The World Whirls On

By JIM WOOLDRIDGE

In one of the earlier sessions of the present Congress, a prominent senator made the remark: "There's something phony about this war!" At that time he was referring to the situation at the outbreak of hostilities, when, despite the fact that both Allies had formally declared war and had massed a huge army on the western front, they stubbornly refused to make any offensive move against the Nazi forces or to give any definite information at all. The two democracies refused absolutely to allow newspapers to visit the war zone, and rigidly censored all photographs of army activity. When these restrictions grew even more stringent, the rumor began to circulate that the Allies were making no attempt to prosecute the war, that they were waiting until the high-geared Germans had devoured Poland and made any further fighting futile. It was whispered that Chamberlain would then agree to another Hitler plan and that the "war" would be over without losing the usual billions of dollars to the arms manufacturers. It was just too bad about Poland.

The rumor grew stronger as the Franco-British forces adopted their policy of waiting, and as the Nazi war-horses rolled over Poland in the "blitzkrieg" that has now become Hitler's play the game and peace on schedule. The rumor met sudden death, however, for the Allies didn't play the game and refused to accept the further peace plans.

It became evident that the democracies had seen the futility of any possible aid to Poland and had realized the impossibility of smashing the enormous strength of the Nazis. They could not conquer Germany by military might; they would have to deliver her by economic stranglehold. The British, however, were to take the cold position and prepared to sit it out until the Nazis had eaten their last crumb. The first lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill, in a significant broadcast, asked his countrymen to keep a firm hold on their nerves, to steel their courage, to ignore propaganda, and of all things to avoid being bored.

As time marched on the wisdom of these last words became apparent. The armistice day after the other simply says that artillery action has taken place and reconnaissance patrols were engaged.

War boredom was foreseen this week when an official French bulletin announced that the Allies were had withdrawn entirely from the territory which they had so painstakingly taken during their first seven weeks of military operations. The objective seems to be a defense of the French borders to keep Hitler in Germany.

Two well known Kentucky educators, Dr. James Thomas C. Noe, poet laureate of Kentucky, and Dr. McHenry Rhoads, will be honored in the auditorium of the College of Education.

Portraits of these two eminent professors of education at the University will be unveiled and presented to the University by members of Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi, honorary education fraternities.

The portraits, painted by Doris Fitz of Benham, have been framed in old gold leaf and marked with brass plates as follows: "James Thomas C. Noe, Professor Emeritus of Education, University of Kentucky, At the age of 75," and "McHenry Rhoads, Professor Emeritus of Education, University of Kentucky, At the age of 81."

Dr. Wellington Clark, head of department of history of education, planned the joint presentation and will preside at the unveiling exercises. Dr. M. E. Ligon, head of the department of secondary education is chairman of the program.

Historians' Group Will Convene Here The University and Transylvania will be joint hosts for the fifth annual meeting of the Southern Historical Association which will be held November 2, 3, and 4.

Features of the program include a dinner Thursday night, in the Union building, followed by a reception at the home of President and Mrs. Frank L. McVey. Association headquarters will be located in the Lafayette hotel.

Dr. McVey will preside at the annual dinner to be held Friday night at the hotel.

The committee on local arrangements includes Dr. T. D. Clark, Prof. E. L. Hall, Prof. Robert G. Lunde, and Dr. Edward Tutbill.

Constitutionalist Candidates Duty, Nash, Ambarner Elected

Neutrality's Nye ... PETITIONS DUE AT REGISTRAR'S ON WEDNESDAY

30 Signatures Needed Before Candidates May File Aspirants for the 20 upperclass seats on the student legislature must submit petitions by 4 p. m. Wednesday at the registrar's office on the main floor of the Administration building. Voting on these legislative bills will be held Monday.

The two freshman representatives will be elected at a mass meeting of the freshman class immediately following the upperclass legislative elections. Candidates will be determined by the election board from freshmen ranking in the first 20 on all three classification tests.

