AP Writer Gives Talk On Russia

By RONNIE BUTLER

Eddy Gilmore, former Associated Press bureau chief in Moscow, is one of the few members of the free press who can give an accurate picture of life behind the Iron Curtain.

Speaking before an informal gathering of Journalism majors Monday afternoon, the native Alabamian, who has spent the past 11 years covering the Kremlin, went over subjects of most interest to the average American.

First, the chances of war, Gilmore believes, are not too great.

Second, the transition of power from the secret police to recently elected Laurent Beria to Russian army-backed Georgi Malenkov has aided the chances for peace.

Third, the Russian people do not hate Americans.

Fourth, members of the Russian intelligentsia do not believe the propaganda issued by the Soviet regime.

Looking For Depression
Soviet leaders, Gilmore said, are speaking of the chances of war, are operating on the theory that someday the United States will emerge from an economic depression serious enough to give them a comparatively easy victory against the free nations.

In connection with this, Gilmore said that most of the Russians probably do not believe in the propaganda about the United States which originates, they will say, from within the Iron Curtain.

Their main line of propaganda now, one designed to keep the Russian people in a state of mind to accept all-out warfare, is that the United States and other free nations are encircling the Soviet Union with air bases, he said.

However, the correspondent said, until the Russians see definite signs of an economic relapse in the United States, the chances for war are small.

Needed Red Army Aid
Terminating the transition of power from the hands of Laurent Beria to Georgi Malenkov as "most significant," Gilmore said that Malenkov tried to secure aid from the Russian Army. To accomplish this, he continued, Malenkov passed an unbranded George Washington Medal to hands to those of Army leaders.

This, he explained, may be the sign of a beginning disintegration of power in the top echelons of the Soviet regime.

In answer to a query concerning Beria's trial, Gilmore said that it was entirely possible that Beria was executed immediately after his arrest, and that the "trials" may have been invented to explain his disappearance.

Members of the Russian intelligentsia, Gilmore said, do not hate the United States or Americans. He said that, in his many years of association with various Russians, he had never heard an impudent comment made about his political tenets.

As far as actual propaganda within the Soviet Union is concerned, Gilmore said, many of the Russian people completely ignore it. In fact, he said, he said, the peasants have little time to worry about propaganda of any kind, and they have the day-to-day toil they engage in.

On the other hand, he said, the

Phi Beta, Phi Mu To Present Choir

The St. Olaf Choir, of Northfield, Minn., will present a program of sacred and secular music at 8 p.m., Feb. 2, in the Henry Clay Auditorium. The program is sponsored by Phi Beta and Phi Mu Alpha, professional music fraternities.

The St. Olaf Choir is composed of 60 male and female voices under the direction of Olaf C. Christensen. Members of the choir are students at St. Olaf College, in Northfield, Minn. St. Olaf is a Lutheran college and has produced choirs that have made themselves known internationally for more than 80 years.

The choir was organized in 1903 by Dr. F. Melius Christensen and has helped spread the popularity of "A capella" singing throughout the country. The group has appeared in churches and concert halls throughout the country and has made two tours abroad.

The choir is continually acclaimed by critics for performing the best in choral literature with the highest degree of professional artistry.

Three members of the University faculty who have attended the college are Dr. Victor Portmann, school of Journalism, Dr. Robert C. Lumde, of the History Department, and Dr. Herbert Stevenson, of the College of Education.

Reservations for the concert may be obtained through Barbara Weener or Albert Asch in the University Music Department. Admission is one dollar.

Fraternities Announce Keys' Queen Nominees

Candidates for the "Queen of Hearts," sponsor of the Valentine Dance to be held Feb. 12 by Keys, sophomore men's fraternity, have been announced by 17 fraternities.

Keys' President Paul Egnum said that the dance will be held from 8 to 12 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

The "Queen of Hearts" will be selected by vote of persons attending the dance. Ballot boxes designated with each candidate's name and picture will be placed at the entrance of the ballroom.

A trophy will be presented to the winning candidate. The two runner-up queen candidates of the balloting will be designated as the queen's attendants.

Hazelwood, Chi Omega, sponsored by the Sigma Nu's, was last year's Keys' Valentine Queen. Music for the dance will be furnished by Clyde Trask and his orchestra. Tickets may be purchased from members before the dance for $2.50 a couple, admission will be $3 a couple the night of the dance.

Special tables for independents and for individual fraternities will be set up for the dance. Candidates and their sponsors are Catherine Shelburn, Phi Delta Theta; Rose Gayle Waterfield, Delta Tau Delta; Carolyn Cunningham, Alpha Tau Omega; Sophia Burgin, Tau Kappa Epsilon; Jean Skinner, Sigma Nu; Gia Nicholson, Phi Sigma Phi; Margaret Ford, Kappa Sigma; Sally Patton, Lambda Chi Alpha.

Honorary Offers Speech Contest

Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensic honorary, will sponsor its annual intramural speech contest at 4 p.m., Feb. 19, in the Goussard Theater.

The contest, which will be open to all University students, will be the subject of "How can we best improve the University of Kentucky?" Each speech will be limited to eight minutes.

