They Have Earned Their "L" For Loyalty

The 1948-'49 Loyalty Fund campaign is now under way. Mr. J. Stephen Watkins, of Lexington, a member of the alumni executive committee has accepted the appointment of President Bullock as chairman of the drive for this year and you will be hearing from him before long.

Last year's initial campaign was successful, not only from a standpoint of funds collected but from the point of view of alumni interest. Do not let this project lag. It is up to you to make it a continuing success.

Brunch, Game, Tea, Dance, For Homecoming

Nov. 13 Activities Arranged for Grads

Never let it be said that there was a dull moment on Homecoming Day!

The executive committee of the Alumni Association, under the leadership of Carlisle Myers, Jr., '48, of Lexington, chairman of homecoming arrangements, has planned a full day for old grads who come back to the campus for the Kentucky-Florida football game on Nov. 13.

First and newest event on the agenda is a "brunch," which will be served in the ballroom of the Student Union from 11:30 a. m. until 1:00 p. m. and which will consist of sandwiches, coffee and cokes. This mid-day snack bar will be a boon to all alumni who spend their time and energy standing in line at crowded restaurants down town, and then find themselves in a traffic jam at pre-game time, when they would much prefer to be in their stadium seats.

This informal lunch is open to all alumni and former students, and we are urging you to take advantage of the facilities which the University administration has been kind enough to set up for you. You will thus be enabled to drive out to the campus in the morning, find a good parking place for your car, eat in leisure among your former classmates and friends, and walk over to the stadium in plenty of time for the game. Sandwiches, coffee and cokes will be sold at regular prices, and will be available in quantity.

The game will be called at 2 p. m., and immediately following it President and Mrs. Donovan will be at home to alumni, former students, guests, faculty and friends of the University at the annual homecoming tea at Maxwell Place.

That evening, the Alumni Association will again be your host at an informal get-together from eight to 11:30 p. m. in the ballroom of the Lafayette hotel. An orchestra will be on hand for those who wish to dance, and tables will be set up for those who would rather talk and reminisce.

Louisville Names New Club Secretary

Mrs. George A. Scott, Jr. (Margaret Clementine Cooper), '38, has been named secretary of the Louisville Alumni Club of the University for 1948-'49.

Mrs. J. M. Jackson (Dorothy Neal), '40, served as secretary of the Louisville club last year, and when the annual mail ballot for new officers was mailed out this year, Mrs. George W. Boston (Cornelia Crawford Richmond), '41, was elected secretary. Mrs. Boston later moved from Louisville, and the club held a new election.

This gives promise of being the best homecoming in Kentucky history, so make your plans to be here.

If you think you will be present for the "brunch," it would be a big help to the office and to the management of the University Commons if you would call or wire the Alumni Office in advance, saying: "I'll attend the "Brunch" with — guests." We are not taking reservations but we would like to give the management an estimate of the approximate number of sandwiches which may be consumed.

SEE YOU HOMECOMING DAY—
SATURDAY, NOV. 13 — DON'T MISS THE BIG DAY!

New McVey Portrait Presented To U. K.

Alexander Bonnyman Is Donor of Gift

A portrait of Dr. Frank LeRond McVey, president emeritus of the University, was unveiled at ceremonies held August 9 in the Bluegrass room of the Student Union. The portrait, by Edmund Giesbert of Chicago, Ill., is the gift of Alexander Bonnyman, Knoxville, Tenn., philanthropist and alumnus of the University.

Several hundred faculty, alumni and friends of the University attended the unveiling ceremonies, at which Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, University vice president, presided.

Miss Anne W. Callihan of the department of art expressed the appreciation of the University faculty and of Dr. McVey's many friends for the gift and for the contribution the former president has made to Kentucky, and John R. Bullock, '28, Cincinnati attorney and president of the Alumni Association spoke for alumni of the institution.

Frank LeRond McVey III and Frank McVey Tilton, grandsons of the honoree unveiled the portrait, and Dr. Herman Lee Donovan, '14, University president, made the acceptance speech.

J. Phil Arnold, '24 Heads Pharmacists

James Philip Arnold, '24, of Franklin, has been elected president of the Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association.

The election was held September 21 at a banquet given by the association at the conclusion of their state convention in Ashland.

Mr. Arnold has served as Mayor of his home town, and is a graduate of the College of Pharmacy. He is a Franklin druggist.

Mrs. Arnold is the former Jane Elizabeth Dyer of Morganfield, and holds the B.S. degree in Home Economics from the University. She was graduated in 1933.

YOU CAN BE USEFUL!

The May issue of Kiplinger Magazine carried a two-page article entitled, "Alumni Don't Have to Be Useless," which, if space permitted, we would like to reprint in toto. However, observing space requirements, there are a few points made in this article which are very much worth quoting.

"If you are a college alumnus you probably want to know if your alma mater's football team will be any good next season. That's fine. But if you are really fond of the old school, there are more practical things that you and your fellow alumni can do for her—and perform valuable service at the same time. Most alumni do not realize this. Here is what you can do:

"Interest outstanding high school students in enrolling.

"Help raise money.

"Develop a community adult education program."

The article takes up these three points in detail, but we feel that the most appropos suggestion in relation to University of Kentucky alumni, is the one concerned with raising money. This because of our newly inaugurated Loyalty Fund.

In regard to raising funds for colleges the article says that "the President's Commission on Higher Education has reported gloomily on college finances—and one of the gloomier aspects is the diminishing amount of revenue which colleges can count on from private gifts and grants. The big givers are not showing up so frequently as they once did. Colleges will have to look more and more to the small gifts from alumni and friends.

"If you can't give money, you may have leads on people who can. Your own enthusiasm is a major factor in interesting others . . . One important and worthwhile way to help your college financially while assuring it of a high level student body is to establish a local scholarship. . ."

This is where we come in! The 1948 Alumni Loyalty Fund drive is now under way. Any gift, be it small or large, is not only a help in summing up the total amount, it is concrete and definite proof that you are loyal; that the University of Kentucky is YOUR alma mater; that the

THE KE

Dr. J. D. Williams
Honored By N. E. A.

Dr. J. D. Williams, 45-year-old chancellor of the University of Mississippi, has been elected president of the Department of Higher Education of the National Education Association.

Announcement of his election by mail ballots was made July 5 in Cleveland, Ohio at the annual meeting of the N. E. A. His selection for this honor represented a promotion from the vice-presidency, a post he had held since last October.

Active in higher education circles, Dr. Williams has served on the membership committee of the National Association of State Universities and on the special committee for a national scholarship program in conjunction with the Association of American Colleges.

He became chancellor of the University of Mississippi almost two years ago, July 15, 1946, after having been president of Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va., since 1942. He came to Ole Miss in the midst of the post-war expansion period still underway. Since his arrival, enrollment has jumped from about 2,000 to over 3,000 in regular sessions, the university has erected several new buildings and beautified the campus itself.

Chancellor Williams holds the A.B., 1926, and M.A., 1930, from the University of Kentucky; the Ed.D., 1940, from Columbia University; and LL.D., 1946, from West Virginia Wesleyan College. He served as director of University High School and associate professor of education at the University of Kentucky, 1935-1936.

A. B. Chandler Forms
Law Partnership

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler, LL.B. '24, LL.D. '37, Versailles, and Joseph L. Arnold of Lexington, have entered into a law partnership at Versailles. The firm will be known as Chandler and Arnold and has offices in the Gregory building.

Mr. Chandler is former governor and former United States Senator from Kentucky.

High Government Post

V. L. Couch, '30,
Goes with ECA

Virgil L. Couch, a member of the class of 1930, has been appointed director of personnel for the newly created Economic Cooperation Administration in Washington, D. C. In this new assignment he assumes what is generally recognized as one of the most difficult jobs in Government.

After receiving his BS degree in Commerce, Couch accepted employment in private industry. He began his career in the Federal service in the summer of 1935, accepting the position of assistant regional personnel officer in the Raleigh, N. C., office of the Farm Security Administration. In 1942 he was promoted to regional personnel officer for the Raleigh office and later accepted the position of chief personnel officer for FSA in Washington, D. C.

In 1946 when the FSA and the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Division of Farm Credit Administration were merged to form the Farmers Home Administration, Couch was selected as chief personnel officer for the new agency, the position he held prior to his recent appointment in ECA.

During his thirteen years of experience in the Federal service, Couch has become a recognized leader in championing and campaigning for the development and improvement of sound principles of personnel management. He has become a forceful and aggressive spokesman for more efficient personnel practices throughout the Federal service.

