

Choruses, Ensembles To Highlight Sing

All Campus Sing will be held at 7:30 p.m. next Friday in Memorial Hall.

Three different divisions will be featured: Women's Chorus, Men's Chorus, and Miscellaneous Groups. The miscellaneous division will include mixed choruses and smaller groups, such as quartets, quintets, etc. Instrumental accompaniment may be used.

Each group entered must sing a minimum of two songs. A 10 minute time limit, including the time getting on and off the stage, will be enforced. The Women's Chorus division will perform first followed by the Men's Chorus, and the Miscellaneous groups. The entry fee is $2 for each group. All entries must be received by Phi Mu Alpha no later than Monday.

The following information should accompany the entry fee: name of organization; division; number of participants in each group; titles of songs; number of entries; amount of money enclosed.

Checks should be made to Phi Mu Alpha and entries should be sent to Phi Mu Alpha, Fine Arts Building, A 25 cents admission fee will be charged for all campus sing. Profits will be used for music scholarships.

Long Rifles Complete Field Tactics

The Kentucky Long Rifles, the Army ROTC Department's newly established ranger unit, completed their first field program March 8.

The problem, which consisted of a compass course and an attack on a fortified river crossing, was set up to simulate a combat situation in an area occupied by unfriendly troops.

Location of the problem area was Boone Creek near the Kentucky River.

The twenty rangers who made the trip were divided into three patrols. Each patrol was given a compass course and was required to make a junction with the other patrols near a river crossing. Following the junction the combined unit planned and executed an attack on the river crossing.

Despite an afternoon of heavy rains, the Long Rifles successfully completed all phases of the problem.

Cadets who made the trip include Captain Lester and Sergeants Hendricks and Hascoat. The cadets served the double purpose of problem control and playing the role of aggressor troops.

Oswald To Speak To Homemakers

University President John W. Oswald will speak to the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers members at their statewide meeting here next Monday until Thursday.

He will speak in the opening session Tuesday night on "Today's Challenges are Tomorrow's Responsibilities."

Mrs. Mary Hilton of the President's Commission on the Status of Women, Department of Labor, will speak on current social and economic changes Wednesday morning.

Dean W. A. Seay of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, will discuss social and economic conditions in Kentucky.

Several thousand homemakers from the state will attend the annual meeting.

Student Center Movie

"The King And I" will be this week's movie at the Student Center Friday and Sunday.

At Men's Awards Night

Robert Stokes Is Presented Top Independent Award

By DAVID V. HAWPE
Kernel Managing Editor

Omicron Delta Kappa's Outstanding Independent Man award has been won by Robert Allan Stokes, senior physics major from Ravenna.

The presentation was made by President John W. Oswald in Men's Awards Night ceremonies at Memorial Hall last night.

Stokes is a Student Congress representative, past treasurer and now vice president of Pence Physics Club, vice president of the Town Housing Association, a member of the steering committee of the Committee of 240, and member of Campus Organization for United Participation, Philosophy Club, and Young Democrats.

He has been the recipient of numerous scholarships and was a participant in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Summer Institute in Space Physics at Columbia University. He has worked six semesters under a National Science Foundation Undergraduate Research Grant in physics. His cumulative grade-point standing is 3.93.

Also presented were the YMCA Leadership-Service Award, to Ted Gum, Lexington; the Outstanding Freshman Award, to Earl Wood Bryant, Rumsey; the Chemistry Book Award, to Shelby A. Sherrod, Lexington; and the Tau Beta Pi Freshman Award, to Arthur Henderson, Maysville.

Greek awards presented included certificates to outstanding members of fraternities, as well as the Alpha Tau Omega Help Week Trophy, to Phi Delta Theta; the Interfraternity Scholarship Trophy, to Zeta Beta Tau; and the Scholarship Improvement Award, to Phi Delta Theta.

Following presentation of the Outstanding Independent Man Award, the Honors Program participants were introduced by Dr. Stephen Diachun, director of the University Honors Program and professor of plant pathology.

Tom Nolan, president of Alpha Tau Omega, awarded the ATO Help Week Trophy.

Seven new members of Alpha Epsilon Delta, premedical honorary society, were introduced by the group's vice president, Jim May.

Awards given to the most outstanding member of each fraternity at the University chosen by the members themselves were announced by Assistant Dean of Men Fred Strache.

