NCAA, UK to investigate basketball program

Officials mum on progress of probes

AP and Staff reports

UK President David Roselle said yesterday a University office has been sent to Los Angeles to look into a newspaper report of a possible basketball program violation of NCAA recruiting rules.

UK also has hired independent counsel James Park to look into the (Los Angeles) Daily News article which reported a package sent by UK assistant coach Dwane Casey to a L.A. recruit's father contained $1,000 cash.

"It's our intention to find out what happened," Roselle said. "The University of Kentucky intends to function fully as a member of the NCAA."

"Right now, we don't know the status of the investigation," he said.

The NCAA also is investigating the matter.

"Any information will be released jointly by UK and the NCAA," Roselle said. When it will be released is "speculative at this point."

Article produces diverse reaction on campus

A story in yesterday's (Los Angeles) Daily News reported that a package sent via Emery Air Freight by UK assistant basketball coach Dwane Casey to Claud Mills, the father of UK basketball recruit Chris Mills, contained $1,000 in cash.

Casey denied knowing putting any money in the package and called the accusation "ridiculous."

UK students and staff interviewed yesterday split their reaction to the story. Some said UK was guilty, others said UK was framed, some blamed the media and others said no matter what had happened, UK needed to clean up its image.

Veronica Duncan, a communications senior, said UK is guilty.

"I think the truth about UK is just coming out full force," Duncan said. "UK's just really getting caught at a lot of things that have gone on for a very long time ... that's how I feel."

But Paul Corio, an employee of the Center for Academic Tutorial Services, said the situation leads him to believe that UK is being "set up."

"Doesn't it sound kind of fishy? What kind of idiot would mail a package with $1,000 when there was any chance of getting caught?" Corio said. "It sounds like a setup. It sounds very fishy."

Jim Geisler, a finance senior, blamed the media for some of UK's woes.

"It just always seems like we're in trouble in the media," Geisler said. "Like IU's (Indiana University) always in white and we're always in black ... so I just think we're just easy to pick on at this point."

Geisler said he wanted more proof backing the story.

"If they're gonna make an allegation I'd like to see it based on a little more than coincidence," Geisler said of the package's accidental opening.

"I got a package from Emery about a week ago and I couldn't get into it," he said.

Kakie Urch, music director for WRFL, said that she also thinks "it could be a setup."

"I'd like to think that the basketball program is making good on their promise to clean up the program," Urch said. "I think the program under Coach (Eddie) Sutton is a lot more open and honest than in any years previous."

Jerry See, a history senior, said he wasn't surprised that UK has been accused of paying basketball recruits, but said he thinks the allegations are false.

"I'm not surprised, but personally I don't think they're guilty," See said. "But as basketball commentators, Al McGuire says, UK's got the best program in the country. Why would they need to pay a player $1,000 to come play here?"

Jim Howard, an English senior, said that the situation bothers him.

"My big beef with this is how did the package get accidentally open?" Howard said. "This is a responsible air freight company. Guilty or not guilty—I can't say."

Ursula Miller, an international business freshman, said that she thinks UK is guilty.

"I guess it's a problem and this time they got caught," Miller said.

Tony Dyer, a post bachelorette student, said UK suffers undue scrutiny because of its success.

"I think because of the way UK's program is put together with so

Governor's remarks anger protesters

By CHARLES WOLFE
 Associated Press

FRANKFORT — Gov. Wallace Wilkinson, saying "to kick an old friend when he's down" would serve no purpose," refused yesterday to oust former Gov. A.B. "Happy" Chandler from the University of Kentucky governing board over Chandler's public use of a racial slur.

The 89-year-old Chandler, a former U.S. senator and baseball commissioner and now a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, used the racial slur last week at a meeting of a UK Board of Trustees committee.

Chandler further inflamed his critics by saying he recalled from childhood that blacks did not object to the epithet. He also said he would not resign from the UK board unless Wilkinson demanded it.

Wilkinson's statement brought heckling and a few shouted obscenities from about 200 people who marched at the Capitol to press demands for Chandler's resignation or removal from the UK Board of Trustees.

More than 100 students went from UK to the rally in Frankfort. A group, calling themselves the United Student Association for Racial Justice, invited students to walk out of their classes yesterday at 11:15 to attend the rally.

