Student Union Building Is Theme of ODK Dance

By JOHN ST. JOHN

Swaying couples will glide over the polished dance floor in the colored rays of a revolving spot light at the Football dance sponsored by Omicron Delta Kappa from 9 to 12 p. m. Saturday in the Alumni gymnasium.

Behind the joy revelry of the dancing couples will be the vision of a dream that nears reality—the Student Union building.

Speculation runs rampant on the campus as to just where the new building will be, what kind of architectural style will be used and most important, what will be in it.

Some say the ignoble "sinkhole" near the Law building finally will be utilized as the location of the building. Others have the "inside" dope that it will be out on the agricultural experimental farm far from the center of the present campus.

A suggestion has been made that the Administration building be torn down and that site used. Skyscrapers of the future may be built with glass and engineering students believe the campus should take a step ahead and come out with the first college building of that kind in the country.

CRIPPLED CATS TO MEET V. M. I. CADETS AT 2 P. M.

Five Second Stringers May Be in Starting Lineup Tomorrow

MURPHY IS OUT FOR REMAINDER OF YEAR

Big Blue Has Series of Six Straight Wins Over Squadron

By HENRY C. McCOWN

With several of his regulars definitely out of the game because of injuries, Coach Harry Gammage has been forced to alter his lineup considerably and probably will start several second stringers when the Wildcats meet the V. M. I. Flying Squadron on Stoll field Saturday at 2 p. m.

Although the Wildcats have been turning back the Cadets regularly since the Cincinnati game in Kentucky in 1927, and although they have been several times this season, the Cadets are expected to have a much stronger team than usual, and due to the physical condition of the Cats they probably will offer plenty of opposition.

O. B. Murphy, the Wildcats' stellar tackle received a fractured skull in the Cincinnati game. Murphy never played football again, but his physician has advised him to drop football entirely.

Tom Cassidy probably will start in the place of Bob Pritchard, regular halfback, who suffered a leg injury in the week-end game. Cassidy has shown a great deal of improvement in his kicking as well as his punting, and probably will play the greater part of the game so that Kercheval will be able to get a much-needed rest.

Reinhardt's offense has scrambled every day this week and will find their preparation for the Cadets with a light workout this afternoon.

WHY PICK ON ME?

There are two kinds of criticism, constructive and destructive—and the kind some professors hand out. Criticism gently handed out in class, polite irony or gentle sarcasm sits very well with the academic pose, but rudeness and abrupt comment upon personal habits of students is to be shunned. The Kernel organization hopes to be constructive in criticism and not argumentative. The case in mind happened a few days ago in classroom. The instructor becoming irked at the vivid expression of ninety-nine and forty-four hundredths per cent of his class, served up his face, slipped his hands in his pockets and barked at a girl on the front row. "Why do you wear those ear rings to class?" What possible difference could it make to the instructor—it did embarrass the girl. Instructors are human, students are dull, but certainly there are more subtle, more ingenious ways of motivating a class than by rudeness.

ARMISTICE DAY

Tomorrow, November 11, we celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice which brought to a close that terrible slaughter, which had lasted for four long years. We should be indeed thankful that no wars have occurred since that time. The anniversary will be celebrated, probably, by the marching of troops and a general display of military instruments. Is this in sympathy with a commemoration of a day of peace? It seems hardly fitting to display the very instruments which caused, in a large measure, the sorrow and remorse that was brought about by the World War. But although there may be difference of opinion in regard to the display of instruments of war, there is at least one common basis upon which all may agree and that is that peace should be maintained. Quite naturally, there are different views, but all people with any love for their fellow men will agree that peace is essential to the preservation of our civilization. Wars cost huge amounts, both in men and money. Money and capital can be rebuilt, but the lives of those who passed on cannot be replaced. Ten million men lost their lives in the World War and all will never agree that the cause for which they fought was not worthy of their lives. If men marched ten in a row, two seconds apart, it would take 46 days for the parade to pass. A parade of dead men it is not pleasant to think about. In regard to the money, each government of the countries which took part in that slaughter, nearly a billion dollars every four days. Think what two hundred billion dollars would do today toward ending this depression! Hospitals could be built, the sick cared for and men given jobs. No wonder there is a world depression; two hundred billion dollars cannot be replaced in the commerce of the world in such a short period as 15 years. Would it not have been better for this war never to have happened? All can agree that the answer is in the affirmative.

