The Colonel Finds A Group That Deserves Much Credit

Today the Colonel doffs his big black Stetson in tribute to the Community Service committee of the University YMCA.

This group, which is chaired by Jack Ramos, performs services in and around Lexington. Though little publicized, it probably does as much good as any organization of its kind in the state.

Every Monday night the committee declares a moratorium on its own pleasures and journeys out to the Reform school at Greenfield, where it presents a program for the entertainment of the three youngest groups of inmates.

The YMCA values these programs highly, for they serve a two-fold purpose: (1) they entertain less fortunate individuals, (2) they train the participants for future civic and social work.

In addition to this particular phase of service, the committee also presents programs of games and singing for those confined in the Crippled Children's Hospital, and an annual Christmas tree for the underprivileged children of the Lincoln school.

There are untold groups of people in this world who perform services simply as a matter of routine—services which do untold good and for which the benefactors are seldom given credit.

The Y's Community Service committee certainly is one of the former groups; and as his minute part in giving them a little of their just due, the Colonel offers this Abba Ben Adam-like toast: "To the Y, and may its tribie increase!"

Time Is Wasting—Let's Get Busy Composed of 35 students, faculty, and staff members, a conference group met last April to exchange views on faculty-student relations, student moral attitudes as reflected in the matter of classroom dishonesty, and student government.

The results of the meeting were at least interesting enough to cause the University Senate to incorporate a report of the proceedings in its minutes. To see that the conferences were continued this year, James Howell was appointed by the student-faculty group.

Thus far, nothing is stirring. Student government is in its infancy. It needs the stimulation of intelligent discussion, and aid of faculty-student minds outside the group if it is to fulfill its purpose. The time is ripe for another discussion group.

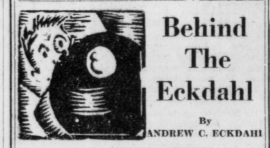

Let's get busy, Howell. Don't Be Afraid Of Wounding Their Pride Surely the Board of Trustees is not as petty as some would have us believe.

There are numerous means of explaining in a news story that an appointment is subject to approval of the Board, and we feel sure that those means would be acceptable to the Board.

It is understandable that embarrassment might follow the announcement of an appointment which later is canceled. However, in the two instances just cited, appointees were called in from out of town and are now working at their respective positions.

The KERNEL believes that those persons over-estimate the childishness or pettiness of that "someone else." It would seem to be a much healthier attitude if each man stood on his own feet.

The functions of the University are inter-related and each man is responsible to someone else. But each link may be strong without destroying the unity of the chain.

Behind The Eekdahl By ANDREW C. ECKDAHL

Women, we have noted, are pretty vague on the international situation. Of course we are all pretty vague about what is really going on over there, but when women eye the situation they are even vaguer than vague.

In that book in which she said Hitler would never come to power in Germany? This will usually end the discussion.

We don't believe anybody should believe a thing that American Fuehrer Fritz Kuhn says on the witness stand. After all, his word is as good as his bun.

We haven't seen Miss Gracie Silverman since her attempt to purge this column of "Hi Yo Silverman," but we have a feeling she didn't like what we wrote in our last column.

Every time we mention her name, or anything even close to her name, something cataclysmic happens. For example: we were carrying a cup of coffee across the Union cafeteria, the other day and trying to keep it from spilling, when we saw Kentucky Editor Bill Tudor watching us.

Miss Beck Fickler, who is a Kappa, popped up Monday from Charleston, West Virginia, a small factory town not far from Pittsburgh. She reports everything quiet in West Virginia—except that they are going to have Thanksgiving on the 23rd.

The student directory came out yesterday. We haven't had time to investigate it thoroughly but one thing has already come to our attention.

Mr. Harry Williams, the columnist who puts the bad taste in your mouth on Tuesday so you can really enjoy humor on Friday, is listed as having telephone number 6804.

Now everyone knows that 6804 is Patterson Hall. Come, come, student directory editors.

Ever since we indicated our desire to enter the newspaper game, we have been given to understand by one and all that it is a low paid profession. But we hadn't realized how true this was until the Sadie Hawkins dance when we saw Enquirer Photographer Bill Rodman eating carrots from corsages.

Campuscene

By JIM CALDWELL ... on a nice little racket now being worked at UK.

Shortly before we became one of that class-cutting, party-throwing group of individuals known as college students, we began to hear weird tales of what goes on around the campus in the way of scholastic ethics.

