Wethington: Students' needs priority in reform

To receive more support around the state and from the Kentucky leg-islature, UK must focus on reform wethington said yesterday.

"It is critical that we build public support for higher education and particularly for this University." Wethington said. "Our state officials must see higher education as an important dimension of the state and recognize that higher education is an investment in the future of its citizens."

Wethington, presenting his annu-al state of the University address to the University Senate, said "grow-ing skepticism of the public" about ing skepticism of the public." about Wethington echoed some of the higher education coupled with a weak economy has made state unimer Gov. "Some see the universities as privileged havens of waste... whether this is the truth or not may not be as important as the perception," Wethington said. "As we advocate for higher education, we must consider how to solve the problems that confront us."

Wethington said one of the ways to change the attitudes is to cut he h

Wethington also amounced that he has appointed a committee to develop a faculty workload policy. Wethington's call for more support comes at a time when the possibility of another budget cut looms over UK. State officials have been discussing another possible budget shortfall. The past two times the state faced revenue shortfalls, budget cuts were dealt to UK.

State officials make no promises about budget cuts

By Gregory A. Hall Editor in Chief

State officials offered no promises yesterday to higher education leaders hoping to avoid another cut in state funding for Kentucky's eight universities.

Gov. Brereton Iones' cabinet secretary Kevin Hable and four legislators only said they would keep the best interests of higher education in mind if another cut is made.

Wilkinson and lost another 5 per-cent in the current budget at the hands of Jones and the legislature. Rep. Joe Clarke (D-Danville) said the state could face a $180 mil-lion shortfall. Reports last week in-dicated that tax revenues for August were up 8 percent over the same month last year, and if those reve-nues remain up a cut could be avoided. However, Hable said "it's too.

tors only said they would keep the best interests of higher education in mind if another cut is made. Hable and the legislators were on hand for the Governor's Conference on Higher Education Trusteship at Marriott's Griffin Gate. Among those taking part in the conference were the university presidents and governing board members. State university budgets were dealt a 5 percent recurring cut in late 1991 by then-Gov. Wallace Hable would not comment on whether such a hope is realistic. He said that those same statements are being made by primary and secondary education officials and human resources officials. Those two areas of state government and higher education receive about 80 percent of General Fund revenue, he said.

"We're notine to do were thing."

A number of presidents have lamented the fact that higher educa-tion's percentage of state budget money has steadily shrunk in the last 20 years. Hable said it's not go-ing to get much better. "I don't believe that in this next decade higher education is increase its relative share of the pie," he said.

When searching for a good album, there are three things we usually look for: great lyrics, great music and great vocals.

Tom Waits' 14th album Bone

Machine has two of these. The lyrics are deep. Waits explores issues like death and the afterworld. However, the music is the strong point of Bone Machine. Waits always has been an innovator of new sounds, and this album is no exception. Waits uses eccentric percussion like clattering sticks, rusted farm equip-ment and thundering stomps to create new sounds on this album.

Bikers on campus need to obey rules for students' safety

EDITORIAL

Have you ever been hit by a bicyclist while walking on campus? Even if you haven't, many students hold vivid memories of a near-collision with bicyclists. To paraphrase an old joke, it just isn't safe to walk on the sidewalk anymore.

Students who choose to ride bicycles to and from classes need to begin riding responsibly to ensure the safety of innocent pedestrians on campus. That means staying off the sidewalks. There are bike lanes on Rose Street that riders can use. Sidewalks are designed for pedestrians, and, when bicyclists find themselves in these areas, they should not ride — but walk — their bikes through traffic.

It is both distracting and unsafe for students to try to ride their bikes on sidewalks crowded with students. While riding a bike to class may be faster than walking, students must comply with the restricted paths designated for bicyclists. Have you ever been hit by a bicyclist while walking on campus?

Something I would like to point out that Dever did not stress is the fact that Darwin's Theory of Evolution is just that — a theory.

