

1745 First Street,
May 22. 1894.

Dear Father,

I went down to Tom's office this afternoon and had a consultation with Tom and Doctor Vance in regard to writing to Doctor Gibney. They do not think it necessary. I asked Doctor Vance if he would write if you still wished it and he said that he would. He said that the case was this. He thought Madge should go to the surgeon in whom she and her family had the most confidence.