STUDENT COUNCIL STRIKE SESSION VIOLATES ETHICS

Meeting in secret session, the Men's Student Council yesterday violated the confidence of the student body of the University of Kentucky.

Such an unethical, flagrant, and open contempt for student privileges and rights has never before been brought to the attention of The Kernel in the history of the University.

Yesterday that privilege was denied.

Although the constitution provides that its provisions may be amended by a three-fourths favorable vote of the council, no such amendment was proposed yesterday.

Questioned as to his reasons for refusing admission to The Kernel's agent, Ewing intimated that "The Council had business to attend to which they did not intend to be let out."

Dean Melcher: I am surprised to learn that a representative of The Kernel was excluded from the meeting of the Student council this afternoon.

Kampus Kernels

Contrary to unfounded campus rumors, the annual Pan-Hellenic ball will not be held Friday, January 13.

The social service committee of the Y. W. C. A. will meet at 4:00 p. m. Tuesday, January 10, in the room of the Administration building.

All members of Strollers are requested to attend an important meeting of the organization at 8 p. m. Tuesday, January 10, in the little theater in White Hall.

Stuky Circle will meet this afternoon in the basement of the Alumni gymnasium. All members are urged to be present.

The fact that Mr. Ericourt is young and a lover of the modern is one of the best authorities on the subject, gave the audience one of the best interpretations of this style of music to be had.

Daniel Ericourt, Cincinnati Artist, Is Vesper's Guest

Pianist's Program Elicits High Praise From Large Audience

Daniel Ericourt, prominent pianist of Cincinnati, was the guest-artist at the vesper program in the Memorial Hall Sunday afternoon, and gave the music lovers of Lexington one of the most delightful programs ever presented in Memorial Hall.

All of the selections were played in the smooth, flowing style which characterizes a true artist. Regardless of how difficult the passage being played, the audience was never aware of the fact, for the technique of Mr. Ericourt, combined with his most unusual touch, gave the music "choppy" or that it was being "chopped hard."

It was difficult to say just what number was the highlight of this musical program. The program was exceedingly well-arranged, being divided into three distinct sections, each of which was an entirely different type of music.

Mr. Ericourt's interpretation of Chopin and Debussy is excellent. Chopin and Debussy are excellent composers to have a vivid relationship with the artists.

Two modern selections appeared in the final third of the program, one of which was Mr. Ericourt's own interpretation of Havel's "The Fire Dance," and the other was Debussy's "Fire Dance."

JUNIOR WEEK SET FOR APRIL 13-15

Kentucky High School Music Festival Will Be Eighth Annual Meeting at University

32 BANDS ARE EXPECTED

With the purpose that of stimulating interest in music in the high schools of the state and in raising the standard of performance the Kentucky High School Music Festival will be held at the University April 13 to 15.

This will be the eighth annual Music festival sponsored by the University and is part of the program for High School Week at the University at which time contests in debate, oratory, and declamation are held.

The festival, which was held in March last year and approximately 32 high school and Junior High school bands completed for honors in the band contest. A total of almost 2,000 children participated in the general High School Week program.

The festival, which is sponsored by the department of University extension at the University in cooperation with the department of Music at the University, and the National Society for the Advancement of Music, has inaugurated several new features for the 1933 festival, which include contests for Junior High bands, orchestras and choruses; B. A. B. (Soprano, alto, bass) choruses; contests for woodwind ensembles; brass ensembles, and vocal soloists.

It is the wish of those responsible for the festival to work always for a more progressive program; educational development is the underlying principle of these events and the festival is an educational event, rather than a strictly competitive one. In order more adequately to meet the needs of the participants, consideration from one required test selection to the choice of one of three numbers in one or two events, the one test selection will be used as formerly, but in all other cases the number of tests will be increased from among the three numbers listed.

COUNCIL REPORT IS INCOMPLETE

Committee Unable To Give Full Information on Grapevine Telegrams Reported in Operation

The committee appointed by President Frank L. McVey to investigate the grapevine telegram reported in operation was unable to make a report, according to a statement made by Dean Edward West chairman of the committee.

The appointment of the committee was announced by Doctor McVey at the December convocation of the University at which time this was a change suggested by a protesting committee.

Following the appointment of the committee, headed by Dean West, persons having suggestions or criticisms were invited to confer with the committee. Whether the invitation accepted by any person or persons could not be ascertained.

During the vacation period, a Cincinnati paper reported that a legislative investigation into the athletic affairs of the University was in the office. Authority for this statement was not named and the paper is quoted as saying that the investigation extends to the ears of their political writer via "grapevine telegraph."

