Sutton, UK officials rebut Columbus article

Wildcat coach says he is 'not about to resign' post

By TOM SPALDING
Sports Editor

UK basketball coach Eddie Sutton said yesterday he has not been told by anyone he will be fired within the next two weeks, despite a published report saying he would.

"I've been told that I am the basketball coach at the University of Kentucky," Sutton said at his weekly news conference yesterday. "That's what my contract reads. Until I'm told differently, that's what I'm going to continue to do. . . . I'm not about to resign."

The Columbus Dispatch, quoting an anonymous source close to the UK basketball program, reported in a copy-righted story yesterday that Sutton would be replaced by former Transylvania University basketball coach Lee Rose.

The source told the Dispatch that "Sutton is going to be told he's gone in 10 days to two weeks. The new coach is picked and it's Rose. He's (C.M.) Newton's choice for the job."

Newton and two University officials refuted the statement, however, when contacted by the Kernel yesterday.

Newton, currently the men's basketball coach at Vanderbilt University who will become UK's athletic director April 1, called the story "utterly ridiculous."

UK interim Athletics Director Joseph Burch, in a released statement, said "there is no coaching vacancy at the University. Therefore, there is no reason for us to be searching for a new coach. Any reports to the contrary are pure speculation."

UK spokesman Bernie Vonderheide added that the report was "just a continuing part of the rumors and speculation that has surrounded the program."

A spokesman for the Dispatch last night said the newspaper stood by the article.

Sutton said he was upset about the story. "I don't know who is at the base of all these rumors and leaks," Sutton said. "I certainly know it's not me. I'm not the one that's leaking anything. I just wish it would stop."

Sutton said whoever has been leaking information to the press might be out to get him.

"I think that's the general consensus. I don't know who's behind it. I wish I did," Sutton said. "I'd like to know what their motive is."

"See, if they want to get rid of me, that's fine," he said. "But wait until the season's over. Let's don't take it out on our players. Everytime one of these leaks come out, it's disruptive to our players. That's not fair to them."

Rose, who was an assistant under Newton at Transylvania before becoming head coach there in 1969, was asked by the newspaper if he would be a candidate for head coach at UK if there was an opening.

"Until there is a position open, no one is a candidate because the job is still in the hands of the man who has it," Rose said. "My mother lives in Lexington, and I have a lot of ties there. And that's no secret."

UK, which ended a six-game losing streak with a 76-71 victory over the University of Tennessee Wednesday night, travels to Syracuse University Sunday afternoon to face the sixth-ranked Orangemen.

The Wildcats, 12-16 with only three regular-season games remaining, face their first losing season in 61 years.

"I don't think how fully they understand how disruptive it is to our basketball play-

UK coach Eddie Sutton told reporters yesterday he intends to remain the Wildcats' coach despite a published report to the contrary.

Weather didn't cause students many problems

By CATHY PIRONE
Contributing Writer

Most Kentuckians probably believed they were going to escape the cold weather normally experienced during February.

But after several weeks of unseasonably warm weather, snow and colder temperatures finally arrived yesterday.

Students at UK found the snow and cold weather yesterday to be a hassle, but most managed to find their way to class without too many problems.

Jonna Hannah, a senior, said the sidewalks around Blanding I were a little slippery, but she still managed to go to class.

"They scraped the snow off of the sidewalk and it was icy underneath," Hannah said. "But I was wearing duck boots which helped."

Sarah Spindler, a freshman, said the conditions were too dangerous to brave and decided to stay in.

"There is not enough traction to keep me up out there," Spindler said.

Some students did not worry too much about the colder weather and the snow.

"I didn't look outside before I went to class," said Michael Ford, another student. "It was kind of slick, but not too bad."

Students living in Greg Page apartments found icy conditions in the parking lots when they went to their cars Thursday morning.

Laura Mesler, who lives at Greg Page, said that driving conditions were still slippery in spots.

"There are certain places around here that are pretty slippery, but they are still working on it," Mesler said.

Haggin Hall continued its tradition of a snowball fight on the first major snow of the year.

"It was a blast," said Kevin Mangus, who lives in Haggin Hall. Mangus estimated that there were between 50 and 60 people in the snowball fight. The participants had to be moved to the field next to Haggin after the RAs kicked them out of the courtyard, Mangus said.