Entrance deadline for the contest is Feb. 15. Applications will be accepted by Dr. Gifford Elyton in Room 137 of the Fine Arts Building, or they may be made by calling University exchange 2394.

New Women's Dorm To Be Started Soon

Construction of a million-dollar residence hall for University women will begin in the near future, Frank D. Peterson, UK Comptroller, said last week.

To be built north of Patterson Hall, freshman women's dormitory, the new residence hall will house 200 women. Construction is expected to require about 18 months.

Funds for the residence hall, expected to cost about $1,100,000, come from three sources: a $200,000 grant from the Keeneland Foundation, made last week; a $722,000 loan from the federal government; and $200,000 now in the University's plant fund.

Included in a statement issued by Dr. Peterson in connection with the new residence hall was the following: "The University's women's residence halls have been overcrowded for several years, and actually one or two more women are living there than the buildings were originally designed to house.

SGA Joins Federation Of Colleges

Membership in a confederation of student government bodies was voted for by the Student Government Association Monday night.

The confederation, the National Student Association, is composed of representatives from 300 colleges and universities in the United States. Its main function is to offer an exchange of ideas on student government problems.

The motion for membership, made by Dick Barr, United Student, originated earlier in the semester when NSA's national president, Jim Barlett, appeared before an SGA meeting to ask UK to join the association.

Delay in action was caused by a lack of enough members to vote on the proposal at the time Edwards appeared and the desire of the assembly to study the proposal thoroughly.

Other functions of NSA include studies of faculty-student relations, foreign study programs, and the publication of material summarizing research and decisions made on student government problems by various schools.

NSA membership gives SGA the right to send delegates to its annual congress, which will be held sometime in the latter part of August at a location not yet decided on. Since NSA's structural form is that of a confederation, SGA will not have to accept any policies or decisions reached by the association's congress.

The cost of membership for SGA will be from $2-300 a year, including the cost of sending delegates to the congress. However, since SGA joined the association in the middle of the school year, membership fees will only be $80, as compared to the regular fee of $100 for a school of the University's size.

To Study Functions
After constituting the judiciary committee for "a fine job this past semester," Capt. Turner, US, asked that a committee of three be appointed to study the functions of the judiciary committee.

Turner told assembly members that the committee might be burdened with extra administrative work that other SGA members could handle. Clark Glass, president, appointed Turner chairman of the new committee, with Glenn Sanderfur, Const., and John Y. Brown, US, as other members.

Charles Palmer, Const., was named new chairman of the judiciary committee to fill the vacancy left by the past chairman, Deward Johnson.

Renaker, Fryer, Butler Named To Head Kernel Next Term

Registration Cards Available Monday

Students now enrolled who expect to register for the second semester may pick up registration cards in advance at the Office of the Registrar in Room 104 of the Administration Building, Maple Moors, assistant registrar, has announced.

Cards will be available during office hours daily from Jan. 19 to Jan. 30.

Nominations Open For Popular Prof

Nominations for the Most Popular Professor on Campus contest will be taken from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. next Friday in the Student Union, Joan Barrett, chairman of the nominations committee, has announced.

Voting will take place Feb. 13, and the winner of the contest will be presented at the annual March Grand Banquet, Feb. 27, sponsored by the Newman Club.

Winners of past years are not eligible for nomination, Miss Barrett said.

Larson Announces Top AF Students

Fourteen AFROTC cadets have been designated as distinguished AFROTC students. Col. R. S. Larson, professor of air science and tactics, has announced.

They are James S. Davis, William W. Douglas, William B. Evans, Wallace E. Fisher, James P. Hubston, Thomas B. McHugh, Benjamin R. Thompson, Herbert W. Ockerman, Joseph J. Schmitt, Jr., Thomas E. Todd, Capt. E. Turner, Robert A. Valentine, Sidney N. White, Jack A. Whistled.

Selection of students for this distinction was based upon five factors. These include completion of Air Science III among the upper third of the students enrolled therein, and an overall academic standing among the upper third of all students pursuing the same major and scheduled to graduate the same school year.

Also required are an overall average of "B" or better; high moral character and aptitude for Air Force service, and demonstrated leadership, particularly in recognized extra-curricular activities.

Two New Grad Courses Open

Two new courses are open to graduate students in agriculture. Various Diseases of Plants, Agronomy 241, will be taught by Dr. Stephen Duchum. This class will take up characteristics and properties of various plant diseases, and identification and control of some of the important virus diseases. Dr. Duchum will also teach a graduate class in Research in Animal Pathology, Agronomy 245-4d.

IFC Starts Plans For Spring Dance

Preliminary arrangements to procure Ralph Flanagan's orchestra for the second all-fraternity dance on March 19 were announced at a meeting of the Interfraternity Council Tuesday night.

During the meeting, a modified Greek Week program was approved, and Marvin Jones, chairman of the committee, said that details would be reported at a later date.

Tentative plans include a work day and banquet. All fraternity pledges eligible for initiation will participate in the events which will be held along with the individual fraternity initiation periods, Jones said.

