THE HIGH SCHOOL TOURNAMENT

The state high school basketball tournament has been concluded with Ashland, winners of the contest in 1933, again pulling out in front to claim the championship crown. Coach Paul Jenkins, himself a graduate of the University and the boys in whom were intrusted the hopes of Boyd county for another successful season, are to be congratulated for their splendid showing.

However, Ashland is not the only team taking part in the tourney deserving of praise. Every one of the athletes, representing 16 schools, fought determinedly in an attempt to score a victory for his alma mater; each boy had confidence in his team, and was disappointed when it lost. Nevertheless, a fine spirit of sportsmanship prevailed, which is commendatory, and is indicative of the type of basketball player who will be striving for another championship in a few years, a victory for Kentucky.

Teams participating in a basketball tournament, whether they be of high school or college standing, play under a serious handicap. A slight case of nerves, a little too much eagerness, an over balancing confidence, each or all can easily twist victory into defeat. Oftentimes a "dark horse" will emerge champion for just that reason. Elimination in the district and regional meets, however, makes it fairly certain that the best teams in the state will take part in the tournament held annually at the University.

Ashland was regarded generally as the favorite from the first, and this fact coupled with their victory of last year loomed as a disadvantage to the champions. Notwithstanding, the team played excellent ball throughout the tournament, exhibiting the training that has characterized Coach Jenkins' teams since his early days of coaching at Ashland. Now that they have annexed the championship, the remainder of the state will be squarely behind them if they go to the national meet at Chicago.

Aside from the opportunity that Lexingtonians have had to witness stellar basketball as displayed by the pick of Kentucky's athletes, the benefits derived from the tournament have been felt by the University and by businesses of the town. The University gains in that it has created an interest for boys who may some day matriculate here; merchants, hotels, and other places of business gain materially. Thousands of people from throughout the state journeyed here to watch and cheer their respective teams; most of them are satisfied that the tournament was conducted fairly and efficiently. Even as they are proud of their boys, so are we also proud of them, and hope that many of the athletes will make the University their home during their college days.

THE STROLLER REVUE

Last Friday, Stroll's, student dramatic organization, took the first major step toward actual production of their spring revue in the form of the try-outs, which were held from 3 to 4:30 p. m. in the Gulgott theater under the supervision of Frank Fowler. From the arrangements that already have been made, it seems quite certain that the revue, which will be presented two nights during the week of April 23, will be the best in the history of the organization.

There are several reasons for making this statement, the principal one being the outstanding ability of the men who have been chosen to take charge of the production, Frank Fowler as director and Prof. L. Cass Robinson as manager. Another reason is the well-advised choice of the musical comedy to be given, "Hit the Deck." This is a show which has gained national popularity, has a mustal score par excellence, and is well within the reach of the available talent.

However, before the show can be presented, a minimum of 150 patrons must be solicited to pay the royalty and the cost of the production. This plan consists merely in selling the above number of reserved seats to townspeople and faculty members who are interested in aiding the organization to the extent of serving as patrons by buying these tickets, thus making the production a success. Every production must be financed in some way, and this plan was selected by the organization as being the best.

A committee has been appointed to take charge of the advance ticket sales and the entire dramatic group is assisting. Little trouble should be had in securing the required number of persons who will be willing and glad of the opportunity of aiding in this manner the production of the best Stroller Revue of all times!

NRA LOOKS TO THE FUTURE

At the close of his summary of the "President's alphabet" at the Student forum last Tuesday night Dean West, College of Commerce, in expressing his opinion as to the effect the modern economic trends would have on the college graduate of the near future, stated that it might not be a bad idea for the college youths of today to prepare for, and look forward to, government jobs.

It is becoming quite apparent that some of Roosevelt's plans which were formed as temporary measures are moving into the permanent stage. Whether the CWA or a similar policy will be carried on indefinitely as a method of unemployment relief, is extremely uncertain, but the NRA, in revised and improved form, is going to be permanent. In addition, the Public Works Administration is really just beginning to function, the Tennessee Valley Project is a long time venture, the Depoan Insurance, The Devalued Dollar, and the Securities Law seem destined to stay with us.

Last week General Johnson declared his "field day" for NRA critics, but almost before anyone could open his mouth, he got the jump on his critics by admitting that the NRA was far from perfect and announcing his own 12-point program for improving it. He scored the first touchdown at his own "field meet!" Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the governor of Pennsylvania delivered one of the first and strongest attacks, and scored on the General for failing to protect union labor in her state. She showed rather definitely that big industrialists had been allowed to escape while the codes were severely enforced in connection with "beauty parlors and Chinese laundries." This type of criticism is indeed constructive for the day after Mrs. Pinchot spoke, the National Labor Board called upon the Department of Justice to proceed against the Weirton Steel company for violation of the National Industrial Act and Presidential orders thereunder. At the same time, Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the board, introduced a bill in the Senate which would strike at company unions and guarantee company recognition of organized workers.

