HERE SHALL THE KERNEL ALL STUDENT RIGHTS MAINTAIN

A HEARTY WELCOME TO ALUMNI AT HOME-COMING

Yes, sir, Kentucky's still your home! Each year about this time we all look forward to greeting the "alums" who return for Home-coming.

The campus has been considerably improved since you were here last time, but in spite of the fact that we look a little different, you're still as welcome as ever. We invite your admiration and anticipate the friendly handshakes between old friends together once more.

Perhaps you don't know quite all of us, but we can still say "Howdy" just the same. After all, we're all brothers in this large fraternity, so let's act like it. However, if you see actions of the more indiscreet type, try to disregard them as accidents or as just a part of home-coming. Some persons always have to celebrate in too merry a manner, but it happens only once a year, so "forgive and forget."

If you feel strange at first because you have not met each one of us, just remember that we are proud of you and really want you here. In a few years, we, too, will be the "strangers" and we know that good old Kentucky hospitality will never fail any of us.

Tomorrow is the best day of all the year, and it has been planned for your pleasure. We hope sincerely that you enjoy it to the utmost—so much so, in fact, that you'll make a solemn resolution to return for all the home-comings to come.

So we extend to you a comrade's hand and a merry "Welcome, Alumni!" The latchingstring's always on the outside!

CUTTIN' UP THE CAMPUS

By THEO NADELSTEIN

CAMPUSOUNDS:
In Memorial hall: "She looked so shocked when I asked her if I could kiss her that I apologized and left—and then I found out that the reason she looked surprised was because I was the only boy who ever asked her first!"

At the Library: "Someday there's going to be a mutiny on this campus. It's gonna be called the "Revolt of the Pledges"—and baby, I'm going to be leading it!"

In Boyd hall, on the telephone: "But honestly I don't want to guess who this is!"

In White hall: "Well, we started out for the dance, but we made a couple of stops, and I'm afraid we only got as far as the Tavern!"

On the Administration building steps: "Heck, the only reason I pinned her was to get rid of her, the dope!"

DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT—you're standing in the waste paper basket, prof!"

I NOMINATE AS CAMPUSATELLITES:
Mayme Maddox and Tom Nichols—because they were elected as most popular senior girl and senior boy.

Jeanette Lampert and Dossett Reid—because they do such outstanding work in the Guignol play.

The Kentucky Kernel—because it comes out late at night!

UNIVERSITYTES:

The Campus Clown—When profs see him in their classes they groan with dismay, because he's one of those stoogues who sits in the back row and heckles with funny gags the remarks of the teacher... He's the one who gets all the bright ideas for Hell Week... Years ago people would say of him "Oh, he's a card!" or "He's a caution!"... but now he's known as a stooge or a campus... He wears battered hats and pushes a tin lizzie around... When he's an old alum he comes to the home-coming game and plays practical jokes on all of his former classmates, wants to tear down the goalposts, tells the undergraduates about the pranks he pulled when he was on the campus, and longs for the good old days, when college kids acted like college kids, slightly moronic and infatuated... He's the life of every party, he thinks... It's true he makes people laugh, but it's not WITH him... He's the kind that prefaces every joke with "Have you heard this one?" and even when you answer, "Frequently!" he tells it anyway... Sum fun!

CAMPUSIGHS:

- 1. Students who ask you to buy things.
- 2. Pixilated stags who dance on your feet, not theirs.
- 3. The hectic campaigning for elections—and for what purpose?
- 4. The heat in the Library.
- 5. Coeds who ask, "What's so funny about President Patterson's statue, anyway?"

This Campus and That World

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

Isn't it an amazing thing to first open your eyes to find you have been born an American in America. And wasn't it odd that you were born in Chicago. An overnight train ride would have made you a southerner. But fortunate am I that Spain was not my native land. I might have been born a Chinaman and had to eat rice all my life, or I might have awakened for the first time in an igloo—blubber must be terrible stuff, but they like it. Gee whizz! Suppose I had been born a girl—where! That was close, wasn't it?

Those strange parents you have, you kind of look like one or the other, but why were you born to them. Equally strange is it that they were people of moderate means. They might have been poverty stricken. You might have been natured out of fifth and disease. But shucks, why weren't you born into the home of Morgan or Astorbi—that would have been just as easy and look at the advantages.

And those total strangers—your brothers and sisters. Oh yes, you finally get to know them fairly well, yet until the day you die they really will be just strangers. A twin brother—what a shock, there I am again.

Why is it that I have not been a good student? Why wasn't I good-looking? Could there have been reasons for making me a relative weakling—I wanted to play football, to run like the wind, to wrestle and box.

And to continue on, I wonder why I have never done anything better than anyone else? Why am I not a winner? What does the campus possess that I do not? Why should he be thus endowed in- stead of me?