Leslie Morris, junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, and Harold Tiller, also a junior in Arts and Sciences, were elected vice president and treasurer, respectively, to fill IFC vacancies.

UK Debate Team To Argue In Ohio
UK's debate team will attend a tournament at Ohio State on Jan. 23 and 24, where they will argue on the subject, "Resolved: That the United States should adopt a policy of free trade."
The squad will consist of UK's two affirmative and negative teams. On the affirmative teams are Jerry Davidson, Charles English, Lester Wise, and Wayne Carroll.
For the negative teams are George Shadoun, William Douglas, Ted Creedman, and Jacob Mayer.

Cast Of 'Beggars' Listed By Guignol

The cast for "Beggars" of the next Guignol Theater production was announced this week by Robert Challenger, director.

William Nave will play the part of Macheth, a polygamist and a crook, around whom the action revolves. Complications arise when Mr. Peuchum, played by Harry Stanton, who is in the business of receiving stolen goods, reveals the marriage of his daughter, Polly, to Macheth.

It is not to Peuchum's advantage since Macheth could inform against him. Macheth is also married to Jane Lambert, Mrs. Peuchum; Pegu Williams, Diana Trapes; Ken Hurt, Matt the Mint; Ben Artery, the barber; and Earl Hart, who will play both Mr. Lockitt and the Beggar who narrates the play.

Others in Cast Listed
Other students in the cast include Louise Monroe, Lucy Moberly, Libby Kemper, Marlene Young, Jean Robson, Patsy McCoy, Alice McVey, and Dolly Sullivan.

The men's chorus will have George Moore, Jim Harris, Doug Grant, Charles Petras, Glen Martin, Davis Stull, and Jim Reed.

The play will be produced in Restoration costumes, with two-dimensional properties being used. Scenery will be painted backdrops.

Boring To Speak To UK Engineers

Dr. M. B. Boring, manager of the Technical Personnel Development Services Department of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y., will speak at two engineering assemblies on campus on Feb. 11.

His first talk will be at 10 a.m. in Memorial Hall at a general engineering assembly. He plans to speak on "The First Five Years," covering the nation's engineering manpower problem and probable military commitments facing college graduates in the immediate future.

Dr. Boring will address the Lexington Sub-Section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at 8 p.m. on Feb. 11 in Room 232 of Anderson Hall. His talk, entitled "The National Technical Manpower Problem," will be based on experience gained in his work and some of the activities of the National Society of Professional Engineers.

A graduate of the University of Colorado, Dr. Boring is a member of the Engineering Manpower Commission of the Engineers Joint Council and chairman of its Special Survey Committee. He is active in YMCA and Boy Scout work in Schenectady, and is also a member of the National Electrical Manufacturers' Association Committee on Engineering Talent; U. S. Office of Defense Mobilization Committee on Specialized Personnel; and the New York State Appeal Board.

Holyfield Named SUB President; Vacancies Filled

Margaret Holyfield, former chairman of the Student Union Board House Committee and treasurer of the SUB, was recently elected president of the Board, replacing Emma Belle Barthill who will be graduated this semester.

She Ann Hobgood was selected to fill the post of chairman of the House Committee. Elsie Kennedy will serve as chairman of the Art Committee, a post recently vacated by Doris McGary.

Leslie Morris will replace Miss Holyfield as treasurer.

The new officers and committee chairman will assume their duties at the beginning of next semester.

Fraternity Rush Set To Begin On Feb. 10

Fraternity rush for the second semester will start from Feb. 10 to Feb. 18, Charles Palmer, chairman of the Interfraternity Council rush committee, has announced.

All rushes, Palmer said, will be required to sign up for rush during the registration period, Feb. 8-9, in the Coliseum. A table will be set up in the regular line for that purpose, and will be manned by IFC representatives.

A fee of two dollars must be paid by rushes participating in a rush program for the first time. Men who have already paid rush fees at any time in the past are not required to pay fees or sign up, and may consider themselves participants.

The program differs from last year's procedure, Palmer said, in that all fraternities will hold open houses from 7 to 10 p.m. on Feb. 10, 11, and 12. The purpose of the open houses, he said, is to allow fraternity men to become acquainted with rushes they might not meet in a free rush program.

On Feb. 18, rushes will be expected to file preference cards from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 124 of the Student Union, Palmer said.

Fraternities are required to turn in preference cards by 4 p.m. on Feb. 19, and will receive a list of their pledges at 6 p.m. Leslie Morris, a member of the rush committee, said that further publicity data would be prepared for distribution, and that additional information could be obtained by calling Palmer at 4-9315 or 2-3881.

State's Proposed Pari-Mutuel Tax Would Kill Keeneland Gifts To UK

Just what will the proposed tax legislation aimed at the Keeneland Race Course mean to UK? The proposed tax could directly affect the University in the way of finances.

UK alumni have been asked to support a protest against making the State tax on pari-mutuel betting apply to Keeneland Race Course. Mr. R. B. Dawson, president of the UK Alumni Association, in a letter to the Association declared that "Keeneland Race Course near Lexington, which has contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to UK under a nonprofit form of operation, probably will pass out of existence, if an act, if a proposal now before the Kentucky General Assembly is enacted."