We had read magazine articles on the thousand and two methods of cheating on exams—all of which, we were assured, were regularly used.

After then, any cribbing which went on was not done because students had criminal tendencies; they did not in any sense look upon themselves as educational gangsters.

It was as we recently overheard one campusdragger say, "My god, here I am with two quizzes this afternoon and another tomorrow morning and I've got a hangover."

That boy, undoubtedly, was on the spot. This had we about come to the conclusion that all this talk had been gossipy nonsense, nothing more.

And we are firmly convinced of the fact that in general the classroom morals of that particular fauna of human race known as the "student body" are approximately 85 points higher than most persons think they are.

So we were not a little bit shocked the other day to hear rumors of a nice little racket being worked in one of the more prominent of the freshman courses.

The subject divided up into three sections, all of which must take pre-logical quizzes on their own time. Since these quiz-groups are rather of people's makeup, it is practically impossible to check up on the legality of certain people being present.

Which only goes to show you, that there are college students, just as there are business men, who are "not in the game for their health."

A piece is of the nature of a con-quest; for then both parties nobly are subdued, and neither party is loser—Shakespeare.

UP to the best standard the same afternoon. For instance a good example of this is the Georgia Tech-Kentucky game. Had this game been played in Lexington we might have won, but it seems that, even with the added school spirit, a good team could not hope to best a team as good as Georgia Tech if it is tired and sleepy as was the Wildcat team that took the field against Georgia Tech.

We don't see why our team could not leave for out of town games at least two days before the playing date instead of at the last minute as was the custom of the Wildcat team this year.

After reading articles by sports writers we don't think it was the fault of the team that we lost the game but the indirect fault of the Athletic Association because according to the newspapers it was due to the lack of sleep and tiredness of the train that we lost.

Therefore if the Athletic Association expects to have good teams to put on the field for away from home games we think it would be a good thing if they took this hint and followed the procedure that is being used by most of the colleges and universities in the country.

Lewis, Lundquist And Cummins Star In Guignol Plays

Opening to a rather lightly packed house in the Guignol auditorium Monday night, the student actors and playwrights presented a series of four original plays in the first all-student production of the year. The plays, written by members of the last year's playwrighting class, were used by the Guignol directors to determine the acting ability of the theater group. Included in the one-act sketches were "Shadow of the Mountain" by William B. Mars, "Grapes" by Ann Jameson, "Oil" by Jeannette Kinnerlin, and "Lost by a Head" by William Becker Worth.

The scene of the action in "Shadow of the Mountain" is the coal fields of eastern Kentucky. A labor strike in one of the mines through a young miner named Buck out of work. Buck, with his dependent relatives faces starvation because his source of income has been removed, but Jim, his younger brother, goes down into the picket lines to attempt some positive action to help of the miners. Jim is shot while doing this and when Buck tries to avenge his death in true mountain style, he, too, is killed.

Outstanding in the drama was Grant Lewis' characterization of a coughing, wheezing tubercular fellow named Pat Carter. Betty Harris, as a discontent, fatalistic mountain woman was also good.

"Grapes" has its setting on a farm in southwestern Kentucky, where the soil has lost its fertility. Grant's father has become too old to supervise the management of the farm, so he hands over the reins to his granddaughter Kate, hoping that she can save the old family homestead from the necessity of a sale. Realizing that the soil will no longer produce a profitable staple crop, Kate plants grapes and reaps an abundant harvest after the other farmers' crops are ruined by a storm. A clever strain of romance between Kate and Tom McGuire adds greatly to the plot.

Robert Lundquist, as Grandfather, gave a superb performance, as did Jean Cummins as Kate. The Owen family, including Ma Owen, Ben, and Sally, allow two professional oil drillers, Joe Harris and Skinner McCarthy, to try to find oil on their land. But the oil which they seek turns out to be water as do the Owen family's hopes in a touching finish scene with Ma Owen and Ben.

Douglas Dick, a promising freshman actor, gave a sterling performance as Ben Owen. Jacquelyn Weidberg, as Ma Owen, and Grant Lewis, as Joe Harris, were equally brilliant in their roles.

