to scholastic difficulties. Coach Rupp is expecting plenty of help from both, particularly from Howe who should push 6-7 junior Ed Beck, who looms as the probable successor to the graduated Burrow at center, to either greater play or into the background.

Besides Beck, the returning veterans are seniors Calvert, John Brewer (f-g), Ray Mills (f-c); juniors Hatton, Bill Smith (f), Bill Cassady (g), Lincoln Collinsworth (g), John Crigler (g-f), Harold Ross (g), and non-letterman Jay Bayless (g).

Rounding out the squad are five sophomores, including Howe who was red-shirted last year and Hardwick, the transfer from Duke. The brightest prospect of the group is expected to be the sensational Johnny Cox of Hazard, Ky., who blistered the nets in yearling action last season at a 32.2 points a game clip. Cox very likely will latch onto one of the starting forward line. The other two are 6-1 guard Charles Webb and 6-8 center Lewis McMillan, both promising but too inexperienced to see more than reserve duty this year.

Of squad personnel in general, Coach Rupp says his charges appear to be in the category of "potentially capable but woefully inexperienced and lacking in the height department." He added that "It's just unreasonable to expect that we will be able to replace in 15 years and adequately replace the amount of experience, height, rebounding and scoring punch that we have had."

However, the pre-season experts rate the Wildcats among the nation's 20 best—a tribute to the unhampered potential of the ball club and to Coach Rupp, whom they have seen perform too many rebuilding miracles in the past.

Billy C. Clark, former UK star from Catlettsburg is author of a novel "Lucy Caught The Moon," to be published.