What cause wars? It is the lack of the principles of Christ. To this same cause may be attributed all the troubles of the world, but war, it seems, is the most flagrant violation of the principles of Christ. The result if individuals of the hostile countries could talk things over in a friendly manner before hostilities began? The world today needs a more friendly spirit towards all of its members. World cooperation and brotherhood will stop all wars, now and forever. It is a hopeful situation because the means of transportation and communication are rapidly drawing the world closer together. It is an ideal, in which all men can take part for, whether victorious or not, the goal is the same. May we celebrate Armistice Day for many years to come! It is well to remember the words of the famous German general, Von Moltke, "Every war is a national calamity, whether victorious or not." The poem of Joseph Dana Miller shows the terrors of war and the necessity for preserving peace—

And this I hate—not men, nor flag, nor race, But only War with its wild, grinning face. God strike it till its eyes be blind as night, And all its members tremble with affright! Oh, let it hear in its death agony The wall of mothers for their best-loved ones, And on its head the venom of its sons Who followed her, deluded, where its guns Had dyed the daisies red. All these I hate—and war its pangs, The lie that hides its ghastly mockery, That makes it glory out of women's tears, The toll of peasants through the burdened years, The legacy of long disease that preys On bone and body in the after days, God's curses pour Until it shrivel with its votaries And die away in its own fiery seas. Its dreadful call of murder may be heard; A thing accursed in every deed and word From blood drenched shore to shore! Yes, war is terrible, and let us think long and seriously before we break faith with those who died that peace might reign eternally. May we continue to celebrate November 11 as Armistice Day, in the truest sense of the word, for all the centuries to come.

PROHIBITION REPEAL

"When it comes to the drinking question, it is clearly indicated that Americans are less of connoisseurs and more of common-sewers." This was the jesting statement made recently by Dr. G. K. Brady of the English department, but it certainly rings true, and it probably would not be out of place, to consider it seriously.

We are all well aware of the evils that prohibition brought with it—of the way in which numerous young men and women have drunk alcohol that was hardly fit for use as a medicinal or good laquer. This of course is only one of the ill effects directly or indirectly brought about by the 18th amendment, but it is one which has directly concerned us as college students—being young, normal, human beings. There is no use pretending that the shoe doesn't fit, for practically every one of you who read this editorial have imbibed the concoction at one time or another. We believe, however, that the trend has been very decidedly away from this "good drinking" within the past two years.

Now that prohibition repeal is a certainty, it is for the college students to decide what they are going to do about it! The next step is adequate control and then it is directly up to the young people to use some good, common sense and judgment as to the use they make of liquor. Six states voted Tuesday on repeal and only three were required to erase the 18th amendment. Repeal should become a reality at least by December 6, the date of the last ratifying conventions in the states which recently voted. With the Volstead act acknowledged as a failure and scrapped, legislative bodies will engage their attention upon the formulation of regulations for the adequate control of the manufacture and sale of liquor. Upon the proper solution of liquor control depends the entire future of the temperance movement.

Considered from both a social and financial viewpoint the results of the beer bill of last April have been distinctly favorable. It is not necessary to go into any lengthy discussion concerning our viewpoint on the manner in which liquor should be controlled, but we believe that it can be brought about just as successfully as has been.

Jouett Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, advises that "whatever plan is adopted we must guard carefully against two obvious dangers. If we are to eliminate the bootlegger and the speakeasy we must not make liquor too hard to get or through excessive taxation too expensive for the average man to afford." At the same time we believe that hard liquor should be segregated from beer and wine. Study the causes of the flagrant abuses connected with the old saloon and you will discover that it was the inability to divorce beer and hard liquor which made reform impossible.

All this brings us once more to the discussion of the tastes of the modern American in regard to drink. The young person of today has never drunk anything that tasted palatable, and if he has drunk at all it has been sooty for the purpose of getting drunk. Europeans have looked on with raised eyebrows at the manner in which Americans have done this. Now that we are to have legally a good quality of drink, it would be well for the people of this country to show their intelligence by exercising some judgment in temperance and developing their tastes accordingly.

The outstanding ambition of most campuses seems to be to uncover some "dirt" on our dear friend, the Scandalier himself.

And then there was the freshman who had heard so much about The Kentucky Kernel that he determined to meet the venerable old gentleman.

One prof insists that, while he doesn't mind having his students look at their watches in class, he simply boils over when they shake them to see if they are still running.