Representatives shall number 22, and will be elected by and from the colleges of the University, with the exception of the two freshmen representatives. Representatives are determined by the proportion of the college enrollment to the total enrollment of the University, as nearly as possible except that no college will have less than one representative.

In colleges where there will be more than one representative the representation will be divided among the colleges. Petitions are to include: (1) certification by the dean of women or the dean of men's office as to the number of standing of 15 or over; (2) statement of college, class, and sex; (3) signatures of at least 30 members of the petitioners' college who rank as sophomores or above.

These signatures must be non-duplicating in that a student may sign only as many petitions as there are to be representatives on his college.

For example, in the arts and sciences college there are to be eight representative bodies: two senior men, two senior women, two underclass men (sophomores or juniors), and two underclass women (sophomores or juniors). An arts and sciences student, not a freshman, may sign petitions of only two aspirants to positions as A. & S. senior men's representative, positions of only two aspirants to positions as A. & S. senior women's representative, etc. Freshman sign others than freshman candidates for legislative posts.

Representatives of the colleges on the Men's Student Council will have charge of the election in their particular college unless these student councilmen are seeking office in the election. If they are candidates, they will be appearing in their places by the Men's Student Council.

The representation will be divided: 1) law, 1 representative (any student); 2) education, 1 representative (any student); 3) engineering, 2 representatives (1 senior and 1 underclassman—except freshman); 4) agriculture, 3 representatives (1 senior man, 1 underclassman—except freshman, 1 woman of any class—except freshman); 5) agriculture, 3 representatives (1 senior man, 1 underclassman—except freshman, 1 woman of any class—except freshman); 6) commerce, 3 representatives (1 senior man, 1 underclassman—except freshman, 1 woman of any class—except freshman); 7) arts and sciences, 8 representatives (2 senior men, 2 senior women, 2 underclassmen—except freshman, 2 women of any class—except freshman).

French Students Elect Aid Cast "Le Cercle Francais" announces the following officers: Clarence Albro, president; Harold Dunn, vice-president; and Mildred Gravette, secretary.

"La Nonoum" (the nurse) has been selected as the play for presentation by students of French classes this semester. The cast follows: Monsieur Pons, Harold Dunn; Le Docteur, Andrew Statt; Detective M. G. L., Charles Albro; Madame Mouselle Phi Mildred Gravette; and Miss Bullfinch, Virginia Krak.

The next meeting will be held at 7 p. m. Thursday, November 2, at the home of B. W. Schiek, assistant professor of Romance languages, on West High street.

Theta Sig Pledges Chapter of the Sigma Phi, women's honorary journalism fraternity, will hold pledging ceremonies for June Day.

Mary Henderson, A & S junior, "I don't remember."

When The Ballots Were Counted, The Smoke Cleared Away ...

Bill Duty, Jeanne Barker, Bob Nash

... these three were disclosed as the chosen few of the twenty who entered the race for top-ranking student government offices. Constitutionalists all, they will take over early next month the respective posts of president, women's vice-president, and men's vice-president. Duty, senior in the agriculture college, is a Phi Delta Theta from Winchester; Barker, senior in the arts and sciences college, is an Alpha Gamma Delta from Louisville; and Nash, first year law college, is a Sigma Alpha Epsilon from Lexington.

EDUCATORS PLAN TWO-DAY MEET

16th Annual Congress To Open Friday The 16th annual meeting of the Kentucky Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools will be held Friday and Saturday, October 27, 28, at the University with Dr. J. L. Harman, president of Bowling Green College of Commerce and chairman of the commission on institutions of higher education presiding at the meeting of the college section which will convene at 2 p. m. Friday, in McVey hall.

The two-day program will open at 9:30 a. m. Friday with a general session in Memorial hall under the direction of President Frank L. McVey. Speakers at this general meeting will be Robert B. Clem of Louisville, president of the Kentucky Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and principal of Shawnee high school; Dr. Walter Crosby Betts of Washington, D. C., coordinator of the cooperative study of secondary school standards; and Dean William P. Russell of the teachers college, Columbia university.