There is no evidence to prove it, and, therefore, it carries no more weight than the idea of creation found in the book of Genesis.

Lundersuch than Draws

However, I do not appreciate having the ideas of Darwin crammed down my throat in 90 percent of the biology classes taught on this campus, as well as in many other disciplines.

I also understand that my beliefs are "religious beliefs" and his are "scientific beliefs, based on scien-tific observations and research."

But, when compared sans the clothing of language, at least from a humanistic point of view, both take a certain amount of faith to believe, and isn't faith what religion is all about anyway?

It has been said that it takes at least as much faith to believe in Darwin's Theory of Evolution as it does to believe in the Bible's story of creation.

I believe that Dever should take a long hard look at his definition of religion and maybe learn to in-clude himself in the realm of "fa-

I love my country, and I will shed tears as I vote for Clinton come November.

And I guess what scares me the most is that I don't know if he'll

Country music is taking nation by storm

Do you know what happens when you play a country music song backwards? You get your dog, your money and your woman back!
That's certainly the way it used to seem anyway.

Many of us who are big fans of country now used to run away screaming when our parents tuned in a country radio station, threatening to projectile womit if it wasn't turned off.

Those days are now over. Like it or not, country has become a force in the music world.

It currently is influencing trends in fashion and all walks of life. The genre has moved out of it's in fashion and all walks of life. The genre has moved out of it's "whiny" stage to become, in some ways, indistinguishable from some of the pop music we listen to today. Can we really call it country any-more? It's certainly not what it used to be.

Country's roots are buried deeply in Appalachian folk music, but few of the '90s' rockabilly' artists bear any resemblance to old-style country music singers like Patsy Cline, Willie Nelson and Johnny Cash, More and more of them have their roots in rock, even being rock singers before finding their niches in country.

Greg Gross Kernel Columnist

front row at a Madonna concert), but a few even wear earrings — something that a male country sing-er would have been castrated for not too long ago.

Women's role in country music has changed, as well.

Female singers and musicians not only have become more prevalent in country music, but have literally exploded onto the scene. Artists like Martina McBride and Trisha Vearwood have shown us that they Yearwood have shown us that they can be beautiful, serious and intelligent — while they sing about issues important to everyone. Very few pop artists can make that claim.

Country has changed dramatical-y in the messages it presents. ly in the messages it presents. There are still the "You cheated on There are still the "You cheated on me, you winch' songs and the "I'm gonna drink till I puke, die or forget you" songs, but many carry a positive message like "Billy Can't Read," a song to promote literacy in the United States.

Country is also no longer exclusively a whites-only area of music. More and more black fans and artists are "coming over to the country," as Hank Williams Jr. would say.

try," as Hank Williams Jr. would say.

None of this would have been possible without the advent of Country Music Television. CMT has become a pioneer and a force in the country music world.

Multitudes of mainstream Americans have become fans of country music simply by having active remote control fingers.

It currently is influencing trends in fashion and all walks of life. The genre has moved out of it's "whiny" stage to become, in some ways, indistinguishable from some of the pop music we

This is because of both the increase of free thought and the well-produced and interesting videos. CMT is now such a popular and lucrative channel you'd think it was owned by Ted Turner.

Without these factors, artists like Garth Brooks and Billy Ray Cyrus could never have been hits in both the country and mainstream must charts or have devloped such huge followings overseas.

While many attribute Cyrus's success to his muscles and derriere, it was definitely not Brooks's doughbox appearance — but rather his superb voice — that gamered him so many awards and his songs.
Part of country music's appeal is the fact that the music touches all of us who have experienced what goes on in the songs. How many of us say "It Coulda Been Me" along with Billy Ray Cyrus, or wonder "What She's Doing Now" with Garth Brooks?