In the last play, "Lost by a Head," which was better written than its predecessors, the scene is laid in Lexington at the Kentucky Association Track. Michael O'Shaughnessy, a small-time plunger, is attracted by the striking beauty and pleasing personality of Martha Lafon. As Martha's insistence he refuses to play a tip given him by a tipster named George and declines to match a bet by his bookie rival, Sid Max. To his dismay, however, the long shot on which he was tipped wins, and since he doesn't match the bookie's bet he loses all the money which he has with him. As a final injury, he learns that

There is a new change in vests for the college men that will appear on the campuses throughout the country during the coming months that is well worth noticing at this time. Instead of the wide spread point vest with the last button not to button, which has been so popular for the past several seasons, you will see this new vest on all of the better dressed college men.

Numerals Recall Days Of Devilmint

Somebody years ago climbed to the roof of the Health and Hygiene building, edged his way along the steep slate shingles, hung from a rope around the turret with a paint bucket in one hand and a brush in the other just to paint the numerals of his class.

The idea seemed to be that the class that was able to leave its numerals in the highest place on the campus was the object of much admiration. Naturally this created much inter-class strife, such as the time that the freshmen ran up a flag on the pole in front of the Administration building and then cut the ropes.

The sophomores, not to be outdone, decided that it must come down so, standing at a safe distance from the mob of freshmen gathered at the base of the pole to protect their flag. The sophs calmly shot the flag down! Reports from Olin James say that it sounded like the battle of Bull Run, and incidentally cost the price of a new ball for the top of the pole!

Along with this inter-class strife must be mentioned the stupendous annual classic, the tug-of-war between the frosh and the sophs.

This battle was much heralded for weeks ahead of time and was held across Clifton pond, the winners dragging the losers down the icy waters of the pond and then dragging the steel cable which had been used in their victory down town on Main street where they raised "Old Ned," proper.

By the way, when the old man says to you the next time that he doesn't know what the younger generation is coming to, ask him about a few of these:

The time a group of students carried a street car up to the Administration building, and when the car company offered to pay them to take it back to Limestone, they refused thereby forcing the traction company to use the only way they could think of to get it down; by building a set of tracks up to the Administration building from Limestone!

The time six or eight students made a trip to the Ag farm bringing back sundry collections, turned the cannon in front of the Administration building; primed it with gunpowder; loaded the cannon and plastered the face of the building. But they got caught and spent the next few days swabbing it off!

The tricks they pulled concerning the factory which they were used to denote the end of classes before the modern system of bells was used.

And the old cannon being used as a perfect place over which to turn Freshmen to facilitate peddling.

These are only a few of the ancient and honorable traditions and stunts that have lived on this campus of ours.

Co-Ed Corner

November finds us dressing for the last of the season's football games, for while the team is playing its best, co-eds are looking, as well cheering, their best.

Sports clothes are at their height at any game. Snapping hats and pork-pie hats, tweed coats and old-faithful camel's hair coats, whether boxed or fitted, will be in their prime.

Those who prefer dressier outfits may go in fitted fabric coats trimmed in fur. Saucy little hats with feathers will add the last touch. For warmth and the utmost comfort, as well as fashion, the fur coat still holds its own.

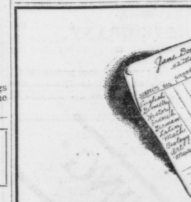

Huge white chrysanthemums with flying blue and white ribbons will appear at their best on any polo.

Janet Chanslor tops her var-colored checked coat of blue background with a snap-berin hat. Mimi Wiseman doesn't lack individuality in her camel's hair coat which has large pearl buttons. Her mammouth, sheepskin-lined mittens defy all kinds of weather.

Betty Ann Ratke's black fabric coat is trimmed with a small collar of brown fur. A beautiful, full-length moose coat was delivered last week to fortunate Louise Calbert. Jeanne Barker wears a mustar-colored coat with a large fur collar. One of the flashiest coats on the campus is the green and red plaid reater which Mary Coan sports.

Beneath this wide selection of coats are found the usual cardigans and skirts, solid-colored and plaid black turban with a simple black crepe dress, pumps, and pearls and a dull redfish coat. One Specialty Orange Flowers of All Kinds Phone 1590-3680 - Phoenix Hotel Patronize Kernel Advertisers For Best Results

10 WAYS TO HAVE A GOOD TIME FOR 5¢

Any one good time for a nickel would be a bargain. But in this week's Post, you get at least ten kinds of entertainment, and a lot of timely information, all for 5 cents!

1. FOUR-WAY DRAMA. The leading story in this week's Post is recommended for (1) football fans, (2) engaged couples, (3) girls smitten with gridiron stars, and (4) fathers who have sons in love with the wrong girl. Read Yesterday's Heroes, by a new Post writer, William Brent.

