Dear Major

I had a beautiful passage homeward on the "Mojatic" - just enough sea to make it interesting to the ordinary sailor, but rather too much for Mrs. Brinton who now says she has crossed the ocean for the last time. She has crossed six times & instead of getting used to it she finds it more uncomfortable each time.
She says if I go again it must be without her. As for myself I have become fond of it & can't imagine anything more delightful than an ocean voyage on a good steamer. Though it is not probable that I shall go again since Mrs. B says she won't, and besides I am