Couch's development of a fundamentally new approach to the problem of rating employee performance in the Federal service is recognized as an outstanding contribution to the field of personnel administration. Through publication of a number of significant treatises and articles, his work as instructor of personnel administration in the Graduate School of the Department of Agriculture, and his active participation in a number of professional organizations and societies, Couch has demonstrated an enthusiasm for public service and a remarkable capacity for leadership in the field of personnel administration.

In commenting on his new assignment Couch stated "The internal organization of Economic Cooperation Administration has no precedent in history. The nature of its work differs fundamentally from that of any other government agency—it is part government and part private business. Its task calls not only for the contribution of American goods and money, but also the best of American brains and good will. As personnel director I shall bend every effort to get the best people available for staffing this new, important agency and see that employees are treated fairly and used efficiently. I have dedicated myself to establishing for ECA, the most modern personnel program in the Federal Service."

In a recent election, Couch was chosen vice president of the Society of Personnel Administration, an organization composed of top personnel officials. He also is currently years you spent here have left their imprint on your social conscience and your life.

Dr. Roswell Ham, president of Mount Holyoke College, has summed up the situation before a recent group of college graduates. Come on, now, help your Alumni Association to help your Alma Mater.

Lexington's Ambassador

Adolph Rupp, head coach of the University of Kentucky Wildcats and assistant coach of the United States Olympic basketball team, is a handy man with words, whether he be in Kentucky, New York or Scotland. And, while he is doing his part to gain the world championship for his cagers, he is doing a great deal to publicize his home city and to spread ever farther Lexington's reputation for hospitality.

Before leaving for Great Britain, Coach Rupp thoughtfully provided himself with a satchel of keys to the City of Lexington, and in each city the team visits overseas he conducts a little ceremony and presents a key to the local lord provost, or mayor.

The ceremony conducted at Perth, Scotland, was described in these words by the newspaper there:

"Perth's Lord Provost, J. Ure Primrose, became a 'freeman' of the American university city of Lexington, Ky., last night. This unexpected honor was conferred on the Lord Provost after he had welcomed the American Olympic basketball stars. The 'key' was presented by Adolph Rupp in the name of Mr. Tom Mooney, Lord Provost of the City of Lexington."

We suggest that Lord Provost Mooney send along a new supply of keys, just to make sure that our ambassador doesn't run short before the end of the Olympic tournament.

Services Of Dean Evans

Dean Alvin E. Evans will retire today as dean of the College of Law and professor of law at the University of Kentucky. For 21 years as dean of the College of Law, Dean Evans has contributed much to the University, to the State of Kentucky and to the many students who have sat in his classrooms and have gained from him the inspiration to study and the keen perception to understand the law which is the basic foundation upon which modern civilization is built. . . .

For a profound student who excels in research he combines a bold imagination that, as one of his associates has said, discovers new pathways in penetrating the haphazard growths of the law.

The visible and outward signs are more apparent to the public generally, for the College of Law has grown from an enrollment of about 80 to approximately 250, with a fulltime faculty of eight members in addition to the dean. The law library has increased more than three-fold. Dean Evans succeeded Dean Charles J. Turck who, in turn, had succeeded Judge W. T. Lafferty, first dean of the College of Law. The high standards of scholarship applied to the College of Law and the general recognition of the fact that it is a difficult and exacting course unquestionably have raised the recognition of this college.

As a citizen of Lexington and of the state of Kentucky, Dean Evans has gained esteem and friendship of many but these comments are made upon his services as Dean of the College of Law in view of the fact that it is in this capacity only, we are glad to say, that his status changes. Dean Evans is known as a master of the Socratic method of teaching. He has built up a great law school at the University of Kentucky, wisely building upon the foundation of his predecessors and with the full cooperation of his associates.

Kentucky, Lexingtonians, lawyers, citizens of Kentucky, students of the two decades that he has taught, associates at the University, friends, Rotarians and others will all join in a really sincere and genuine expression of thanks to Dean Evans upon having served them so well

Dr. Joseph Roemer, '14, dean of Peabody College at Nashville, Tenn., is co-author with Dr. J. B. Edmondson, dean of the School of Education at the University of Michigan, and Dr. Frances L. Bacon, superintendent of the Evanston (Ill.) Township Secondary Schools of a textbook on "The Administration of the Modern Secondary School" which is in its third printing.

The book is published by the Macmillan Company.

As a student at Kentucky, Couch was active in all campus affairs and was very popular among fellow students. He served as president of the local chapter of Alpha Tau Omega, president of the state YMCA conference and member of the State Student Cabinet, editor of the "T Handbook and editor of the Kentuckian, the student annual. He also was a member of the advertising staff of the Kernel and represented the University on a number of occasions at conventions and various conferences. He was president of Alpha Delta Sigma and was awarded the honor key of the fraternity for outstanding accomplishment in the field of advertising. Also, he holds the distinction of being the first head announcer for the University of WHAS.

Soon after his graduation, Couch married Martha Duncan, a classmate at the University, and a member of the Delta Zeta sorority. With

J. Ed Park, county agriculture agent, in his position with the State Bank and Trust Co.

Mr. Park manages a number of banks and banking agencies, and has been in the banking business since 1930.

Mr. Park served for a number of years in the state and national organizations associated with agriculture, since his graduation from the University of Kentucky. He has a farm in Madison County, and in 1930, he was elected to the Bath County Board of Agriculture.

In 1931, he was elected to the Fayette County Board of Agriculture, and in 1931, he was elected to the Fayette County Board of Agriculture.

THE K

County Agent Takes Position With Bank Farm Department

J. Ed Parker

J. Ed Parker, Jr., '20, Fayette county agricultural agent, resigned his position Sept. 15 to accept a position with the First National Bank and Trust Co.

Mr. Parker will organize and manage a new farm department for the bank and will assist in developing bank-agricultural relations. The operation of farm properties held by the bank in estates and trusts will be under his supervision also.

Mr. Parker has a long record of service for farmers in the county, state and nation. He has been associated with farmers in Kentucky since his graduation from the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture in 1920. After operating a farm in Mason county for several years, he became county agent in Bath county in 1926. He took his present position with Fayette county in 1930.

* In the 18 years Mr. Parker has been with Fayette county, he led in organizing several farm-aid programs and assisted materially in raising county farm standards. He organized the first 4-H District Fair in 1931, and led in organization of the Fayette County Farm Bureau, the Fayette Registered Breeders Association, the Fayette County

Sheep Protective Association, the Central Kentucky Artificial Breeders Co-operative and the Soil Conservation Service district.

Tobacco yields have increased from 900 pounds an acre to 1,300 pounds an acre on Fayette county farms, and dairy yields have followed the same upward climb. He introduced several new seed and grain varieties to local farmers and started a Bang's control program.

He organized the First Agricultural Conservation Program, set up the first crop and feed loans and organized the local program of the now defunct Agriculture Adjustment Administration. During the war he was prominent in leading scrap drives and served on the War Board.

Mr. Parker is a director of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation and of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and has served as president of both Kentucky County Agents Association and the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

In addition to the foregoing memberships, Mr. Parker is a member of the Lexington Rotary Club; Man o' War Post, American Legion; the Fayette Community Council; and the Central Christian church.

Alumnus Wins Civil Service Prize: $350

Arch B. Bowman, M.A. '38, formerly of Owsley county and now a United States civil service commission investigator located in Chicago, Ill., has been presented with a check of $350 as a reward for a suggestion which is saving the government $70,000 a year.

The award was made by the regional director for the commission, who said it was the largest ever given by that office. The recipient has devised a system for mimeographing up to three index cards at the same time.

The Bowmans live at 4622 Magnolia Ave., Chicago.

U. K. Grad Gets Job-Study Post

W. Russell Cox, '39, formerly of Greensburg, Ky., has been appointed by State Finance Commissioner John W. Manning to study job classification for the state government. He will serve as personnel technician in the Finance Department's division of personnel and will seek to establish uniform classifications.

Mr. Cox goes to Frankfort from a position as assistant to the Navy's chief personnel in Washington, D. C. Prior to that he had done job-placement and similar work for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Westinghouse Electric Company, and Wright Aeronautical Company.

Cox, 30, attended school at Greensburg and studied political science and law at the University of Kentucky. He is immediate past president of the Washington, D. C., Alumni Club of the University.