Keith Hagan, president of the Interfraternity Council, awarded the group's Scholarship Trophy.

In accepting their new initiatives at Men's Awards Night, Alpha Zeta, agriculture honorary, increased its membership by six. President Ben Crawford announced the names of the initiates.

Presenting the YMCA Leadership-Service Award to Gum was Larue Simpson, president of the University YMCA.

Tau Beta Pi, engineering honorary, presented a group of 14 initiates. The new members were recognized by the group's president, George Harper, who also awarded the Tau Beta Pi Freshman Award.

Also recognized were members of Little Kentucky Derby Steering Committee. The four men on the committee were acknowledged by Southern Sims, assistant to the director of men's residence halls.

Following the LKD presentation, the three Outstanding Counselor Awards were given by Director of Men's Residence Halls Jack Hall. Mr. Hall also presented the Outstanding Freshman Award and recognized the two members of the freshman class who achieved a 4.0 average for the first semester.

New members of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society, were announced by President James Curtis.

Presenting four groups of scholarship winners was Dr. Elbert Ockerman, director of school relations. He recognized four winners of the Alumni Loyalty Scholarships: Richard Sewell, La Granfe; Robert E. Rich, Morningview; James R. Villines, Madisonville; and Robert A. Stokes, Ravenna.

Six recipients of General Motors Scholarships: Paul Allen Krebs, Augusta; Charles Honaker, Bowling Green; Frank Bailey, Winchester; William Coyle, Jeffersonville, Ind.; Arthur D. Meyer Jr., Lexington; and David Robert Khalil, Louisville.

Four winners in the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship competition: Robert C. Dummell, Valley Grove, W. Va.; Glenn Graber, Ashland; Eric Henson, Lexington; John W. Jones, Williamsburg; and Robert Allan Stokes, Ravenna; and the recipient of a Corning Glass Scholarship, Joseph L. Beach, Lexington.

Ockerman also presented the Phi Delta Kappa Book Award.

Dr. Richard Gilliam, professor of law, presented the new members of Phi Beta Kappa.

Presidents of the five scholastic-leadership honoraries presented new initiates. Joe Cough-

Wins Borden Award

James William Davenport Jr., Bowling Green senior majoring in dairy science, receives the $300 Borden Company award at an awards banquet sponsored by the Student Council of the UK College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Making the presentation is Miss Patricia Hager, Hodgenville, council treasurer. In foreground is Charles Boyd, Dover, council president. Davenport is president of UK Dairy Club.

Ag, Home Ec College Honors 75 Students

Awards and scholarships were presented to approximately 75 students at the recent honors banquet of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Principal speaker for the annual event was Dr. John W. Oswald, UK president.

Awards were received by Carolyn Poindexter, a senior from Hopkinsville, and James W. Davenport Jr., a senior from Bowling Green, the Borden senior awards; Louis John Korlage, a senior from Louisville, Burpee Company award.

David Bolin, a junior from Clinton, the George Roberts Memorial scholarship; Judith Hopkins, a senior from Calhoun, Home Economics award.

John Ferguson, a senior from Sonora, the Jonas Weil Memorial scholarship; Dennis Liptrap, a junior from Otterbein, Ind., the $500 Ralston-Purina scholarship.

Dianne McQuary, a junior from Brandenburg, the Cornell award; Charles Padgett, a junior from Clinton, the National Plant Food Institute scholarship; Terry Rock, a sophomore from Hodgenville, Kentucky Association of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers award.

Awards and scholarships presented to students have a total value of over $17,000.

Also recognized were members of judging teams of the college and members of the college faculty who have been honored for outstanding achievement during the year.

The banquet was sponsored by the Agriculture and Home Economics Student Council. Presiding was its president, Charles Boyd, senior from Dover.

Mechanical Engineering Senior To Attend Regional Conference

John E. Gosney, mechanical engineering senior, will represent the University in the speech competition of the American Society of Mechanical Engineering Regional conference at Marquette University, Milwaukee.

His talk on "Cryogenic Insulation" won the local chapter award in a contest held March 5 in Memorial Hall.

The contest required a fifteen-minute talk and a five-minute question and answer session.

Gosney will compete with representatives from 16 other A.S.M.E. college chapters at the convention April 17-18. The winner of the regional conference will compete in the National Conference next year in New York City.

Representatives from UK have won the contest twice in the past.