According to a National Weather Service spokesman, Lexington received 1.5 inches of snow between Wednesday night and yesterday morning.

The low temperature for this week was 14 degrees yesterday morning, but temperatures were supposed to dip down to near five degrees last night.

No more snowfall is expected and the highs for Saturday are expected to be in the mid-20s, the spokesman said.

Martha Christian, supervisor at Metro Police Communications, said there were 26 reported injury and non-injury accidents after 6 a.m. yesterday morning. Although no major problems occurred yesterday, Christian said if the roads got worse last night because of icy conditions they may only be able to respond to injury accidents.

Universities put in plug at conference

By MARK R. CHELLEGRIN
Associated Press

Higher education interests put in their plug for recognition — and money — during the General Assembly's education conference yesterday.

"We wanted to be a part of the discussion and to have a prominent profile at this conference and to make sure that higher education remains a part of the package as it develops," said David Adkisson, chairman of the Kentucky Advocates for Higher Education, which sponsored the breakfast meeting.

Adkisson, who is also the mayor of Owensboro, said the whole spectrum of education is important.

"There is no excuse for pointing fingers and saying the education community can't get its act together," Adkisson said.

For Kentucky's universities and community colleges, the important topic is money.

Funding for higher education is funneled mainly through a formula that divides state appropriations based primarily on enrollment, but also takes such as public service and mission statements for the institutions.

Theoretically, the formula provides enough money for the universities to have public financing equal to the average of surrounding states.

This year, the state is providing approximately 84 percent of the amount of money needed to finance the full formula.

Next year, the state budget calls for $50 million for the formula. It would take an

Sorority anchor splash set to raise money for Lisa Whalen scholarship

By LISA TAYLOR
Contributing Writer

A new scholarship in memory of a former sorority sister killed last semester will highlight Sunday's Delta Gamma Anchor Splash.

A donation of a portion of the proceeds to the sorority raised Sunday will go toward establishing the Lisa Whalen Memorial Scholarship, according to Tracy Troyan, the sorority's foundation chairman.

The fund for Whalen, who joined the sorority in 1987, is a special focus for the sorority.

The 20-year-old UK junior was killed in an alcohol-related car accident last September on Euclid Avenue. Whalen was a passenger in the car driven by former UK student Bradley J. Shipman that went out of control and struck a telephone pole on the side of the road. One UK student was seriously injured in the accident.

Shipman was convicted of second-degree manslaughter and second-degree assault and was sentenced to two concurrent five-year terms.

Troyan said the Whalen scholarship will be available for all national members of Delta Gamma.

The scholarship will be established through Delta Gamma's executive offices in Columbus, Ohio. In order to establish a continuing $1,000 scholarship, $15,000 must be raised.

"The Delta Gammahas have a nationwide book of remembrance, and our national office suggested that we sponsor a scholarship for Lisa," Troyan said.

"We felt that Lisa was an important part of the chapter, and how she was killed — we felt that it was the least we could do for her."

A change in this year's splash is that all sororities will be allowed to compete for the first time in this year's greek swimming event.

By making that change, Delta Gamma President Susan Mesher said she hopes to raise more money.

The proceeds raised through Anchor Splash will be divided between the scholarship fund and donations for sight conservation and aid to the blind.

Many of the individual races during the event will be more creative than usual, Troyan said.

Seventeen teams are scheduled to compete in the races, which include swimming while wearing sweatshirts, and balancing pingpong balls while crossing the pool.

Synchronized swimming also will be another new competition, along with the traditional races and medleys. Winners will be awarded trophies.

In addition to raising money from the $2 admission price, special T-shirts will be sold at the event.

The greek community also has collected money for a hot-legs contest for fraternity members and a beautiful eyes contest for sororities. The winners will be announced at Anchor Splash.

The event will be held at the Memorial Coliseum pool from 6-10 p.m.

UK must try to slow down tempo against Orangemen

By BARRY REEVES
Staff Writer

If Eddie Sutton did not have enough things to worry about, he now must prepare his team to face the No. 6 team in the country — Syracuse University.