The group, along with asking for Chandler's resignation from the UK BOT, is also asking the University to establish an ongoing task force to study and improve race relations on campus.

Wilkinson admitted that Chandler's remark was inappropriate and has caused a sensitive situation.

"Governor Chandler's remark was deplorable. It should never have been said. . . . The remark has embarrassed the commonwealth and it has embarrassed me," said Wilkinson, who appointed Chandler to the prestigious board seat.

But when it became clear that Wilkinson was not going to pledge to remove Chandler, the governor's speech was interrupted by booing and catcalls.

"Let me finish it," Wilkinson told the crowd.

"To kick an old friend when he's down, an 89-year-old friend of mine and this commonwealth and the university, would serve no purpose," Wilkinson said. "I am not going to condemn a lifetime of achievement . . . for an indiscretion."

Chandler's removal from the UK board would not eradicate racism or improve human relations, Wilkinson said.

"This unfortunate incident has passed. It's time to move on," Wilkinson said. "I think Kentuckians are big enough to forgive . . . and strong enough to heal."

But that seemed only to spur the crowd, most of them black, who began a lusty chant of "Happy's got to go."

"I think emotions are running high," Wilkinson told reporters as he tried to move away. Button-holed by several people along the way, he once remarked, "I could have shield away, but I did what I thought was right."

But Wilkinson's theme had been attacked by some of the speakers at the protest-rally before he walked outside the Capitol to meet them.

Gerald Neal, a black state Senate candidate from Louisville, said some had tried to trivialize Chandler's remark as "benign," but that it was symptomatic of an ingrained racism. Neal's opponent in the Democratic primary, Mattie Jones, said "this kind of language and this kind of mentality" evidenced by Chandler was deplorable in political officials.

State Rep. Porter Hatcher, D-Louisville, and Lexington-Fayette Urban County Councilman Michael Wilson, both black, read resolutions calling for Chandler's resignation or removal.

Hatcher's resolution was read aloud in the Kentucky House later Thursday, but Hatcher did not make a motion for its adoption. Wilson said his resolution would be introduced at the next council session in Lexington.

Chandler has denied he is a racist, pointing to his use of troops while governor to enforce integration in Union and Webster counties. He also cited his role while baseball commissioner in approving the transfer of Jackie

Columnist says state politics hurting educational efforts

By JULIE ESSELMAN
 Staff Writer

Saying the need for "depressing truth" has never been so great as it is today, Courier-Journal columnist John Ed Pearce painted a dismal picture last night of Kentucky's educational and economic condition while blasting the state's leaders for letting political concerns interfere with progress.

In the 11th annual Joe Creason lecture held at the Singletary Center for the Arts, Pearce told an audience of about 300 that Kentucky faces a "frightening" economic future and "the only answer is a vastly improved educational system."

Pearce, a Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist and member of the Kentucky Journalism Hall of Fame, said although industrial investment is expected to increase in Kentucky, 92 percent of that will be made in the Louisville-Lexington-Covington area. This will make the rest of the state like "the third world," he said.

"You could put Toyota plants in each county and wouldn't solve the problem," he said, because "400,000 people can't even fill out employment forms."

Pearce blamed the lack of educational progress on ineffective and uncommitted leaders who refuse to spend enough money on education.

"I've heard candidates for 50 years promise better education . . . without raising taxes," he said. "It has never worked and won't work now. It's left us in real economic trouble."

Pearce said this problem is seen in Kentucky's high unemployment rates, number of bankrupt counties, low rank in per capita income and the high number of families below the poverty level.

"We need to pay modern taxes for modern services if we expect to survive in a modern world," he said. "I'm not saying Kentuckians are cheap, but when it comes to schools, we're enormously frugal."

Pearce also said that the "blatant use of our schools for political purposes continues to hurt us."

He criticized Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's proposed policy of giving teachers monetary rewards because he said teachers would be chosen for political support, rather than merit.

Pearce also criticized Wilkinson's response to teachers who asked for more money for higher education at a March rally in Frankfort.

"The governor says education is his priority," he said. "Well, you could fool me."

While Pearce briefly commented on the "tragedy" of former Gov. A.B. "Happy" Chandler's racial remark at a UK Board of Trustees committee meeting last week, saying Chandler's opposition to bestowing higher education advocate Robert Bell with an honorary degree from UK deserved more attention.