War Round Table audiences throughout the country. He has served as president of the Kentucky Civil War Round Table since its formation in 1953.

In an introduction to the book, Dr. Holman Hamilton, UK associate professor of history, writes that "of all the amazing storytellers in the colorful annals of the Blue Grass Commonwealth, there is none like Bill Townsend."

Townsend grew up in a small town on the Salt River in Anderson County, attended UK, and remained in Lexington to pursue a successful law career. For many years he has been associated with the law firm of Stoll, Keenan and Park.

He has written a number of books on Lincoln, the Civil War and the Kentucky Blue Grass region, including "Lincoln and the Bluegrass," which was published by the UK Press in 1955.

His latest work contains colorful anecdotes of the stormy Kentucky abolitionist, Cassius M. Clay, who was known as "The Lion of White Hall," and many happenings along the Salt River and events associated with the author's career as a Lexington attorney.

Governor Edward T. Breathitt has recently appointed University political science professor Ernest G. Trimble to the vice chairmanship of the State personnel Board.

"Hundred Proof," a collection by William H. Townsend of reminiscences and tales of Kentucky's Salt River and Blue Grass sections, has been published by the University Press.

A widely known Kentucky author, speaker and Civil War scholar, Townsend has related many of these sketches to Civil

Social Sidelights

By NANCY LOUGHRIDGE

After a week back at the old grind you're probably ready to hit the road back to Florida or at least just get away. No doubt the combination of your mid-term grades and all the papers and reports that have been assigned this week has caused a state of depression which can only be relieved by TGIF.

I may be wrong but it seems there are fewer bright shiny red faces sailing around the campus this year. Looks like Florida didn't have a chance at as many UKers as usual.

Of course, the ones that did go and went overboard the first few days have a look that is something closely related to jungle rot. By the time this disease ends there is nothing left to show for the money and time devoted to the sun god.

Well, enough of the gay happenings of a long-to-be-remembered Spring break, it's off to the party season. There aren't great numbers of social affairs this weekend since all the frats are saving for the formal season which will officially open next weekend. From then on out it will be a mad race to get all the social functions in before the semester ends.

After a rousing afternoon at your favorite haunt, well most people feel pretty tired this week, you can spend a quiet evening contemplating what the Easter Bunny has in store for you. If you don't go for this idea and you are a Phi Delt there will be a quiet little gathering at the house, so plan on stopping by.

The big news for today is the great experiment in peaceful relations being conducted by the north and the south in the form of a joint jam session at Joyland, the sponsors are KA and Delt. Sargent Shriver and some of his followers will be there in hopes of keeping down the animosity between the natives and the Yankees. Seems the UN forces are a little busy elsewhere this weekend.

That takes care of Friday, short day what?

Well, it's Saturday, my how time flies. If you are a sorority girl your lot has already been cast. The day will be devoted to decorating and getting ready for tonight. The KD's are having their annual White Rose formal at the formal Tates Creek Country Club. The Monarchs will be around to help out with the dancing.

If you feel in a holiday mood and know a Tri-Delt then you'll probably be escorting her to that affair. The Holiday Inn Fiesta Room will be the scene of the dance and with all those happy time names it should be a success. The Night Crawlers will be making the music.

On the fraternity scene there are a few brave souls. The AGR's will be having a shoot 'em up in the grand style of the Ole West with a Cowboy and Indian party at the house. It's supposed to be better than a Hopalong Cassidy movie.

On the less imaginative side but just as much fun will be a dance party at the KA house, provided they survive the Experiment in International Living tonight.

The ZBT's will also be having a quiet little affair at the house.

For those of you lucky enough to be recent Florida returnees there will be an excellent opportunity to show off your tan at the Fiji Florida party, The Fiji Hut will be the place and all the Florida enthusiasts will be there in bermudas and other beach attire.

Well that ends the party scene for the weekend but there will be an open house at Blazer Hall Sunday so drop by and say hello.

This should wrap up the Easter column but do hope the Bunny brings you a big basket of grades and fun. I know it's short, but it's a do nothing weekend.

SC Committee Wins In Regional Tournaments

Representatives from the Student Center's Special Events Program recently participated in the Region five Association of College Unions Intercollegiate Tournament in Athens, Ga.

Carolyn Cramer, chairman of the Special Events Committee, said that the UK representatives won two first place trophies and two third place trophies at the tournament held Feb. 21 and 22.