Even though UK finally ended its six-game losing streak Wednesday night, they are predicted to lose to the Orangemen in the Carrier Dome on Sunday afternoon.

"We are playing one of the best basketball teams in the country, and one that has a legitimate shot at winning the national championship," Sutton said. "It's a very unusual setting up there. Anytime you go into a dome atmosphere, it's rough."

The key for UK Sunday will be how effective they are in slowing down the game's tempo. The Syracuse offensive machine is averaging 92.1 points a game. The Orangemen are 1-5 when held under 80 points and 21-0 when they have scored more than 80 points.

"We will try and play a tempo that will keep the crowd out of the game," Sutton said. "We must stop their transition game, if we hope to win."

"Obviously, we would like to run. We play better in an up-tempo game," Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim said. "We try to pressure as much as we can in our half-court defense to try and force an up-tempo game."

If common opponents have anything to do with what will happen on Sunday, the Wildcats may be in for a very long afternoon.

UK and Syracuse share three common opponents — Indiana, Seton Hall and Notre Dame. UK lost to Indiana University by 23 points, Notre Dame University by 16 and Seton Hall University by three.

Syracuse has not only beaten all three teams, they have embarrassed them. Syracuse beat Indiana by 24 points, Notre Dame by 12 and Seton Hall by 24.

Record-breaking Gym Kats on a roll

By CHRIS HARVEY
Staff Writer

If there is a such thing as a moral victory, the Gym Kats performed their way to a moral victory last weekend in a dual meet against Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, La.

UK coach Leah Little's squad lost the meet, 191.25-188.8, but did come away with some unexpected record-shattering performances.

"Going in, we just wanted to survive," assistant coach Jeff Thompson said. "A number of girls did the best routines of their life."

The Gym Kats' first record performance of the day was turned in by freshman Amie Winn. Winn broke the UK record for uneven bars by posting a 9.7.

Winn also scored an impressive mind-boggling 38.50 for the all-around, which broke the old mark of 38.10 that was set earlier in the meet by UK senior Cindy Jasper.

"A 38 all-around average is like scoring 30 points in basketball," Thompson said. "Winn is one of the top girls (gymnasts) in the country."

Although her performances weren't of the magnitude of Winn's, Jasper had an equally good meet. Jasper, a Lexington native, scored a career-high 38.10 in the all-around. She also scored career highs on the uneven bars (9.5), floor (9.6) and balance beam (9.6), while finishing second on the beam.

"We got an outstanding performance from Cindy," Thompson said. "Her score was at least two points higher than her previous best."

In all, the Wildcats had 16 career-high performances to go along with six school records.

In addition to setting records, the Kats may have returned with something even more important — confidence. The team has been lacking confidence since it experienced a rash of quirky injuries.

"We definitely gained confidence," Jasper said. "We performed more like a team."

The Kats (2-4) are hoping the LSU meet will mean bigger and better things for them as they take on the University of New Hampshire (7-3) and Bowling Green State University (4-6) in a tri-meet at 7:30 tonight in Memorial Coliseum.

New Hampshire is led by senior Lori Brady, who scored highs in the vault and all-around at Vermont last weekend.

Bowling Green, despite their losing record, is currently on a three-match winning streak.

"If we do our routines like we did them at LSU, then everything should fall into place," UK assistant coach Brad Wunderlich said. "We need to maintain that level. I think that we're really starting to peak."

Consistency is something Wunderlich felt was coming all along.

"I've been expecting it all year," he said. "When people are trying hard and things are going bad, you know that when things go good that you'll have some exceptional performances."

Against New Hampshire and Bowling Green, the Kats probably won't have to pull off another record-setting performance to come away a winner tonight, Wunderlich said.

"They (Friday's opponents) have good talent, but they aren't as strong as teams in the SEC," he said. "We just need to perform our routines. We can't control how the other team performs, but we can control ours."

Improvement is necessary, if the Kats look to do well in the SEC tournament, Wunderlich said.

"We can improve a lot. We can still get a higher score here and there," he said.

In the SEC tournament, the Kats will be competing against perennial heavyweights — Alabama, Florida, Georgia and LSU — all of whom are ranked ahead of UK in the SEC.

Cats must slow tempo to beat Orangemen

Boheim's roster includes two top All-American candidates — Sherman Douglas and Derrick Coleman.