Meeting at the same time as the annual dinner-meeting of the secondary school section will open its session in the auditorium of the Education building. J. M. Deacon, principal, William Morton junior high school, Lexington, and chairman of the secondary school commission will preside and Dr. Edly will speak.

With President McVey presiding the annual dinner-meeting of the educational conference and the Kentucky association will be held at (Continued on Page Four)

Union Plans "Cider Shag" For Saturday

A source close to the director revealed yesterday that the Union will act as sponsor for a "cider shag" from 9 p. m. to midnight Saturday in the Bluegrass room.

Free cider will be given, according to announcement. The Bluegrass room will be decorated in autumnal motif. Party cents admission will be charged for the hop at which Bill Crosby's orchestra will supply the music.

Experiment Station Identifies Diseases

Word From Denmark Names Kentucky As National Salmonella Center The Kentucky Agriculture Experiment Station has been asked to serve as the American center for the identification of a special group of diseases and will be known as the National Salmonella center of the United States according to word received by Dean Thomas P. Cooper from the International Salmonella institute, Copenhagen, Denmark.

The selection of the Kentucky station, came as a result of the work of the department of animal pathology with the livestock diseases, especially the studies of Dr. P. R.

ISOLATION TOPIC TO BE DISCUSSED

The University debating season will open early in November, Prof. W. R. Sutherland, English department, announced yesterday.

Discussion will be on the subject: resolved, that the United States should follow a policy of strict (economic and military) isolation toward all nations outside the western hemisphere engaged in armed international or civil conflict.

Students interested in joining the debating club are asked by Professor Sutherland to attend a meeting to be held at 3 p. m. Friday in Room 221, McVey hall.

Also at the Friday meeting will be discussed instructions concerning the election of officers for the year.

Committee Appoints Student Assistants

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees the following appointments were made: Bruce E. Dahrting and William G. Huskel, research assistants in the College of Commerce for the second semester; John L. Williams, student assistant in the College of Commerce; Mrs. Mary LaCroze, student assistant in the department of art; John Black, student assistant in the University training school.

Members of the executive committee are Judge R. C. Stoll, chairman; James Park, H. S. Cleveland, and Lee Kirkpatrick.

Nearly 1,600 Students Take Part In Balloting

President And Two Vice-Presidents To Head Revised System Of Student Government

Bill Duty, Bob Nash, and Jeanne Barker were picked for the respective posts of president, men's vice-president, and women's vice-president, when nearly 1,600 ballots were cast in yesterday's student government election.

A total of 1,579 ballots were dropped into the boxes, 1,075 by men and 504 by women. Because no choice was made or because too many candidates were chosen, six complete ballots were thrown out, two having been cast by men and four by women.

ARMISTICE DAY MEANS NOTHING TO UK AMAZONS

Peace Blackout Seen For Sadie Hawkins' Chase Day

Sadie Hawkins' day is at hand, and Saturday, November 11, will have no more Armistice day significance than the voting rooms all day every day in a L.I.I. hour, pursued, he hopes, by some Sadie Hawkins. Once caught, a man is the exclusive property of the woman who succeeds in tying her tag to his lapel. She will take him to the costume dance Saturday night in the Union forewarning his previous engagements.

Sponsored by Keys, minus special honorarium, all proceeds of the dance and tag sale will be donated to the student loan fund. Although arrangements have not been completed, Bill Costel, president of the organization, said that efforts are being made to obtain Carl "Donkey" Moore for the dance. Sadie Hawkins tags will be placed on sale Friday, November 10.

Four members of the YM and YW were appointed to the recent leadership conference at Berea college to serve on an economics committee to make a study of the economic conditions in the southern area. The four were Harriet Henderson, chairman; Doris Seward, Bart Peak, and James Howell.

Howell was also elected president of the Kentucky Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Officers elected were Bruce Weaver, Louisville, president; John L. Williams, secretary; and Dawson Davis, Centre, secretary.

The results and information gathered by the economics committee will be given to the entire southern area of the Christian associations to help students more alert to the problems which are defeating the Christian purpose. Mr. Peak said.