What luck has brought me in my own blundering way this far? How much farther can I go?

Why have I been loved? Why have I loved? The same for hate.

But of one thing I am sure! I was born for a reason. That reason is unknown to me now—may never be known. Yet I am being directed on and on. Endowed with five senses, and maybe a sixth, gifted with dominant desires, each with its purpose disagreeable, but so skillfully masked with pleasurable sensations that I do my tasks gladly.

I work all day in order that I may eat, for I must eat. If it were not for the fact that I have sensations of hunger I would never even know that I was supposed to eat. And if it were not for my sense of taste I would never enjoy eating. Eating must be unpleasant basically, yet a desire plus a sense combine to disguise its very unpleasantness and I never know.

Sometimes it feels so good to be alive. A delicious thrill steals your body and you tingle with the realization that you live. Moods in- dige take hold—that is hunger for life.

Each of five urges must be satisfied as hunger is satisfied—fail to do so and you shall die sooner or later, yet each in its turn, if not gratified, will kill you off and return you to the dust from whence you came and where you may do more good.

In place of ten commandments you have only five: You must eat; you must slack thirst; you must sleep; you must desire to live; and you must desire to precreate your kind.

It is easy to understand death resulting from violating four of the five. But the fifth commandment—how is that? I believe—I know you will "live again" only in your children. In them you have placed all of your endowment. Your sins—violations of commandments, abuse of the machine you are using in the fulfillment of a purpose—ness and disease. Hell shall be on earth. Your virtues shall also show in your progeny as strengths.

You will create, care for, and rear your children. When you are done you will no longer be needed, so in time you shall return to the earth that dust you have been using—for a purpose—and your children must carry on in a like manner.

And there is a purpose. I don't know it nor do you. But you are being directed towards an end—a nominalistic end. Proof of that is the magnificent gift of your brain, which combines your desires with pleasures, and causes you to have a conscience by means of which you may know your right from wrong.

I am the most amazed man in the world!

The Notre Dame football stadium located in South Bend, Ind., seats 58,300.

During the last 7 years of Big Ten competition, Purdue has won 28 games, lost 8, and tied 2 for a percentage of .777.

Lampert's brilliant directing of the "Blue Danube Waltz" with his own rich and dominating tone and insistent and highly vitalized rhythm really puts Strauss himself in the background. It is as gratifying as it is unusual to find a man who so dominates his surroundings as does Professor Lampert, but why should not the University honor itself in honoring him with better and more suitable equipment? As a member of the most effective musical organization now functioning in this country, may I express the hope that the department of music here might be brought up to the standards obtained in other state universities and that means putting more money into it so that it might be recommended with pride to fellow workers in the musical field when the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs meets in Louisville in 1937. Wake up! U. K. Wake up!

'Cats Meet Alabama In Gruelling Battle

In a surprising upset, The Wildcats are leading all Southeastern Conference eleven in scoring with a total of 150 points. The Wildcat line will be slightly outweighed. However, Kentucky's 190-pound backfield will have a big edge in weight over the Alabama backs. Whether Kentucky's line can stand up against the powerful Crimson Tide forward wall will probably be the deciding factor of the game.

Seven members of the squad which went to the Rose Bowl two years ago will be included in Alabama's starting lineup.

KURTZ AWARDED PRIZE

George Kurtz, student in the College of Agriculture, was awarded a new publication of Henry and Morrison's "Feeds and Feeding" for being the outstanding livestock judge from the group that represented the University in a contest held at Berea College October 24, 1936. Mr. Kurtz showed his ability as a livestock judge by scoring 264 points out of a possible 650. This was the highest score made by a contestant competing in this contest.

DAIRY CLUB MEETS

The Dairy club held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, October 27, in the Dairy building. Plans were made for the annual home-coming breakfast which is to be held at 9:30 o'clock, October 31, in the University Commons.

HOMECOMING TEACHING

Several recent graduates of the department of home economics of the College of Agriculture are teaching in the high schools of the state. Those who are holding these positions are Ruth Averitt, Lexington; Frances Brown, Brandenburg; Courtney Cannon, Lexington; Martha Cleveland, Versailles; Mary E. Collins, Flemingsburg; Ann Scott Giles, Lexington, and Anna Frances Chambers, Nicholasville.

SIGMA PI SIGMA TO MEET

Lambda chapter of Sigma Pi Sigma, national honorary physics fraternity, will hold its first social meeting of the year at 8 o'clock Friday afternoon, October 30, in room 200 of the Physics building. Guests will be Doctor Hise of the department of physics at Murray State Teachers College, and Doctor Noll of the department of physics at Berea, as well as other physicists of the state. The meeting will be brief and informal.

