

Travellers Rest

May 27. 1830.

My dear Hart,

I was disappointed at not being able to get over to Lexington last week as I hoped to have done and do not know now when I shall be over, but hope to make before long. Saw Lloyd on his return yesterday and learned from him that you made the trip home safely. Hope the household continued well. We are all quite well save Susan who still suffers with her teeth and face. I neglected to attend on the day fixed by our collector of infernal women and to find myself invited to call at his highness's office and settle & enclose the notes and check for the amount (Grimstead will cash it) and by you will do me the favor to call and pay the tax for me.

Anson and the children all unite in best love to you all

Affly Yours
Thames Crisby.

Are you installed in your new domicile?