"He opposed this well-deserved

Hunt, Hobbs get top honors at banquet

Staff reports

The Otis A. Singletary Outstanding student awards were awarded last night with Student Activities Board President Lynne Hunt and Omicron Delta Kappa President Kevin Hobbs winning top honors.

Hunt has been SAB president for two years. Hobbs is a member of the Farmhouse Fraternity.

The Outstanding Junior award went to Tommy Wade. Outstanding Sophomore went to Scott Kuhn. Outstanding Freshman went to Sean Lohman.

The Zumwinkle Student Rights Award was shared by Student Government Association Senator at Large David Boltkins and David Holton, a UK law student and higher education advocate.

The Office of Minority Affairs and Humanities Award went to SGA President Cyndi Weaver.

The Algernon Sydney Sullivan Medallions, which are awarded to one graduating man, one graduating woman and a faculty citizen, were also announced. Julie C. Quick and Charles A. Jones were the two student recipients. Richard E. Cooper, a Kentucky citizen, was awarded for his association with UK.

The A. Paul Nestor Employee Creativity and Excellence Award went to Faye A. Biddle, bureau supervisor for Duplicating Services, for her outstanding job performance.

The highlight of the ceremonies was the investiture of Roselle as the ninth UK president. Former UK President Otis A. Singletary passed on the official seal of the University after Roselle took the oath of office, administered by Robert McCowan, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Singletary also gave his presidential medallion to UK saying it was "symbolic of the office of the president . . . to be held in trust by all future presidents of this fine institution."

Gov. Chandler should do UK a service and resign from BOT

A.B. Chandler should step down from the UK Board of Trustees. This situation would not have been blown out of proportion if Chandler had apologized when first asked. Chandler has no one but himself to blame for his slip of the tongue and he should acknowledge it.

It doesn't help the situation by calling the football players stupid. They stood up for something they believed. "Stupid" is not a legitimate term to use in a rebuttal. It makes Chandler look stupid.

I forgive Chandler for his slip of the tongue, but he should have learned from his mistake. I do not forgive him for constantly referring to the female reporter who reported the incident (the racial remark) as "the girl." He also refers to our former governor, Martha Layne Collins, as "the girl in the governor's house." On WLEX's "Your Government," Chandler talked about the five football coaches and "one black boy." Chandler, I'm sure that that "one black boy" is a man.

This proves to me he will never learn. I have read and heard many people use the term compassion in reference to Chandler. Well, compassion to me also means the ability to respect and be aware of other people's feelings. Black men are not "boys" and women are not "girls" anymore. I also hear in reference to Chandler "back in his time. . ."

Guest OPINION

I don't care what happened back then. People were not treated equally. Now we don't have to put up with it and we shouldn't.

It doesn't concern me what Chandler does say in private among his friends. It does concern me what he might say in the future in public. I have pointed out that he hasn't learned from his mistake.

I haven't forgotten all of Chandler's contributions, for he has reminded me of them. All I can say is: That's great! Thanks for throwing it up in our faces again and again. Gov. Wilkinson should have the guts to make a stand and answer questions from the press and end this controversy.

Chandler might have been qualified to serve on the BOT when appointed, but it's evident that he does not belong on the BOT now. Chandler is a public figure. He is a representative of Kentucky around the nation. I definitely do not want to be represented by him now.

We can forgive him. We cannot let him stay on the BOT just because of his past contributions or because he makes a few tears (OK, lots of tears) come to people's eyes when singing "My Old Kentucky Home." People on the BOT make decisions for the future. All I hear Chandler talk about is what he has done for Lexington in the past.

What has been achieved in the past is not the issue, rather, what is occurring right now and the ramifications that will extend to us as students of the University and the state of Kentucky as a whole. It is time to stop explaining the mistakes "Happy" has made — it is time to stop the mistake. If this University, as a research university, is truly committed to growth, what choice remains but to eliminate people who impede that progress?

Sorry, "Happy," you are not above judgment or action. Let something positive come out of this experience and turn your position over to someone else.

More pressing issues than Chandler

Every one of us grew up in a more prejudiced world than today. Many remnants of these years linger on with many of us, depending on age, part of the country, etc. The characteristics to remain the longest will probably be the racial slang of our languages. "Happy" Chandler grew up in a day when such references were commonplace and not necessarily derogatory. Most of us have fortunately grown up in a time when these references are unacceptable. This is progress. The personal contributions of "Happy" to the state of Kentucky continue to rank at the top. His accomplishments as statesman of Kentucky are unmatched in this century. Certainly, his actions have reflected full support and promotion of equal and plentiful opportunities for all, particularly the students.