"The money gained by the State would not materially aid its finances, because it would claim funds which now, in the main, already go to UK for education and research purposes.

"Won't you please wire Gov. Wetherby and your senator and representative at once and ask them to continue Keeneland's tax exemption? Your action will mean that UK will continue to receive substantial funds from the Keeneland Association."

The Keeneland Association operates on a nonprofit and charitable basis, distributing its profits to scientific research, education, and charity. In the past, the Association has been very generous with its gifts to the University, promoting important research right on the campus.

As has been pointed out by Mr. Guy Huguleit, chairman of the Executive Committee of the UK Board of Trustees, the University, as a whole, can do nothing about the matter, but many interested individuals have sent telegrams and wires to the Governor and State Legislature in an attempt to convince them of the importance of their decision to the University.

The pari-mutuel tax bill, advocated by Gov. Lawrence Wetherby, was passed by the Kentucky House of Representatives at Frankfort last week. It was amended this week prior to consideration by the Senate. Even so, the amended proposal is no improvement over the original tax bill proposed by the governor.

In 1948, the Kentucky Legislature passed the three per cent tax on pari-mutuel betting, however, they specifically exempted Keeneland, giving recognition to its nonprofit status. Keeneland officials state that if the new tax legislation does go into effect, the Course will be unable to survive. This would result due to the complicated setup which puts Keeneland on a pay-as-you-go basis.

As has been stated many times before, UK is in dire need of funds. The recent cutting of the UK budget request by the State Legislature has frozen plans of expansion for the next two years. It should be the duty of the State to provide its youth with the best educational facilities possible. Now, however, it is trying to eliminate another source of funds for the University by levying the tax.

Other state universities are continually marching forward, progressing, but UK has been forced to a standstill. As usual, educationally-wise, Kentucky must stay in the background. Its attempts at advancement are stymied at every turn.

Therefore, there can be no justification in the killing off of a nonprofit association which has backed the University so liberally. There can be no doubt that if this source of income is extinguished, the University will certainly suffer.

Editor Bids Staff Farewell Prior To January Graduation

Publishing a newspaper, whether it be a daily or weekly, demands cooperation and a sense of responsibility from each member of the staff. It would be impossible for one person to assume multiple responsibilities and expect the paper to be put out properly. Each step toward actual publication is dependent on what goes on before . . . the fulfilling of each individual duty.

This type of cooperation is found in the operation of your student newspaper, the Kentucky Kernel. Your editor, who is graduating at the end of the month, has become aware, more than ever, of the invaluable assistance contributed by each staff member this semester.

Special thanks go to:

Diane Renaker, managing editor, who's suffered many a headache on Wednesday nights writing headlines, trying to fit impossible stories into a limited amount of space, and tending to a 1000 and one last minute details.

Kathy Fryer, news editor, whose job demands a nose for news, corralling all the reporters into getting their stories in on time, and tedious hours of copy reading.

Their assistants, Charles Archer, a stabilizing influence around this maddening office, who contributed much more time and effort than most of us realize; and Bill Bittler, self-appointed copy boy, Kernel janitor, and an able assistant to any one in need.

Ronnie Butler, versatile columnist and "editor's assistant," whose nimble fingers pound out reams of copy at a moment's notice, while the rest of us sit and stare at inspiration.

Ann O'Rourke, society editor, who keeps us informed about the all-important social whirl on campus, plus pacifying the "Pinned," "Engaged," and "Married" set when their names fail to appear in the Kernel.

Larry Meyer and his staff, who handle sports news, a tremendous task which calls for accuracy, and skill.

The editorial page would have been sadly lacking had it not been for the clever artwork of Jim Perry and Carl May, cartoonists; the readable "Gallery" by Leslie Morris; and the pertinent comments of Jim Barrickman's "You're Another One."

Dick Kraps, business manager, has handled the advertising end admirably. He and his ad solicitors are to be commended.

Other members of the staff, too numerous to mention, deserve much credit. Each reporter, writer, and headline writer has contributed greatly in his own way.

To Bob Sparks, Kernel compositor, goes the editor's deepest gratitude for his patience, help, and understanding. Without his co-operation, the task of putting out the Kernel could never have been accomplished.

Our Readers Speak . . .

Dear Editor:
New friend: And what's your major?
Girl: Home Economics
New friend: Oh . . . is that all . . . here at work have a good time, eh . . . working for an MIS degree, eh . . . etc.

(New friend is fast becoming a "friend to be forgotten" in the eyes of a hard working, earnest Home Ec. student)

You've never discussed this in your paper, but no doubt you've heard such remarks as, "Home Ec? That abomination of modern college curriculum" or "Home Ec? Hah! Soap course!" There you have only a few of the many remarks I've heard about the College of Home Economics since beginning my studies in the same, last year. Now, after hearing another such voiced opinion concerning the supposed fact that Home Ec. does not include a liberal education, I can't contain my indignation any longer. After struggling through a semester of Chemistry, Economics, Anatomy and Physiology and with Physics and Bacteriology looming before me in the immediate future, it's somewhat infuriating to hear people take the name of "Home Economics" in vain.