PETITE PIECE

By LORRAINE LEPERE

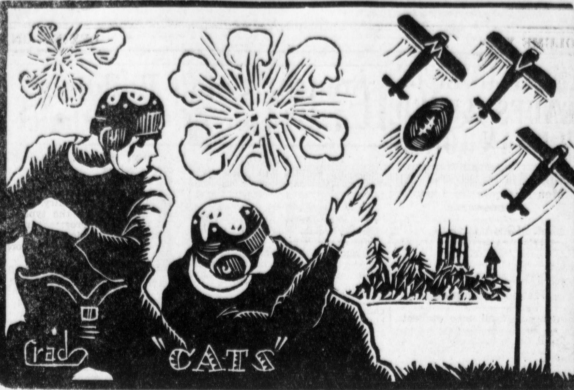

Birmingham, the Magic City, is no sleepy southern village. To the road-weary motorist, coming out of the city abruptly, it presents a million twinkling eyes in the darkness. The city lies in its own exclusive valley, with a chain of hills giving protection in an amiable manner. The highway passes before many phases of industrial activity, and the great red torch of Birmingham's famous furnace looms in one corner of the horizon. There are wide, straight streets, a post office that gleams in the sun, four fine, up-to-date hotels, several recently built tall buildings, besides Birmingham Southern college, the American Legion stadium (scene of the recent slaughter), and an exclusive residential section are strewn over the hills in a sophisticated fashion.

Saturday was what the Alabamians called a cool day; that must be relatively, if you could have seen those Wildcat suits going from khaki to a coffee brown in a hurry, you'd have said that here was warmth! The ever reliable U. K. band shone as usual. Judging from the number of times the "Bama band played the "On U. of K.", they must have derived great pleasure from the way one section solemnly rose and doffed their lids.

Saturday night, rode on the shoulder of old Bacchus himself. There was a party in every hotel, since the "Bama crowd had come from 60 miles away, and the Birmingham Southerners were ready for anything, besides the U. K. lads being especially anxious to drown their common sorrow. The clink of glasses leaked over many a transom, and the streets were full of hilarious young people who could scarcely have posed for a posture ad. I can, however, give you first-hand information that those who preferred to stay sober had a great time too. Lik the daisies after September Sunday morning, eyes blinked quizzically, heads ached, hands shook all around, and people left town. So we find ourselves again on the broad Alabama highway blowing a signal every time we pass, or a Kentucky plate, passes us. In

University Club Plans

The executive committee of the University Faculty club has made extensive plans for the year which extend various types of entertainment to the members of the organization. The House of Commons, under the chairmanship of Mrs. George Edwin Smith, has been especially instrumental in making the season a promising one.

A bridge tournament similar to the one held last year is scheduled to begin in November, and a chess tournament may also be held if sufficient interest is manifest. A schedule of Sunday afternoon teas is planned to follow each of the vesper programs to be held in Memorial hall.

In addition, a once-a-month get-together is planned for the second Saturday of each month from November to May, as shown by the following program:

- November 11—Bridge at 8 p. m.; dancing at 9 p. m.
- December 9—Bridge party.
- January 13—Bridge at 8 p. m.; dancing at 9 p. m.
- February 10—Patriotic day.
- March 10—Bridge at 8 p. m.; dancing at 9 p. m.
- April 14—All Fools' party.
- May 12—Bridge at 8 p. m.; dancing at 9 p. m.
- June 2—An outdoor party and Wiener roast.

Other possible functions are: once-a-week luncheon for those who eat at the Commons; one or two 50-cent evening dinners at the Commons, followed by a social hour in the club rooms, and a barge party on the Kentucky river next spring.

The club room has undergone several changes which will increase the enjoyment of the members greatly. The services of a full-time attendant have been secured; additional furniture has been purchased, including a small radio; and magazines and periodicals will be provided as in the past.

Every member of the University Assembly is eligible to membership in the club. Admission to all events will be by membership card.

Roamin' the Rialto

By BEN BLACK

In "Berkeley Square" which came to the Kentucky Wednesday, beauty, laughter, romance and tragedy, all are interwoven into as delicate and finely wrought picture as any of the year. It is a film as subtly haunting as "Smiling Through."

This is a costume picture, but it is a crisis-cross between eighteenth century London and up-to-the-minute modern life.

"Berkeley Square" is taken from the play of the same name by John L. Balderston. In it Leslie Howard, as Peter Standish, has his original role; Heather Angel as Helen; Valerie Taylor as Kate; Irene Brown as Lady Ann; Juliette Compton as the Duchess of Devonshire; Ferdinand Gottschalk as Mr. Throble; Samuel Hinds as the American Ambassador, and Olaf Hytten as Sir Joshua.