Please, let's not continue to crucify such a good and loyal man over a slip of the tongue (unfortunately, an age-old reference). He has apologized, and I think that his word has come to mean enough in Kentucky that we can accept his apology.

Jump off that ill-fated handwagon and stand up for "Happy" and allow him to remain on the BOT.

Now to address the remainder of the problem. A good many people have worked up quite a frenzy over this "Happy thing," and they have a lot of collective energy to spend. We need another cause to support. What better cause than raising money for a fellow student in need, and seriously ill as well.

The "Happy" Chandler-kind-of-thing" to do would be support Viji.

Information about this is most readily available and she's still in need and sick. Now that is an unacceptable situation.

Bunnymen to play UK tomorrow

By ERIK REECE
Arts Editor

While their title has nothing to do with Greek myth (Echo was the name of the band's now extinct drum machine), lead singer Ian McCulloch might be under a slight spell of narcissism.

Echo and the Bunnymen, who will perform tomorrow night at 8 in Memorial Coliseum, are currently on their most successful American tour.

The lead singer of the Liverpool band is finding himself rushed by American girls while on stage. Spin's Anton Corbin observed, "Girls scream at Ian's leazy sexual gestures and stage invasions are common. In short, it's a triumph." It sort of reminds you of another Liverpool band. Maybe history repeats itself.

The 9-year-old band is currently touring behind its self-titled fifth album. It is the band's most accessible LP. "Lips Like Sugar" is a straight-ahead, made-for-radio single.

In the past, the material on the albums have been a little hard to swallow. Ocean Rain was thick with metaphorical rambling. "Man's got to be his own savior," and religious wordplay ("I've decided to wear my thorn of crowns"). It was also backed by a full orchestra that provided a rather elevated sound.

Echo and the Bunnymen are touring behind the strength of their self-titled, fifth album.

WHEN, WHERE AND HOW MUCH

Echo and the Bunnymen will be in concert tomorrow night at 8 in Memorial Coliseum. Tickets are $10 at the Student Center box office and Disc Jockey Records.

However, Echo's live shows are said to be somewhat lighter in mood and filled with less heady rock numbers including "Soul Kitchen" and "Twist and Shout."

The band has also reverted back to an early stage set of camouflage-netting.

Fittingly enough, the Echo reputation has been built on word of mouth. Their videos aren't "Hip Clips of the Week" or other commercial nonsense like that.

Tomorrow's concert will be the first (and probably the last) of the semester sponsored by the Student Activity Board's Concert Committee.

'Shop' adds comic flair to musical

By ROB SENG
Senior Staff Critic

Some things never change. "Little Shop of Horrors" was a cheesy movie when it was made in the '60s. It was later made into a cheesy play and movie.

Of course, that isn't to say that cheesy can't be entertaining. And director Russell Henderson and his cast definitely had a good time in putting it on last night as the last play of UK's theater season.

This version is a bit more playful and tongue-in-cheek than the one that was performed at Actors Theatre last spring. That version remained faithful to the movie and little of its own energy and originality.

Henderson toys with the notion that this is a movie set by leaving lighting and set exposed. A ditty blonde who announces each take with a clapboard provides a few laughs.

A large chorus, which seems a bit cramped on the small set, helps narrate the story of a carnivorous plant and its geeky owner through song and dance. The action takes place in Mushnik's Flower Shop located on Skid Row. Seymour Kreiborn is the dork who helps the near-broke Mushnik's business to flourish through the strange plant that he cares for.

Kreiborn names the plant Audrey II after the ditty blonde who works at the shop and whom Seymour has a crush on. But the plant gets a little droopy and Seymour can't figure out how to get it to grow.

Audrey II plants the seed for mayhem when it tells him it requires standing in the musical numbers as Audrey. The meekness in her voice in the wistful "Somewhere That's Green" gives way to some soaring vocals during "Suddenly, Seymour."

John Brackett is a much more menacing figure than Steve Martin was as Scervello and the last line of his song takes on new meaning in a theater setting as he yells to the crowd to say "Ah" and then spits.