Douglas, a 6-0 senior, is considered by many as the best point guard in college basketball. Douglas is averaging 18.1 points and 8.8 assists per game.

06408901 "Douglas is a great point guard," Sutton said. "He throws the alley-oop better than anybody I've ever seen."

for us, and he's had two great seasons before," Boheim said.

"He's going to become our all-time leading scorer and set the assists record for the nation within the next two games or so."

"When he's (Sherman) healthy, he's as fine a point guard as I've ever seen," he said. "When he's not been healthy this year, we've had problems winning."

In mid-January, the Orangemen ran into some trouble when Douglas' playing time was severely limited by a leg injury.

Wrocklage dragging in Scruffy The Cat show

By JODI WHITAKER
Staff Writer

It was noon last Friday. Charlie had just gotten up and thrown some "stuff" in pots on the stove. "Excuse me," he said as he put down the phone and went to turn off the stove. I asked if I should call back later and give him time to eat. "No, that's OK," he said. "I don't think it matters whether charred food is hot or cold."

Such is the life of Charlie Chesterman, lead singer and "sometimes guitarist" of Scruffy The Cat, the day after returning from a week on the road.

That week on the road was just the beginning of a tour that will take the band to nightclubs and a few universities east of the Mississippi through June or July. Tomorrow night, the tour will make a stop here in Lexington at the Wrocklage.

Throughout the tour, Scruffy will be promoting their latest album, Moons of Jupiter, released last fall on Relativity records.

Moons of Jupiter, the fourth release from the Boston-based band, was recorded in Memphis, Tenn., at Ardent Studios in a mere 11 days under the production of Replacements producer Jim Dickinson.

One of Chesterman's favorite stops from previous tours was Sadey Malone's Laundrymat and Bar in Cincinnati.

"It's one of the greatest concepts ever," Chesterman said of being able to do laundry and eat a live band at the same time.

So what brings these guys to Lexington? Why the Wrocklage? "Someone obviously wants to see us play there," Chesterman said. "We'd set up in someone's living room if they wanted us to."

Not that they would have time, of course. After the tour, the band hopes to go back into the studio in Memphis to work on another album.

"Maybe we'll just go to the beach a lot," Chesterman said.

Scruffy The Cat was formed five years ago in Boston, the brainchild of Chesterman and bassist MacPaul Stanfield. The two left their homes in Iowa to venture to the town Chesterman considers to have "one of the best music scenes in the U.S."

In Boston, Chesterman and Stanfield joined up with Stephen Fretette (guitars and vocals), Randall Gibson (drums) and Burns Stanfield (MacPaul's brother) and the band was complete.

They took their name not from a pet, but from a remark made by "someone's mom" as to what they sound like.

"We do yowl a lot and look kind of mangy," Chesterman said.

Prior to Moons of Jupiter, Scruffy started out as a side project, but turned out to be more than that. Unfortunately for the band, their record company did not think the

Woods saves 'True Believer'

By DAWN FELICICCHIA
Contributing Critic

The energy and believability of James Woods' performance saves "True Believer" from becoming just another formula thriller.

In the film, Woods plays Eddie Dodd, a brilliant trial lawyer and one-time champion of civil liberties who has lost his idealism and sold out for a lucrative specialization in drug law.

Now under pressure from Roger Baron, his idealistic young law clerk (Robert Downey Jr.), Eddie takes a murder case, a Korean convict who has just killed a fellow inmate but claims he's doing time for a murder he didn't commit. Though cynical at first, Eddie begins to believe his client is innocent. Soon, proving this in court becomes his last-ditch effort to regain his own passion and belief in justice and the law.

Though we never doubt that Eddie will win his case, Woods' performance saves this plot premise from seeming overly corny.

Maybe this is because the passion that Woods brings to his portrayal of the disillusioned lawyer propels the movie to its conclusion much faster than the plot.

Robert Downey Jr. is good in his puppyish portrayal of the young law clerk whose idealism shames Eddie into action.

These two actors work well together and the godly edge Downey gives his character is a good foil to contrast with the pony-tailed, sixties hip of Wood's character.