Other critics ranged all the way from a Communist's "basic disagreement with the NRA" to various codes. For the most part, the criticisms of the NRA as a whole may be divided into three groups: first, that the President, the man who is sponsoring the whole thing, is no miracle man, and therefore should not hope to accomplish this ideal. In answer to this it may be shown quite clearly that Mr. Roosevelt does not claim to be such. Every essential feature of his program is based upon a recognition of the fact that nearly every progressive action involves uncertainty.

The second principal criticism has been, "It simply will not work." To this Mr. Roosevelt need not reply, "Think back a year." The third criticism has been that it is unconstitutional. The Supreme Court of the United States recently, in one of the most important decisions of recent years, upholding a minimum price for milk in New York, answered that question.

However, we feel about the policy or about any of its methods, this we must admit, that confidence has returned, a thing most needed for recovery. The Blue Eagle pluses for a higher and a longer fight; with teamwork the NRA cannot fail!

Jest Among Us

Nothing to do? Just loafing? Stroll around to the library and amuse yourself with the exhibit on display. Books and books galore written about China, the exotic East. "The Crisis in China," "Swinging Lanterns," "My Lady of the Chinese Courtyard" are a few books which might interest you. There are books also which contain lovely illustrations of pottery porcelain. An exquisite gobelet-shaped cup is shown in which three red fishes show themselves under the pure white glass. A pure red dish with its rim and hollow snow-white would delight the heart of any woman—"smoke's blood mixed with powdered deer-horn." Don't be misled for that is only a quotation from a Chinese Wonder Book. Real book lovers can appreciate such a book but it is a jewel in itself for anyone who likes to read. Tapestrys, curios, and Chinese Eastern loveliness.

"My dear girl, do you mean to tell me that you haven't read '100,000 Guinea Pigs'?" That was the rebuke given me by my sorority sister at open house last Friday. Which proves that all sorority girls are not as dumb as they're painted, and also, that the book must be good. Just to illustrate to you, the writer says that there is enough poison in a certain toothpaste (call me up sometime and I'll divulge the name; I'm likely to be sued for printing it, you know) to kill three people. That is a pretty bold statement but the book is full of such dynamic. Everyone's clamoring for it so you had better get busy and keep up with the times. In Washington this book has caused a big sensation because of the Tugwell Food and Drug bill which is under consideration at present.

The basketball season was officially closed with the crowning of Ashland, for the third time, as Kentucky high school basketball champion at the termination of the annual Kentucky high school basketball tournament. Capacity crowds were in attendance throughout the meeting, and in spite of upsets the fans went home well satisfied with what they saw. The officials responsible for the meet should be complimented for the smooth way in which they conducted the tournament.

The referees and rival coaches should all come in for their share of the praise as well as for the many players on the various teams who showed such a fine brand of sportsmanship.

All the games came off on time and there was no delay to tick the fans. For the finals a gym twice as large as ours could have been filled. Many paying customers were forced to stand in the aisles and other available places. The crowds at the tournament at least refute the arguments of those who opposed the building of the Alumni gym with the cry that it would never be filled.

Coach Adolph Rupp is already working on next year's schedule, and, true to his promise, is already signing games with bigger and better teams. To date he has signed a game with the University of Lexington. Arrangements have been practically completed for a game with Purdue university to be played in Louisville. Other teams in the Big Ten and eastern conferences are being contacted and probably will be added to the Big Blue's schedule.

Many of you are probably wondering what is going on in spring football practice. Coach Wynne and his assistants, Twomey, Grant, and Pribble, have been working more regularly with the squad this past week as the weather has let up. Before the beginning of last week the squad had had only about half dozen practice days. In spite of the discouraging weather the teams have been showing an enthusiastic zip and power. The eagerness of the boys has brought about a remarkable co-operation in

Scandal Snickerings

By CAMERON COFFMAN

The Rose Girl of the Week
To Bobby Sifton, Phippi from the University of Michigan, goes this week's rose. Her disguised flattery and delightful sarcasm combined with her Phil Beta Kappa and Mortar Board rating makes her a pleasing acquaintance.

What S'Matter Doc, Are You Loosing Yer Grip?
The said that at the recent Kappa-sigma dance, at which our contemporary, Mary Ames Eren, was in attendance with Prater Bill Howe, one of their alumni, Jim Reagan, dropped in to pay his respects. Reagan who is also a courtier of the young lady in question, made the rounds and gave each of the co-eds a break, but alas, 'tis said that "Doc" failed to rate a dance with him.

Questions of the Week
What little incident took place in Boyd hall the other night that Chilo popular students were seen "playing Indian" in the vicinity of the Troquos Hunt club last week?

Phidelt Walter Hillenmeyer has suddenly taken a bitter dislike for rabbits. (Especially black ones).

Maybe It Was Fraternal Spirit!
Several persons are still puzzled and wondering about the affection that Sigmag Bill Gottschall suddenly took for Prater Prinitis Douglas recently at the SAE dance.