ENGINEERS VISIT LOUISVILLE PLANTS

Thirty members of the American Society of Civil Engineers went to Louisville yesterday on an inspection tour of various plants and projects.

Among the places visited were: The Speed Scientific school, the Baxter Avenue and Broadway Grade Elimination Project, the Ohio River Sand and Gravel company, the Ready-Mix Plant of the Kentucky Builders Supply, and the Cement Mill of the Kosmos company at Knossdale, Kentucky.

The party, accompanied by Professors Terrell, Carrel, and Chambers, were the dinner guests of the Kosmos company at the Brown hotel.

Edison Adams is president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and Goffer Wheelon is vice-president.

Women Residents To Sponsor Tea Dance

A Homecoming tea dance, sponsored by Patterson and Boyd hall will be held after the game on Saturday, Oct. 31, until 6 o'clock, in the Patterson hall recreation room. The music will be supplied by Andy Anderson's band.

This is the first time that the Women's Dormitories have presented such a feature during the Homecoming week-end, and all student and alumni are invited to attend. Preparations for the dance are being made by a committee composed of Betty Mitchell, Harriet Estes, Ann Crutcher, Bryd Kendall, Josephine Gridelli, and Frances Farabough.

SOPHOMORE GROUP TO HEAR MRS. F. L. McVEY

Mrs. Frank McVey will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Sophomore Commission of the YWCA at 4:30 p. m. Monday afternoon in the Woman's building.

The topic of Mrs. McVey's address is "Professions for Women." The program for the meeting is under the direction of Ruelle Palmer, program chairman, assisted by Elizabeth Legion, Jane Murphy and Dot Clements.

MORSE TO ADDRESS YW'S

Aubrey "Shorty" Morse will speak to a joint meeting of the YWCA Music and Worship groups at 3 p. m. Monday in the Woman's building. Mr. Morse, who is Hi-Y Secretary of the Lexington YMCA, will speak on "Finding God in the World of Today." Members of the YMCA Worship committee have been invited to attend.

P. T. A. HEARS SCHORLING

Dr. Raleigh Schorling, director of the training school and professor of secondary education at the University of Michigan, spoke to the patrons and faculty of the University High school last night in the school cafeteria. Mrs. Whalen Rhoads, president of the P. T. A., presided and Prof. J. D. Williams introduced the speaker.

Huge Homecoming Celebration Planned

Features of the 'Cat-Alabama game at 2:30 will be a special collection to obtain funds for sending the band to the national convention recently erected by Suky.

Between the halves of the game a dedicatory message will be read through the public address system, and the national colors will be raised while the band plays the national anthem. It is hoped that a state flag ordered for the occasion will arrive in time to be raised under the national banner.

Following the game, President and Mrs. McVey will be hosts to alumni, visitors and friends for tea at Maxwell Place. Guests of honor for the affair will be Gov. A. B. Chandler and Lieut.-Gov. Keen Johnson, president of the Alumni association.

Climaxing event of the week-end will be the Alumni dance to be held from 9 until 12 in the Alumni gymnasium. Andy Anderson and his orchestra will furnish the music and admission will be $1 per couple. Registration booths for alumni will be located in both the Phoenix and Lafayette hotels as well as in the Alumni office in the Administration building. All alumni are urged to register so as to be given special information as to the various luncheons, dinners, and other activities for the week-end.

Recent Graduates To Meet Wednesday

The recent graduates group of the American Association of University Women will hold its first meeting of the year at 7:30 o'clock on Wednesday evening, November 4, at Maxwell Place.

The program will consist of a review by Mrs. Preston Johnson of the book "Gone With the Wind" and recital of violin selections by Miss Myrins Thorp.

Mrs. P. K. Holmes, president of the Lexington branch of the A. A. U. W., will introduce Miss Fannie Herman, chairman of the recent graduates group, who will preside. Members of this committee are Misses Lillian Holmes, Elizabeth Dings, Betty Dimock, Grace Anderson, Hazel Nollan, Edith Grundmeier, Mildred Semmons, Flora LeStourgeon, Mrs. George E. Smith and Mrs. J. W. Jones.

Model Contest Is Postponed for One Week

The Mitchell, Baker, Smith Shoe Department wishes to announce the postponement of the "Model Contest" until next Friday. At that time the winner of the contest will be announced and prizes will be awarded. This action will allow those co-eds who have failed to fill out their measurement cards to do so before Wednesday, November 4. Cards can be secured from the Mitchell, Baker, Smith Shoe Department, Cedar Village, Women's building (on the campus), Boyd and Patterson halls.—Adv.

LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1936

NEW SERIES NO. 13

SEEING SPORT STUFF

By JOE QUINN
KERNEL SPORTS EDITOR

It's the eve of the annual football struggle wherein Kentucky's Wildcats stage their annual attempt to beat two foes in a single afternoon—Alabma's big Red Tide and the forces of Fortune. It is usually quite a battle, but only once has Kentucky been a winner, and the 'Cats have had 15 chances. No matter how you figure it, the Alabma-Jinx combination has a terrific edge in the victory department.

Whoever penned the line "hope springs eternal in the human breast" must certainly have envisioned Kentucky fans in relation to the Alabma situation. Since 1922, just few years after the Armistice was signed, the Bluegrasses have patiently awaited another conquest of the apparently relentless Crimson Tide.

Now the years have piled on each other and we face the same problem tomorrow as has confronted us for so long. Hundreds of eagerly-expectant homecomers are already pushing into town for the week-end, hoping to be on hand when we finally arrive at a definite conclusion with Alabma—by handing them a setback, preferably a convincing one, but yet a setback.

And their hopes should be fulfilled.

Here's the conversation taking place between your reporter and an imaginary—but persistent—interviewer whose name might be Waldo. And these are the questions most fans will be asking or will be wanting to ask today and tomorrow.

Q. Do you think Kentucky has a chance to win against Alabma?

A. Yes, Waldo, we think the Wildcats have a good chance to win tomorrow.

Q. Yeh, but that's your trouble—you're always saying that Kentucky can win. What makes you think so this time?

A. Shall I name all my reasons? Yes? Well, I'll tell you. In the first place, regardless of any other considerations, the Wildcats have just as good a ball club as the Alabmas this year and we haven't always been able to say that, you know, Waldo. In fact, I must say that I think this Kentucky team is superior in ability to the Tide.

Q. That's all very well, but what about the rest of the reasons?

A. I'm trying to get along as fast as I can, Waldo. Sorry if I'm elemental. But, to continue, you know this game will mean more to us than any other with the probable exception of Tennessee. Well, the boys realize it, too, and they're going to be out there scrapping every minute tomorrow trying to take that ball game. Besides they have the added incentive, if it is necessary, of wanting to avenge the Georgia Tech lacing. Alabma is the first really tough opponent we have met since then and the 'Cats will be wanting to take out a little of the revenge on them.

Q. Well, that's all very nice and quite logical, too, but give us a little more convincing proof. How has the team been looking in practice this week?

A. Ah, Waldo, that's the question I've been wanting you to ask. And here's the answer. Observers who put in a lot of time over at the practice field during the fall, have been heartened by the work of the squad this week. I'd say that the club was blocking and tackling better at this moment than at any time this season. Now doesn't that make you feel better? It should, as the Wildcats' weakness previously has been blocking and tackling—the fundamentals department.

Q. Now how about the Kentucky hospital list, which includes "Bullet Bob" Davis, probably the main scoring threat in the 'Cat offense, and Wendell Skaggs, one of the regular tacklers?

A. You've got me there, Waldo. I don't know much more about it than you do. Skaggs is definitely out of tomorrow's action, though. As for Bob Davis, I'm not sure. According to our very latest information, Davis will don a suit but is not expected to take part in the festivities.

Q. Who is scheduled to start in the Wildcat ball-carrying roles?

A. Coach Wynne has not announced his lineup yet but we're figuring on Elmore "Red" Simpson at quarterback, Dameron Davis and Bert Johnson in the halfback slots and Walter "Whirly" Hodges, the Paris sophomore, in the full-back berth. Tommy Coleman may start instead of Bert Johnson at one halfback, but I think it will be Bert.

Q. Now, in conclusion, tell me who can carry the ball for the Tide?

A. They tell me, Waldo, that this guy Joe Riley is still working out with Frank Thomas' club and if you'll remember he did a fair job of running with the leather up here two years ago. He's plenty fast and plenty shifty. And then the Elephants also have another boy named Caldwell—they call him Blackie—who has been doing a lot of damage to opposing lines this fall. These two boys stand out in the Tide's attack but they've also got a few other who take their turn on ball-toting excursions. However, I don't think Alabma will turn up this season with another one of those devastating Howell-to-Hutson passing combinations. If they should, I'll take back all my predictions.

Q. Well, Joe, you seem to be so certain that the Kentuckys are going to win, how about making a little wager?

A. Okay, Waldo, and I'll go the limit. Consider yourself indebted to me to the extent of one of Miss Hoover's thirty-five cent luncheons, and I'll be around to collect it Monday.

Whereupon, Waldo, once more happy, and knowing all the answers, leaves the office, smiling.

All that remains now is to send the football visitors away just as happy and we'll consider it as a highly successful week-end for all concerned.