Although it lacks originality in plot (it has shades of "Witness"), as a movie that creates interesting characters and then actually lets them develop, "True Believer" is a true success.

"True Believer," rated R, is now playing at Crossroads cinemas.

SGA needs to forget about government and start serving

The UK Student Government Association evidently equates the "G" in its name with real power. But in trying to flex its muscles on two issues — 24-hour visitation in the dormitories and Radio Free Lexington — in the last month, they've found out how wrong that assumption is.

Two SGA senators at large, Sean Lohman and Paige Foster, wrote the proposal late last month calling for a 24-hour visitation policy in a select number of residence halls on the UK campus.

The proposal, however, angered members of the Residence Hall Association, who don't want, and have voted against, 24-hour visitation in the past.

The proposal is now on the backburner, and presumably Lohman's presidential campaign platform. Foster is Lohman's running mate. Lohman told a Kernel reporter the proposal was in its early stages, and a story should not have been written. The bill, which had been floating around the SGA office for days, should not have been written by Lohman.

But more importantly, the newly formed RHA had every right to be angered. If 24-hour visitation becomes an issue, it should start with RHA, not with SGA.

The Residence Hall Association is the official representative of students in the dormitories. Once RHA makes such a move, then SGA should act on it — not before.

In making the residence-hall proposal, Lohman and Foster simply overstepped their bounds, either an honest mistake, or the result of an overzealous campaign for the SGA executive branch.

But that discretion pales in comparison to this week's proposal by SGA Senator at Large Saj Rizvi to create an advisory board for the campus radio station, WRFL-FM. Rizvi originally wanted to create a governing board — composed of student-government types and other musical illiterates — to oversee the station.

Rizvi, however, neglected to find out that a Student Media Board, which selects the station's leadership, already exists.

Rizvi evidently received some heat for his blatantly unintelligible proposal and modified it at the last minute. His final proposal called for an "advisory" board, which would conduct a survey to see if the station was responsive to students' musical desires.

Evidently, Senator Rizvi did not know about the survey taken last school year (the one scientifically conducted by the Survey Research Center, by the way), in which 78 percent of the students favored an "alternative" radio station.

Rizvi's proposal did not acknowledge these factors, but then again, the proposal was not about musical selection — it was about power.

Rizvi somehow got the idea that because students pay $1 of their activities fee to WRFL, the station is acceptable to SGA. But that's not the case.

The station's license dictates, in part, its musical format. SGA does not, and should not, have a say in how those funds are spent. Student government should worry more about how its spending the $2.50 it gets from students in activities fees, than about whether the campus radio station plays Madonna.

There's a thing called a radio dial that allows you to flip real easily from one station to another when you don't like what's on the radio. Perhaps Rizvi and others at SGA need an advisory board to tell them how to use that dial. But most of us don't.

Real power means responsibility. But SGA, frankly, has forgotten that important prerequisite to true power. Students sense that, and thus, they don't take SGA seriously.

In trying to flex its quickly atrophying muscles, student government has lost sight of what its one purpose and one objective should be — serving students.

Serving students does not mean governmental authority. It does not mean regulating what the student radio station plays at 2 a.m., and does not mean overstepping its boundaries in proposing legislation that is someone else's domain.

This recent action by SGA is the reason behind Kernel columnist C.A. Duane Bonifer's suggestion last year that SGA take the "G" out of its name.

To be sure, such a move would be symbolic and wouldn't mean any real change. But it would at least show what kind of organization SGA is supposed to be.

Student services like the recent self-defense seminar, lobbying the state legislature for more funding to higher education, and to a lesser extent, the campus-wide formal "Excelsior," are what student representation at UK should be about.

And it also would show our student representatives that they have no real governmental power.

Perhaps then, they would stop trying to flex muscles they don't have.

GO TO MEDICAL SCHOOL

TUITION PAID

Find out how you can have your medical school tuition, required books and fees paid in full — plus earn more than $600 a month while you attend school.

Clip and mail the coupon below, and we'll send you full details on the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program.

We'll tell you how you could qualify for a Physician's Scholarship from the Army, Navy or Air Force.

If selected, you'll not only beat the high cost of medical school, you'll also gain valuable medical experience serving on active duty 45 days each school year as a commissioned officer in the Reserves.

