

P. O. ADDRESS, Lexington, Ky. Mar 20 1891

Mr. J. Krehbeil, President, and Mr. John Collins, Secretary Memorial Hospital,
~~Dear Sirs;~~
 Sullivan

It is difficult to express to your association the pleasure expressed by the family at Ashland on the receipt of the grand English hall clock. - It was just the thing needed, and the matter had been often discussed, and as often deferred to a more propitious time - It is in perfect accord with the hall in which it stands, and its lovely chiming continually recall a pleasant visit and the ~~delight~~ <sup>delight</sup> of many new and agreeable acquaintances.
 Such a gift was wholly unexpected and its beauty, finish and worth make it an honor to be cherished for generations; but what gives to us its most gratifying charm is, that it is a token of the fact that our guests were undoubtedly pleased with the welcome they received.

Sincerely yours
 H. C. McDowell