Phi Beta Pledges

Gail Kirn, Junior, Louisville; Helen Burke, senior, Lexington; and Grace Oliver, Junior, Lexington, all students in the College of Arts and Sciences were pledged to Phi Beta, professional music and dramatic fraternity, at a special meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Union building as associate members were Mary King Montgomery, instructor in physical education; Mrs. Freda Derby fans from 10 a. m. until sundown.

Band's Top Position On Popularity Front Threatened By Winning Wildcat Squad

By JOHN SAMARA With the Wildcats hanging up their fourth consecutive victory on the gridiron this season, it begins to look as if an old, and sometimes distasteful, custom may have to be relegated to the scrap heap. All too often football spectators have crowded the stadium at Lexington, ostensibly to see a football game, but have gone away praising the virtues of the "Best Band in Dixie."

But, along with the name has come the task of upholding it and this has meant more and more work each year until today "The Best Band in Dixie" literally has become the "Busiest Band in Dixie."

The football season closes invitations come flooding in to the University band for concert appearances. Schools in outlying districts, sponsors of charity programs, local merchants, hospitals, and other organizations and institutions are eager to see and hear "The Best Band in Dixie."

Since it is representative of the state university, "The Best Band in Dixie" naturally assumes a position as center of all state musical activities. Derby fans from 10 a. m. until sundown.

Woodruff thought the two dogs plus "The Best Band in Dixie" made a three ring circus of the game instead of two. Next morning he said so in his news story which covered the antics of the band.

Thus, the story has become legendary at the University and tradition has it that when the Wildcat team come off the football field beaten or tied the fans say, "Well, anyhow, we've got "The Best Band in Dixie."

ON THE NEED FOR WELL CHOSEN REPRESENTATIVES

Representatives will be "go-betweens" from the student body to higher government officials.

Senator Nye—And Needy Students

Dean T. T. Jones has estimated that one-fourth of all University students can't afford to pay for their expenses during the college year.

When it is realized that such a large number of students are comparatively "on their own," the full significance of work done by various campus groups for these students is apparent.

For obvious reasons, a group which renders such services as buying text books, helping pay tuition, furnishing clothing, making loans, and meeting hospital bills, can not very well publicize its good deeds.

This year, in order to raise additional funds to carry on the work, the Woman's club is bringing to this campus Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota.

But now, with the two-fold advantage of being able to help needy students, and also being treated to a close-up of the neutrality question, every member of the University staff and student body should feel it a privilege to purchase tickets for the lecture.

The Colonel Is "A Hog About Them"

The Colonel went up to the University radio studios in McVey hall the other night, and when he came back down, he was complaining that people didn't tell him these things.

He raved about the eighteen-piece staff orchestra and swore that those experts who rated our studios among the finest in the nation didn't know the half of it.

"There are three complete studios up there," the Colonel bragged, "three studios, and they're just about as large and well-equipped as any you'll find."

Not Only Love Is Fickle

School spirit and pride in team are two associates which walk hand in hand through college years.

At present, the team is on top—both in games won and in student esteem.

On this campus, it is the signal for a wholesale disowning of the team by the student body.

At present, the team is on top—both in games won and in student esteem.

A strong cheering section and campus loyalty might possibly spur a winning team to do some better, but the same combination would cause a losing team to fight a little harder and hold the line a little longer.

Behind The Eckdahl

"Beauty," the poet has writ, "lurks in unsuspected realms."

On our way to school this morning we saw a trailer. Now there is nothing unusual about seeing a trailer, but around this one hovered a faint aroma.

But we intend to have a pet goat someday. It will frolic in the sun, and we will sit and contemplate its beauty.

Everybody's back home and happy over the success of the Wildcat-Georgia game.

Now why doesn't the athletic moguls schedule a game at Louisville, sell a lot of tickets to Louisvillians and play the game, say at Henderson?

Of course they might have trouble getting people in Louisville to buy tickets for a game at Henderson; they didn't have to worry about that with students.

It's something we haven't figured out yet.