If you're depressed, or want to be, nothing goes better with the mood than a nice slow country song. Watch out though, because "The Whiskey Ain't Working Any-

Associated Press LOUISVILLE, Ky, — A University of Louisville football player pleaded innocent yesterday to a charge of raping a student in her campus apartment. Karlos Derrick Bean of Jackson-ville, Fla., was being held on $10,000 cash bond after being arrested and charged with first-degree rape Sunday. Bean, 19, entered his innocent plea at his arraignment before Jefferson District Judge Paul Gold, who set a Sept. 24 pre-trial hearing. A reserve linebacker who played in both of Louisville's games this season. Bean was suspended from the football team, effective immediately. He is about 6 feet tall and weighs 260 pounds, police said. Rom Steiner, administrative aide had coach Howard Schnellenbergen said the coach would not be medine. berger, said the coach would not comment because of the pending comment because of the pending criminal case. The 20-year-old woman said the attack occurred early Sunday. "The victim said they were in the apartment, the two of them, and he overpowered her," Louisville police Detective Jim Clark said. "He didn't listen to 'No.'" The woman first called campus police and said she had been raped by an acquaintance in her University Tower apartment. Campus officers then called the city police.

After months of off-field turmoil, pennant races heating up

After a season of turmoil in the commissioner's office and staggering attendance, baseball is finally ready for some pennant races. September — when college and pro football starts, the U.S. Open is played across the street from Shea Stadium and when baseball players and fans start pecking a little more at the scoreboard. The Pittsburgh Pirates and Atlanta Braves may be heading for a rematch in the National League playoffs. The once mighty Oakland A's, meanwhile, seem to have things almost wrapped up in the AL West. The best race looks like it will come in the AL East where Toronto, Baltimore and Milwaukee are fighting for the lead. The Blue Jays still have pitching problems despite the addition of David Cone, who has a weary right arm.

The Expos looked like they were headed for a last-place finish when they fired manager Tom Runnells and replaced him with Felipe Alou. The players responded to Alou and now the Expos have perhaps the brightest future of any team in the NL East because of players like Larry Walker, Delino DeShields, Marquis Grissom, Moises Alou and Greg Colbrunn.

The Padres always seem to make a charge in September only to finish five or six games out. At least Gary Sheffield's run at the Triple Crown should make life interesting for San Diego in the final weeks.

Sheffield, the favorite right now to win the MVP award, is trying to become the first NL player to win the batting title, home run honors and the runs-batted-in crown the same season since loe Medwick of the 1937 St. Louis Cardinals. Sheffield's biggest obstacle may come the 1937 St. Louis Cardinals. Shef-field's biggest obstacle may come from teammate Fred McGriff, who leads the NL with 31 home runs. NL to design 1993 schedule without realignment changes

NEW YORK — The National League will be allowed to issue a 1993 schedule that ignores the ordered realignment of the divisions, deputy commissioner Stephen Greenberg said today. He cited the suit brought by the Chicago Cubs and the resultant pressure from the players' union as the reason.

Commissioner Fay Vincent ordered realignment on July 6, shifting the Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals to the NL West and the Atlanta Braves and Clincinnait Reds to the East.

But the Cubs sued the followed day and on July 23 obtained a preliminary injunction from U.S. District Judge Suzanne B. Conlon. The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is to hear arguments Sept. 30 on Vincent's attempt to lift the injunction.

In the meantime, the NL has held off on issuing a farfal 1993 schedule, prompting objections from the Major League Baseball Players Association. Under the collective bargaining agreement, the union was entitled to a draft schedule by July 1. It agreed to a one-month extension, but refused a request for a second extension.

NL spokeswoman Katy Feeney said the league was proceeding on plans for a schedule without realignment, but that the proposed move of the San Francisco Giants to St. Petersburg, Fla., complicated scheduling.

She said the league hoped to get a draft to clubs soon.

Hass wouldn't reveal more, say-ing she didn't want to "spoil the fun" for readers of the strip, which appears in 2,000 newspapers in 54 countries and 35 languages.