Danny Smith, Arts and Sciences senior, won first place in the regional billiards championship, which makes him eligible to compete in the national tournament held in Arizona.

The other first place trophy was won by Robert Jacobs, Arts and Sciences sophomore, in individual chess.

One of the third place trophies went to the chess team. The players were William Galotti, Commerce senior; Gene Luder, a law student who acted as team coordinator; Keith Edmondson, graduate student; and Robert Jacobs, Arts and Sciences sophomore.

The other third place trophy was won by the table tennis team of Gary Goldblatt, Arts and Sciences junior, and John Mahoney, graduate student.

'Ability' Is Key Word In Athletic Participation

Kentucky's third football season under Coach Charlie Bradshaw opened Wednesday afternoon with a surprise player, a 5-10, 220 pound transfer from Detroit. The player is Steve Matthews and he is a Negro.

The University of Kentucky Athletics Association announced last spring that all University athletic teams are open to all students and that Negroes would be recruited at the earliest possible time, taking into account the obligations to the Southeastern Conference. Until Wednesday, the SEC teams were segregated, at least regarding athletes seeking an opportunity to play.

The Athletics Association has made inquiries regarding the treatment of Negro athletes on southern trips and has been trying to recruit athletes, regardless of color.

But we must realize that there are still pockets of hatred in this country and the University has been forced to proceed cautiously. Now, our first Negro football player is here. Matthews is exercising his student prerogative to go out for the school-sponsored athletic teams.

The football staff has shown that it intends to live up to the UKAA's integrated athletics policy by not chasing Matthews away. He is being given a chance to make the team. The Kernel hopes and believes that Matthews will be judged by the UK staff as a 220-pound fullback, not as our first Negro player.

Kentucky is trying to catch up with today's world where men are judged on ability, not color. Whether the rest of the SEC chooses to go along remains to be seen.

The University is about to embark on a "Pathway to the Stars," and is emphasizing leadership. Steve Matthews took a large step forward Wednesday for equal rights in the SEC. The University is pledged to this same proposition.

The first step has been taken for the University. This University, and the South, will be judged by how well the next step is taken.

We are confident that Matthews will be given a fair chance to make the team. However, if he does not make the team, at least one thing has been accomplished. The pathway has been opened for other Negro athletes to try out for the football team. And in the future, there will be more.

The rest of the conference must accept Matthews' right to play. Otherwise UK should get out of the conference. The Kernel would not like to see UK leave the SEC, which our athletic teams have helped to build to one of the nation's best. But, the rights of students enrolled in the University to participate in all its activities must come first.

Campus Parable

The last of this series of articles, might well be for parents only, for I've often written or talked with parents, and given these tips. Some I've borrowed, some are my own, and are not acceptable to many parents. As a minister to students I feel a responsibility to both the student and parent he leaves at home.

1. Money: work out allowances in advance. Level with the boy or girl on your financial situation.

2. Correspondence: don't nag for letters, that's the surest way not to get them.

3. Telephone: play your hunches. Call him if you think he needs a call.

4. Signs of experimentation: students try many things for the first time while at college. Watch your reactions! If you want confidence in the future, don't appear shocked.

5. Trips home: reasonably often—rather too seldom than too much!

During college days, parents reap the consequences of past relationships with their children. If there was good communication, understanding, and respect beforehand, college won't cut it off. If there's room for improvement in this respect, college may help.

There is a parable in the New Testament of a man with two sons, and to me the important part was that the son who left home knew he had a home to return to, filled with love and understanding.

For a home to be this to students, it takes much on the part of parents and my prayers is that parents create this type of situation and the boy or girl lucky enough to have it, knows it!

Communist Student Meeting Fails To Answer Major Questions Confronting Today's Youth

(IYA-CPS) — Preliminary appraisals of the International Conference of Youth and Students for Disarmament, Peace and National Independence that met in Florence, Italy from Feb. 26 to March 1 indicate that this latest Communist-sponsored youth meeting achieved its objectives only by begging the major questions facing world youth in general and Communist youth in particular. The Conference, held in the famed renaissance Palazzo Vecchio, was attended, according to official reports, by 523 delegates representing 123 youth and student organizations from 63 countries.

The ostensible purpose of the meeting was clear from its title. But not only were many questions left unanswered by the Communist youth leaders, very few searching questions of any sort were even asked. Can a policy of "peaceful coexistence" be effectively pursued in those countries where oppression exists, or where a revolutionary climate prevails? Can full "national independence" be attained or maintained, without armed support for local guerrilla movements?