Set and lighting designer Zak Herzig has done a good job of coming up with an appropriately parodic set that might have used some lighting in some spots. But, for a musical, the technical problems were few.

The addition of hand mikes was a little distracting in some of the numbers. Obviously, it was thought that they were necessary in order to overcome the accompanying rock band.

Comparisons to the comedians from the film are inevitable but the actors do a fine job in adding their own touches to their roles. Billy Breed acts the part of Seymour with the appropriate amount of gawkiness, but his voice quivered a bit in some of the numbers.

Kathryn Dixon is particularly out-

Film 'Colors' banned in L.A. due to violence

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A downtown theater operator said Wednesday he is yanking the controversial film "Colors," which is about street gangs, because his staff is afraid it will attract violence.

"The staff at the theater were in a panic because the home turf of one of the gangs in the movie is just a couple of miles from downtown," said Bob Laemmle, co-owner of the popular Laemmle theater chain.

The movie, which stars Sean Penn and Robert Duvall as Los Angeles policemen battling street gangs, is set to open today. It was scheduled to be shown at the Laemmle Grand, which is downtown next to a luxury hotel.

"The fact that a movie theater ... two days before, decides not to play a motion picture — that happens all the time," said Joel Resnick, who is in charge of distribution for Orion Pictures. He said about 70 theaters in the greater Los Angeles area will show the film.

Before a screening of the film Wednesday, director Dennis Hopper, the film's director, said: "There is nothing in this film that glorifies being in a gang." He said that the film story is told from police officers' point of view.

"I don't know how people can twist it around and say 'I'm glorifying gangs,'" he said.

Almost 100 people have been killed this year in gang-related violence in Los Angeles County. Last year, there were 387 gang-related killings in the county.

No. 2 lady golfer out with back sprain

By WARREN HAVENS
Contributing Writer

Lady Kat senior Noelle Daghe, UK's No. 2 golfer, will miss this weekend's Woodbridge Collegiate in Charlotte, N.C., with severe back pain, the result of strained muscles in her lower back.

The 12th-ranked Kats will desperately miss Daghe, who participated in the 1987 U.S. Open, according to coach Bettie Lou Evans.

Daghe, who began experiencing the pain 11 days ago, was unable to move Monday morning. She had further complicated her injury this past weekend while helping the Lady Kats to a first-place finish over Duke in the Lady Palatin Invitational at Furman University in Greenville, S.C.

"We wouldn't have won the tournament without her," Evans said. "On the advice of her doctor, she made the trip (to Furman). She was in pain and we were stretching her every five holes."

UK trainer Sue Stanley said Daghe has a severe back sprain. She said X-rays in search of a bone irregularity were negative.

Daghe began a regimen of traction, ice and muscle stimulations. Stanley said the unnatural motions that golfers' backs are put through makes back injuries a common ailment for these athletes.

"It's a typical injury," Stanley said. "You see a lot of bad backs in golfers. Noelle's situation is very painful due to the muscle spasms that she is experiencing."

Evans said Daghe and All-American Kate Rogerson are the reason that Kentucky has attained such a lofty national ranking. Stanley said Daghe should be able to play again in time for the SEC tournament May 6-8 in Gulf Breeze, Fla. With only one tournament remaining before the SEC, however, Evans was counting on Daghe's round as counting scores toward qualifying for Nationals, to be held May 25-28 in Las Cruces, N.M.

"Noelle's ... run our hopes of returning to Nationals," Evans added. "We needed her in this weekend's tourney to add one last qualifying score. We haven't played a round of golf this year in which she hasn't contributed greatly."

Daghe's round average is 76, second to teammate Rogerson. Daghe finished third in the 18-team Lady Seminole Invitational in Tallahassee, Fla., and second by a stroke to Rogerson in Kentucky's Lady Kat Invitational in the fall.

Bat Cats clobber Morehead

The UK baseball team ended its two-game losing streak to down Morehead St. yesterday, 22-6, at Somo Allen Stadium in Morehead.

Rick Norton and Darin Rieman each had four hits for UK as the Wildcats improved its record to 20-15 on the season. Morehead is now 11-22.

Norton, a freshman catcher, singled three times, doubled once and scored four runs. Rieman, a sophomore third baseman, hit two home runs, doubled once and knocked in five runs.