New Radio Series To Be Streamlined

The University radio station now transmits a new educational program over the southern network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The program, "Southern School of the Air," is carried to WLPAP, Lexington, and then to the Mutual system.

Members of the network include WCMC, Ashland, WGRS, Louisville, and WSIX, Nashville. Other stations will probably be added shortly.

The new service is "streamlined" for use by adults as well as children in classrooms. Mr. Sulzer declared.

Palatable knowledge of dramatized literature, music appreciation, parental education, and science will also be presented.

Chatter Bits

All we can possibly say to start out is "IT SURE WAS." To quote one campus beauty on the weather conditions—"Umm, What a dance Friday night! Umm, What a game Saturday afternoon! Oh-what a Sunday morning! After the game, I was in the mood for a good cry."

The Louisville police department was grateful to Sigma Nu Pi for their donation for the traffic cop service rendered after the game. T. Scholz is a good boy to know isn't he?

A five hour pinning took place on the part of Kappa Sigma-High Reed and KD Betty Flings. Joke or no? Sigma Chi Bill Adams invited the good brothers to a party he was throwing at the Big Spring Country Club. Big name band and all the trimmings were to be in order Friday night! Umm, What a game! What happened Bill?

The special train leaving Louisville at 10:30 p. m. was lucky to get back here in one piece. Someone with a good measure of foresight took out all the fuses on one of the cars. People in that car were left in the dark some for the first time in their lives. Fun was had by all... as a matter of fact two hours of fun ensued.

Triangle Moose Nelson had a nice idea before leaving for the game Saturday. He had his return address written in huge letters on his shirt. Good means of identification. Moose, must try it sometime myself.

Twenty-five couples of SAE's took over the Air Devils' Inn at Louisville. Granville Clark made a hurried exit but faithfully his good brothers followed after him leaving the inn as peaceful as it was before their entrance.

Lee Browning reports that the score of the game was thirty to nothing. Wonder what game he saw? He was started in the general direction of the Cat game but must have followed the wrong Highway sign. Phil Dell Rollins Woods acquired a peculiar tone to his speech. Rollins was also a member of the welcoming committee at the "Cottage."

George Lamason is sporting a set of carved up knuckles. He says that he got into a Cat fight this week and it was just too much for him. Phil Tau, Eddie David, wishes it made known that the new University Morris club will not meet in the SUB grill at the next convocation.

When quizzed whether he and Dorothy (DOD) Hillemeeyer ever parted on those numerous dates, Phatko John Conrad quipped: "No, we are always in a G-drive, and it costs too much."

To Visit Centers

Elmer G. Sulzer, University publicity director in charge of the University radio studios, together with Frank Ernest Hill, director of study for the Federal Radio Education committee and Miss Mary A. Sandiford, of the University of Wisconsin radio station WEA, left yesterday for a three day study of mountain listening centers. They will be

CAMPUSCENE

By JIM CALDWELL

... in which the writer oppines that professors, like students, ought to be graded ...

Evidently unknown to many of the higher-ups in college education is the fact that most universities consider the professor under whom they take a course to be equally, if not more, important than the course itself.

We collegians, in our undergraduate stupidity, are prone to believe that if a subject, though it be one of the most important in an entire curriculum, is not taught in a fashion both lucid and interesting, then the advantage in offering that subject has been lost.

Some professors ably attain the former phase of that alternative. Others, no matter how hard they may try, lack the necessary spark and fall miserably. Still others have been so dead on their feet that such an alternative even exists.

Ever-conscious of this condition students have fostered a sort of unofficial classification system of professorial classification. There are no more thumb signs of its existence, but each September and each February, if one will search out the pucker-browed individuals struggling with schedules, he will realize that it is there.

For at those particular times the most frequently-heard query is that of "Have you ever had a class under Doctor Blank?" This is expanded into "What kind of a prof is he?" and "What sort of a lecturer is he?"

There are at least five professors on this campus who are included in the grape-vine's "must" list—that is everyone who has had classes under them recommends with enthusiasm that every student should take at least one of their courses before he graduates.