L. C. Taylor, Heads New Bourbon School

Leonard C. Taylor, A. B. '31, M. A. '40, former superintendent of schools at Princeton, Ky., and brother of Dr. W. S. Taylor, '12, dean of the University of Kentucky's College of Education, will head the new Bourbon County Vocational High school—an innovation in the county's school system—when it opens sometime this fall.

Professor Taylor, a native of Beaver Dam, Ky., has served as superintendent of Livermore, Ky., schools; secretary-treasurer of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association; superintendent of the Midway, Ky., public schools, and more recently as superintendent at Princeton.

Emerson N. Norseworthy, B. A. '35, M.A. '41, of Harlan county, has been named principal of the Athens High School in Fayette county. Mr. Norseworthy has had 17 years of teaching experience and has been supervisor of secondary education in Harlan county for the last two years.

Ky. Alumna Goes To Britain To Teach

Miss Thelma Monical, M.S. '44, of Lexington, home economics teacher at Lafayette school since 1941, has been selected as an exchange teacher to Great Britain for the current school year.

Miss Monical, a native of Hancock county, holds a bachelor's degree from Berea College and a master's degree from the University of Kentucky. She taught two years at Calhoun High school before coming to Lafayette.

While at the Fayette school, she has aided in conducting adult classes in home economics and also she has been employed by the University as a critic teacher. She has assisted for three years in supervising the Lafayette school community cannery.

Two UK Alumnae To Teach At Cynthiana

Mrs. Harry Taylor, '43, of Cynthiana, and Mrs. Martha B. Rich, '47, of Columbia, Ky., have been elected to the faculty of the Cynthiana school system for 1948-'49.

Mrs. Taylor, the former Geneva House, has been named part-time instructor in physical education. She was formerly a swimming instructor at the University of Wisconsin and was also on the Marshall school faculty in Cynthiana last year.

Mrs. Rich has been chosen to teach commercial subjects and to head the commerce department. She formerly taught at Stearns, Ky.

Efflo King, Jr., Joins Local YMCA Staff

Efflo William King, Jr., '46, of Lexington, has joined the program staff of the Community YMCA in Lexington.

Guy Weeks, general secretary, reported in June that Mr. King would serve as associate camp director of Camp Daniel Boone during the summer months, and this fall would become program coordinator for the YMCA.

A physical education graduate at the University, young King did graduate study in group work and recreation at Ohio State University.

Forty years ago Miss Linda Neville, former university student, internationally known for her work with the Kentucky blind, made her first visit to the mountains of Eastern Kentucky—and her first contact with the sightless children who started her on her crusade.

Miss Linda Neville

On July 23 she met, for the first time, Richard Maxwell, concert and radio singer and dramatist, who eight years ago gave a radio dramatization of Miss Neville's initial trip to the Hindman Settlement School, founded and co-directed by the late Miss Katherine Pettit, another Lexingtonian.

Affectionately called "Angel to the Blind," Miss Neville from her residence at 722 West Main street, Lexington, has aided directly more than 2,000 persons, both children and adults, who were blind or were threatened with blindness. In this work, she has had the co-operation of the state and federal blind agencies and the National Society for Prevention of Blindness.

Tom Robinson, '14, of Lexington, assistant city engineer since January, 1925, has been named city engineer.

J. W. May Promoted By Air Filter Co.

The American Air Filter Company, Inc., of Louisville, Ky., announces the transfer of Mr. James W. May, '29, from director of research to technical director of the Air Filter division.

Prior to joining American Air Filter in 1943, Mr. May was associate professor of heating, ventilating and air conditioning at the College of Engineering, University of Kentucky. While there, he conducted research projects dealing with heating, ventilation and air filtration and spent several summer vacations handling special assignments in the AAF research laboratory.

Mr. May is a member of Tau Beta Pi, Sigma XI, the Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers and the Technical Advisory Committee on Air Cleaning of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers.

Baxter Melton, '47 Joins Leader Staff

Baxter Melton, '47, formerly of Corydon, Ky., and for the past 12 months sports writer for the Tennessean at Nashville, has assumed duties as a member of the sports staff of the Lexington Leader.

Melton was a part-time member of the Leader sports staff when he came to Lexington to enter the University and before leaving for service in the Navy. He obtained a commission as ensign, and the last year of three he spent in uniform he was on duty in the Pacific theater as a communications officer.

Upon completion of his active duty he returned to UK and was graduated in June, 1947. Immediately thereafter he joined the staff of the Tennessean.

Several hundred students attending the University of Kentucky pay some of their expenses by working part-time as stenographers, waiters, clerks, janitors, dishwashers, office assistants, tutors, etc.

James A. Hagler, '37, formerly of St. Paul, Minn., is teaching languages and coaching at Millersburg Military Institute, Millersburg, Ky. This spring Coach Hagler's track team won the C.K.C. track meet.

L. T. Iglehart, '40, To Edit Ky. Newspaper

Louis T. Iglehart, '40, formerly of Hopkinsville, has accepted a position as editor-manager of the News-Journal, weekly newspaper published at Campbellsville, in Taylor county.

Iglehart, reporter on the Lexington Herald until he entered the Army Air Force in June 1941, was editor of the Kentucky Kernel in his senior year in the University.

He recently has been employed by the Veterans' Administration in Lexington as public relations agent, contact representative and training officer.

UK Man Heads Farm Editors

Joe Betts, of Louisville, former University student and a native of Paris, Ky., has been elected president of the National Conference of Farm Bureau Editors.

Frank D. Crutcher, '33, of Louisville, has been named state fire marshal for Kentucky. He has served as county agent for Hardin county, district supervisor for the Farm Security Administration at Lexington, and as an administrative officer for the OPA in Kentucky.

Kentuckian Wins D. S. C. For Heroism On Bataan

Col. John H. Rodman, a native of Owensboro, recently was presented the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in the defense of the Bataan Peninsula January 21-25, 1942.

General Mark W. Clark, Sixth Army commander, made the presentation in San Francisco. Colonel Rodman now is acting chief of staff, Northern Military District, Vancouver Barracks, Wash.

Colonel Rodman spent more than three years as a prisoner of the Japanese after surviving the famous Death March which followed the

Alumna Granted Year's Leave

Miss Brown to Launch Statewide CT Program

Miss Nanalyne Brown

A year's leave of absence from her position in the Lexington schools has been granted Miss Nanalyne Brown, '33, in order that she may devote full time to duties as new president of the Department of Classroom Teachers of the Kentucky Education Association.

The teacher of mathematics and social studies in the Lexington

Junior High school assumed her presidential duties July 1.

In announcing her program as president of the classroom teachers organization, Miss Brown stated "during the year I expect to meet with many local associations and to form new local groups. A leadership conference in each of the districts will be part of the year's program. I shall be available at all times to assist in perfecting and strengthening our education associations at all levels."

Elected in April to succeed Mrs. Jessie P. Fugett, now Southeastern regional director of the NEA Department of Classroom Teachers, Miss Brown has just returned from a two-week workshop at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, which was directed by NEA and dealt with problems pertaining to professional organizations.

A graduate of the University of Kentucky in 1933, Miss Brown received her M.A. degree in education from the institution in 1948. She was the first president of the Lexington-Fayette County Classroom Teachers Association and served two terms. In October, 1946, when the Central Kentucky Education Association formed departmental groups, she was elected chairman of the Classroom Teacher department. At the present time she is vice president of CKEA.

"By his coolness under fire, his heroic and indomitable leadership, and his complete disregard for his own safety, he was an inspiration to his troops and contributed conspicuously to the gallant defense of Bataan."

Played On U. K. Grid Team

The colonel once was lineman on the University of Kentucky football team. He was wounded twice in France during World War I, and spent seven years overseas before and during World War II.

In 1946 he was in charge of organizing and training U. S. Army reserve units in Kentucky.

He now lives with his wife and daughter in Vancouver.

Colonel Rodman attended the University from 1913 to 1916.

Graduate Accepts Post in Germany

E. E. ELSEY JR.

Edward Everett Elsey, Jr., '47, of Lexington, has accepted a position as travel representative with the American Express Company in Frankfurt, Germany. He left Lexington the last of July.

A graduate of the University of Kentucky, Mr. Elsey served as a captain with the United States Air Forces in Europe during World War II and did post-graduate work at the School of Advanced International Studies in Washington, D. C.

Mike Balitsaris, end football coach at the University, has resigned to join the coaching staff of Vanderbilt University.