UK Right fielder Sam Taylor added three hits, including two homers, as the Wildcats cranked 21 hits off four Morehead pitchers. Kentucky scored in every inning.

Kentucky broke open the game with eight fourth-inning runs to make it a 14-4 game. Taylor knocked in two runs with a single and designated hitter Vince Castaldo brought home three more with a bases-loaded double.

The 22 runs was the most scored since UK out-slugged Morehead 23-12 on April 6, 1984.

UK senior right-hander Jim Law, 2-0, pitched seven innings to pick up the win. Law allowed six hits and five runs.

•Basketball program to be probed

Wednesday Sutton had denied that any money was sent by Casey. "I can promise you it didn't occur," he said. "I feel very confident in my assistant coaches. I don't believe it."

Casey, interviewed in person in Pittsburgh last Friday, said he had sent the videotape but denied he had put money in the package.

"We don't recruit that way," Casey said. "But I have never, ever put any money in a package. That accusation is ridiculous."

But Casey declined when given the opportunity yesterday to deny that he sent the money.

Casey, in Louisiana to interview for the head coaching position at the University of New Orleans, was asked by reporters how he would reply to the question: "Did you send the money?"

"I would say, 'No comment,'" Casey responded.

He added: "Anytime you're recruiting, you're going to have a lot of allegations, innuendos and assumptions. The situation everyone is talking about is very unfortunate. It was one of many that's been going on all year long. The school is investigating, the NCAA is investigating and the ultimate thing is to wait and see what they come up with."

Chris Mills, a 6-foot-7 Parade All-American who signed with Kentucky on Nov. 11, was in Albuquerque, N.M., yesterday practicing for Sunday's McDonald's All-American Classic and refused comment. Chris Mills had told the Daily News he knew nothing about the money.

His father told WAVE-TV in Louisville yesterday that he never received any money from Casey.

"Nobody ever offered us nothing," he said. "The only thing they offered us was a four-year scholarship."

Rosselle said UK first heard about the matter last Friday evening. After a short investigation, the University called the NCAA enforcement staff.

NCAA officials said serious penalties could be imposed if the allegation is substantiated.

"It's called improper inducement," David Berst, NCAA director of enforcement, said in a telephone interview from NCAA headquarters in Mission, Kan. "Cash inducement isn't the sort of thing you need a handbook to figure out if it's a violation."

Berst said the penalty would depend on the circumstances surrounding the infraction.

"If there are recruiting violations that occurred, it would mean the eligibility of the athlete. He simply would not be eligible to play at Kentucky. ... it could only affect the school if information was withheld."

Berst would not comment on the investigation's results.

UK Athletics Director Cliff Hagan was in St. Louis for a reunion of the former St. Louis Hawks pro basketball team. Rosselle said yesterday that he had not met with Hagan or Sutton.

One Kentucky player yesterday came to the defense of Casey.

"We believe in our coaches," freshman forward Eric Manuel said. "We don't think anything ever happened. We hope somebody is making it up. We know that Coach Casey is a fine coach and he would never do anything like send money to get a player to come to school here."

Last month, the NCAA Committee on Infractions publicly reprimanded UK for not fully cooperating with an earlier NCAA investigation. The NCAA ordered Kentucky to monitor athletic expenditures and report its results to the NCAA for three years.

That investigation was prompted by a series of articles in the Lexington Herald-Leader that quoted former players as saying that Kentucky basketball recruits received cash, clothing and extravagant gifts in a consistent pattern of abuse dating back to the 1970s.

The NCAA said it found no proof of violations within its four-year statute of limitations.

UK officials had different things to say about the effect of the two investigations on the program.

John Darsie, head of UK's legal counsel, said the program's image would be hurt "only if it's proven."

"Anybody can be accused of anything," Darsie said. "I don't think that's going to have an effect on it (UK's image)."

Russell Rice, assistant to the athletics director, said the situation stemmed from UK's college basketball prominence.

"I remember a (Adolph) Rupp quote: 'When you're on top of the mountain, somebody's always trying to knock you off.'"

Comm. college rededicates building to begin 2nd decade

By HEIDI PROBST
Staff Writer

The College of Communications began its second decade at 10 a.m. yesterday with a rededication of the Grehan Building.