It won't be "wait 'til next year," this Saturday night—but, "By gosh, the boys finally turned the trick and beat Alabma." Boys, don't let me down here.

'Cats Set To Break 'Bama Jinx

KENTUCKY FACES TWO FOES — ELEPHANTS AND SUPERSTITION

By LOUIS HAYNES

Jinxes to the right of them — jinxes to the left of them, but at least Kentucky's Wildcats won't have to worry about the weather. That is, they won't have to worry if the records of former homecoming games mean anything.

But those jinxes? Out of records compiled for the last ten years on the homecoming games it is noticed that seven times the 'Cats have gone down in defeat with only two victories and one tie to their credit.

Looking more closely at these figures we see that Alabma and Tennessee have both taken Kentucky twice without a loss. But on more than one occasion the 'Cats have wrecked Tennessee's chances of a Rose Bowl bid. Some other teams that have caused us sorrow are Centre, Duke, and Tulane.

In Duke's case it is another jinx—the Wallace Wade jinx. Back when Wade coached Alabma he said that a Kentucky team would never defeat a team of his. In 1931 when Duke beat us 7-0 they had luck on their side. That is the last game that the Wildcats have played against a Wade-coached team.

Our only victories in homecoming games for the past ten years are over Centre in 1928 and Florida last year. In both cases the games have been close and undecided until late in the game.

A jinx that ranks with the homecoming one, is the spell that Alabma has always seemed to hold over us. Out of fifteen games with the Tide they have defeated us fourteen times with only one victory. Our triumph occurred in 1922 by a narrow margin of 7-6.

Soon after that, Wade started coaching there and had good luck against us. Frank Thomas, present coach, has been doing fairly well since he took over the reins several years ago, having defeated the 'Cats in every game.

But one thing you can almost be sure of—that it will be a pretty day. The odds are about 700 to 250 that it will not be raining or snowing.

During the last ten year period there has been rain and snow on three occasions. The other times the gridiron has usually been dry. By all these facts you can readily see that the only thing the 'Cats have to worry about are the jinxes—and the weather will take care of itself.

GUESSING GAME FOR SPORTS IS PRESENTED

It is the custom of most of the newspapers in the Middle West and North to give a list of 20 major games to be played, leaving the scores to the persons who want to take the time to fill them out. It is an interesting contest and is much enjoyed by the sports lovers throughout the country.

In order that incoming alumni might have some little pastime in which to indulge while waiting around for the game Saturday, here compiled is a list of 20 games being played in different parts of the country which may provide the brain-storms for old-timers. If you think the team will tie with its opponent, mark it so in the tie column. Here you will have a chance to make just one more grade at the University.

The grading system will run as follows: From 18 to 20, the contestant will receive a grade of "A". From 16 to 18 is a grade of "B". Guessing 15 out of 20 will net a grade of "C". 12 and 14 will be "D" and 12 down will be that old familiar "E". And you may grade your own paper. We'll award the degree of master of prognostication to the winner.

Luckies for You — It's a Light Smoke!

When Fun and Smoking Last Way Into the Night...

On party nights—or whenever you do a lot of smoking—you'll find that Luckies, a light smoke, are a comfort as well as a joy! For since Luckies are a light smoke, there's no wear and tear on your throat. Luckies wear well...they're the only cigarette that's "Toasted"... your protection against irritation. So tomorrow, or better, right now, reach for a Lucky—rich with the taste of fine center-leaf tobacco. It's a good morning smoke with a clean, fresh taste. And it's a good night smoke...easy on you...gentle. It's never too late for a light smoke...never too late for a Lucky!

NEWS FLASH! 82 years old—She Knows Her Popular Music

Mrs. Elizabeth Bowles of Uvalde, Texas, is a real "Sweepstakes" fan. She writes: "I am 82 years old and this is the first time I have ever won anything absolutely free, and am I pleased!" Congratulations, Mrs. Bowles. We're certainly pleased, too, that you won.

Have you entered yet? Have you won your delicious Lucky Strikes? There's music on the air. Tune in "Your Hit Parade" Wednesday and Saturday evenings. Listen, judge, and compare the tunes—then try Your Lucky Strike "Sweepstakes."

And if you're not already smoking Luckies, buy a pack today and try them. Maybe you've been missing something. You'll appreciate the advantages of Luckies—a Light Smoke of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco.

For "Night-and-Day" Smokers — A Light Smoke! Even though you've been smoking through most of the day, and all through the evening, you'll find that your midnight Lucky tastes as good as your Lucky at noon. For a clean taste, a clear throat... reach for a Lucky—a light smoke!

VARSITY AND FROSH COURT SQUADS PREPARE FOR SEASON

Both Teams Expected To Be Stronger This Year, Say Coaches

By JAMES THACKER

While the University of Kentucky football team is charging up and down the field in preparation for the first lap of their season, the basketball teams are in the Alumni gym, sharpening their eyes for the coming hardwood season.