Two Graduates Named To Executive Jobs At Transy

Dr. A. B. Crawford, A. B. '17, Ph. D. '32, professor of education at Transylvania College, has been named dean of men by the executive committee of the school's board of curators.

Miss Frances S. Jennings, B. A. '25, M. A. '26, dean of women since 1943, has been made dean of stu-

John Watts, '25, Gets State Post

John C. Watts, A. B. '25, LL. D. '27, of Nicholasville, Democratic floor leader in the Kentucky House of Representatives at the 1948 session, has been appointed state motor transportation director by Gov. Earle C. Clements.

In accepting the post, Watts automatically vacated his House seat.

A farmer and attorney, Mr. Watts was formerly Jessamine county attorney. He represented the 48th district, Jessamine and Woodford, in the 1948 session, his first term in the Legislature. Under a rotation agreement between Democrats in the two counties, he could not run for the 1950 session in the House.

Governor Clements said he regarded Mr. Watts as one of the best men he could find for such a position in his administration.

dents with primary responsibility for all school social activities.

According to President Raymond F. McLain of Transylvania, Dr. Crawford will handle details of placement of students in part-time jobs, direct expansion of the placement service for graduates, and supervise the men students in general.

'48 Graduate To Help Edit "In Kentucky"

Donald B. Towles, 20, of Lawrenceburg, 1948, graduate in journalism from the University, and son of J. Sterling Towles, '25, well-known Kentucky newspaper man, has been named assistant director of the State Publicity Division by Conservation Commissioner Henry Ward.

As assistant to Director Clay Wade Bailey, young Towles' chief duty will be getting out the quarterly magazine, "In Kentucky," published by the Conservation Department.

While a student at the University Mr. Towles worked for the Lexington Herald and the UK public relations department.

U. of K. Doing Atom Research

The University of Kentucky has one of more than 300 laboratories and hospitals in the United States doing research in atomic energy according to a report made to Congress in July by the Atomic Energy Commission.

The researchers are using radioactive isotopes produced by the scientists at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

About 40 per cent of the isotopes being used by some of the 300 laboratories is for medical research. Other uses are medical treatment, plant physiology, bacteriology, chemistry, physics, industrial research, and metallurgy.

Early in the history of the University of Kentucky all classrooms, all laboratories, all offices, and all departments such as the Armory and the Natural History Museum were housed in one structure, now the Administration Building.

The American Council on Education for Journalism has cited the University of Kentucky department of journalism for the "valuable service" it is rendering Kentucky weekly newspapers.

UK Facilities Available To Ky. State College

Plan Approved by Dept. of Education

by Ken Kuhn, Department of Public Relations

In an attempt to solve the social-educational problem of the day—equal educational opportunities for Negroes, the University of Kentucky has offered its facilities to Kentucky State College under a plan calling for instruction on both graduate and under-graduate levels in courses not available at the Negro institution, and the use of U. K. equipment by Negro students.

The far-reaching plan, approved by the State Board of Education and supported by $45,000 from the emergency fund of Governor Clements, was inaugurated with the beginning of the fall semester.

The latest attempt to elevate higher education for Negroes to the same quality as that afforded white students culminates a lengthy and exhaustive study by state officials and leading educators of the dilemma precipitated by a United States Supreme Court decision maintaining that equal educational facilities must be provided within the state for both races, by a court suit filed against the University by a Negro school teacher seeking admission to the Graduate School, and by the restrictions imposed on mixed education by state law and the Kentucky Constitution.

Essence of the new education plan is as follows:

1. Negro students enrolling for courses offered by the University, but not available at KSC, will be taught by U. K. instructors who will commute between Lexington and Frankfort.

2. Negro students requiring laboratory and library facilities not offered by their own college will be transported, at no charge to themselves, to the University for specially-arranged hours of work and research.

3. Graduating Negro students will receive a joint KSC-U. K. diploma.

The expressed purpose of the plan is to provide for the more immediate problem. Participation by the University will decrease as equal facilities are approximated at Kentucky State, according to the design for an educational system based on equality.

The State and the University offer the new plan as an answer to the suit filed by Lyman T. Johnson, Louisville Negro school teacher, in an attempt to gain admission to the U. K. Graduate School under implications of the ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court. Johnson was denied admission to the University last summer because of the Day Law and the State Constitution, both of which prohibit white and Negro students from attending the same school. The Day Law carries a $50 a day fine for students who violate it, a similar penalty for other students in the class and a levy of $1,000 against faculty members.

Johnson's suit in Federal District Court attempted to secure a judgment on the grounds that Kentucky's laws and Constitutional provisions were violations of sections of the Federal Constitution. He based his action on a decision in an Oklahoma case by the U. S. Supreme Court which maintained that the state must provide equal educational facilities in the state for Negroes.

UK Registration

Soaring This Fall

At the close of the regular registration period Sept. 25 for students in residence on the campus, 7,378 had registered, in addition to which 232 had enrolled in the University's College of Pharmacy in Louisville and 172 at the Northern Kentucky Extension Center in Covington.

Extension centers at Louisville and Frankfort had not reported enrollment figures when this edition of the Alumnus went to press, nor had the tabulation come in from the Department of University Extension on late afternoon and evening courses. When these figures are

College Graduated
146 at Last Term

A total of 58 per cent of the University's College of Engineering graduates remained in Kentucky for employment this year, according to a report from the college.

"This is a considerable improvement over a few years ago when some 90 to 95 per cent of our graduates were employed outside this state," D. V. Terrell, dean of the College of Engineering, said. "Improvement in Kentucky industry is responsible and we may look forward to a larger per cent of our graduates staying at home as the industry of the state improves."

Conditions have improved to a point where salaries are up to 20 per cent or higher on starting jobs for engineering graduates, he said. Graduate engineers are getting $225 to $325 a month on starting jobs, or an average of about $260, he stated.

Dean Terrell said a survey indicated that the 58 per cent of the 1948 class remaining in Kentucky to follow their profession included 16 per cent who were out-of-state residents.

The College of Engineering graduated 146 students in all branches of engineering, comprising its largest graduating class, at June commencement.

compiled enrollment for the first semester of the 1948-'49 school year will go well over the record enrollment of 7,802 which was reported at the beginning of the 1947-'48 fall quarter.

Kappa Kappa Gamma social sorority won the Kappa Alpha Theta scholarship cup last year, which is awarded annually to the sorority whose over-all scholarship ranks highest on the campus.

UK Graduates 391 To Set Summer Finals Record

Dr. A. L. Crabb, '42,
Addresses Seniors

A record number of 391 graduates received their diplomas at the summer commencement exercises held Friday, August 13, at the University of Kentucky.

Staged in the natural amphitheater back of Memorial Hall, the colorful exercises were held at 7:30 p. m. with Dr. Herman Lee Donovan, '14, president of the University, presiding. Speaker of the evening was Dr. Alfred Leland Crabb, honorary Litt.D., 1942, professor of education at Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Paul S. Powell, of Winchester, president of Kentucky Wesleyan College, pronounced the invocation and benediction, and Vice President Leo M. Chamberlain delivered the charge to the graduating class.

Sixteen students were graduated with honors.

Dr. Crabb advised the graduates that "the best place to start learning is at home." Taking as his subject, "Everything Begins at Home," the Kentucky-born educator told the class that "Home is the best place to learn of man, the world and of God. Home is the best place to set about upon the discovery of truth, the best place to learn that truth is universal."

He said that there is available in Kentucky 'as much excitement and adventure, as much opportunity to succeed as there is just beyond the border or beyond a dozen borders. Here is challenge. Here is the material of success. All are here—at home in Kentucky."

Dr. Crabb said there is a "tragic weakness in the tacit assumption that one with some show of intellectual gifts will leave home as a matter of course. . . . All true values for which men search are available in any community in the nation."

The educator advised graduates to settle down a bit. "We . . . must cure ourselves of that fluid restlessness that has led us sometimes so wastefully across uncounted horizons. The option of staying at home must be offered the gifted ones."

Dr. Crabb is an author and a native of Warren county.

University Opens Recreation Center

A recreation center to serve the needs of classes and student, faculty and public patrons has been opened by the University in the former Colonial Bowling Lanes building on Euclid Avenue, adjoining the campus.

The building, acquired five years ago by the University, has 12 lanes for bowling and a grill-snack bar. The center has been completely renovated by the University and will be operated by the department of business management and control.

Bowling lanes will be reserved from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily for organized classes in the sport, conducted under the direction of the physical education department. When the alleys are not in use during the day and from 5 p. m. to closing time, they will be open to students, intra-mural organizations, faculty leagues and the general public.

