

Deerfield, Mass. Nov. 12, 1833.

Dear Sir,

Permit me to ask your acceptance of a copy of my Translation of the new Testament; with the expression of my great attachment to your person and character; and that I can yield to no one, in a deep veneration for those public and private virtues, that ardent patriotism and philanthropy, those splendid talents, enlarged acquirements, and signal sacrifices in the great cause of human advancement, which have so long endeared you to our country and to the world.

I am, respected Sir, with the highest consideration, your devoted friend and servant.

Rodolphus Dickinson

Hon. Henry Clay

P.S. at page 470, I have taken the liberty to add your name to those of my numerous Commentators.