Evidently it's thought that Home Ec. girls are here for a lark! . . . "Whoopie . . . go to college . . . learn to cook and catch a man at the same time." Label it what you will, Home Ec. is not a course that could be learned by simply getting married and setting up house, as I have often heard it described. If our critical friends would look into the

"Check these off with me."
"One dozen pencils, three of them automatic."
"Right."
"Six reams of second sheets, four gross of erasers."
"I'm with you."
"Fifteen notebooks, all blank with thin spaced lines."
"Roger!"

"Eye drops, aspirin, coffee pot, liniment, sandwiches, and eye shades."
"That's it, Joe. We're ready."
"OK, now, you take the first guard. Attack from the chapter headings, underlining anything that might look important."
"Sweet, but what're you going to do?"
"Make a few phone calls."
"Aw, Sam, you promised we'd get started right away."
"Don't be a sorehead. This'll only take a few minutes."
"Hello, babe, how're you doing?"
"Oh, getting ready to study?"
"Yeah, know exactly how you feel?"
"Umm hm. Me and Joe are starting now, too."
"Say, I don't want to change the subject, but would you like to get married?"
"Aw, honey, you know I love you!"
"Well, how about getting pinned?"
"What's the difference? Just because you're already dating three of my frat brothers. . ."

"Ok, ok. You want to go steady?"
"Oh, heck no, I'm not mad, but I don't care about anything any more. I hope I flunk."
"SO LONG!"
"Sam, what's wrong?"
"Just had a nasty deal from a girl."
"No kidding. What did she say?"
"She said she hated my guts."
"Really? Who was it?"
"Infidel!"
"Infidel! Why, I've been dating her, too!"
"Don't let it swell your head. She hates your guts too. Told me so herself."
"Say, this is a nasty break. I feel terrible."
"Me, too. Let's go down to the Pub for a few brews."

"Good idea. We can make it back in an hour . . . plenty of time to study in."
". . . look, you guys, we been here three hours already. We got an exam at 7:30 in the a.m."
"TOUGH YOURSELF!"
"Yeah, don't get smart with Sam."
"I SAID SO, YOU S*%*E!"
". . . and then he slugged Joe over the head with the waitress, Your Honor. I couldn't stand there without helping."
"Well, what if I did hit the jerk back with another waitress?"
"Oh, yeah? You fat-headed idiot! Who ever said you were fit to be a judge. . ."
". . . ok, Dad, Yeah, I promise. Never again. Just send the money by wire to the police station. Joe has already gotten money from his father."
"Joe, it sure is good to be back in the peace and quiet of the Sigma Phi Nu house again!"
"How true. Let's study. It's already 2 a.m."
"Excellent suggestion. . . Hey, there goes Pinned—When-Plastered Max to the reservoir! Want to go watch it? It'll only take a few minutes. . ."
". . . and you pledges better have my clothes out here in 10 minutes. Sam's, too!"
"Yeah, wise guy! You weren't supposed to swipe our clothes after the guys threw us in because we were laughing so hard at the other guys' . . ."
". . . no, Your Honor, we were not drunk."
"No sir, just some of the pledges having a little fun. Swiped our clothes after they tossed us in the drink."
"Whatta you mean, indecent exposure? We was thrown in and our clothes were swiped."
". . . that's right. Another $100. You won't believe it, but they got us for indecent exposure."
"HONEST, DAD, I DIDN'T HOCK 'EM AGAIN!"
". . . and now maybe we can get some work done."
". . . I guess that about winds it up."
"Yeah, we're as ready as we'll ever be."
"Got the stuff crammed in so hard we're bound to pass."
"Right. Everything will be fresh in our minds when we get to class."
"But the glorious part about it Joe. . ."
". . . no, Your Honor. The glorious part about it is. . ."
". . . we can forget everything we studied by tomorrow!"
"Ah, higher education. There's nothing like it!"
"Absolutely nothing!"

Frankfort Fight Rivals Hollywood In Blood-Letting

By LESLIE MORRIS

In this age of atomic cannons and hydrogen bombs it is interesting to note that Hollywood is retreating more and more into the past, back to the era of the mace and battle axe, back to the plain ole club and bare fist type of combat. Perhaps this is a reflection of the public's desire to escape the modern day pull-of-smoke-annihilation—but the movie moguls have a habit of doing up self-made rats and that's what this probably is.

So we see Robert Taylor mowing down iron-clad adversaries with his trusty lance—and Jeff Chandler fighting Tony Quinn, each totting a crude axe in one hand and a firebrand in the other—and Van Heflin waxy-flying 10 toughies with a pick handle—and Burt Lancaster vs. a Fiji chief, aided by several weapons resembling a squash racket and the leg of a kettle drum—and so on. Sometimes it makes you glad that science has perfected such clean ways to cause to exist.