Communications Professor Beverly Snyder cut the blue and white ribbons tied in the foyer of the building, whose recent renovation put all communications departments together under one roof.

The college's various departments — journalism, communications, advertising and telecommunications — had been scattered throughout campus in different buildings, said Robert Murphy, dean of the college during the years of 1968-77.

"We needed to get the college together," Murphy said.

Herbert Dremson, also a former dean, said the reconstruction also allowed more space for student publications, which is now housed in the basement.

The event marked the beginning of the college's second decade and marked a time to thank everybody for their contributions, said Douglas Boyd, dean of the college.

"We want to recognize people and thank them for what they have done," Boyd said.

He said the college's faculty especially contributed to that success. He announced some changes within the college next year.

Snyder, and her husband, Howard, also a College of Communications professor, will be leaving UK to teach at the University of Kansas in Lawrence.

Also leaving is Bill Griswold, a professor in the School of Journalism. Griswold will teach at the University of Georgia in Athens.

Two new professors will fill the vacancies.

Joachim Knuf, a native of West Germany, earned his doctorate in Communications from University of Oxford. He was a visiting scholar at Ohio State University before coming to Lexington.

Edward Scheiner obtained his Bachelor of Science in photojournalism and his Master of Arts in advertising from Syracuse University. His doctorate in philosophy was obtained at Michigan St. University. Scheiner taught at MSU before coming to UK.

Yesterday's celebration included a speech by Jesse Delia, head of the department of communications at the University of Illinois.

Delia acknowledged the celebra-

"A college of communication is a good idea because it balances, productively, so much that is so good and important," he said.

"Jesse Delia is an eminent scholar in communications," said Philip Palmgreen, from the Department of Communications. "He is very well-known for his work and interpersonal communications."

U.S. ship hits mine in gulf, 10 hurt

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An underwater explosion tore open the hull of an American guided-missile frigate in the central Persian Gulf and injured 10 crewmen yesterday, Pentagon sources said it appeared the warship hit a mine.

The injured sailors — six with slight burns, one with second-degree burns, and one with a hernia and two with back injuries — were evacuated from the USS Samuel

B. Roberts, the Defense Department said.

The Roberts then began steaming slowly under its own power toward port in Bahrain.

The sailor with the second-degree burns was flown to Bahrain, the Pentagon said late yesterday. The other nine were transferred to the USS San Jose, a combat stores ship operating in the central Gulf.

Defense sources said the crew of the Roberts had spotted "boom-like objects" in the water immediately before the 10:10 a.m. EDT explosion. The Pentagon declined official comment on the report.

The sources, who insisted on anonymity, said the frigate was "making only two knots" on its own power yesterday afternoon and would probably be taken under tow by the cruiser Wainwright.

The Roberts and Wainwright are two of 14 Navy ships assigned to the Persian Gulf Force to provide protection to commercial ships flying the American flag.

About 200 people rallied in Frankfort yesterday to demand A.B. "Happy" Chandler's resignation from the UK trustees.

Robinson's minor league contract to the Brooklyn Dodgers, making Robinson the first black player in the major leagues.

The move to increase pressure on Chandler began yesterday morning in the state Senate, whose only black member alleged that Chandler had inflated his reputation on civil rights.

"It is either embellishment or convenient memory that we have heard from Governor Chandler in recent days, as he has waxed about his civil rights record," said Sen. Georgia Powers, D-Louisville.

Powers, a veteran civil rights activist, said she was compelled "to set the record straight about Governor Chandler's long public record with regard to black people" in state government, the U.S. Senate and as baseball commissioner.

"Governor Chandler has lived long enough to become a mythical figure in Kentucky history. I regret to say that much of the myth of Happy Chandler is simply untrue," Powers said.

much talent, they just figure something's got to be wrong somewhere," Dyer said.

"Someone's just trying to make a name for themselves by finding something wrong when there's nothing there," he said.

Chris Gleason, an undecided senior, agreed, saying UK's program makes other schools jealous.

"I think it probably might be a setup just because a lot of people are jealous of our program," Gleason said. "I just don't know, I just can't see Eddie Sutton doing something like that."

But Gordon Parmley, a chemistry senior, said he wouldn't blame the UK coaches if they had sent the money.

"I'm sorry if they did that (and) they got caught," Parmley said. "I think that if they didn't (pay players), then some other school would get the better basketball players."