Actually, a student, because he knows the professor comprises at least 75% of the course involved, is looking for the man who best can interest and entertain him for the next four months—and still teach him everything about the subject that he ought to know.

There are at least five professors on this campus who are included in the grape-vine's "must" list—that is everyone who has had classes under them recommends with enthusiasm that every student should take at least one of their courses before he graduates.

On the other hand, there are those teachers who fall without hesitation into the undergraduate "blacklist." These are the ones who are to be avoided at all times, at any cost.

And the impressive thing about the matter is that it all comes about through word-of-mouth—there is not, to our knowledge, a written classification sheet in existence anywhere on the campus.

So it was with pricked-up ears that we recently read a booklet published by an anonymous group of students at the University of California. It was entitled "Guide to Courses," and included candid, classificatory comments upon the personalities and teaching abilities of foremost California pedagogues.

Sample paragraph from the pamphlet is this: "Ronald L. Olson (methodical, oldtime anthropologist)—Interesting material, old jokes, detailed memory examinations."

Another excerpt: "Herbert E. Bolton (history department chairman)—Excessively dull lectures; study the outline and you've got a pipe."

The idea, as we pointed out previously, has been prevalent, if unwritten, both here and we suppose, over the rest of the nation. Now that the Californians have led the way with a real, concrete classification of instructors, other undergraduates of other schools might take up the torch.

Any day now, we may expect to

X-Ray Machine Is Housed In Lead To Protect Workers

By BOB AMMONS

X-rays from a 200,000 volt machine, so powerful that it must be housed in special lead-lined room with walls twenty inches thick, are used to take radiographs of metal specimens in the mine and metallurgy laboratory.

To protect operators and observers from exposure to the penetrating rays of this super-machine, every major safety device known to date has been incorporated in the x-ray room, designed by Dr. Lester E. Young, assistant professor of metallurgy.

This equipment, as modern as California, might be described as "lead-lined," it is completely surrounded by lead, and is sandwiched in the thick concrete box, with a chair on top of the roof, and the 2000 pound door. All electrical connections and wires are brought under the walls and up through the floor, and are cased in lead pipes, which the rays can not pass.

The door is set two inches into the floor, and the joint is sealed by overlapping lead sheets, sunk six inches into the floor. It slides on rollers and is so constructed, that the machine will not operate if the door is open.

The operator can observe the machine through a thick glass window, twenty-five percent lead, and can control the machine by handles and switches from the outside.

Since high voltage in the air gives rise to a special vent of lead nitrous gases, a special vent of lead baffles and high powered fans draw the ozone out of the room.

The 200,000 volt, oil-cooled machine, housed in the west end of the old Wendt forge shop in the engineering quadrangle, was used this summer to x-ray test welds on the all-welded state office building in Frankfurt, and to provide a test for qualified welders. Radiographs, when developed, show dark spots, which indicate air bubbles and flaws in the weld. Twenty-four new fencing foils, purchased for the fencing team, were x-rayed and found flawless.

A $20,000 diffraction tube, especially built for the University, and a completely equipped dark-room for developing the negative are also included in the installation. The diffraction tube is used in atomic structure research and has unlimited life, while the larger 200,000 volt tube can be used only about 1000 hours.

In contrast to this modern equipment, there is on the ground floor of the Engineering quadrangle an exhibit of the first radiographs made in the South, and some of the apparatus used. These were made under the direction of Dean P. Paul Anderson and H. B. McChesnan on February 20, 1896, just five days after Professor Roentgen's memoirs were published. It is the experimental laboratory of what was then the School of Mechanical Engineering, State College of Kentucky.

The Kenrad radio company has shown interest in the work done in x-ray by the University, and has suggested the possibility of establishing a graduate research fellowship in the x-ray phases of radiotube research.

dogs never threatened to score. Meanwhile, the Cats not only knocked at the Georgia scoring door—they pounded. Three Kentucky touchdown excursions were grounded within the 3 yard line as the Georgia defense showed real bulldog tenacity.