The varsity, handicapped because many of the players are on the football squad, is coming around nicely, according to Coach Adolph Rupp, head basketball mentor, and should whip into shape quickly.

Coach Rupp made the following statement at the close of practice last evening:

Team Better

"We will have a better team than we had last year when the team gets together and gets organized. Our schedule for the coming season is one of the toughest in the history of the school and we will have to go hard all year if we want to have a successful season.

"All in all, the students of the University will have a basketball team which they won't be ashamed to claim."

Three Regulars Back Three of last year's regulars are back for the 36-37 stand this year. Hagans and Carlisle, the two regular forwards from last year's team are back in the fold, along with Warfield, Donnanus, guard and captain of the team.

Best Group "I personally think that this is the best group I have coached in my three years as the University. They are tall, natural ball players. When the football men report I materialized a considerable strength added to the squad."

"We do not have a full schedule present and only have a few games booked. However, we will fill the schedule as the season gets under way. Among the games booked to date are two games each with Louisville Manual High School and Morehead Frosh. The remaining games will be played with high school teams throughout the state."

Southern Conference teams, and several teams in the Southeastern Conference. Should this kind of decimal rating be used, it would be a fairer method of determining merit to either conference, because they would be considered incapable of furnishing competition for the league teams.

Yet, the Pittsburgh Panthers are considered a powerhouse in the nation, and are ranked right along on top of the heap; so you figure it out for yourself—we give up.

Cultural Growth Can Be Attained Out of Classroom

What are the cultural opportunities which are to be found at the University? There are many of these in addition to what one receives in the classroom, and they are available to all for the price of a little time, effort, and maybe a few extra cents.

give talented musical programs. These take place each Sunday afternoon from the first of November until Easter.

Each year six major plays are given at the Guggenheim Theatre. Director-producer Frank Fowler chooses these plays which are of local interest and national reputation.

The museums on the campus would interest anyone, for they cover many subjects. Their number is surprising. First, there is the geological museum in the Administration building which shows to the student the history of the structure of the state of Kentucky, its minerals, and their location.

"My dear Countess, these imported cigarettes are positively enchanting!" "That's one on you, Clarissa! TWENTY GRANDS are imported from the corner tobacco shop."

Enemy Camps

By MACK HUGHES

Out of the South roars the thundering herd of Red Elephants from the University of Alabama to do battle with the Big Blue team of Kentucky. The Elephants are just as big and tough as ever, but hope for a Wildcat win runs just as high as it has for the past 14 years.

Last Friday the Crimson Tide barely nosed out a plucky team from Loyola of the South, 13 to 7. The score could have been much larger had Coach Frank Thomas wanted the boys to run it up, but following the usual football strategy he chose to win by a small score and to keep his many tricks in the bag.

Seemingly broken by the defeat landed them by Holy Cross the week before, Manhattan's Jaspers again tasted defeat at the hands of Detroit. Still little is known of the real strength of the Jaspers.

DOPSTER FIGURES CHANCES OF WILDCATS AGAINST PITTSBURGH

What chance would Kentucky, and against the mighty Pittsburgh Panthers this year? There's one way the boys have of finding out. They figure it out by the games won and lost by the respective teams in question. Taking their style we will just go ahead and prove that Pittsburgh is not so hot after all.

Pittsburgh, the conqueror of the Irish from Notre Dame in a lopsided game, played a little hand of "Night Riders" from their own fair city. That little team, known as Duquesne, went out to the Panther hide-out and brought back the skinned Panther by the score of 7-0, in one of the biggest upsets in football history.

The Panthers had an early season game with West Virginia and beat them to the tune of 34-0. West Virginia Wesleyan, the team whipped by V. Va., conquered Duquesne, the conquerors of Pittsburgh, 2-0.

West Virginia Wesleyan 9 points better than the Panthers from Pittsburgh.

Taking that viewpoint and boiling it down to bare facts, very bare facts mind you, we will attempt to see just how the southern teams rank with Pittsburgh.

West Virginia Wesleyan, the team that beat the team (Duquesne), that beat the team (Pittsburgh), of whom we speak, drubbed little Davis and Elkins college to the tune of 36-0.

burgh), of whom we speak, drubbed little Davis and Elkins college to the tune of 36-0. This ranks Davis and Elkins, on paper, just 17 points worse than Pitt. Davis and Elkins then traveled to Cincinnati and handed the Xavier Musketeers a one-point defeat. This, on paper, ranks the Musketeers 18 points worse than the Panthers.