SOUTH CAROLINA TO BE 'CAT FOE IN GAME TONIGHT

Gamecocks Are Fast, Rungy Crew of Former High School Stars

POLICE WILL CURB SMOKING NOISANCE Wildcats Are Pitted Against Team Who Twice Won Scholastic Title

By DELMAR ADAMS Having returned from a difficult trip to Omaha, where they scored an even break with the strong Creighton Bluejays, champions of the West, the University of Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp's Wildcat team will meet the South Carolina team tonight in the Alumni gymnasium.

The Cats will be playing their home game in their disastrous defeat by the Ohio State broncos. Their even break against Creighton stands as their greatest team even with their loss to the Ohioans. Only the presence of a giant center in the Creighton team kept them from annexing two games.

Drastic steps will be taken by Lexington police and firemen in order to stop smoking in the university city stadium. This was announced by Chief Henry of the Lexington fire department when questioned yesterday afternoon.

"We have received orders," Chief Henry announced, "to stop all smoking in the gymnasium. It is against state laws as well as city regulations. We have violators of the law will be punished if they insist on violating state laws. The game to be played tonight."

Orders were issued to the authorities by the Lexington city manager and in addition the state fire department has communique Lexington firemen and issued orders to stop the practice; both police and firemen will be on hand to assist in the enforcement.

In addition to the ultimatum issued by the city authorities Coach Rupp has also issued a plea to stop smoking. According to a well informed source, this has difficulty in playing when the air is full of tobacco fumes. Moreover, the presence of the stadium and spectators find it difficult to follow play closely.

Very little is known of the progress of the Gamecocks except that they have a rungy aggregation. Expansion of the team at the Athens, Texas High school team, which twice won the National High School championship, the boys from Athens are fast, rungy and are touted to be fully as good as the Lexington team.

THE SEEING EYE
A curve in the road and a hillside
Clear cut against the sky,
A tall tree tossed against the heavens,
And a white cloud riding high;
Ten men went along that road
And all but one went by.

sky
With a poet's mind and eye
And he put it down on canvas
For the other nine to buy.

Drinking Bout Story Results In Ed's Suspension
Editorial Board of McGill Paper Resigns as Protest Move

The entire managing board and all associate editors of the daily newspaper at McGill University in Montreal, Canada, have resigned as a protest against the action of the student council of that school in suspending News Editor Ernest Crown.

The cause of the suspension was a new story entitled "Beer Infuses Students with Care-Free Jollity." The story reported the actions of a group of students who went to visit a Montreal brewery. The beer visit was plentiful and after the visit the students were shown into the barroom where the facilities were reported to be excellent.

The day after this story was printed in the issue of the paper in which it appeared was tacked on the bulletin board with the following notice: "No more publicity on beer drinking students."

The student council at its last meeting decided that the person responsible for the story should be suspended for the college year. Inasmuch as News Editor Crown had read the story before it was sent to the printer, it was decided to lift the responsibility from the reporter.

The sentiment of the student leaders is that the student council is making a mountain out of a molehill. In an editorial the resigning staff speaks of the story as being "at its worst, factless, but essentially truthful." This protest is based on the fact that the men suspended and worked for four years in the editorial office.

Psychologists Find School Work Causes Majority of Worries
Lafayette, Ind.—A survey of the things which cause students to worry was made in the elementary psychology classes of the University in 1932. The purpose of the study was to discover what particular items interfered with the students in their preparation of assignments. At that time it was found that the predominant source of worry was school work. Fifty-six per cent of all students gave this as a cause of worry. The next most serious distraction at that time was money matters. This constituted a disturbing factor for 40 per cent of the students involved. Other factors checked as causes of worry were family income, 21 per cent; social affairs 12 per cent; love affairs 12 per cent; religious matters, 5 per cent.

CAVE "GOLD" IS BRASS
Two specimens of what was thought to be gold were sent to Doctor McFarland of the Geology department from a cave in Green county. It was not stated from which cave these specimens came. The two specimens turned out to be fool's gold. Many specimens of supposedly, and hoped to be, sold up to this year have been nothing but fool's gold.

At the University of Rochester all graduates of the class of 1932 who have been unable to secure employment are permitted to return to the institution and study for their master's or doctor's degree without charge.

THEY'RE MILD—
THEY TASTE BETTER

—and I like CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes. Every CHESTERFIELD that I get is well-filled, and I feel like I am getting my money's worth—that there is no short measure about it.

To me, they are mild—that is, they don't seem to be strong; and there is certainly no bite, so far as I can tell.

To me, they taste better and they have a pleasing aroma.

I like CHESTERFIELDS. They satisfy me.