Somewhere between what is and what was, the old-fashioned revolver has been discarded as a dull, unexciting piece of equipment. Even the old 100-shot six shooter of the Westerns have been tossed away. This is a mistake. You can have just as much mayhem and blood-letting with a pistol as you can with—a crowbar and a jack-handle (that one hasn't been used yet). We cite as proof the famous Colson-Scott duel of 1900. This shoot-em-up party took place in Frankfort on Jan. 16—and it was a dilly. And furthermore, it actually happened, though surely "Jack Slade's" script-writer must have been around somewhere.

That was a grand ole age. A week later some joker was to remove our governor with a well-placed smokeless cartridge, but that's another story. Anyway, on this day, two gentlemen, Col. Dave Colson and Lt. Ethelbert Scott met in the lobby of the Capital Hotel, and they weren't exactly pleased to see each other. It seemed they'd had a disagreement once before and Colson wound up with the weight of a slug in his groin, so this time he came prepared.

Without shaking hands Colson emptied a target pistol at Scott, wounding his revolver. Unfortunately for Scott, Colson also had a .38 handie, so Scott found it expedient to duck behind a bystander. The good Colson solved this problem by shooting through the fellow, so Scott leapt a retreat to the basement. Colson was riddled in the left arm, and Scott resembled Caesar on the Ides of March. Several of the bewildered and prone spectators also found a bullet or two in them, and the crowded lobby was emptying fast—to say the least.

Meanwhile another slow-footed chap got an artery in the way of the cross-fire, and that gave Colson two nitches, but—lagnabit—Scott was still kicking. Some poor traveling salesman had jumped clear over the bannisters in the lobby and tumbled into the basement, and was nursing a broken leg when to his horror he saw Scott flying down the stairs at him, with Colson blazing away from behind. Scott finally got it in the head, and caught a few more balls in the back as he rolled down the steps. Our friend the traveling salesman found himself under Scott, and Colson walked nonchalantly down and pumped another piece of lead into the tangle for good measure.

Well, the count showed three deceased, and four in shreds—so it was a pretty good day for Col. Colson, even if he had lost a piece of his left elbow. We've always thought the Commonwealth should have bought and furnished a cool plot overlooking the river for Colson, but for some strange reason he was acquitted. So you see, if Hollywood thinks they've invented something, they oughta come to Kaintuck where in the old-time fashion they really went at it and made sure they got their man and/or men, women and children. Watch out for that harpoonist! . . .

We saw "His Majesty O'Keefe" the other nite, and had a wonderful time. Best comedy in years. . . Final word for the semester: Good luck on your exams, people, and good-bye to our little editor. We've had some special requests for next semester, but we'll be back anyway. So long for now.

After careful study, we have discovered why Paterson's statue never stands. No suspensders.

Voices Of Past Recall Festivities As Final Examinations Loom Near

By ANN O'ROARK

Silence hung down on the campus from Funkhouser to Frazer. Pale lights shown down on drawn, haggard faces behind the glass windows and bounced against the flicky printed book pages.

"Hey," a voice shattered the stillness. "I can't get all of these calculus formulas on this cuff."

"Did you try your white backs?" asked another weary voice.

"My history final and dates are on them," replied the first voice. "I might be able to use the inside of my class case."

"Serry, I've already swiped it for my Law of the Press notes."

"Guss I'll have to learn these things then."

Tall silences shadowed kept its watch over the campus while the professors in the faculty club did their glacial ritual war dance around the multi-high stack of exam questions.

The Student Union sprawled desolately in its lonely resting place. While ghostly memories roamed from room to room, pumping into each other sadly.

"I'm the ghost of side shows, skits, skill tests, and pretty queens for the 'Lance' Carnival," sighs one memory.

"In my time," another voice chimed, "there was a pep rally, a carnival too, and lots of dancing—it was All College Night."

"Well," boasted a third, "when I returned, the ballroom was jammed and packed. For the first time, the Interfraternity Council had a dance in the fall, so I'm a newcomer to your ranks."

"Yep, but I'm one that everyone looks forward to every year," said another. "And my claim to fame is the recognition of the fairest of the fair on the campus at the Kentucky Queen Dance."

In tripped another member of the group, who was carrying buckets full of 18 years worth of tears; this time he was laughing. "For once I can hold the center of the spotlight, because this year not only did Kentucky play Tennessee for the homecoming game, but they beat them all to pieces."

"Silence" roared a huge voice. "I am Ragnarok, the end of this semester. This is the week when books and studies must rule the campus."

Then fell silence once again stretched its shadow across the length and breadth of the UK campus and droopy eyes nodded over the open books behind the window panes.

"Don't forget the Sigma Chi Derby," reminded a shadowy voice. "Those sorority pledges looked mighty good."

James Lyon, US, was also put on the committee. A letter from the Committee on Coliseum Seating, part of the Parliamentary Usage Class, under the Department of English, asked President Glass to enlist SGA aid in order to have backs installed on seats in the Coliseum.

Committee Formed
A committee to investigate the situation, with William Billiter, US, as chairman, was formed. Part of the letter sent by the Committee on Coliseum Seating reads as follows:

"There are several reasons why we the committee feel that backs should be installed on the student seating section. First, it would add to the student's pleasure and comfort at athletic events and concerts, as the said occasions last for two hours or more."