The University of Kentucky Wildcats had previously given the Xavier team a 21-0 setback. This margin of victory ranks the Wildcats 3 points better than the Panthers.

Cats Bow to Tech Kentucky then traveled to Atlanta, Ga., and took a 34-0 beating from Georgia Tech; so that gives Georgia Tech a set-up in the Panthers, out-ranking them by 37 points.

Vanderbilt tied Tech and therefore holds the same ranking as Tech (all this on paper). Tech then traveled into Durham, N. C., and took a 19-6 lacing from the Duke Blue Devils. Duke, therefore, ranks 50 points better than Pitt.

Duke was beaten by Tennessee 15-13, making the Volunteers 15 points better than the Panthers.

Alabama tied the Vols and holds the same ranking, while Auburn holds a 6-0 victory over the Vols. This makes the Auburn team, through this medium of checking, 58 points better than the Panthers.

Several Teams Included Through this medium of checking we have taken in many of the

CO-ED INTERVIEWS 'MOTHER' OF WOMEN'S DORMITORIES

By LESLIE LEE JONES

How would you like to be the "mother" to 225 girls for nine months out of the year? That sounds like a tremendous undertaking for any one person, yet Mrs. Marylee Collins fulfills this duty at the University, acting as social director of Patterson and Boyd halls, the two women's residence halls.

Mrs. Collins, a native of Birmingham, Alabama, came only last year to assume this responsible position. A tall, stately woman with a kind, gentle face framed by silver-white hair, she moves serenely among the girls, studying their likes and dislikes.

Talking to Mrs. Collins in her office, I learned that she had previously attended Randolph-Macon College, and Columbia University, where she received special training in personnel and guidance work. Being a true native of the south, Mrs. Collins chose to come to Kentucky in order to take up her work of social directing.

Dealing with 225 girls day in and day out never fails to bring many an unusual case before her. Such harrowing experiences as one night when the lights went out, once when a false fire alarm was turned in at midnight, and once when a real fire broke out, to add excitement to the job that makes it all the more interesting, if a little frightening.

Not the least of her duties is one of seeing if every one of her girls is in by dormitory bedtime, and if not, where this particular young lady happens to be. No mother ever worries any more than Mrs. Collins does about each one of the 225.

After a few months time every girl becomes intimately known by her, and then the dormitory becomes one big home with a happy, congenial family.

Asked as to what one thing annoyed her most, in such a position, Mrs. Collins laughingly replied, "Well, the never-ceasing tread of footsteps up and down the halls and stairs, throbs in my ears, at times, long after I am in bed."

Changing to a different vein of conversation, she thoughtfully added, "One of the nicest things that can happen, is for one of my girls to come in and say, 'Will you look at me, please, I always let mother look me over; before I go any place dressed up.'"

PATTERSON ANSWERS

By IRMA JEAN GROSS

"Ah, yes. You have painted me, sat on me, wondered at me, and decorated me; yet I have rightly sat on my chair, my book in one hand, my cane in the other, for not these two long years. But now it is 'my day.' A new semester is beginning, which provides an opportunity for unfolding what I have held in my heart since my dedication on June 1, 1934.

When you put a freshman cap on my head, I did not laugh, as did you who rejoiced in my behavior. I warmly glowed inside. Why, I was indeed gratified to have this symbol of educational virginity bestowed upon me. I, too, might share in the "privilege" of being a freshman.

When you, as a sophomore, placed your lovely co-ed in my lap to pose for a snapshot, I secretly gently embraced her, for she was the essence of young womanhood seeking knowledge in the institution for which I dedicated my life.

Now that you are a junior, you may polish my dome, until it glows; you may place a bouquet in my outstretched arms; you may put a stove-pipe lid on my cane; but I shall not budge nor shall I grow angry with you. To me you represent all for which I worked and strived, all that I meant you to be. When that time comes for you to graduate from this institution of learning, I want you, as a senior, to bid me farewell. Stand by my side; close your eyes, and then think of your four, joyful years here. Remember that though I speak not, I rejoice in all the good that you have done and shall do. Make this university proud to have you as a graduate; and sometime in the future when I learn of your success, I shall think of you as the student who "decorated" my figure."

Cut-in Dance Is Highly Intriguing

By CLYDE WALDEMER

The chilly wind of the straight card dances in the North blue southward and hit the warm sacanato of the ever-changing Kentucky mountain square dance, and out of the storm came the whirling "cut-in" dance.

Whether this modern off-shoot of the original, the effect of which has already reached some of the larger northern cities, will become nationally accepted or die out as a fad, cannot be readily answered. The opinion of one freshman girl seems to epitomize the whole situation.