Dan Jones, '48, has been named manager of the building and grill while Joe Brooks, a new member of the physical education department faculty will be in charge of bowling and reservations for leagues.

UK Center Offers Two Years' Credit

The University of Kentucky's northern Kentucky extension center at Covington allows students enrolling there to earn two full year's credit for a bachelor's degree, according to a recent announcement. The old rules limited extension work and courses taken by correspondence to 32 hours.

The Covington center, which opened at the beginning of the fall term, assured students they could complete a full load of academic work in both freshmen and sophomore years at the off-campus branch. The University said it also would allow advanced students to complete one third of the residence credit for a master's degree at the northern center.

All credits earned at the center will be transferrable to the University in Lexington or to any other accredited institution to apply toward a degree. The final two years, junior and senior, must be spent in residence at the main campus in Lexington as a regular student at the University. Advanced-degree candidates also must complete the final two-thirds of their studies at Lexington if a UK degree is sought.

Donovan Named To U. S. Loyalty Board

Dr. Herman L. Donovan, '14, president of the University of Kentucky, has been named one of four members of a regional Loyalty Board of the Sixth U. S. Civil Service region, comprising Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

In announcing the appointments the Civil Service Commission named President Donovan vice chairman of the board.

Highway Dept. Grants 18 Scholarships To Ky. Frosh

Co-Op Plan Now In Effect at U. of K.

The Kentucky State Highway Department has established 18 scholarships at the University of Kentucky for student engineering employees, under a University-Highway Department "Cooperative Engineering Education Plan."

The 18, $500 freshman-year scholarships were awarded through a competitive examination. Candidates for the scholarships reported to their district engineer's office during the second week of September, except in Lexington, where the examination was given at the University Personnel office instead at the district engineer's office. Final appointments were made by Highway Commissioner Garrett L. Withers upon recommendation of the University scholarship committee and the Personnel Office on the basis of two students from each of the nine highway districts.

The 18 finalists entered the University at the beginning of the fall semester, Sept. 20, and will continue their academic training through the entire school year. During the period they are receiving approximately $60 a month from the Highway Department as employees. Following the close of school in June, the student-employees will be transferred to field, laboratory or office duties with the Highway Department at regular pay rates to gain practical experience. During the approximately six years that it will take the prospective highway engineers to complete the plan of training, they will follow a schedule of alternating periods of academic work at the University and practical training in the field.

According to Dean D. V. Terrell of the University's College of Engineering, "the diversified field training is intended to supplement academic studies in engineering to the extent that, upon completion of the extensive schedule, the students will be qualified to take over top positions in the Highway Department organizations."

Commissioner G. L. Withers

While the scholarships are for the Freshman year only, the scale of wages paid the apprentice highway engineers during their field work in the summer and fall months is expected to materially help the student-employees maintain their education. In the field, office or laboratory, the prospective engineers can expect salaries ranging from a low of approximately $145 a month to the potential high of $240 monthly, according to best information.

Successful graduates under the six-year plan will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering and should be in a position to accept employment as junior highway engineer ($240-$285), highway engineer ($300-$340), senior highway engineer ($360-$380), assistant chief engineer ($375-$408) or equivalent positions, it was pointed out.

New Pharmacy Department Head Named at UK.

Dr. A. E. Slessor, M.S., Ph.D., has been named head of the department of pharmacy in the University's College of Pharmacy, and assumed his duties with the opening of the fall semester.

Born in 1914 in Lafayette, Ind., Dr. Slessor entered the pharmacy school at Purdue University in 1931 and was graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree four years later. He returned to Purdue in 1936 on a fellowship granted by the Eli Lilly and Co. to do graduate work in pharmaceutical chemistry. A degree of Master of Science was awarded him in 1937 and he received his doctorate degree in 1939.

Dr. Slessor was employed as a pharmacist with a commercial drug firm for one year and has taught pharmacy and pharmaceutical chemistry at Valparaiso University, North Pacific College in Portland, Ore., and the former Louisville College of Pharmacy. He held an industrial position with a New York drug-producing company from 1942 to 1946 and was engaged in pharmaceutical research and new product development as chief research pharmacist.

The U. K. pharmacy professor came to the College of Pharmacy from Syracuse, N. Y., where he served as technical assistant to the plant manager of the pharmaceutical division of Bristol Laboratories.

Dr. Slessor is married and the father of one child, Janet, born in 1946.

Heidelberg Drive Succeeding At UK

Alumni Aid Needed

A mid-summer report from Dean of Men A. D. Kirwan states that 245 persons, mostly members of the families of faculty and staff and students at the University, have contributed clothing to the Heidelberg University drive which was started last spring at the suggestion of President H. L. Donovan, upon his return from Germany.

The clothing has been sorted by members of the University Woman's Club, boxed, labeled as to contents, and with a list of contributors is mailed to Dr. Robert I. Ittner of the American Military Government, stationed at Stuttgart, Germany, who distributes these boxes to the people in the Heidelberg University community.

According to Dean Kirwan the cost of mailing these garments is four cents a pound, and, including insurance, the total charges for sending each package is about $1.00. The committee in charge feels that it will need $75.00 to $100.00 more to mail the clothing now on hand, and contributions for this purpose may be mailed to Dean Kirwan.

In addition to the clothing, 60 persons have contributed $569.55 to buy food parcels for the Heidelberg University community. This fund is also open to more contributions, as the University committee expects to continue its drive until Christmas time.

UK Prof. Commended By War Department

Dr. Charles E. Snow, University of Kentucky physical anthropologist, has received the official commendation of the War Department for meritorious civilian service as a technical advisor to the Army in Hawaii on a project of identification of unknown war dead.

The citation, inscribed on the commendation certificate and signed by J. E. Hull, commanding general of the U. S. Army in the Pacific, declared the UK professors "vast technical knowledge, his unbounded and infectious enthusiasm and his outstanding ability as an instructor were highly important factors in the rapid and accurate identification of unknown World War II dead."

Dr. Snow was granted a leave of absence from his University duties and served as an anthropologist with the central identification laboratory, U. S. Army Mausoleum, Schofield Barracks, T. H., from Sept. 1, 1947, to Feb. 29 this year. He returned to the campus early in March.

UK Staff Member To Work In Germany

Miss Anna B. Peck, A.B. '22, M.A. '23, of Lexington, social science teacher at the University of Kentucky training school, left Lexington in August for Germany where she will be employed as an educational consultant by the Education Department of the American Military Government.

Dr. Alvin E. Evans, professor and dean of the College of Law since 1927, relinquished his official duties as dean on Sept. 15, to assume an emeritus status. His successor is Elvis J. Stahr, '36, professor of law.

Dean Evans has published more than 50 major articles and notes in professional journals and law reviews. The writings cover a variety of subject matter, including wills and the administration of estates, community property, corporations, torts and property. Many of the articles have been cited and quoted extensively in the reported decisions of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, the highest courts of several other states and by authors of legal texts and casebooks.

During his 21-year tenure at the University, Dean Evans has guided expansion of the law school from an enrollment of about 75 students and a faculty of five, with quarters in what is now the infirmary, to its present-day status of approximately 250 students, seven full-time faculty members and modern facilities in its own building, Lafferty hall. The law library has increased in size from 11,000 volumes to over 35,000 and the college is fully accredited by the Association of American Law Schools.

A native of Nebraska and graduate of the University of Michigan law school, Dr. Evans succeeded Dean Charles J. Turck in 1927 as head of the law college. Prior to Dean Turck's three-year term, the school was headed by William T. Lafferty from 1908-24. Before coming to the University, Dean Evans taught at several of the nation's leading educational institutions, including the state universities of Washington, Texas, Idaho and Michigan and the George Washington Law School.

UK Vice President Answers Question: "How Has University Met Its Post-War Demands?"

by Leo M. Chamberlain, vice-president, Univ. of Ky.

In October, 1943, the University Faculty authorized the appointment of a Committee on Post-War Planning. Fifteen representatives of the various faculties and administrative divisions of the University, who were named by President Donovan to membership on this committee, set out to anticipate the problems that would face the University in the months immediately following the close of the war, and to suggest solutions to these problems. At the same time each administrative officer began consideration of the same matters as they affected his particular college, division, or department. Collectively and individually, the University staff was asking itself: "How may we best prepare the University to serve the host of veteran students and their more youthful colleagues that will seek admission to the University in the first few years after the end of hostilities?" Experiences following the first world war indicated that college enrollments would rise rapidly as soon as demobilization was begun, and the action of Congress in providing educational benefits for veterans lent support to this prediction. It was anticipated that there would not only be a major increase in the enrollment of the University, but that the more heterogeneous student population and the peculiar needs of the veteran would present a variety of new problems.