2. INFORMATION PIECE. Are you annoyed by people who know "all about the war"? You can silence them by revealing the important secret clause in the Rome-Berlin axis agreement. You'll find it in Demaree Best's article, Mussolini Prepares for War. A radio dispatch from Geneva.

3. FUN WITH OUR FOUR-FOOTED PALS. Note to Wives: When you see papa polishing his shotgun, quick-get him Verren Bell's yarn, Bag Dog, to read! He'll end by wanting to own a bird-dog, of course. But you can talk him out of that.

4. HIGH JINKS BETWEEN THE LINES. After the game is over, read Tom Meany's football article, Dixie Plays for Blood. Not that the South fights the Civil War all over again, you understand, but what's a kick in the face if the referee isn't looking? Fizzling football stories retold by a sports writer who's watched the stretchers go by!

5. THE WOMAN IN THE CASE. "His wife doesn't know it, but I hear Professor Lorber has been running around with that good-looking school-teacher!" Is there a girl in your neighborhood who the men all like and the women all hate? You'll recall her, definitely, when you read the story on page 18 of this week's Post, But Love the Sinner, by Eve Bennett.

6. PLAY GOLF WITHOUT AGONY. Ever play with somebody who keeps quoting rules—in his favor? Read Frank Duncan's story, Fore!, of the sweet young thing in red shirt and shorts who got even with the club's most formidable player—by being up on rules we bet most golfers haven't even heard of!

7. SHARE YOUR PLEASURE in the Post with others. Tell them how Father Divine produces thousand-dollar bills with the dexterity of a magician, to feed regiments of negro—and white—"angels." You'll learn how when you read Jack Alexander's rollicking article, All Father's Chills Got Heaven—about the half-giant messiah who admits he is God.

8. GAME OF LOVE: (Played by 4). Is an ambitious wife a spur or a knife in the back to a husband straining in business? Here's the bitter-sweet story of two husbands whose wives raced for "access." Richard Sherman's Won't You Walk a Little Faster?

9. BE A MAN-ABOUT-TOWN WITHOUT MOVING AN INCH. You can enjoy a personally conducted tour backstage with the First Lady of the Theatre. Read about the time Helen Hayes first met George M. Cohan; the time she wanted to cowboys; what happened in her first "grown up" part. (It's in the unique story of her life, by her mother, continued in this week's Post. Third, page eight.)

10. FUN IN TAHITI WITH NORDHOFF & HALL. It may be raining or snowing when you take this week's Post home. What do you care? You'll be IN TAHITI having a gay time reading Out of Gas, the comic adventures of the Tuttle family. You're in time to catch the second part of this fine first novel, by the authors of those best-sellers, The Hurricane, Mutiny on the Bounty and The Dark River.

ENCORE! Don't miss the editorial on page 22, A Chance to Go to Work. And fourteen swell cartoons. And poems (we direct your special attention to one on page 24 entitled For The Agency Column).

Linden's acceptance brought to seven the Greys who have announced their plans to take part in the battle. The list to date includes Sandy Sanford, end; Carey Cox, center and Walter Merrill, tackle, all of Alabama; Mitt Howell, guard from Auburn; Shad Bryant, Clemson halfback and Art Baskay, North Carolina State halfback.

Squads of 22 senior gridmen will be selected from each side of the Mason-Dixon line for the battle. Linden, who has started all Kentucky's seven games to date, has been a member of the Cat varsity for three seasons. Although he had never played football until he entered the University, Linden was regular in his first try. This season his play has been particularly brilliant, especially against Vanderbilt, Xavier and Alabama.

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

Down in the Alleghany mountain region, which was once famed as the home of moon-shine-distilling mountaineers, the University of West Virginia now stands for power football.

Anthraxic hard, this West Virginia team that will invade Stoll field tomorrow afternoon, comes from the hills where they mine hard coal and harder football men.

So far the Mountaineers, who were supposed to be hotter than a hill-billy hand this year, have been going nowhere fast, and, in fact, have been banged around like a fire house going. In seven games to date West Virginia has defeated West Virginia Wesleyan and Cincinnati, tied South Carolina and has yodeled the mountain equivalent of "Dixie" to Pitt, Washington and Lee, Georgetown and Manhattan.

