SOVIET BUDGET UPPEP

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(INS)—A 14 billion rouble defense budget—more than double for that, for 1935—is certain to be approved by the Soviet Central Executive committee, now meeting in Moscow, the Daily Mail correspondent reports today.

'NO CUTS' SAYS TERRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(INS)—"No salary cuts and therefore no holdouts" is the latest slogan of Bill Terry, manager of the New York Yankees, in his fight to keep the salaries of a couple of the players one after a bad year and had dissatisfied men on my hands for the first time of the year," says Bill today.

FORTUNE IS RATED

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Jan. 13.—(INS)—Beneficiaries of the compromise settlement of the $20,000,000 tobacco fortune of the late Zachary Smith Reynolds, young sportsman aviator who was shot to death here the morning of July 6, 1932, will go before the circuit court at Baltimore early in February and receive approval of division of the estate as proposed by the brothers and sisters of Reynolds and ordered by the North Carolina Supreme Court.

LINER CREW'S BODIES SOUGHT

AUSTORIA, Ore., Jan. 13.—(INS)—Search for bodies of the crew of the shipwrecked freighter Yonah was begun by Coast Guardsmen today as pounding seas, which have lashed the North Pacific Coast for the past two days, calmed. Thirty-four men, the entire crew of the States Line freighter, perished when the 416-foot vessel, bound for San Francisco from this port, was hurled upon treacherous Peninsula river by mountainous seas early yesterday.

KIPLING UNDER KNIFE

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(INS)—Rudyard Kipling, famous author of Indian barrack-room, was taken suddenly ill during the night and underwent an emergency operation at a Middlesex hospital here "for some form of gastric trouble," it was stated by a hospital official yesterday.

READY FOR FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(INS)—House leaders today urged themselves for a series of fights over the supreme court, inferring a possibility of a huge new tax bill casting a disturbing shadow over the court, and perhaps to pave the way for a constitutional amendment was slated to get underway during the week.

COURT WORRIES ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(INS)—The Roosevelt administration again looked anxiously toward the supreme court's next term of justice today. The court, in its decisions, may hand down rulings on constitutionality of the Tennessee valley authority, and decide whether the government will have to pay back over $1,000,000,000 in processing taxes.

MAY STRENGTHEN NAVY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(INS)—Detailed plans for the strengthening of America's defenses in the Pacific have been worked out by the Navy department. This was learned here today as both naval and state department officials privately announced they had reached an agreement between the two departments in view of Japan's adamant demand for the right to possess a navy fully as powerful as either the American or British fleets.

IS VICTIM OF PICKETTERS

CENTRAL CITY, Ky., Jan. 13.—(INS)—County officers today started an investigation of the mysterious death yesterday of a young man, 23 years old, Graham, shot in the head when a picket army marched on the Holt Coal Company mine, south of here. Mine officials reported that the mob shot at fixtures and trees, removing one which was killed by a stray shot. The picketers carried off his body and later left it at his home.

MORE POLITICS

In the past the campus politicians have confined their activities more or less to the election of officers, but they have recently invaded the military department to such an extent that an investigation has been made by the staff.

It seems that a group of persons on the campus were not in favor of continuing the policy of giving the sorority which sold the most tickets to the Cadet Hops the privilege of nominating the Military Ball Queen. The logical procedure would have been to lodge a complaint with the military department and allow that staff to cooperate with the situation.

Instead, they took the matter in their own hands and agreed to boycott the Cadet Hop, thereby causing a financial loss to the organization which sponsored the dance. This would, of course, cause the organization to abandon the idea of having more Cadet Hops and thereby eliminate the original plan of nominating the queen.

The plot was successful to the extent that the desired financial loss was suffered by the organization, but unforeseen difficulties confronted the conspirators. Lieutenant-Colonel Brewer had heard of the boycott and immediately began an investigation. At present questionnaires have been submitted to members of the advanced course in the department, in an attempt to obtain the sentiments of the majority of the students concerning the present conditions.

When the results of the questionnaire are complete, the military departmental staff will take such action as it deems proper. Like the Student Council, the department does not wish to take the right of self-government from the students, but when the students become incapable of conducting their affairs wisely, it is time for higher authority to take control of the situation.