Statistics prove that Kentucky had it over the Southerners like a tent over a circus. The Cats ripped the leather 182 yards for 16 first downs as compared to 84 yards by running and 9 first downs for Georgia. Passes were as thick as snits at a picnic with Kentucky finding vacant arms 6 times in 16 shots for 176 yards, while the Bulldogs picked up 101 yards with 6 completed aeriels in 19 tries. Still the Kentucky scoring avalanche was held off until 52 minutes of the game had been played.

However brilliant the Cats played in the closing minutes, their work for the first three quarters was as stale as undated coffee. While the defense held together in pushing back the Georgia drives the field Kentucky backs were unable to buck together to faultily and badly timed blocking.

Game Rough On Cats

It was a bruised and battered team that emerged from the game, which was as rough as a Northwoodman's beard. John Elmer, who played one of the best games in his career at tackle, returned with the initials of some lusty Bulldog carved all over his face, while Captain Joe Shepherd was limping along on legs that creaked like a rocking chair. Practically every other member of the squad who took part in the game received some sort of bruise. Kentucky was penalized 70 yards for roughing while a total of 30 yards was called against Georgia for eye-gouging, elbowing, hitting, etc.

Combs' opening kick-off was returned to the 44 by Cate and Kimsey followed with a short plunge over guard for two yards. On a reverse from Cate, Kimsey ankled around end for 20 yards and down the Kentucky 25 while he was downed by Zoeller and Shepherd. Here the Cat defense steeled and the ball was taken down after four futile pops at the line.

Kentucky Starts

Later in the first period the Kentucky offensive guns were rolled out and the march was on. Combs returned a punt 12 yards to the Kentucky 29 and then cooperated with Lehmuel to gain a first down on the 40. Dave Zoeller, in his first try at carrying the ball, slashed over left tackle for 22 yards and down to the Georgia 41. A pass to Bill McCubbun netted 12 yards and Combs and Zoeller moved the leather to the 20 with plunges through the middle. Zoeller picked up 4 yards over right tackle but two penalties pushed Kentucky back to the 47. Georgia in turn taxed to the 22 holding and Zoeller whipped a pass to Shepherd good to the 20. A drive over tackle by Combs gained to the 15 and as the quarter ended a new Kentucky team came into the game.

With Jones, Mullins and Allen alternatingly carrying the ball, the Cats moved to the 3 yard line where the surge was halted on downs. Matthews punt out to the 40 and Allen returned to the 29. Allen faked a pass and rounded left end for 8 yards and Mullins followed with 4 over the middle. On a reverse Jones moved to the 10 and Allen again added a first down with a 7 yard dip through right tackle. Mullins plunged to the one but two tries by Jones netted only one yard. Allen's last down pass was wide.

The remainder of the first half was calmer than Sunday morning but early in the third period Kentucky again threatened to score. Combs recovered Cate's fumble on the Georgia 28 to start the offensive. Two plunges by Combs over tackle netted 7 yards and Lehmuel pounded over center and lugged two Georgia tacklers with him to the 21. Zoeller swung wide around right end and stepped 11 yards before being hit by Fordham on the 10. Combs slipped and gained but one yard at right guard and Lehmuel was held for no gain. Zoeller, in two tries, found 7 yards through the middle but the Bulldogs took the ball on downs.

Then Came The Climax

Then, just when the fans had settled down for a scoreless tie, the Cats exploded. With the ball resting quietly on his own 20, Allen faked back and shot a pass to Jones on the 37. Cutting sharply to the sideline, Jones shook the crowd to their feet with a 63 yard sprint for

Calling 'Em Wild

By Joe Creason

For want of a nail, a shoe was lost; for want of a shoe, a horse was lost; for want of a horse, a rider was lost—and so on runs the old adage, ending in the loss of a kingdom. Paraphrasing this jingle for want of a scoring punch from within the 3 yard line, Kentucky almost lost its unbeaten football standing Saturday.

A Kentucky back more scoring chances against Georgia than their opportunities like a mouth full of tobacco smoke. Finally, with a finish that might have been borrowed from a Frank Merriwell adventure, Kentucky scored two last period touchdowns for 12-0 win.