These are very real questions to the youth of many countries who either follow or fear the militant Chinese approach. But they are an embarrassment to the men who formulate current Soviet foreign policy. By evading or suppressing these questions the Conference organizers managed to obtain a semblance of harmony and unity. The expected debate with the leaders of the pro-Peking factions in various national Communist youth groups never took place. But it is not a debate that can be indefinitely postponed.

The presence of Sergei Pavlov, first secretary of the Central Committee of Komsomol, as head of the Soviet delegation, was regarded as "unequivocal testimony" to the importance of the Conference in the eyes of Soviet officials.

Originally, some apparent effort had been made to present the Conference as strictly non-partisan. This pretense was abandoned when, last March, the World Federation of Democratic Youth (WFDY), headquartered in Budapest, called on all its affiliates to support the initiative of the Florence youth group sponsoring the Conference.

The Conference was first proposed by WFDY in 1953; nothing further was heard of it until 1963 when proposals for holding the Conference in Florence in October of 1963 and invitations to attend a Preparatory meeting in May 1963—actually held in June—were issued by a group calling itself the "United Committee of Florence Youth for Disarmament and Peace."

These invitations were sent to youth organizations all over the world, but the only non-Communist international youth organization to participate in the first meeting of the International Preparatory Committee (IPC) in November 1963 was the Coordinating Secretariat of National Unions of Students (COSEC), whose representative withdrew when the nature of the Conference became clear. The fact that Italy's representative national union of students, UNURI, did not participate was an important factor in COSEC's decision.

Prior to the Conference there were reports that the Soviet representatives to the IPC meeting in November had suggested that one of the aims of the Conference might be the creation of a new international youth organization, a World Youth Peace Federation. That such discussions had taken place seemed confirmed by the speech of a Japanese delegate which made a point of stressing that "the Conference did not have as its aim to create a new international organization . . ."

There is no doubt that the Communist leadership is giving serious thought to replacing or supplementing WFDY and the IUS with a new organization, since the existing two have begun to lose their usefulness as international "fronts," and the possibility of the formation of a new international youth organization by the Communist Chinese appears to be a growing threat.

Perhaps the most important result of the Conference was the announcement of the decision to hold a Second World Youth Forum in August or September 1964 in Moscow. During the plenary session on Feb. 26 the Algerian delegate, Bennaceur Abdelmadjid, proposed that a special Conference be called to deal with problems of national independence. The next day the idea was transformed by Peter Reshetov, Chairman of the Committee of Youth Organizations of the USSR (CYO), into a call for a Second World Youth Forum to be held this year. A letter outlining this plan was drawn up, dated March 1 and signed by 57 student and youth organizations participating in the Florence Conference. The letter called for an International Preparatory Committee meeting in Moscow in April or May to plan the forum.

Observers in Florence speculated that the Moscow Forum had been proposed in order to allay suspicions on the part of some delegates that the Conference leaders wished to "stifle" discussion of fundamental Moscow-Peking differences. The Chinese did not attend the Florence meeting, but set forward their viewpoint in a report circulated among the delegates in which they called the Conference "ideologically tepid," among other things.

The resolutions were concerned with the "end of imperialist aggression in Vietnam;" the dismantling of all military bases in Africa; a ban on the spread of nuclear arms; and efforts to "resolve the Palestine question." According to a Rome newspaper, Il Messaggero, this last resolution was the only one which went against Soviet wishes. The Czechoslovak delegate tried to quash the Arab-Israeli controversy, but failed in the face of strong insistence by Arab and several African delegates.

On the whole, the Florence Conference belied any hopes of a new, freer intellectual climate at such Communist-organized gatherings. The British Pacifist weekly, Peace News, on Jan. 10 had written, "... even if the control of the Conference remains largely in the hands of WFDY . . . this may still be an occasion in which a significant dialogue may be opened up. . . ." Such a "dialogue" may indeed have started in Florence—but surely nowhere within earshot of the Conference organizers. It will much more likely have gotten started at one of the open-air cafes in Piazza della Signoria, or perhaps during a stroll along the banks of the Arno. . . .

Profiles A Pleasure To Read

MRS. DE PEYSTER'S PARTIES. By Geoffrey T. Hellman. MacMillan. $5.95.