"No matter whom you're dancing with," she complains, "whether he's a good dancer or a poor one, you have to look like you're having a good time. Looks and personality means very little when you begin to show signs of getting 'stuck.' Furthermore, you've got to get all your 'no-breaks' slated ahead of time or else you stand a good chance of having to sit one out; and if you once hit the side lines you're usually there to stay."

"But," she hastens to add, "I somehow prefer it to the straight card dance. You get straight dancing in the 'no-breaks' and yet it retains the intriguing gambol of changing partners."

And so the battle lines are drawn. On the one side are the conservatives whose interest is in dancing; and on the other the more sport-like crowd who love the kaleidoscope of changing partners.

"However, there is this to be said," admonishes a senior boy, "if the whole thing could be passed off as a game, there would be little objection, but unfortunately it is the precursor of more invidious practices in later life—social climbing. By virtue of the dance a student may be elevated to an unearned social position on the campus. It is youth's way of dragging out the lorgnette and planting the roots of the family tree in the noble soul of some great man who has been dead so long he couldn't possibly nourish it."

"A university campus, of all places, should try to stimulate intelligent social relations. But campus social life like campus politics very often emulates the most undesirable aspects of the social pattern."

The Junior Collegian says a noted naturalist made a study of birds and found that the birds that sang the sweetest usually lead solitary lives. Furthermore that anyone who sang around there was bound to do the same.

Campaign for Bigger, Better Hell-O-ween Opens As Annual Fun-Frolic Approaches

By WALTER RIDDELL

Are you a "soaper upper?" If so you will want to join the campaign for a bigger and better Halloween. This campaign is being inaugurated in the belief that such practices as soaping windows and misplacing gates are becoming monotonous, and that there are many more interesting things which can be done by those who wish to celebrate.

For instance, instead of carrying a cake of soap or a candle around on the "Hallowed Eve," why not get a small can of black enamel and paint the windows. After all it is just as easy to do and much more effective. Especially so as the new enamel products now on the market will dry in five minutes and will resist acid after drying.

If you like the idea, then here is what you have to do in order to join the campaign. Firstly, you will need a few items which should be purchased a day or so before the 31st. Here they are: One bottle of glue, one small bag of sand, one can of black enamel, one wide paint brush, two narrow paint brushes, two packages of chewing gum, one hammer, pocket full of nails, some old razor blades, one clothes pin and a saw. (It is suggested that these articles can best be carried in a suit case or placed around in a wheelbarrow.)

Here is the general procedure when you approach your neighbor's house. Squeeze down over the side of the porch and sit down beneath one of the windows. Upon the can of black enamel and with the wide brush give the panes a nice thick coat. It would be safer to make one application suffice for obvious reasons.

Now go over to the door and instead of ringing the bell as was the custom, use a large glob of chewing gum which you have been chewing all the time and dab it around over the push button. If you are a wood-oc sign painter then you can have some real fun by adding a couple of numerals to the house number with one of the narrow brushes and the black paint.

Testing the porch furniture and stringing it along on telephone wires is "old stuff." Why not take the saw and rip all the legs about three-fourths of the way through, and let the furniture set?

From the front porch you go around to the side of the house to the family car. The usual procedure would be to let all the gas out of the tank, but according to the new plan a bit of glue is poured in. Tracer glue strung through the gas line and into the carburetor will make the car run sluggishly enough. And, of course, letting the oil out of the crankcase is passe, too. Two or three hand fulls of coarse sand dumped into the oil spot makes a very discouraging effect upon the motor.

Now is where the orange enamel comes in for supplying more fun for the telephone booth artist. With the other narrow brush a black sedan can be decorating, no end with all sorts of designs. The new style tire covers present a fine surface on which to paint pumpkin faces. One of the old razor blades wedged into the clothes pin makes a handy little instrument for letting the air out of the tires, and it is a good idea to fill the valves full of chewing gum, too.

Next go over to the gate and drive a few nails into the post just above the latch, which, if done carefully, will make the opening of the gate present quite a problem to the uninitiated.

Now is the time when, according to the old system of celebrating, you would turn over the garbage can. Instead you go around to the back porch and give the old ice box a shove. This makes much more noise and gives more spirit of comfort.

We have not endeavored to supply all the ideas and, therefore, if you think there are not enough you can add others as you go along—the main idea is that they be original. It is our wish that everyone, both young and old, join its "Hell-o-ween" campaign. Help to make the forthcoming celebration one long to be remembered in Lexington.

So come on folks, let's show these other towns around just how well developed our sense of humor and good breeding is in Lexington!

According to experiments conducted by a botany class at the Oregon State College, it has been found that if a mature orchard received its needed 5 acre-inches of rainfall each month, it would be equivalent to 100,000 gallons of water daily. Counting an average of 40 trees to the acre, each tree should have a little more than 125 gallons of water daily.