A 'Student Prince' at L. S. U. Is Literally a Student Prince

A "student prince," in the real sense of the word, strolls back and forth, to and from classes at L. S. U. He's a "prince of a fellow" too, this Abdul Ghani from the province of Aphianistan in India. His father, at present, is an exiled king far in the depths of a thick jungle. The exiled king has been confined in Abdul, and has therefore sent him to America to be educated. Later, when he has completed his master's degree in chemical engineering he expects to return to his native land to assist his father in freeing his people.

"Won't you come up to my room?" he asked in a very friendly tone. "We might talk much better there." He led the way up a narrow flight of stairs, and opened a door which revealed a neat, modernistic little apartment. A life-like pencil sketch of a professor's little son was nearly finished and lay on Ghani's dresser. "No, I really don't draw..." he explained, "just a pastime. Every one likes to do something in his spare moments and I like to sketch faces."

Courteously, he offered his best chair to his guest, and sat down after taking out a package of American-made cigarettes. "I learned to smoke long before I came here to school. We are all great smokers at home. In India I smoke a tube fastened to the end of a roll of tobacco much like you cigars. This smoke," he explained, "is drawn through a bottle of ice water and gives a most delightful sensation. I suppose people around here would think this very strange—would they not?"

Abdul Ghani says that L. S. U. co-eds as a whole are "very pretty" creatures. People are always talking him about the "barrens" found in places in India. "This is absurd," he protested. "For only the lower classes do this sort of thing. It is true that it is lawful, but my father has only one wife, my mother. My father wants me to wait until I become 30 years of age before I marry. I think I will take his advice, and have a 'one-woman harm,' which I have in my operations. "Sports?" he repeated. "I'm fond of tennis and swimming. I'm doing pretty hard time understanding your American game of football last year, but now I find it most interesting." He said that while he stayed in England for two years, he saw an occasional football game in the movies. "The Englishman only laughs at them and thinks they are very funny," he said.

Ghani is a calm, easy speaker. He uses correct English with a natural foreign accent. "I get along all right until the boys here begin to speak their 'slang,' then I get lost. You Americans, however, are fortunate far from the formality of the Englishman. "Ghani says that his father will send his younger brother over to America and to L. S. U. next year. He is in no native cage, but he is anxious to join his brother. "I should be very glad to speak my mind, but I am not so good at speaking in English," he said. He calls his tongue "Pusti" which, as he explained, "is a mixture of Arabic and Persian. "The boys here, as a rule, are somewhat of a one track mind," he asserted. "On the one hand, they are interested in the dust of summer, and if I didn't come from a land of crocodiles and polar bears. "This may be interesting to you," he said smilingly as he held up a pair of blue bed-room slippers. "William Babo, Babo, Leas, and I are to be a pair of Arabic shoes. "Of course," he explained that the shoes had stood the dust of summer, and the snow of winter. The shoes themselves had a distinct twist upward at the end that gave them that "story book" effect.

"I like to write stories," he announced, "but am not so good at story telling. Already I have had five of my stories published in Indiana in my native country, but most of the people there care little for such reading, so this, of course, is of little interest to me. "This may be interesting to you," he said smilingly as he held up a pair of blue bed-room slippers. "William Babo, Babo, Leas, and I are to be a pair of Arabic shoes. "Of course," he explained that the shoes had stood the dust of summer, and the snow of winter. The shoes themselves had a distinct twist upward at the end that gave them that "story book" effect.

Council Star Session Violate Ethics Code

Russel Gray, senior, College of Engineering: The Council was sworn to secrecy concerning the topic of discussion. I was there during the entire session and no mention was made of expelling the Kernel representative. The action was unauthorized and unfair.

Robert Reed, senior, College of Agriculture: It didn't make any difference to me, but I don't see why the Kernel representative should not have been there. James Boddie, junior, College of Arts and Sciences: I think the Kernel representative had the right to be there.

James Curtis, sophomore, College of Commerce: The matter to be discussed was of a very delicate nature. Persons involved might have been hurt had the news been released. He is sorry the incident occurred.

Members of the council not present at yesterday's meeting were William Babo, Babo, Leas, and Howard Smathers. Other members could not be reached for statements. The Kernel does not deny that the Council has the right to keep secret certain proceedings. The advisability of publishing all council discussions is most debatable. But the Kernel does deny the right of the Council to exclude it from its meetings however "delicate" the nature of its proceedings. As the agent of the student body The Kernel feels that its representative must be present in order to fulfill its maintenance of student rights. Never yet has the Kernel violated a Council confidence.

Every now and then, in the course of a man's life he develops an attack of indolence, a recurrence of inability, and a lack of any sort of inspiration. From such maladies I suffer; from such indispositions Gilbert Kingsbury, our noteworthy news editor, Saksy president, and friend, does not suffer. After a brief, but painful, interlude at the typewriter I gave up. Good old "GI" was consulting me and offered to do what he could for me. Now I leave it up to you—did he do anything for me?