None of the people in this collection of profiles and short pieces is a dull clunk.

For dull people don't get into the pages of the New Yorker, whose celebrated profiles have become a watermark of writing. The magazine's technique is to portray only those individuals who are individualists, those persons who have personality, those human beings who are really human; and to portray them thoroughly, with gusto, with élan.

Hellman has been cultivating this sophisticated vineyard for more than 30 years, and the present volume brings together some of his best work. He may not be as famous as some of the magazine's other contributors, but in ability he ranks with any of them.

Many of these profiles are from the fields of art, publishing and nature.

Rivera and Calder as artists, Norman Bel Geddes as designer and Le Corbusier as architect, plus the collectors Albert Eugene Gallatin and Chester Dale, and the museum director René d'Harnoncourt, are limned here. Frank Crowninshield and Alfred A. Knopf are the publishing figures, and in the field of nature are angler Edward R. Hewitt, aviculturist Jean Delacour and hiker J. Otis Swift.

Deftness, a tilt of the eyebrow and shoulder, a salty gaze mark this writing. It is a pleasure to read such a book as this one.

Fellini's 'Nights Of Cabiria' Parallels His Masterpiece

By JANE GEISER

Kernel Associate Daily Editor
For a second time this semester, students will be treated to the delightful agony concocted by Italy's master of the film, Federico Fellini.

Fellini produced another masterpiece to parallel the Student Center's first art film "La Strada": "Nights of Cabiria," which stars his wife, Giuletta Masina, who also starred in "La Strada."

Fellini has brought both tragedy and gaiety to the screen in this 1957 color film about a street-walker living on the outskirts of Rome. Fellini shows sympathy and compassion for the lonely prostitute as he makes her appear a very real and touching human being, a symbol of mankind's hope and trust.

Giuletta Masina brings the character of this lonely stray into a vivid and stirring contrast with the ruthlessness and peacefulness of the Italian city.

Like Gelsomina in La Strada, Giuletta portrays a girl with indestructible spirit but here she displays the most degrading predicament of womanhood, the disquieting profession of a street-walker, who comes every night to play her trade in the Eternal City.

Fellini shows with deftness and clarity how the poor girl is deceived by a movie star, a charlatan hypnotist, and finally by a man who refuses to marry her. At the film's end, Fellini celebrates the triumph of the girl's belief over the depths of her despair.

Saturday Review has said that, in "Nights of the Cabiria," Fellini was not afraid to rely on imagery, or to let the camera speak for him. "His pictures are neither tricks nor effects, but the product of that subtle interplay of technique and emotion which may be called art."

"Masina shows the spring source of the bravery that is found in people who are poor and weak, but unconquerable . . . Fellini has produced a movie worthy of his genius," a New York Post reviewer said.

Conley, Nash Honored

COTTON NASH

Larry Conley and Cotton Nash walked away with the awards in the annual basketball banquet held at the Student Center Ballroom Wednesday night.

Both Conley and Nash were selected as the most valuable players for the 1963-64 season after a tie vote.

All in all Nash took home six awards while Conley was picking three and Lou Dampier and Tommy Kron one apiece.

Nash won three All-American awards. The blond bomber received plaques from United Press International, Look, and the Associated Press.

Conley won the Albert B. Chandler award for the player selected on the basis of leadership, character, and scholarship, and the Kiwanis Club's 110 percent award.

Surprise award of the night came when Coach Adolph Rupp was presented with a lapel pin inscribed with his coaching dates and his 700th victory.

Kron won the outstanding free throw shooting award for hitting on 82.3 percent of his shots.

Dampier was given the Jaycees Freshmen Leadership Award.

Stella Gilb Cheerleader Award (Presented by Mrs. Bert Cox to Outstanding UK Cheerleader) winner: Ida Mae McLaughlin.

Nash Will Appear In East-West Game

Cotton Nash will make his last appearance on the Coliseum floor Saturday at 3:30 p.m. in the East-West All-Star game.

The game will match the top players of the nation competing in tryouts for the American Olympic basketball team. The starting five players of the championship UCLA team are automatically candidates for the Olympic team.

The proceeds of the game will go to the Naismith Hall of Fame fund. The general admission price for the game is $2.50.

Lexington's Jeff Mullins and Kentucky's Cotton Nash will be team mates for the Eastern squad.

