PLAN TO PENSION AGED PROFESSORS PROPOSED

Each Instructor Would Donate A Small Sum of Each Month's Salary

FIRST PLAN OF ITS KIND

University Would Be Asked To Contribute a Sum Equal to Donations

A movement to pension the pro-fessors of the University who are compelled to retire from active service compelled to retire from active service on account of advanced years, was recently started on the campus. The plan is as yet in its infancy and no definite steps have been taken except a mere discussion of a means by which a fund may be established.

a fund may be established.

The general conception of the plan is to have various professors donate a small sum, probably five dollars a month, to a fund which will be placed on interest. As a professor reaches the age limit this will be used to pay such parts of the annual salaries as the plan will permit. Professor Leland, of Economics Department, has been ot Economics Department, has been asked to work out mathematically a plan for the best handling of such funds. The scheme contemplates also, asking the University to match the funds thus collected with the appropriation of an equal sum. The problem is considered by members of the lem is considered by members of the faculty as one of great interest and will require considerable study and work before it can be submitted. It work before it can be submitted. It is hoped that the plan will be ready to present to the entire faculty during the current semester.

This is the first plan of its kind considered in any University or College.

FIRST PERFORMANCE OF STROLLERS IS APRIL 21

'Seventeen" Will Have Its Initial Performance At Cynthiana

Rehearsals for the Stroller play, "Seventeen," are going nicely and the cast will be ready for its initial performance on April 21, at Cynthiana, according to a statement given out by Earl Maxwell Heavrin, director, Plans for the scenery have been completed and the stage crew will start its work in the Stroller room this week.

Two other names were added to the Stroller staff Saturday when Phillip Rusch was elected assistant stage manager and Stanley Griffith was appointed property man. The remaining appointments for the stage crew have not yet been made.

It will be of interest to students to know that the government has grant-ed the Strollers a redemption in tax, due to the fact that the organization is now an educational institution and is under the supervision of the business office of the University. Stuart-Wal-ker has also given them a great reduction in cost of performances which amounts to a great deal in the Stroller budget. They have chartered a tour-ists' car which also aids in reducing the expenses of the organization.

The request for dates of performa has passed the council and the follow ing places will be visited:

Cynthiana, April 21; Lexington
April 24 and 25; Richmond, May 7;
Harlan, May 8; Pineville, May 9.

WHAT THE LEGISLATURE DID FOR US.

Now that the Legislature of 1924 has convened, done its work and adjourned it will be well to call the attention of all the alumni to its work and note just what has been accomplished for either the good or detriment of the Univer-

Before going into the work of that legislative body it will not be inap priate to say that the alumni of "Old State" who sat in the two houses of the General Assembly were at all times loyal and watchful of the University's interest so far as has been learned.

To Senator H. M. Brock, ex-'04, and Representatives I. F. Bosworth, ex '86, O. C. Gartin, class of '20, Jack Howard, class of '20, J. W. McFarlin class of '93, and Allen B. Cammack, ex-23, the University of Kentucky owes a debt of gratitude for interest they took in advancing any thing which would aid its development. Especially credit should be given to Senator Arch L. Hamilton, and Representatives Harry B. Miller and Sam H. Cole, all three Alumni who represented Fayette county at Frankfort. These men were willing at all times to lend assistance to the University. And to the great number of men who were loyal to the University because it was simply an institution of the State, praise is also due.

Late last Monday night Governor W. I. Fields, himself an alumnus of the University, struck from House Bills 534 and 535 special appropriations to the University which would have amounted to $105,000 in the next two years. The $75,000 which was to have been used to complete Kastle Hall, the new chemistry building, was lost by this action.

The other $30,000 was an appropriation to the Experiment Station for the purpose of conducting research work in diseases of tobacco.

With this loss what has the University of Kentucky gained by the legis lature? For one thing the $75,000,000 bond issue sponsored by Governo Fields will be submitted to a vote of the people. If it passes $5,000,000 would be available for the University in the next six or eight years. Its passage depends to a large extent upon the amount of work the alumni do

With the exception of the bond issue the only other bills bringing aid to the University are Senate Bill 87, which appropriates $25,000 for the establish ment of a sub-experiment station on the Robinson tract of land in Eastern Kentucky, B. S. 90 gives the law library free state reports, H. B. 88 gives the main library free reports and acts of the assembly and other copies of state publications; H. B. 277 establishes a sub-experiment station in Caldwell counand H. B. 318 changes the rate of taxes coming to the University from 134 cents on the $100 worth of taxable property to 2.130 cents. This is in fact a considerable increase and should give the annual budget an increase of $75, 000, according to Rainey T. Wells, of the state tax commission and trustee of the University. Another bill gives the University 4.16 of all the inheritance tax of the state. This is but a change of an old provision and will not add any great amount to the income of the institution.