Second, "it would cause an increase in student attendance at such events, for knowing a comfortable seat was available to them as well as to townspeople would make the students more eager to attend."

Third, "putting backs on the student seating section would enhance the appearance and value of the Coliseum to future students of the University of Kentucky and to the University itself."

The letter was signed by Betty Jean Davis, secretary; Gretel G. Gross, Nelson F. Britt, Braxton N. McGraw, Jean A. Corvill, Charles Palmer, and Roger M. Bain.

Founders' Day
This year's Founders' Day Program, President Glass said, will be a program of musical and dramatic production to acquaint students with outstanding men of the University and to put across DK's accomplishments.

To be based on the lives and accomplishments of two of UK's outstanding men of the past, this year's Founders' Day Program will be presented on Feb. 21 in the Coliseum. A request from Tau Kappa Alpha, student speech organization, to have SGA sponsor awards for the winners of its annual speech contest was voted down on the grounds that it might set a bad precedent. The number of campus organizations that might ask for funds once a precedent was established was given as a reason for refusing the request.

Vacancies filled during the meeting were:
Graduate School, representatives-at-large, Judith Griffin and Bill Podulinski.
Agriculture, lowerclassman, William Alexander Macklin.
Home Ec, representative-at-large, Lee Ann Leet.
Engineering, representative-at-large, Jack Clark.

With some girls "no" is like a comma—it doesn't mean a complete stop.

When W. Va. went down South To play their first bowl game! The natives claimed that the mountain state.

And Virginia were the same! West Virginia University students came back from their visit in New Orleans New Year's Day all "pepped" up—not particularly by the showing the Mountaineers made in their bowl game against Georgia Tech, but because of the misconceptions the residents of the Mardi Gras city had of West Virginia.

In rebuttal, this note appeared in the Daily Athenaeum: "West Virginia is not a part of Virginia. West Virginia is not the University of Virginia. And for those people throughout the country who insist on calling us hillbillies, we say only: 'You ain't shit no larmin!'"

Censorship! Censorship! Censorship!

A photograph showing crowded dormitory conditions prompted the dean of men at the University of Maryland to confiscate several thousand copies of the Diamondback. He decided to make off with all the papers so no one else would be able to read them.

It wasn't the first censorship attempt at Maryland. Earlier this year the administration tried to keep the student publication. He objected to a picture of a basement living quarters for 24 women students. Result: He decided to make off with all the papers so no one else would be able to read them.

American students are facing the draft and the demands of the cold war much more realistically now than they did in 1951.

This is the conclusion of a Cornell University study based on 4,000 responses from students at 11 colleges and universities. But could their attitudes be merely resignation rather than hope?

A new trend in college qualifications was announced by Miss Dorothy Dale, whose job is to recruit new students for Sophie Newcomb College in New Orleans. She says Miss Dale's interest lies along with the semester grades. They might form the background for a rewarding argument.

The next time Vanderbilt's marching band performs before Wildcat fans, the entire group will be sporting new uniforms, which, incidentally, will be different from the run-of-the-mill military style.

The Commodore band is following a pattern set by several eastern schools—Harvard, Dartmouth and others—as well as Virginia and a few West Coast schools. The uniform will have a blazer style coat with flannel trousers. Vanderbilt's shield will decorate the blazer over the heart, and for the first time, the band members will not wear hats.

Being Outnumbered Is Not Bad, Say Girl Ag Majors

By JUDY LESTER

How would you like to be one of seven girls in a college with 411 boys? It's not so bad, according to the future farmettes of the University's Agriculture College.

The seven girl agriculture majors on the campus seem to take these overwhelming odds with a shrug of the shoulders and think that boys are really just human beings after all.

Most of the girls decided to take agriculture because of their love for horses, their hopes to go back to their father's farm, or to marry a farmer. The majority are originally from the farm. However, Lois Church, a junior from Tenally, N. J., a city of about 12,000, and Beverly Botford, a freshman from Springfield, Ohio, a city of about 8,000, are exceptions to the rule.

Beverly decided to take agriculture because of an early love for animals. Many of her high school teachers tried to discourage her in her chosen field, but now she says, "I wouldn't change for anything."

Beverly has hopes of becoming a veterinarian, but after her first visit to the slaughter house she is beginning to wonder if she is too soft-hearted. When she saw the animals being killed she has taken her horses to several local horse shows.

Lois, another horse-lover, has her horse, a jumper named "Hennessy," here at school. She has taken her horse to a jumper named "Hennessy," here at school. She has taken her horse to a jumper named "Hennessy," here at school.

At first, being in the class with all boys makes you feel funny, but then you get used to it," said Mary Wilson Rice, a sophomore from Lancaster, Miss. Rice, whose field of concentration is animal industry.

Amy Hotel, from Brookville, Ind., plans to combine the two things she likes most, agriculture and travel. "At first, being in the class with all boys makes you feel funny, but then you get used to it," said Mary Wilson Rice, a sophomore from Lancaster, Miss. Rice, whose field of concentration is animal industry.

Dean Will Greet Incoming Women

All new women students coming to the UK campus will be welcomed by Mrs. Sara B. Holmes, dean of women, at 4 p.m. Feb. 6 in Room 128 of the Student Union.