SANTA CLAUS, MASTER SALESMAN

The master salesman of them all is Santa Claus. Year after year the old gentleman has demonstrated his ability to move goods off the shelves and into the hands of happy and well-pleased customers.

Christmas injects a powerful stimulus into business and provides a new sentiment for buying and selling, transforming the routine business of bartering into a super-occasion.

It is a long cry from the Three Wise Men who bore gifts across the desert to a child and the busy streets of thousands of cities throughout the world, but it is symbolic of the gifts borne by the Three Wise Men that we think of Christmas in terms of gifts today.

Santa Claus is a merry old elf borrowed from Germanic legends, but he has been transmuted through the ages to fit perfectly with the Christian scene despite the fact he evolved from a pagan belief.

It is interesting to reflect upon the manner in which so wholly dissociated faiths have contributed in a material way to the business done by Mr. Smith during the month of December in a little notion shop down the street . . . or to swell the receipts of the largest stores in New York or Chicago.

If the same enthusiastic relationship between buyer and seller as is exhibited at Christmas time could be maintained throughout the rest of the year, world economic problems would be solved once and for all time.—Daily Reporter, Spencer Iowa.

Carling at the top of the masthead, Professor Pommeroy pulled famous "April Fool" joke on students, Martha Puget was made new proxy of W. G. C. A. University women raised Old Ode at a banquet, Xavier won the high school speech tournament. . . .

Let me assure the Kernel and the military gentlemen that in spite of anything they or the University administration may do, the I. D. I. will continue its work on the campus, and the radical movement . . .

Dear Fellow Editor: As one who has followed with interest the contents of your paper I should like to take the opportunity to speak of the local I. D. chapter in the December 17 issue entitled "How to Misuse One's Rights."

STUDENT OPINION

Dear Editor: I have no desire to engage in a personal and profitless controversy in the columns of your paper; indeed, I can scarcely conceive of anything which will travel so far down there as the postage stamps that these fellows can't take kidding.

Most of this opposition has apparently been based upon the fact that the I. D. are Communists. We are not. There is a great and significant difference between Communism and the cooperative commonwealth which we advocate. . . .

The quest for economic democracy is not a new one in America. From the days of Jefferson, men have sought to free themselves from the domination of vested interests of one kind or another.

Since that day more than a century has passed. The vast technological advances which have occurred have not changed the ideal for so back to the master class struggle took the form of a fight for economic individualism. . . .

Light and Day

And the music goes 'round and 'round—but listen to the jazz come out. . . . Most of the content of this column was supposed to appear in last Friday's KERNEL, but evidently the air mail service between New York and Lexington is a bit slow. . . .

Joe Hagan threw a right at Ike Klein—the only thing he threw all night that landed. . . . Hagan did it a bunch all evening, and after the game he claimed that they had laid on the baskets and 'voted' for him; they put the lid over the basket. . . .

When the team arrived in New York they immediately went to a Y. M. C. A. for a short workout and to have pictures taken. . . . A total of 79 pictures were taken, but only about a third of those were published. . . .

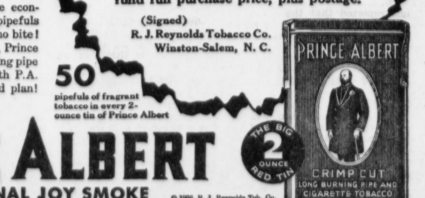

Visited the Franco Casino Tuesday night and heard Jack Denny and Carl Hoff do their stuff. . . . Denny is good, but Hoff seems to be a bit over-rated. . . .

It is indeed a sorry state of affairs when an editor looks with "smug satisfaction" that a group seriously interested in social betterment cannot survive long on his paying a compliment to your university. . . .

Alumni News

ROBERT K. SALYERS, Secretary

By CHARLES T. HERTZSCH In the year 1926-27, all students then enrolled whose parents were alumni of the University of Kentucky were invited to the President's home, and an organization known as the Alma Magna Mater club was formed.

The club has a membership this year of about 350 and at its December meeting with Mrs. McVey the following information was obtained. Miss Jane Allen Webb, president of Alma Magna Mater, is interested in getting in touch with all members who did not attend the meeting. Her address is 1713 S. Lime, phone number 3175X. The Alumni Office is anxious to have information about all former students who are relatives of students now enrolled.