This film should have an especial appeal to those who believe that the good old days were the best. Peter Standish becomes an absorbent in the diary of one of his ancestors that he can think of nothing but the glorious days of the eighteenth century. Picture him returning from visiting some of his friends and suddenly finding himself the Peter Standish of one hundred and fifty years ago. He meets and talks to his own ancestors; but his ideas do not go back with him. His modern sophisticated questions and his reference to historical events that have not happened amuse the good folk of that bygone day.

He finds that he is engaged to his cousin Kate, yet he falls in love with her sister, Helen. Still he knows that he must marry Kate, for he cannot change events that have already occurred. Helen sympathizes, loves, and finally sends him back to her times.

The third feature picture of the week, "Fury of the Jungle," will be shown at the Ben All today and tomorrow. This picture, which stars Peggy Shannon, is a powerful drama of love and hate on the other side of the world. She is thrown among a motley group of outcasts, embezzlers, renegades and criminals of the worst sort with exciting results. It is corking good entertainment if you are fond of sanguinity in your pictures.

One of the most highly praised pictures of the year returned to the State yesterday for its second run, and is being shown through today. It is "This Day and Age."

The story is a shrewd and bitter hit at the seeming inability of the authorities to cope with the gangsters, built up to a powerful and hair-raising climax. Charles Bickford is magnificent as the gangster who, failing to exact tribute from an old neighborhood tailor, kills him, and then is acquitted by the law.

This so enrages high school boys who were fond of the old man, that they take up the job that the authorities have failed in. Led by Richard Cromwell, Eddie Nugent and Ben Alexander, they go after the evidences, while their companion, Judith Allen, becomes entangled with one of Bickford's henchmen.

INSURING FINE TOBACCO FOR future Lucky Strikes

Not many smokers have seen a fine tobacco plant in full bloom, so we show you this picture. Only a few of these fine plants are permitted to flower and to produce seed. These carefully selected seeds reproduce the following year the "Cream of the Crop" for your Lucky Strike, for tobacco must be grown from seed each year. This careful breeding of fine tobaccos explains why Luckies maintain the same fine, uniform quality from year to year—so round and firm and fully packed—free from loose ends.

ALWAYS the finest tobaccos
ALWAYS the finest workmanship
ALWAYS Luckies please!

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By DELMAR ADAMS

Although the Cats have taken it in the neck three times this season, and though they may drop all the rest of the games on their schedule, their card for 1934 including games with all the top notch outfits of the South. In addition to their usual opponents, the Big Blue will probably meet Auburn and Vanderbilt and some strong mid-western or eastern foe. Negotiations are being carried on with the University of Indiana and this Big Ten agreement will play in Louisville if the two schools can come to an agreement. The November 10 date on the Cats schedule is open at present and the big inter-sectional game will be played at this time.

This schedule is a mighty ambitious one for the Cats to take on, with the fine crop of freshmen coming up, the Big Blue of next year is expected to be a great improvement over this year's aggregation. Daddy Boles is still trying to get a game with some eastern school, but all the dates they have to offer are filled with Southeastern conference foes, whom the Cats still wish to meet.

Big Blue beware! Beware of upsets in the clothing of set-ups. Such a foe was Washington and Lee, and such a foe are the lowly Cadets of V. M. I. Possessed of a fleet backfield and a stalwart frontier, the Flying Squadron is a 100 per cent better than the last year's squad, who bowed to the Cats 23-0 on Stoll field. The Cats, with a team riddled by injuries suffered in the Alabama game, will do well to get an awesome respect for the invaders and give their all, even as they have done in their major games.

Two sophomore tackles, Aulick and Olish, will be starting their first time for the Big Blue tomorrow. They are rugged lads, defensive giants, but untried. Playing in the most important positions in the line, their performances will either make or break the chances of the Wildcats tomorrow. The Cats deserve a great deal of credit for their plucky play throughout the season. Langdon Hay, another reserve, will get his big chance against the Flying Squadron at the tailback position. Hay is a plucky ball carrier and gets good distance on his kicks. He may do some of the kicking and vantage of any number of seconds wins. Should two contestants wrestle on their feet for more than two minutes, the referee shall cause them to take the "on the mat" position. The referee shall designate who shall be on top. The rules state that the strangle-hold, hammer-lock, full-nelson, toe-hold, and any holds cutting off the wind shall be barred. A contestant's shoulders must be held to the mat for three seconds to count as a fall. Rules six and seven of the special rules in boxing shall also apply to wrestling.