After graduation, you'll serve three years or more — depending on the Service you select and the level of scholarship assistance you receive — as a respected Armed Forces physician. You'll also get good pay, regular hours, great benefits and the chance to work with a variety of patients and the latest medical technology.

If you meet the age requirements noted below for the Service of your choice — and want to cut the expense of medical school — send for more information today.

YES! Send me full details on how the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program can help cut my medical school expenses. I meet the age requirements noted below. I understand I am under no obligation.

Sutton says he plans to remain Wildcat coach

ers," Sutton said. "And I find it difficult to believe that any loyal Kentuckian, anyone that loves the University of Kentucky, would continue to do this."

Sutton said he heard about the newspaper's report on ESPN late Wednesday night after the UK-UT basketball game.

"We had about an hour to savor the victory before it came over," Sutton said. "But the things that have happened recently I don't think you can be surprised these days at anything that might pop up."

Rumors have circulated about Sutton's job since the NCAA charged the men's basketball program with 18 allegations of wrongdoing, including improper recruiting, and charges that a player cheated on his college entrance exam.

On Sunday, The Courier-Journal reported that UK's response to the allegations indicated Sutton may have wanted a high school basketball coach "to give false and misleading information to the NCAA" about the transportation of UK basketball players Eric Manuel and Sean Sutton to a college entrance exam in Lexington in June 1987.

Sutton, who has denied any charges of wrongdoing, said he talked to Burch at practice, and Burch told him he would "coach through this year, and said nothing further."

Rose told the Dispatch he was one of "four or five" people interviewed for the UK coaching job when Sutton accepted it in 1985.

"So I'm well acquainted with the situation at Kentucky," he told the newspaper.

Rose could not be reached for comment yesterday. Tom Hammond, play-by-play announcer for Jefferson-Pilot Saturday afternoon Conference basketball telecasts and a Lexington resident, told the Kernel yesterday that Rose "was happy in the pro's."

"He wanted the UK job in 1985," he said. "I'm sure he was somewhat disappointed yesterday," Hammond said. "He was one of the final candidates (then). I'm sure he'll be a candidate, should it open."

Larson says drug use equals crime in society

By TONJAWILT
Staff Writer

"Drugs equal crime", Commonwealth Attorney Ray Larson told members of the Donovan Scholars Program yesterday.

"If you reduce the drugs there is going to be a corollary reduction in crime. It's simple," Larson told about 35 people in the Student Center yesterday.

Larson stressed the importance of programs for drug offenders and programs on drug abuse starting in elementary schools in his lecture sponsored by the Donovan Scholars Program.

One of the drug abuse programs Fayette County put into effect is the Drug Abuse Resistance Education Program.

DARE focuses on educating elementary school students through a more consistent presentation of facts. Instead of scaring students, the program provides them with information about drugs and teaches them how to deal with peer pressure, Larson said.

As a part of this project, trained police officers are sent to elementary schools one day each week to teach a 45-minute class on drug abuse resistance.

"The results were so positive that now they have expanded to every elementary school in Fayette County except Lexington," Larson said. "You know when this program is working when parents call and say 'My child is on me about smoking, my child is on me about drinking. What are you doing?'"

Fayette County also has started the Surveillance in Treatment On Probation program, which entails a number of solutions to first time and repeated offenders of drug abuse.

"We are going to force them to go through a mandatory drug testing twice a week," Larson said.

Higher education makes its plug at conference

additional $107 million to reach the full formula figure.

"The funding that's provided is only designed to make us average or a little better," said Western Kentucky University President Thomas Meredith, one of the speakers at the morning meeting.

"If you talk about less than that," Meredith said, "you're talking about funding less than average."

Meredith and Gary Cox, director of the state Council on Higher Education, said the lack of public financing has hurt the universities in trying to provide competitive faculty and staff salaries, capital construction and maintenance and their ability to serve students.

Meredith said the ironic part is that more Kentuckians are seeking services from the universities and state appropriations have not kept pace.

"This state is crying for help from higher education," Meredith said.

Enrollments during the fall semester at all eight public universities and every community college were higher than the previous year and more people in Kentucky are attending college than ever before.

Meredith said there is a danger that the lack of funding could force universities to turn potential students away.