By GILBERT KINGSBURY

It is not generally known, but the date Centre secured on Pittsburgh 1933 grad schedule was offered to Kentucky. Due to previous arrangements the athletic department was forced to pass up the game.

Centre, in an estimation, has contracted something that resembles a suicide schedule. Although Kentucky students are supposed to hate events that smacks of the Gold and White we can't help but wish the Danville school the best of luck in the 1933 undertaking. If we continue to remain weak some one will accuse us of becoming a pacifist.

Students hauling from Greater Cincinnati are afraid to go home since the recent rash of the Ohio State Buckeyes. Holiday ball sessions rated the 'Cats the best in the country. Unbeatable, and invincible were among the adjectives tacked on the Kentucky quintet's name before the use of last week. One ed voiced the hope that by Easter the drug store cowboys will have forgotten the strong arm methods of Columbus boys.

Although the University of Cincinnati football game of next season is believed by Wildcat fans to be more or less of a breather for the Big Blue U. fans, it is still pinning to lick their lips in anticipation of the meeting between the two schools. Queen city fans believe that the game should be a merry battle due to the fact that the Cincinnati school has achieved a good record during the past two seasons. What about the teams they play is our query?

Duke University which has been leading the way for southern universities since the acquisitions of the tobacco money, is showing other schools the proper way to conduct their publicity operations. According to the best information, one entire floor of a spacious building is devoted to the organization of the Durham institution.

Northern university publicity departments point to the number of all-American football players from that particular school as being indicative of their department's efficiency. And Capone is in Atlanta for working his racket!

South Carolina is coming to the University tonight with a group of Athens, Texas, players on the team. According to advance dope these same boys won the national high school championship a couple of years back. All of which reminds us that Eastern Texas' Gamble had an imposing collection of Carr Creekers who failed to carry much weight in collegiate basketball circles, a few years back.

Although Coach Rupp loses four or five of his regulars at the close of the current basketball season, the Big Blue is expected to put another excellent five on the floor next year. With such boys as Lawrence, Tucker, and this year's fresh in reserve, the Ruppmen should make their presence felt when the next season rolls around.

Trackmen reported yesterday for equipment. It is generally believed that Coach Shively will add another good group of cindermen. Captain Howard Baker is expected to show his usual form as a distance man and the field events should be well cared for. The absence of the one-two combination of Kelly and Hooper in the century dash will be missed, however.

Kentucky basketballers are rivaling the Notre Dame Ramblers in the number of long distant jaunts. Chicago, Omaha, and now several trips to the far south are next on the program of the net squad. What we would like to see is a trip to Columbus in order to wreak vengeance on the Bucks. We believe they could do it.

South Carolina Is 'Cat Foe Tonight'

(Continued from Page One) several games this season with members of both their own conference, the Southern, and members of the new southern group, the Big 12. They have beaten Tennessee and Sewanee and lost to Vandy by three points, but only after two overtime periods.

Coch Rupp and the team arrived in Lexington from Omaha, at 10:35 a. m. Monday via the Louisville and Nashville railroad and Cincinnati. A light drill was given the Blue and White basketballers yesterday afternoon in which Rupp gave the team his diagnosis of their performance in the Creighton games and tried to correct the errors they displayed.

The most encouraging feature of their two game stand in Omaha was the work of "Little" Bill Davis at guard who teamed up with Ellis Johnson to constantly threaten the opposition. His work in all the games this year has marked him as nearly the equal of the great Ellis Johnson his running mate at guard. Coach Rupp will probably stick to his usual lineup of DeDeboay and Darby, forwards; Sale, center; and Johnson and Davis, guards. But George Yates may replace the "Aggie" Sale at the center position for a time and Howard Kremer may get the call over Darby at forward but it is unlikely they will start the game.

McVey Appeals To U. K. Alumni

(Continued from Page One) tucky to make a new year's resolution of a two fold character: first, to learn as much as they can about the university, and second, to talk it wherever they can. President McVey said that any reports that the University of Kentucky would close could be emphatically denied. The board of trustees has the sole authority to make that announcement and it is the firm purpose of the board of trustees to keep the University of Kentucky going.

President McVey gave a brief report that the University of Kentucky student attendance at the University of Kentucky. He said that the alumni could help the University in its present state if they would give their encouragement and support to it. In concluding his talk, President McVey stated that, with the help and encouragement of the alumni, the University of Kentucky will come through these years of difficulty with flying colors, and more important, a sense of its value and worth to the state will be firmly established.