In handball singles and doubles the entries close November 11, at 12 o'clock noon, and matches start November 14. Each organization may enter six men in each division of this sport. The entry fee shall be $1.25 for each division of the sport. Handballs must be furnished, and all games shall be two out of three to win except, the final which shall be three out of five.

A definite time has been arranged for practice periods for intramural football teams. This schedule is posted on the bulletin board in the west entrance of the Men's gymnasium, and those teams failing to practice in accordance with the schedule will be disqualified to participate in the competition games.

U.K. Catholic Club Will Meet Sunday

The Catholic club of the University will meet at 10 a. m. Sunday, November 11 in the Gold room of the Lafayette hotel. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Katie A. Driscoll, president of the National Federation of Catholic Alumnae, and Miss Hilda Glaser, Covington, secretary of that organization, which is holding a convention in Lexington on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week.

Before the speakers are introduced, a short business meeting will be held at which Joe Reister, president of the club, will preside. Miles M. Davis, permanent program chairman, will appoint five students to serve as members of the program committee for the year.

Scandal Snickerings

By "DOC"

Since I had to dodge certain individuals last week, I think I'll give them a rest this time and make more enemies.

What member of our faculty was included in the Bull session at Mt. Sterling discussing a certain "red head"—beauty—figure and cash?

Our columnist, Cameron Van Stavern Coffman, has the worst luck with the ladies—that is, getting dates for the Delta dances. Three years ago Cameron asked Tridelt Dorothy Waisitt for a date for the annual dance, and a week before the dance, she was pinned SAE.

Then year before last he asked Tridelt Justine White for a date for the dance—and a week before the dance she was pinned SAE—and still no date. Last year he thought he'd dance sororities and asked a certain Alphasigma for a date for the dance and a week before the dance she was pinned SAE. Maybe a change of technique would help you Cameron. Here's hoping; better luck this year.

A certain Alphasigma would like to know where Independent Joe Reister was Saturday night.

Lawyers fail, too....Pikap Paul Wilson has lost his heart, as well as his pin to Mary Patricia Traynor.

Amelia Carrick, Zetau pledge, is very much in love for the first time since she has been in college—and it's a Del.

Why did Kappa Ella McElroy stay here a week longer instead of going home as she had planned?

Zetau Mary Sibley was sitting in the show the other night and the man next to her dropped his hat. He leaned over to recover it, and grabbed Mary's ankle instead. "My dear, you certainly have to reduce your ankles if they are so large that they could be mistaken for a hat."

And there's the little sophomore who wears her boy friend's pledge pin (Triangle) on her slip and when the pin was in mourning she put her pin in mourning, too.

Hear and there (mostly hear): The Homecoming dance at University high was mostly alumni...Independent Virginia Robinson was the "Belle of the Brains". Epledge Alphasigma Bob Turner went out on a date and returned with a chewed up, or torn polo coat...He blamed it on the dog...Kappas are always playing pranks...Alphasigma J. Delmer "Red Demon" Adams has changed his courting place. It's now the post office...because it's cheaper...Independent Mary Louise Bradley wears the craziest hats...

KITTEN OFFENSE STOPPED BY VARSITY

After having played their last game of the season last Saturday, the Kittens have settled down to the task of rounding the varsity into shape for their last three encounters.

Although not having a perfect season, due to their loss last Saturday, the Kittens have shown the football fans of Lexington that they have the making for one of the greatest football teams in the history of the University. Coach Friebel is highly satisfied with the outcome of his proteges.

Some of the men that are now on the varsity are going to have a tough time keeping their positions next year, when such men as Johnson, Kouns, Parris, and a few others graduate from the yearling squad. It has been said by many that Johnson is the best all-round backfield man ever to matriculate at Kentucky, and that Kouns is the best blocking back ever to set foot inside of Stoll field.

University of Texas students have been employed to augment the janitorial force of that institution.

JUST ARRIVED A NEW SELECTION BELTED-BACK SUITS

Our first shipment of belted-back suits was a quick "sell-out". The second shipment went the same way. Now we're tried to lay in an adequate supply, but we're afraid they won't last long. Why? Because they're good-looking Harris tweeds, rugged homespun, and smart gun club checks. Better still, they're tailored with the popular Bi-Swing shoulder, assuring unusual ease and comfort. First come, first served, Gentlemen!