But the victory was hollow because the Cats—in spots—played miserably. For instance, early in the second quarter Kentucky drove to the Georgia 3 yard line and then the attack sagged down like a tarpauling full of water and the leather was lost on downs. Eight later the cats really had their golden opportunity—and it wasn't a blonde. Ernal Allen returned a punt 12 yards to the Bulldog 29. Allen, Junior Jones and Noah Mullins moved the line back to the 10 and in a couple of plunges Jones could only gain to the one foot line and Allen's last down pass was wild.

Storm Back Again

Then again in the third quarter the Blues stormed to the Georgia 3 yard stripe only to again thumb their noses at a scoring chance. When it came to covering those last few yards—that heart-break highway that leads to the dough—Kentucky was too much like that little man who won't there.

Except for these scoring flurries by Kentucky and a futile Georgia try for a field goal in the third period, the battle had been going along about as slow as a neighborhood game of aquat tag. The 15,000 customers in Louisville's DuPont Manual stadium were all ready to see the curtains over a scoreless tie when Kentucky started to work and the fans parted company with reason.

Cats And Cats Nearly Gone

With 2 minutes remaining to be played, the Wildcats scoring fury that had been backing up all afternoon like flood water against a levee suddenly broke loose.

Allen, from his own 20, faked back, drew a head and whistled a pass with the accuracy of William Tell to Jones in the center of the field on the 27. Jones cut toward the sideline and running like a Democratic candidate in Mississippi, dashed the remaining 47 yards for a touchdown. Despite the fact that the stands were now ready for a civil straight jacket, the fireworks had just started.

Came Then The Thrills

Five passes and two plunges later Jim Fordham, who plunged like a mobile snow plow, concluded a 67 yard drive by ramming over center for the marker that unlocked the game tighter than a case of lock-jaw. Even that was but an anti-climax for there was more to come.

With a minute and a half to play chances for a Cat win seemed hopeless. But Kentucky came back like the ghost in "Maebech" after taking the leather on its own 28. Dave Zoeller whipped a pass to Jim Hardin, who gathered up the ball on the 36 and ran like a thief down the sideline before he was bounced a marker. His try for extra point was wide.

Eight plays later and Georgia had knocked the count as the crowd went frantic. Two passes, Allen to Eldridge netted 51 yards and moved the ball to the Cat 3, from which point Fordham scored in two tries. Hardin and Elmer rushed in to block the try for extra point.

A tie now seemed inevitable but Kentucky still had ace up its sleeve. Salisbury's punt went out on the Cat 28. On the next play Zoeller shot an 8 yard pass to Hardin, who breezed down the field 47 yards to the 17. Lehmuel plunged to the 14 and Zoeller whipped another pass to Hardin in the end zone. Zoeller's try for point was perfect.

Tobacco...opens Doors to Fields where People Live, Work & Achieve

Today there are about 1,000,000 cigar stores, drug stores, country and grocery stores where you can buy cigarettes in the United States. These retailers, and the jobbers who serve them, have built up a service of courtesy and convenience unmatched by any other industry catering to the American public's pleasure.

THERE ARE ANOTHER MILLION people who are engaged directly or indirectly in the transportation of cigarettes to every town, hamlet and crossroads.

IT IS ESTIMATED that there are 1,602,000 tobacco farmers raising tobacco in 20 out of the 48 states. Good tobacco is one of the hardest crops to raise and bring to market, requiring great skill and patience from seed-bed planting to harvesting and curing. The modern tobacco farmer has done well the job of constantly improving the quality of his product.

THE AVERAGE LENGTH of service of the 13,230 people working in the Chesterfield factories, storage houses, leaf-handling and re-drying plants is over 10 years. This means that every step in the making of Chesterfields, regardless of how small, is handled by people who have had 10 years of experience and ability in knowing their jobs.

TRULY TOBACCO OPENS DOORS to fields where people live, work and achieve, and Chesterfield takes pride in its ever increasing part in this great industry that is devoted entirely to the pleasure of the American public.