Mrs. Holmes' talk will include general information about the residence halls, social programs, religious groups and societies. Jackie Cotton, president of Psi Chi, will also speak to the new girls about rush.

After the meeting in the Student Union, there will be a special dinner for the girls in the Boyd Hall dining room. A program after dinner will be sponsored by Owens, sophomore women's honorary.

Miss June Haselien, assistant dean of women, announced this week that all of the girls who went out for rush in the fall would be included on the spring rush list unless they had specifically asked to have their names removed from the list.

Open houses for rush will be held by the Alpha Delta P's, Delta Delta Delta's, Chi Omega's, and Kappa Delta's on Feb. 13 and by Kappa Alpha Theta's, Delta Zeta's, Kappa Kappa Gamma's, Alpha Xi Delta's, Alpha Gamma Delta's, and Zeta Tau Alpha's on Feb. 14.

Both the new women students and those who have been on campus before and are going out for rush are invited to attend the open houses. Miss Haselien said.

Further information concerning rush may be obtained by calling the Dean of Women's office.

Dairy Club Plans Annual Festivities

The Dairy Club will hold its annual festivities at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Dairy Center.

Featured on the program will be showmanship contests for Dairy Club members and other agriculture students, and a championship contest.

All girls are eligible to show their milking skill in the "Mild Maid" contest. Dairy graduate students will compete in drinking milk.

BSU Freshmen Elect Strange

Walter Strange, freshman in Education, has been elected president of the freshman group of BSU students who are serving as council members during the annual observation of Freshman Week. During this week, the Union is completely run by the freshman council, made up of 21 other members besides the president.

Alpha Lam's Plan Schedule Help

Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's honorary, plans to help underclassmen with their schedule during second semester registration.

Mildred Cronin, president of the organization, has announced.

A table will be set up in the Coliseum to aid freshman and sophomore men and women who may have difficulty in making out their schedules, she said.

In giving this assistance, Alpha Lambda Delta plans to use class schedules and lists showing the requirements in each major field. It is not the intention of the honorary to advise but merely to assist the students who may have difficulty with their schedule planning, Miss Cronin said.

IT'S ALL A MATTER OF TASTE

When you come right down to it, you smoke for one simple reason . . . enjoyment. And smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste. Yes, taste is what counts in a cigarette. And Luckies taste better.

Two facts explain why Luckies taste better. First, L.S./M.F.T.—Luckies Strike means fine tobacco . . . light, mild, good-tasting tobacco. Second, Luckies are actually made better to taste better . . . always round, firm, fully packed to draw freely and smoke evenly.

So, for the enjoyment you get from better taste, and only from better taste, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Get a pack or a carton of better-tasting Luckies today.

Gilmore Speaks On Soviet Life

Intelligentsia tend to disregard Soviet propaganda because of the many about-faces or reversals made from time to time.

"Voice" Plays Small Role Even the United States' source of propaganda plays a small role in Russia, Gilmore continued. The "Voice of America" is completely jammed in Moscow, he said, and when it can be received, most people choose to ignore it.

"After all," he said, "why should anyone risk encounters with the secret police?" Gilmore explained that, although there is no law against listening to VOA in Russia, government agents still put under suspicion and questioning people found listening to it.

On subjects of a less serious nature, Gilmore told several stories about his life in the Soviet Union. One of the stories, now well known, which he told concerned the Volga boatmen.

After Preferring vodka After questioning some boatmen on the Volga, Gilmore found that they had never heard of the Volga Boat Song. When asked what the song was, Gilmore replied it was, in America, thought to be a song that the boatmen sang to make their work easier.

The boatmen replied that only vodka could do that. Another story told by Gilmore, described Stalin's funeral. Hundreds of thousands of people came to look at the body of their leader while he lay in state for three days, Gilmore said, but only a few were actually crying.

"In my opinion, they just came down there to make damned sure he was dead," he said.

A CAMPUS-TO-CAREER CASE HISTORY

"During the spring of '52—my last year at the University of Maryland—I was interviewed by a number of companies. I was about to get my B.S. degree in accounting.

"It seemed to me that there was a great deal to be learned from the way I was interviewed. Bell System interviewers took their time about job offers. They didn't rush me or themselves.

"I had two talks with the Bell interviewers and then was invited to meet and talk with department heads. Not only did they get a chance to look me over, but I also had an opportunity to get a closer look at their operation. I figured if the Bell System was that careful in selecting its men, it is careful in other things. The interview was the tip-off.

"That's why I'm working here in Washington, D. C., for one of the Bell Companies—The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company. My first job—after general training—was supervising a billing unit with 20 employees.

"Since then I have assisted on internal audits in all departments. I've helped with special studies for management and have become better acquainted with operations of the entire company. Now I'm working on the general books as an accounting supervisor.

"That Bell System interview has certainly meant a lot to me."

Ed Bernick is moving forward. His experience is typical of the engineering, physical science, arts and social science, and business administration graduates who join the Bell System. He went with an operating telephone company. There also are opportunities with the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation.