Rick Barry of Miami, Fla. 6-6, was named to the East squad yesterday in place of Gary Bradds of Ohio State. Bradds withdrew, saying he doesn't want to miss school.

Other East players are 6-5 Bill Bradley of Princeton, 6-1 Howard Komives of Bowling Green U. (nation's leading scorer at 38-plus), 6-5 Cazzie Russell of Michigan, 6-5 Ron Bonham of Cincinnati, 6-7 Fred Hetzel of Davidson, 6-4 Barry Kramer of N.Y.U. and 6-10 John Tompkinson of Providence.

The West—7-foot Mel Counts of Oregon State, 6-6 Wayne Estes of Utah State, 6-7 Dave Stallworth of Wichita, 6-5 Joe Caldwell of Arizona State, 6-6 Bud Koper of Oklahoma City U., 6-7 Ray Bob Carey of Missouri, 6-2 Benny Lenox of Texas A&M, 6-3 Willie Murrell of Kansas State and 6-8 Jim Barnes of Texas Western.

Conley Named To Second All Academic Team

Larry Conley, sophomore stand-out for the Wildcats, was given another honor when he was named to the second squad Academic All-Star Team.

Ken Kuhn, University sports publicity, said that this may be the first time that there has been a national all academic team in basketball. No other UK basketball player has ever had this honor. Conley has a B average in pre dentistry.

The first squad is made up of Jay Buckley of Duke, Paul Silas of Creighton, Dick Van Arsdale of Indiana, Art Becker of Arizona State, and Gary Watts of Utah State.

Joining Conley on the second team are Bill Robinette of Texas A & M, Jim Caldwell of Georgia Tech, Mike Sillman of Army, and Gary Hassman of Oklahoma State.

Pennsylvania End Is Signed: Bradshaw's Fourth Keystone

An All-State end from Pennsylvania today added his name to the growing list of Kentucky football prospects as Head Coach Charlie Bradshaw announced the signing of John Zeles of Phoenixville.

The outstanding flanker man, fourth schoolboy star from the Keystone State to choose Kentucky this recruiting season, picked up a host of honors for his play in guiding Phoenixville to an undefeated campaign in 1963. Recognition ranged from first team All-State and All-Scholastic to mention on the Big 33 All-Star aggregation.

Checking in at a solid 6 feet 3 inches and 199 pounds, Zeles operated in high school as a left end with devastating effectiveness. For Phoenixville's 11 game season, he was personally credited with catching 27 passes and gaining 650 yards—an average of 24 yards per catch.

In addition, the rangy youth contributed 48 points to his team's cause as he raced across for eight touchdowns during the season. The Phoenixville 11, tutored by Paul Tomko, set a new school record for scoring last season by ringing up 274 points en route to becoming the school's first undefeated team since 1934.

Besides his adeptness at catching the football, Zeles is credited by UK scouts as being a good rusher on pass defense.

Bradshaw commented that he was particularly impressed by Zeles' ability to get open in the secondary, both long and short, as well as the boy's "tremendous hands and fine speed." He can catch the ball under the most difficult conditions, the coach continued, and should prove to be an exceptional Southeastern Conference-type football player.

Zeles, who was signed by Kentucky Assistant Coach Ralph Hawkins, hails from the same home town as Wildcat varsity tackle, Tom Detwiler. UK also is interested in another Phoenixville boy, Dennis Morgan, who plays fullback at nearby Norris-town Bishop Kendrick.

Zeles plans to study Business Administration at the University.

Debate Team Plans Trip To West Point

Participating in a Southern Regional debate at Emory University March 19, 20, and 21, the UK Debate Team won the right to participate in the national debate tournament at West Point April 23, 24, and 25.

Also named from the Southern Region were the University of Alabama, Carson Newman, and the University of South Carolina.

Representing the University were James Crockarell, a sophomore Commerce student from Clarksville, Tenn., and Phil Grogan, a sophomore Commerce student from Bowling Green.

The teams debated the topic resolved: The federal government should guarantee an opportunity for a college education to all qualified high school graduates.

Ten colleges are chosen to participate in the regional debate each year on the basis of their team's record. Kentucky has been invited to attend twice in the last five years.

Four UK debaters received "superior debater" certificates at a cross-examination debate tournament at Miami University on March 14.