Plan of Action

Not all problems were anticipated, of course, but in the main the committee foresaw the more pressing needs and outlined an appropriate plan of action. In contrast to the opinions so frequently expressed in 1943, the members of the committee did not view the adjustment problem of the veteran with any great alarm. They had faith that the veteran, who had so readily and effectively made the adjustment from civilian to soldier could, in a like manner, make the change from military life to student life. They recommended, therefore, that there be the very minimum of special treatment for the veteran students and that as rapidly as possible they be merged with the student body. With rare exceptions this proved to be exactly what the veteran wanted, and adjustments were far fewer in number and much less difficult than had been predicted by the alarmists. Likewise, the committee was right in believing that the vast majority of the veteran students would be interested in degree programs as opposed to vocational training, two-year programs, short courses, et cetera. Departments were, in most cases, prepared to meet the new and specialized needs of the veteran, but the demand for radically new programs of study never developed as some had predicted it would.

Need of Counseling

It early became apparent that the sharpest demands of the post-war period would come in the areas of counseling for the veteran, credit adjustments to cover educational experiences while in military service, an enlarged and strengthened teaching staff, student housing, and added instructional facilities. It is possible now to evaluate the University's efforts in anticipating and meeting these demands.

With the return to school of the first veteran, a Veteran's Office was established as a unit of the University Personnel Office, and through this agency the ex-G. I. has received his preliminary counseling and necessary advice concerning his educational benefits. In it are maintained the thousands of records essential to the effective management of veterans affairs. In the fall of 1945 only 224 veteran students were in attendance. This was about 8.4 per cent of the enrollment of that year. Thereafter the number rose rapidly until the veteran enrollment for the fall quarter of 1947 reached 4,629, or about 61.8 per cent of the total registration. Partly because of the fine spirit of cooperation shown by the veteran and partly because of good management, this phase of the University's post-war program has been a pronounced success.

Policies Defined

Before the veteran returned to the University, policies were very carefully defined with respect to credit that might be assigned for a variety of educational experiences in military service, and necessary adjustments in admissions, and in curricular and graduation requirements were specified. Close adherence to the American Council's Guide to the Evaluation of Educational Experiences in the Armed Forces was a major aspect of the credit policy. The results of the above mentioned policies have been a minimum of friction and the speedy adjustment of the veteran's educational status.

The greatest error on the part of the Committee on Post-War Planning was in its prediction of the future enrollment, an error common to most educational institutions. As contrasted to the peak enrollment of about 3,800 in 1939, the Committee anticipated a post-war registration of perhaps 5,000. In the fall of 1947 the number of students totaled more than 7,800, an increase over the 1939 figure of about 105 per cent. This sudden expansion placed a tremendous burden on the instructional staff and called for hasty additions in all areas. Some compromises in standards were necessarily made for the time being. Class size was rapidly increased, as was the teaching load; and some staff assignments were made on an emergency basis. However, the policy has been to build the instructional and research staff with a view to the future and as the University enters the 1948-49 school year, practically all emergency appointees have been replaced by men and women of outstanding ability and professional reputation; and it can safely be said that students will this fall face the best teaching corps the University has ever had: and the equal of the staffs of comparable institutions anywhere in America.

Temporary Housing

In company with practically all other institutions, the University turned to temporary housing to meet its resident and instructional needs. This program is now completed and involves resident units as follows: Cooperstown and Shawneetown, villages housing approximately 500 married veterans and their families; and barracks units accommodating about 500 single veterans. Temporary instructional facilities include a social studies building, a chemistry laboratory and classroom unit, a music building, an engineering annex, a dramatics and speech building, large service and storage buildings, an auxiliary cafeteria, and a number of Quonset huts.

These temporary structures do not add to the attractiveness of the campus, and it is hoped that they can be removed before too many years have passed. With this in mind the University launched upon an extensive building program before the close of the war. Progress on this program has not been as rapid as the University would like, partly because of high prices and the difficulties of construction, and partly because sufficient funds have not as yet been made available. However, a good start has been made. Completed is Bowman Hall, a beautiful new residence unit for men, the new Dairy Center, and an addition to the Animal Pathology building. Under construction are the Fine Arts building, the giant auditorium-fieldhouse, and a large addition to the stadium.

Already planned and urgently needed are two dormitories for women students and a central dining and kitchen unit for the women's halls, a second residence hall for men students, an addition to the heating plant, a chemistry-physics building, a journalism building, a service building, and an addition to the Education building. A major addition to the library must be provided in the near future, and a pharmacy building will be needed before this college can be moved to the Lexington campus.

The post-war demands on the University were such that it seemed for a while it might burst at the seams. However, the emergency period is over, and the new position of the University is being strengthened and solidified. The school year, 1948-49, will be the best of the post-war years and, perhaps the best of all years. The University's present strong position is due in a large measure to the careful planning that

Dr. Allen Named Zoology Head At University

DR. W. R. ALLEN

Dr. Wililam R. Allen, professor of zoology, has been named head of the department to succeed the late Dr. W. D. Funkhouser. The appointment was made by the University's Board of Trustees.

Dr. Allen, a native of Ossian, Ind., holds B. A., M. A. and Ph.D. degrees from Indiana University and prior to joining the University of Kentucky faculty in 1922, he taught zoology at Kansas State College, Indiana University and Akron University and was principal and teacher in the elementary schools of Hartford City, Ind.

He has been a member of expeditions to Peru, Chile and Bolivia. The Wild is co-author of "Fishes of Western South America," has written books and articles on zoology and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, American Society of Zoologists, American Association for Advancement of Science and other scientific societies. At UK he has taught elementary zoology, comparative anatomy, ornithology, ichthyology, ecology and entomology.

"Character" Key To UK Grid Fortunes - - Bryant

by Larry Shropshire, '30, Sports
Editor, Leader

Although he doesn't profess that "building character" is the prime purpose of his job as the University of Kentucky's head football coach, Bear Bryant says he thinks "character" is the key to the big question of how the Big Blue will fare on the gridiron in 1948.

"What we are able to do this year depends on the character of our boys," constitutes his forecast on the current campaign.

He declines to predict whether any contest on the 10-game schedule will be either won or lost, and will merely repeat that his highest hopes for the season can possibly be realized only if his charges show the "character" he thinks they will show. His definition of "character" runs something like this:

It's courage, or "guts" — not merely the courage to take the bumps on the field, but to make their grades and be ready to play, to work hard in practice, to come back in the fourth quarter, to battle on despite the heat of a hot afternoon in Georgia, to use determination and spirit to make up for what they lack in ability and experience.

Bryant ran over his feelings about the forthcoming season, the third in which he will serve as Kentucky's grid general, at a gathering of sports writers and radio-casters when they were guests of the U.K. athletic department for a fish fry.

The Wildcat chief volunteered to give the group "my opinion" about the squad, and promptly opined that "my opinion, in my opinion, is pretty good as far as this Kentucky team is concerned; I think I know the boys pretty well and what they can and will do."

Bryant then ran through, position by position, the gridders he has available to fill gaps left by heavy losses from last year's team, which won eight games out of 11, including a triumph over Villanova in the inaugural Great Lakes Bowl contest.

He gave what he said was his

"frank and honest" appraisal of the abilities and potentialities of many of the Wildcats, and summarized the outlook as a whole as follows:

"With our losses from the line of such men as Jay Rhodemyre and Wash Serini and the loss of Bill Moseley, our best defensive back, we can't possibly be as strong defensively as last year. . . .

"I'm worried about our weakness in the middle of the line—at center and the guards. . . .

"Our tackle play should be better one the whole. . . .

"We started spring practice with only two players at end who had ever lined up at that position before. We shifted some men there who like to play—who like to hit, and they, like the replacements we have at guard, will try their best, but we don't know whether that will be good enough for the competition we'll have to face. . . .

"Our offense MIGHT be better than last year. . . .

"Our passing will be better—it couldn't be worse. (Bryant thinks George Blanda and Carl Genito will do a good job of throwing the ball, and that they have better receivers this year.)

"We think our backs this year will do a better job of running—BUT we don't know whether our weakness up front will keep them from getting a chance to run."