Dagwood has experience — be-sides his love of food. He's made deliveries for Blondie on weekends. And one Sunday, six guests saw Still, it may not be a career move made in heaven.

NEW YORK — Two tobacco in-dustry campaigns to discourage eig-arette sales to children are ineffec-tive and one actually encourages youngsters to smoke, a researcher said yesterday. The tobacco industry devised the campaigns to try to head off tough-er police enforcement of laws ban-ning cigarette sales to children, which does curb teen smoking, said Dr. Joseph R. DiFranza, a chief au-thor of two new studies on the sub-ject.

In one study, DiFranza reported that a Tobacco Institute campaign aimed at retail stores and called "It's the Law" did almost nothing to discourage stores from selling cigarettes to children.

In a second study, DiFranza concluded that an industry campaign portraying smoking as an adult activity actually encourages children to smoke by making smoking appear to be a desirable "forbidden fruit."

The studies are the latest in a se-pear to be a desirable "forbloden fruit."

The studies are the latest in a series by DiFranza on the promotion of cigarettes to children. He is a member of the Department of Family and Community Medicine at the University of Massachusetts Medical School in Worcester.

The director of the federal government's Office on Smoking and Health said DiFranza's studies were solid and "hit at the heart" of the industry's youth campaigns.

"The tobacco industry has a vendetta against him because of the power of what he's publishing."

Earlier this year, DiFranza was forced by a judge to turn over notes and correspondence from a study to the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. The "It's the Law" campaign involves the distribution of literature and signs observing that sales of to-bacco to children are illegal, DiFranza said.

Tranza said.

He found that 86 percent of stores participating in the program sold cigarettes illegally to children. compared with 88 percent of the non-participating stores.

"My feeling is they created the 'It's the Law' campaign to have something to take to local officials and say 'you don't have to regulate sales to minors because we're doing it ourselves, "'DiFranza said.

The study appears in the September issue of the American Journel.

"Scientific studies of this approach have shown that children exposed to this format are more likely

Dawson called the assertion "absolutely ludicrous."

Television needs better shows

I used to watch a lot of television. I was glued to the screen for hours on end, even though what I was watching often was pathetic junk. I admit it — I'm a part of the TV generation.

generation

But, since I've been to college, I barely watch anything at all except for sports and, every now and then MTV. I occasionally catch the ending of a sitcom when I'm sitting in Blazer Hall eating, but I really don't keep up with anything on a regular basis anymore.

seep up with anything on a regular basis anymore. It's probably a good thing be-cause with the caliber of "entertain-ment" playing on the networks these days, I think I'd kill myself for putting up with it. So much of the stuff on television

So much of the stuff on television is absolute crap, and what's worse, it tries to act as if it isn't. A lot of idiotic television shows have healthy doses of sleaze and sex, while desperately trying to pretend that plot and character development are really what the show is all about

You're supposed to watch "Bev-erly Hills 90210" because of Bran-don's dramatic weekly crisis of con-science and/or whatever social issue (teen sex, drugs, pregnancy, etc.) that Brenda somehow manages to solve within an hour's time. You're supposed to ignore all those beach scenes with Dylan in that wet suit designed to hypnoisit housands of teenage girls, and Kelly in, well, not much at all. The strong message that the show carries is what's important. The tight plot and intricate story line is what attracts all the viewers. Oh, yeah, that's got to be it.

line is what attracts all the viewers. Oh, yeah, that's got to be it.

I imagine that if "90210" was so unbelievably concerned with elevating the moral conscience of the 19- to 34-year-old target audience that it has a stranglehold on, it wouldn't build 90 percent of its plots around subjects that allow one or (usually) more of the characters to flash a lot of flesh. Tight plot?

No — tight jeans.

No — tight jeans.

Now, I would be lying if I said that I didn't enjoy the show. Yes, I that I didn't enjoy the show. Yes, I do watch it every now and then, but not because of Brenda's problem-solving abilities, if you know what I mean.