They were Richard Ford, a junior Commerce student from Owensboro, who placed first in the tournament with 107 points; John Patton, a sophomore in Arts and Sciences from Ashland, who scored second with 105 points; Michele Cleveland, an Arts and Sciences sophomore from Louisville, 101 points, and David McCracken, a junior engineering major from Lexington, also with 101 points.

Thirteen teams and 52 debaters competed in the tournament.

CLOTHES FOR THE COLLEGE MAN CASUAL WEAR HIGHLIGHTS THIS SEASON

Now that the days are getting longer, the call is for sports coordinates. Here's what to look for, and here's what you will find. Lighter shades are making the greatest impact in many-a-season. Of course dark tones remain popular but they are only a close second. One thing that makes the lighter tones take out in the lead is the top billing they are getting in magazines and newspaper advertising. However, sports coats and coordinated slacks are in the lead.

Seersucker sports coats range from basic grey and white to navy, burgundy and bottle green stripes. Denim takes second to nothing, with the good-looking pale blue's to clay tans and navy. Some Madras is shown, but not too strong. However, the patterns that are shown, are something terrific.

The big surprise of the season is the big flurry of sales in utility and walk shorts, and seemingly with most of them being Polyester and cotton belt loop types.

At any rate ANGELUCCI'S has what I believe to be the largest selection in town, and they are tough.

Silk ties have left the gate like a fast race horse this season, and I believe this to be the year of winners. And if you think I'm kidding, place your bet at our 2.50 window. And as far as hosiery, a new blend of silk and nylon in ankle and over-calf styles are a fast drawing card. I still wonder if anything will take the place of Adlers happy stretch socks with their tremendous range of colors. To sum it all up, here seems to be the spring fashion picture. Handsome Tropical Suits in worsted blends with silk and polyester fibers. Light weight and sharply tailored sport coats, cut-and-sewn sports shirts, new and livelier hats, outstanding and colorful walk shorts, racy and clever neckties, new and better hosiery, fancy and attractive belts, and as far as the quality, you just naturally trust Angelucci's.

Two Discuss Research On Sinking Vehicles

Research done on submerging-vehicle accidents was reported by two participants in a seminar conducted Monday at the University.

It was stressed that under certain conditions, a motorist whose car plunges into deep water has a good chance of surviving.

Dr. Bern Kuhn, assistant professor in the UK Department of Physical Education, and Cpl. William Carter, water safety director for the Michigan State Police, explained that if a person involved in this type of mishap is uninjured and has control of his senses, he can save his life and those of his passengers through one of several methods.

They pointed out that the chance of escape is greatest if, when the car hits the water, its doors and all windows are closed. In this condition, a car may float from two to 10 minutes. This margin of time would permit the occupant or occupants to lower windows for escape before the water level reached the windows.

The speakers said that a closed car will result in an air pocket forming at the ceiling. In such cases, with the car settling toward the bottom, the occupants can take advantage of the air.

They should then wait until the car comes to rest and open the doors for escape to the surface when the pressure is equalized.

In detailing rescue procedures, Dr. Kuhn and Mr. Carter said witnesses to submerging vehicle accidents of rescue teams can save lives by shouting or signaling instructions to trapped victims.

They added that when the driver or his passengers are injured or otherwise unable to help themselves, rescuers may enter the sinking auto and drag the victims out, break a window to permit their release, or follow the car to the bottom and open the doors when the pressure is equalized.

The seminar, first of its kind in the nation, was sponsored by the UK Department of Physical Education. The audience consisted mainly of institutional and industrial safety directors, members of organized rescue squads and other safety-oriented groups.

Chevrolet will go to any length to make you happy

Things have changed a lot since a Chevy was only a Chevy. Especially your ideas of what you want a Chevy to be.

So now you have the Jet-smooth Chevrolet—17½ feet of pure luxury, bumper to bumper. The size makes it a luxury car. But not the price.

Or you can choose the thrifty Chevy II, a 15¼-foot family car with all kinds of passenger and luggage space.

This year, your choice might be the new 16-foot-plus Chevelle, sized to fit nicely between Chevrolet and Chevy II (and between parking meters, with five whole feet left over).

Then, too, there's the sporty 15-foot Corvair, so right for so many people (you girls, in particular) that we've never touched an inch of it. And finally, Corvette—still 14½ feet and still too much for any true sports-car lover to say no to.

The long and short of it is, you don't have to go to any length to find exactly the kind of car you want. Just see the five different lines of cars at your Chevrolet dealer's.