In all not much has been done for the University of Kentucky. A few free books, some money to spend in the distant ends of the state and a chanc at the bond issue. They are all good things but they do not give the University a chance for the immediate expansion so greatly desired and needed.

GREETINGS!

With this issue of the Kernel, the With this issue of the Kernel, the new staff assumes its duties. In accordance with custom, a new regime alwaysdefines its policies. The policy of the new Kernel staff will be to support the University in all its undertakings. It will endeavor to be a fair exponent of the student body and alumni of the University. It will endeavor to carry forward the work in the same manner in which its predecessors have so ably done for years past.

Inasmuch as the Kernel is a student publication for the students, it seeks the co-operation of every student on the campus. If you have any knocks of make bring 'em to us and call our attention to the deficiencies. We will appreciate suggestions as to how we may make the Kernel better and more interesting. Co-operation of the faculty and of the alumni is also solicited, for it is only by co-operation that we are able to do any real service for our Alma Mater.

Write to the Kernel, and tell us.

Write to the Kernel and tell us wherein we are "falling down" or wherein we excel. Let's get together and boost Kentucky.

Coach Murphy is endeavoring to build a winning football machine for next year. It is obvious that the time to start such construction is NOW! The call for spring training was made four weeks ago and a fair number of candidates responded.

candidates responded.

The new coach will endeavor to build the team on the principle that brains are stronger than brawn or beef. To this end he has been expounding theories and plays to the candidates. Edward B. McLean, recently made famous for his variations on the $100,000.00 theme, was found to have had a leased wire installed from the Washington Post building to his residence at Palm Beach, for the alleged purpose of receiving a digest of general, daily news. However, the eclusiveness of the proceedings aroused the immediate curiosity of the Senate O.1 Investigating Committee, for the more suspiciously private one in Washington today, the more public will he be tomorow. botch of things, and a still more per-emptory demand was issued that the President appear in person to explain the secretary's explanation. All this brought out one of those delectable situations that occasionally give the Congressional Record a live-ly tang as though it were written by Margor Asquith. Senator Lodge, that irritable, old, pedigreed mascot, so long the pet of his party, sanctimoniously rebuised his associates for bringing the sacred name and person of the President of the United States into senatorial squabbling. Much to the gratification of those who are not en-tertained by the Massachusetts Sena-tor's repertoire of tricks, Senator Hartor's repertoire of tricks, Senator Har-rison of Mississippi aptly called his attention to the fact that his spiteful snapping at Woodrow Wilson's heels to the very gates of death, kept his plous attitude from being altogether ef-fective.

Secretary Fall, who like a woodpussy has besprinkled his pursuers and confrerers, seems, according to the satisfactory sniffs of the Investigating Committee to have spared President Coolidge from the ineradicable

NOTE—The foregoing editorial was written by Miss Susan Clay, a student in the Senior class in Journalism. The Kernel does not necessarily concur in views thus presented in these editorials, but is glad to print them as show ing the scope of work done by these students.

Among the special features of the tassion will be a School for Citizenship conducted by the Kentucky League of Women Voters. The program for this will be greatly enlarged for 1924. There will also be conducted a conference for collegiate registrars. This plan originated at the University of Kentucky last year and registrars from Kentucky colleges and colleges in several adjoining states were in attendance. A special program will be provided for that conference this vear and an attempt made to make it a permanent feature for the future. Systematized trips through the Blue Grass section and other points of interest in Kentucky have been planned by way of recreation. Guides will be furnished and each party placed in charge of some person familiar with the places visited.

For the past two years the summer session has experienced a rapid growth, the increase amounting to more than two hundred per cent in three years. This summer a considerable increase is expected and the facilities have been igreatly expanded to meet that de-Saturday marks the end of the first Saturday marks the end of the may month of spring football practice at the University of Kentucky. The sec-ond will open Monday when Coach Murphy plans to lead his charges out on Stoll Field for the first out-of-door on Stoll Field for the first out-of-door practice. The work heretofore has consisted in signal practice and in lectures on the system that Coach Murphy intends to employ in the coming football season.

The squad has ben divided into two divisions with Dell Ramsey, captain of the Wildcats in the 1923 season, as leader of one of the teams and the present captain of the Wildcats, Curtis Sanders, leader of the second team. Each captain may get whatever recruits from the campus that he may desire and in addition has the men from among those that attended the Uniforms will be issued Saturday and Midnay to those who desire to participate in this final month of spring preparation. These two teams will be provided with two different sets of formations and plays, both of them based on the Murphy system. Games will be played with the two elevens as opponents. It is not expected that a full time contest will be played but they will meet on the gridinon at least twice a week and probably three times, according to Coach Murphy.