But why should "90210," a heartily entertaining lil' skin-flick in its

Sure, it's certainly an admirable sentiment to want to enlighten as well as entertain viewers, but honestly: Who watches "90210" to learn how to live a better life?

L've yet to hear some guy describe how he resolved a major philosophical dilemma by remembering how Brandon handled a similar situation. It's like reading Playbox for the articles. Now. I'm use bering how Brandon handled a similar situation. It's like reading Play-boy for the articles. Now, I'm sure that plenty of people do read the ar-ticles — I read them myself, even-tually — but let's face it. If you were honestly searching for inci-sive political commentary, you could've picked up Newsweek or The National Review.

The National Review.
That's why one show I really admire is Married With Children. Oh, I don't usually watch the show because it's really dumb, but I do admire it a lot. Why? It's honest. It doesn't even make the slightest attempt to reel in viewers with fake social commentary. Nor does it want to educate you about anything except. I suppose, anatomy. It doesn't lie to you about being sleazy; everyone who tunes it knows exactly what is going on here. Married With Children is the logical conclusion of what the situa-here. Married With Children is the logical conclusion of what the situation comedy is; it distills out all the unnecessary things like story, plot and dramatics and leaves you with the molten core of bathroom humor and sex.

It's the pure essence. I don't see why every show doesn't do this. It'd sure save the viewers a whole lot of time, if they didn't have to wade through all the dramatics and lame attempts at storytelling that sitcoms throw at them to get to the dirty jokes. Thank you, Bundys, for delivering the goods so efficiently.

Leaving home can bring mixed emotions

Many students making their ini-tial journeys from their homes may find college an exciting retreat from what they have known for many years. It is a chance to find them-selves and explore who and what

Colon-Rectal Cancer
Colon and rectal cancers are the third leading cause of death from cancer in women and the leading cause of death from cancer in women older than 75. Unusual bleeding from the rectum, blood in the bowel movements or a change in bowel habits requires evaluation.
Risk factors include a personal or family history of polyps (growths) in the rectum or colon, or of rectal or colon cancer, inflammatory bowel disease like ulcerative colitis and a diet high in fat and low in fiber. What can you do? Eat a well balanced diet including fruits and vegetables every day. Eat at least one high fiber source each day. No more than 30 percent of your callottes per day should be in fat. Early detection does save lives. There are screening exams and tests that should be done after age 40. Correction: Because of an editor's error, a line in the first part of this series was incorrect. It should have said there are no safe levels of nicotine and tar when choosing a cigarette to smoke. Pam Woodrum is a nurse practitioner and health educator in the Student Health Service. 1235 N.Broadway 1600 Leestown Pike 1575 Winchester Rd.

4230 Saron Dr. 1050 Chinoe Rd. 3725 Harrodsburg Rd.

We Have The Solution!

WINN DIXIE is an equal opportunity employer.

You know it's so ridiculous. If I don't call my parents every Sunday at exactly 5 o'clock, they think I was kidnapped by aliens, or something. Anyway, one Sunday me and Mark, we decide to take-off and checkout the city. So we're hanging out and I look at my watch. 5 o'clock. Alright, so my Calling card and I head down to the local pool hall. (Which I happen to know has a payphone) And I tell the folks the Martians send their best."

o matter where you happen to be, the AT&T Calling Card can take you home.

It's also the least expensive way to call state-to-state on AT&T, when you can't dial direct. With the new AT&T Call and Save Plan, you'll get special discounts on AT&T Calling Card calls. And once you have your card, you'll never need to apply for another.

If you get your Calling Card now, your first call will be free And you'll become a member of AT&T Student Saver Plus, a program of products and services that saves students time and money.

All of which makes the AT&T Calling Card out of this world.

To get an AT&T Calling Card for off-campus calling, call 1800 654-0471 Ext. 850.