UK Kittens Upset Tennessee Frosh

Whip Baby Vols 7-0
Before 8,000 Fans

By Jim Murphy,
Athletic Publicity Director

The surprising upset Kentucky's Kittens scored over a highly touted Tennessee freshman team recently revealed, as you might expect, that there is some promising timber in the forest of the U.K. freshmen ranks.

In whipping the Vols 7-0 before 8,000 people at Stoll Field, the

'Cats Take Xavier 48-7 In Opener

Kentucky's Wildcats struck through the air to bury the Xavier Musketeers 48 to 7.

Kentucky's first touchdown came on a pass from quarterback George Blanda to Left End Ben Zaranka. Bob Gain then booted the extra point.

Xavier broke into the scoring column with an eleven-yard pass from McQuade to De Franco which was good for a touchdown. Keefe then knotted the score as he kicked the ball through the up-rights.

On the first play after the kick-off, Norm Klein scampered for Kentucky's second T.D. Bob Gain again kicked the extra point.

In the early stages of the second quarter neither team could get a sustained march started. Finally, Kentucky got underway with Blanda passing to Wallace Jones on the 10. Jones, then scored by making a brilliant catch of Dopey Phelps' toss to give Kentucky a 21 to 7 lead as the half ended.

Kentucky capped a 50-yard drive with Wallace Jones making a sensational one-handed spear of Blanda's spiral for Kentucky's fourth touchdown. Gain booted his fourth straight extra point.

The second play after the kick-off, Clayton Webb snatched McQuade's pass out of the hands of the intended receiver and went 30 yards untouched for a touchdown. A low pass from center cost Kentucky the try for the extra point, giving the Wildcats a 34-7 lead as the third quarter ended.

Don Frampton recovered a fumble kick on the Xavier 28-yard-line. Kentucky scored as Clayton Webb blasted over from the four. Brooks kicked the point. Dominic Fucci got off the longest run of the night as he stepped off 78 yards to score. Brooks made good the try for the extra point despite a penalty that placed the ball on the 17 yard line.

Kittens ripped the strings off several nice packages of gridiron talent. What made the victory even sweeter was the fact that the Vols invaded with a team heralded by many as the best freshman team in Tennessee.

Rhodemyre Picked Best Of All-Stars

Jay Rhodemyre, star center for the University of Kentucky who completed his collegiate grid career last fall, was chosen the most valuable player on the College All-Star squad which met the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional Football League in a game last August played in Chicago stadium.

Rhodemyre was the first lineman ever to be honored in the eleven years the outstanding all-star performer has been picked, and received two-thirds of the votes cast by 500 sports writers who covered the event and participated in the poll.

Fourteen All-Stars received votes, but Rhodemyre had almost a two-to-one margin over his closest competitor, Navy's Dick Scott, also a center.

According to Tommy Fitzgerald, Courier-Journal staff writer who saw the game, "They didn't even run his picture in the official program. They didn't even publish a sketch of his career. He was only obscurely listed on the roster, along with 70 other names, but University of Kentucky's brilliant center, Jay Rhodemyre was a college all-star football player who shone even through the bushel under which they had hidden his light.

End John Netoskie, who snared a 20-yard pass and then scampered an additional 30-yards for Kentucky's wining touchdown, is a young man with a future. Quarterback Babe Parilli, who launched the successful aerial flight, is a potentially fine passer—something the varsity team will welcome heartily next season when George Blanda graduates.

Other outstanding boys were halfback John Cobb, who ripped off several nice gains; Halfback Eddie Hamilton, of Louisville Male; Halfback Paul Thompson of Mt. Sterling; Guard John Ignarsky; Guard Ed Burnett and Tackle Frank Fuller.

Osborn, New Wildcat Football Assistant

University of Kentucky Athletic Director Bernie Shively has announced that Wildcat football coach Paul Bryant has selected T. D. Osborn, veteran Akron, Ohio, high school mentor, as an assistant.

Osborn, who for the past 12 years

Stars around in their most impressive victory, the most one-sided scored in this series, but Rhodebyre as a line-backer was a standout from the start of the game until the finish.

"A rookie with the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, this U. of K. graduate, an All-Southeastern Conference selection last season and a third team mention on one All-America, was the talk of the more than 100,000 fans who saw the game."

has been head football and basketball coach at Central High in Akron, was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan in 1931 where he started as a varsity halfback for three seasons.

Following his graduation from Ohio Wesleyan Osborn went to Ohio State as a freshman football mentor. In 1933 he returned to Ohio Wesleyan as an end coach. From 1934 to 1935 Osborn was line coach at Akron University. During the war he served as a lieutenant in the Navy. Osborn replaces Mike Ballisaris, a former Tennessee Volunteer star who recently resigned at Kentucky to go to Vanderbilt.

Football practice for the 1941 edition of the Wildcat grid team opened September 1.

Coach Bryant Looks Over Team

(Editor's note:) Coach Paul Bryant reviews team prospects and analyzes the comparative strength and weakness of the 1948 football squad.

"Our team strength looks something like this: Ground attack better than last year. Passing attack a little better—couldn't be worse. Speed a little under last year. Kicking game about the same as last year. Defensively, much weaker, particularly in the middle of the line and at the halfbacks.

"Going over our personnel in position it looks like this:

"Centers. Definitely a question mark. Harry Ulinski looked good as a freshman, but was a disappointment last year due, I think, to injuries. His knee was operated on this spring and much depends on whether or not it stands up. The other center prospects are weak with the possible exception of Bob Wodke. A tough kid who likes to hit.

"Guards. The guards are light, but love to play football and possess a lot of spirit. However, we did not have a first-class performer in that position during spring practice. Ray Porter looked best of the lot, but Bill Dawson, Pat James, Allen Hamilton and Dick Holway were close behind. If Bill Wannamaker, a big, strong kid from South Carolina, should come through it would help a great deal, but it now looks at best that we will be mediocre at guard.

"Tackles. We lost our first two tackles by graduation last year. I believe though, that we will be adequate at that position as we have four big, strong boys and I am expecting them to stage quite a battle for the starting assignments. A senior, Doc Ferrell, Sophomore Bob Gain, Juniors McDermott and Frank Smotherman should give us adequate tackle play.

"Ends. Our end play last year was inadequate and, at worse, we expect better this year. Starting spring practice we had only two ends in uniform, so we moved three men from the backfield to end and it worked out nicely. Right now, Sophomore Ben Zaranka, who played some as a freshman and Charlie Bentley have the inside track. However, Nick Odlivak, Jerry Claiborne and Don Frampton, all three converted backs, are coming fast. Wallace Jones, no doubt, has all the requirements for a great end but has never had spring practice and, consequently, is not too good at fundamentals of football such as blocking and tackling. Being the great competitor that he is, he can mean a lot to the ball club in any event.

"Quarterbacks. George Blanda is still the best of the lot, but will have some competition from Carl Genito and Paul Jones. Blanda is a great ball-handler and has a strong arm. Genito has the guts of a burglar and the best thing he does is to turn a bad play into a good one. Jones is out of position and will be moved to half-back if and when we get some passers.

"Left halfbacks. Should be strong. Dopey Phelps has about convinced me that he wants to play football. If he takes pride in other phases of the game other than running with the ball he will, no doubt, be a great back. Shorty Jamerson is, by far, our best defensive back and a tough runner in close and a sophomore with a great deal of ability, named Ogden Thomas, will be his chief competitor.

"Fullbacks. Offensively should be strong. Bill Boller, the best football player on the field in spring practice, has been shifted to fullback. He is a tough runner, fair passer, good blocker and, above all, he has that burning desire to win. Other fullbacks will be Lee Truman, who has not developed offensively as we had expected him to, Ralph Genito, a member of the track team, and two fine looking sophomores, Clayton Webb and Bill Leskovar. If Webb

Trustees Approve Finance Plan To Complete U.K. Field House

Funds for the completion of University of Kentucky's memorial auditorium-field house were assured August 8 as the University board of trustees authorized the issuance of $800,000 in revenue bonds to a Louisville and Lexington syndicate at a bid of $1,020 for each $1,000 bond.

Frank D. Peterson, comptroller of the University, said only one bid was received for the bonds which will supply the necessary additional money needed to supplement the available appropriation for final work on the huge athletic structure.