You Spoke Too Soon, G. L.
Phisig G. L. Crutcher has been bragging. He was overheard in a boasting statement that he "hasn't been in the scandal column all year." The only reason is that we haven't been fortunate to catch him in any of his antics. But we did hear rumored around the campus that Crutcher was married. (Of course he denied any report of this un-founded rumour).

We have been asked by numerous persons as to just how did a certain group of eds rate "being called from the balcony in the senate at Frankfort to the Lieutenant-governor's desk and given a chair in front of the governing body." The group, which was composed of Delt Bruce Davis, Phidelt Nathan Elliott, Phil Vernon Nugent, Dennis and the writer, was attending the legislature with a political science class. The incident in question is accredited to the personal acquaintance of Nate Elliott and Lt.-Gov. A. B. Happy Chandler. Upon leaving, the state official badge each of the group a very cordial goodbye and extended each one the invitation of another. Vernon Nugent returned the invitation with "Okay, Happy, you come up and see me sometime."

Congrats Alf!
Word reached us a few days ago that Sigmag Alf Eddies has gone "Barbexian" and left his badge in care of our good friend, Tridelt Elizo Barbexian. Once again we say congratulations to this attractive couple.

Why Didn't You Call the Guard, Ed?
Pershing Rifles, campus crack drill outfit, journeyed to Camp Daniel Boone over the week-end for their annual initiation. The neophytes were put through their paces and given a touch of real army camp life. ATO Ed Wehle had the misfortune of drawing a 2 o'clock guard duty. Several of the soldiers, who attended the Alphanagan dance, returned to camp very late. They spied Ed as they were returning to the camp. These bad boys proceeded to attack Ed and deprive him of gun and other military belongings and finally concluded the event by depriving him also of his pants, which they placed in a nearby tree.

From the Chilo lodge came a report that Straloh Gene Shanklin and Martha Lowry "are just waiting around till June."

'Tis said that Ned Brent is doing his part to keep the U. S. mails in the money since his courtes, Tridelt Betsy Frye, journeyed back to her home in Augusta, Ga.

We understand that the Phisig who constantly gossips about Alphanagan Carolyn Johns is none other than Joe Longstreet.

Several Thriving Romances: That of Kay Billy King and Tridelt Margaret Sallie Walker. Delt Justus Vairin and Kadde Milly Gorman.

Activities at DePauw university are creating complexes and destroying more personalities than they develop, says a recent report of a DePauw sociology student.

In the Wittenberg-Ohio Wesleyan game a total of 29 personal and two technical fouls was called on the two fives.

PETITE PIECE

By LORRAINE LEFERE

Thought while crossing the campus. If somebody could analyze my thoughts when I'm by myself and thinking various and sundry thoughts I would be pronounced feeble minded, I'm sure. It always has been a puzzle to me how one can be sane and yet ramble on so to oneself. Right now I can think of a hundred things all at once, and devote full time to all of them.

For instance, it's fun to be in on a secret. I mean when only one or two other people know about it. Just ahead of me I can see a prevailing romance that few people know about. It would make a good bit for the scandal column since both the principals involved are seldom mentioned therein. And that column—I wonder if a rank freshman couldn't take a better stab at it. I'd call it plenty unsatisfactory as it is, but then, it isn't any of my business. Guess I won't have anything to say if it is mentioned in my presence.

Funny thing how you feel awful tough when somebody takes you down the line about something. And you can't figure how it happened or how you were to blame. And then you start to wonder what you could have done about it, or what can be done now that it's happened. Wonder if you wouldn't be better off to be like those trees over in front of the halls. See how they bend with the wind and offer practically no resistance—they just seem to take what comes, yet the trees still grow, and usually they grow straight and tall, too. There must be a lesson in that.

All these new pins on the campus! Certainly is laughable the way every new initiate walks along with his left hand in his pants pocket so his vest will show. And you could say that John had pinned Jim now. But it's awfully sweet to see boys and girls wearing their big sister's or their big brother's pins. A lovely custom.

I must remember to put this new romance in my column. I can start a lot of people guessing. How'll I word it now? Let's see—I believe they're both upperclassmen. One of them is a member of the engineer's lodge. She's a sort of woman, but I've never been able to find out which one it is. Of course he's studious and quiet. He's going to make somebody a good engineer. But she likes life almost better

Practically untouched by human hands

WE'D like you to see Chesterfields made. We know you'd be impressed by the absolute cleanliness of our factories.

The tobaccos are the best that money can buy.

Expert chemists test for cleanliness and purity all materials used in any way in the manufacture of Chesterfield cigarettes.

The factories are modern throughout. Even the air is changed every 4 1/2 minutes.

When you smoke a Chesterfield you can be sure that there isn't a purer cigarette made.

In a letter to us an eminent scientist says: "Chesterfields are just as pure as the water you drink."

Inspectors examine Chesterfields as they come from the cigarette making machines and throw out any imperfect cigarettes.