It was a great holiday but it wound up rather unhappily, watching Kentucky lose to N. Y. U.'s Violets in Madison Square Garden. Since a large number of the local customers have questioned us about the battle since we came back, it may not be out of the way to explain the situation in some detail.

First of all, contrary to the belief of many of the local fans, the Wildcats were not at all outclassed and the final score of 41-28 was not truly indicative of the type of ball game that was staged. It was only in the final few minutes that the New Yorkers definitely drew away from Kentucky and until then the issue was always a doubtful one.

Consider too, in losing to New York University, the Cats dropped the verdict to one of the best clubs in the nation, if not the finest. That surely is nothing to feel overly downhearted about.

We will say here, however, that the Wildcats did not give their top performance. They were a little off color throughout the contest but might account for the slight let-down in various ways.

It was a long trip to New York to start with, and of course, the garden court was unfamiliar to most of the boys. Naturally, the players were nervous, showing here more than 18,000 people in a game that they wanted to win probably more than any other on the schedule. The court at the Garden is equipped with transparent glass bankboards which offer a difficult target to a team unused to them.

Then, too, there was Metropolitan officiating to contend with. Johnny Murray, the same official who caused the storm of protest last year, again worked the game, this time along with Fred Lathrop, all fairness to Murray, it should be explained that he was not deliberately calling errors on the Kentuckians but merely working the game as any New York referee would have done.

However, with Murray helping to call the contest, the Wildcats worked under a mental handicap. The boys were always a little fearful of working their set-up plays, afraid to carry out their blocking assignments and moved around generally as if under a shadow of doubt. The screening, or block plays, are the particular plays which New York officials evidently are set against. And as Kentucky's offense is built around this type of play, the Cats were at somewhat of a loss as to what to do.

Kentucky's team tried hard all the time, from start to finish, they should be no doubt of that. Last Wednesday night, though, the Violets were at the peak of their season's form, according to one New York writer who has watched them in every game. They worked well together and practically every shot they threw at the hoop was a counter. Under perfect conditions they would have been very difficult to down, as we have pointed out, the existing conditions were not always perfect.

In the foregoing, we have not been attempting to make any excuses for the Cats failure to beat N. Y. U. We've tried to draw the picture, you draw the conclusions.

Reports emanating from Cincinnati during the past few days hold out no hope for the seemingly hapless Kentucky basketball team which opposes Xavier University's Musketeers in the Queen City tonight.

If we are to believe what we hear, the Musketeers will wallop Coach Rupp's club with plenty to spare this evening at Xavier Fieldhouse. Before the Cat defeat in New York there was little said about this game in Cincinnati but since that affair someone has apparently taken heart enough to predict an Xavier victory by a considerable margin.

The Musketeers have a veteran combination and have always been a tough foe so tonight should be no exception. On their own court and confident now that they finally have the edge on Kentucky, Coach Clem Crowe's cagers will furnish the Blue with a stern test. However, there is no reason why Xavier should overwhelm the Wildcats or, in fact, even beat them. Coming away from a heart-breaking defeat, Kentucky should be catching the Muskies on the rebound. If the Cats feel badly about their recent downfall, and they probably do, they should take out all their bitterness on Xavier tonight and in a measure make up for their previous misfortune.

This may be Xavier's opportunity to turn the tables on our representatives but we've heard so many cries of "Wo! Wo!" from the Cincinnati "experts" that we agree with the Missouri native and beg to be shown.

Some left-over notes from Manhattan... Richards Vidmer, one of the top Gotham sportsmen, came over to the hotel to interview "Red" Hagan about the relative amount of physical endurance required to play football as contrasted with basketball... Coach Rupp told Vidmer before hand that Hagan might "set tough" but Red crossed him up by being the acme of politeness... it was reported that Big Jim Dofschy was in a guile at a birthday party after the battle... "Duke" Ellington saw the night spots after the game... going only to the classiest places... he has a number of souvenirs to show for his trip... Warfield DeLoach, J. Rice Walker and Bruce Davis all purchased derbies while in the City... someone said they were bought at a fire sale... Ralph Carlisle, who was the individual standout of the game... had the biggest time on the trip home... getting a whole