The syndicate, which in July was awarded a contract to act as the fiscal agent of the University in connection with the setting up and issuance of the bonds, consists of the following investment broker firms: Almstedt Brothers, Louisville; J. J. B. Hillard and Son, Louisville; Stein Brothers and Boyce, Louisville; O'Neal, Alden and Company, Louisville; The Bankers Bond Company, Louisville; J. D. Van Hooser and Company, Lexington; Russell, Long, and Burkholder, Lexington; and Security and Bond Company, Lexington.

The bond issue will consist of 800 bonds in denominations of $1,000 each, bearing two and three-fourths per cent annual interest. They will mature on Aug. 1 at a rate of $40,000 in each of the years 1950-55, $45,000 from 1956-67, and $20,000 in 1968. Income from the operation of the field house will be used to pay off the bonds over the 20-year period, U. K. administrators said.

Contracts for the final phases of work on the structure already have been awarded. The need for additional funds resulted from the fact that the available appropriation from the state amounted to $1,700,000 while the total of four low bids on completion work was approximately $2,500,000. The University already had spent more than $1,000,000 on the field house since the start of work in April, 1947.

—Lexington Leader, Aug. 8, 1948.

John Eibner, '46, former UK grid captain and later a professional player with the Philadelphia Eagles, has resigned his position as coach at Prestonsburg High School to become assistant football coach at the University of Miami, Fla.

Roy Steinfert, '46, who has been athletic publicity director for UK for a year and a half, has resigned to return to the staff of the Louisville Courier Journal, with which paper he was connected before accepting the University post.

"Right halfbacks. No one outstanding, but three pretty good football players at that position. Sophomore Dick Martin, the best blocker and tackler on the field, looked better in spring practice than did Jim Howe, although Jim Howe was coming fast at the end of the 1947 season. Norman Klein, who regained his speed this spring, will give them both plenty of competition. All three of these boys want to win and want to play regularly, and should take care of their assignments adequately.

World Basketball Champs Come Back To "Old Kentucky Home"

Groza High Point Man in Olympics

by J. R. Kimbrough, '29 Sports Editor, Herald

Champions of the Southeastern Conference National Collegiate Athletic Association champions, collegiate champions of the United States, champions of the world—those are the titles resting upon the happy heads of Coach Adolph Rupp's University of Kentucky basketball players of 1947-1948.

When the last cage season opened, many observers predicted that the 1947-1948 Wildcats would be the greatest among many great teams coached by Champion-Maker Rupp. And when the season was over, the Kentuckians had proven that these observers were correct in every detail.

Without help or hesitation, Rupp's Raiders stepped through the SEC tournament, the NCAA meet, and then won a place on the U. S. Olympic basketball squad by battling to the finals of the Olympic Trials in New York only to drop a four-point decision to the star-studded Phillips Oilers, National AAU champions.

After playing a three-game pre-Olympic series with the Phillips quintet, winning one decision and dropping two, the first five starting Wildcats joined with the first five Oklahoma players to form the U. S. Olympic squad—thus becoming the first college basketball team ever to participate in the Olympic Games.

Included in the Kentucky division of the Olympic squad were Alex Groza, All-American and outstanding player in the NCAA tournament; Ralph Beard, All-America and All-Southeastern; Cliff Barker, Wallace (Wah-Wah) Jones and Capt. Kenny Rollins, all All-Southeastern selections and prominently mentioned for All-American honors by many leading sports writers.

These lads, together with the five Oilers, Ray Lumpp of NYU, Vince Boryla of the Denver Nuggets, Jackie Robinson of Baylor University, and Don Barksdale of the Oakland Bittners, sailed for Europe—the latter part of June and, after an exhibition tour through Scotland, began play in the Olympic cage tournament against teams representing more than a score of other nations.

Favorites from the start because of their superior height, experience and ability, the Americans stepped through the Olympic tournament without too much trouble. They did receive a scare from the Argentina team when the South Americans caught them off stride, but managed to rally sufficiently to win a close decision.

But in the words of Coach Rupp, "we changed some things after the Argentina game," and from that point on the defenders of the Stars and Stripes marched triumphantly to victory—the Kentuckians playing a major role in the march.

When the firing ceased, the smoke of battle cleared, and the championship crown had been presented to the U. S. team, basketball experts unofficially selected the Wildcats' Alex Groza, who had won high-scoring honors, as the outstanding performer in the Olympic cage tournament, with Wallace Jones running second.

It was a great victory for the United States—this Olympic basketball championship—a wonderful experience for the boys, and a high tribute to the University of Kentucky and Coach Rupp.

Cheering their teammates on in their European invasion were three Wildcat reserve players, sent to the Olympics with funds donated by basketball fans. They were Jim Line, Joe Holland and Dale Barnstable, who had much to do with the Kentucky team's success through the regular season, the tournaments and the pre-Olympic series.

After the final game in the Olympics, members of the U. S. team and the three Kentucky reserves were taken to Paris for a six-day holiday before returning home.

Five Ky. Boys Help Win Olympic Title

by Henry Maloney, '49

The United States Olympic basketball team, led by the starting five of the University of Kentucky Wildcats, culminated the two-week long Olympic basketball tournament with a resounding 65-21 win over France in the tournament finals.

High-scorer for the tournament and for the final game was Alex Groza of Kentucky, who played excellent ball throughout the tournament.

Other Wildcat stars, Ralph Beard, Kenny Rollins, Wah Wah Jones, and Cliff Barker played fine ball and were essential factors in America's easy victory. Jim Line, Dale Barnstable, and Joe Holland of UK were not members of the team, but observed the games as spectators due to the contributions of fans.

The opening game of the tournament for our team was an 86-21 win over Switzerland. After beating Czechoslovakia easily Argentina put up a brilliant battle and fell 59-57 to a last minute goal of Alex Groza. Bad officiating and the unusually poor shooting of the American team were blamed for this close call.

In their next start, a wiser and less cocky American team routed Egypt 66-28. They ended the preliminary round by beating Peru 61-33.

In the championship round against more powerful opposition the team was sensational in waltzing to the title by easy wins over Uruguay 63-28, Mexico 71-40 and France 65-21.

Before going to London for the games the Olympic squad with coaches Rupp and Browning, played a series of basketball exhibitions in Scotland, where they were well received.

Following the tournament, the team went on a five-day tour of France, ending up in Paris.

The team sailed the 20th and arrived in the United States on the 27th of August.

Dr. Morris Scherago, head of the department of bacteriology, was elected president of the Kentucky Academy of Science for 1948-'49.

DR. SOPHONISBA PRESTON BRECKINRIDGE, LL.D. '25, distinguished educator, lawyer and author and one of the nation's pioneer social workers, died July 30 at her home in Chicago, Ill., after a five month's illness.

Descended from a famous Kentucky family, Dr. Breckinridge was born in Lexington, and attended the University of Kentucky in 1884, prior to entering Wellesley College, from which school she was graduated in 1888.

She entered the University of Chicago Graduate School in 1892, and nine years later received the Doctor of Philosophy degree from that University. In 1904 she obtained the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence, and in 1925 her first Alma Mater, the University of Kentucky, conferred upon her the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Dr. Breckinridge was the first woman appointed to the Kentucky Bar, and was a learned lawyer and teacher, a tireless proponent of women's rights, and a U. S. representative, on several occasions, at international conferences on social, industrial and economic problems.

She attended the London international prison conference as a representative from Kentucky in 1925, and five years later was an Illinois delegate when the congress convened in Czechoslovakia.

Dr. Breckinridge was credited with being the inspiring force which persuaded the Pan-American Conference in Montevideo in 1934 to take favorable action on proposals to extend women's right to legal equality in all nations.

She was a member of the U. S. delegation at the Sixth Inter-America Child Congress, Lima, Peru, 1930, and was a delegate to the Seventh International Congress of American States in 1933.

When President Herbert Hoover named a commission during his administration to make a detailed social survey of the country, Dr. Breckinridge wrote the section dealing with women in "Recent Social Trends" released in 1932.

She joined the faculty of the University of Chicago in 1902 as a professor of social economy and at her death was professor emerita in public welfare administration.

For many years she was associated with Jane Addams, a close friend and founder of Hull House, where Dr. Breckinridge lived and worked for a time.

She became a full professor at Chicago in 1925 and was made a Samuel Deutsch professor of public welfare administration in the School of Social Service in 1929. Even after retiring in 1933, she continued to attend national and international conferences, chiefly by air travel.

Funeral services were held August 1 at her home near the University of Chicago campus, and burial was held August 2 in the Lexington cemetery.