The rumor breathes, that turn out more bum steers each year than a choleric cattle camp, have it that the Mountaineers' water boy is being considered as a possible 1940 presidential candidate. The unconfirmed report nonetheless has already given the team more relief in this year than Roosevelt has in the past seven.

But seriously, the Mountaineers, footballistically speaking, represent a leg of grid powder that the spark has not yet reached. Should West Virginia explode with the force exerted on its possible, tomorrow's intercollegiate party with Kentucky's Wildcat troupe would possibly develop into a battle as close as your next breath.

The main cylinder of Coach Sleepy Glenn's backfield engine is Harry Clark, a 175 pound hulk-billed halfback, who they say moves along like a ghost and is so fast he runs down jack rabbits for exercise. Not since the days of "Fendin' Jed Tolliver has anyone straddled the West Virginia mountain-folk like Clark did last year and the year before with his brilliant running. A peculiar change of pace that carries Clark past many a tackle, who figures he's just about got him spiked like an insect on a pin, gives rivals something to nightmare about.

In addition to his crooked-stride running, Clark passes with the accuracy of William Tell and bisects the coffin corner with his punts. Law Acts Touchdown—There seems to be a touchdown prohibition law in the hills. After crushing West Virginia Wesleyan on a 44-0 cross in their first start of the year, the Mountaineer offense has been held to 20 points in the last six games. Meanwhile, 68 points

VARSITY NETMEN SHOOT THE HOOP

Throws From Floor Stressed In Drill

With all injured members back in top condition, Kentucky's varsity basketball squad, moved into its fourth week of practice this week with long drills in shots at the basket from deep in the floor. Both partners in the act of the Cluggish brothers, Marion and Stan, were taking part in the rehearsal after spending last week losing due to slight injuries. Marion, 6 foot, 5 inch portion of the tandem, had been out with a sprained ankle while Stan, who is the 6 foot, 4 inch midjet of the two, had the miseries in his back.

The accuracy with which all 14 members of the varsity troupe have been finding their range with long shots indicates that the Cats will be most as dangerous this season from beyond the foul circle as under the basket. Leading the assault on the hoop from far out was LeHuber, Mickey Rowe, Carl Staker and Marvin Akers, who will probably compose Coach Rupp's guard quartet.

Meanwhile, a good fight between Don Orne and Walter White is in progress for one of the forward positions. While Edith Farrar appears to have a down the floor post in his power, the other spot will be wide open with neither of the lead applicants holding a decided edge.

At present Coach Adolph Rupp is using both of the Cluggish boys at center but earlier in the year Stan was tested for a forward spot. Whether or not he will keep little Clugg at center is not known. This venture possibly depends on the manner in which Jim King, last year's freshman pivot man, holds up. To date King has looked strong enough to give big Clugg help at the position.

Hendershot Named To Head Committee

Harriet Hendershot senior in the arts and sciences college, was elected chairman of the student standards committee at a meeting of the student legislature held yesterday afternoon in the law building. Miss Hendershot was chosen after Mary Lou McFarland, who had previously been named chairman, declined the post.

Emmy Lou Turck, also an arts and sciences senior, was named a member of the student standards committee to represent the Panhellenic council. The new chairman, Patty Stem, education junior, the president of Panhellenic, automatically became a non-voting, ex-officio member of the legislature.

Five consumer exhibits will be displayed in downtown stores on hospitality, bedding, shoes, consumer information, and canned goods. The American Association of University Women and the Kentucky Home Economics association are co-sponsors of the experiment station staff.

At the Saturday morning meeting in the auditorium of the Education building Miss Murtle Weldon, state leader of extension work, will present colored slides of scenic and historical points in Europe. Miss Weldon was a delegate to the International Conference of Country Women at London early this year.

Also on Saturday morning's program will be Dr. Alexander Caputo who will discuss the place of music in the home. The student section will have a talk and demonstration of cake decoration by Miss Marie Barkley of the home economics department. The morning session will close with a business meeting.

LAWYERS FROLIC IN 0-0 CONTEST

Saw Their Game

By FRED HILL
In a game marked by brilliant team play and exceptional individual performances, the two undefeated and united teams from the law college upset each other's bucket Tuesday afternoon by playing a 0-0 tie.

Before a crowd of 3,600, according to estimates by the players, the two teams, representing the first and third-year men against the second year students of the college, turned the intramural field into a "dark and bloody ground" and all but attempted murder in an effort to score on each other. They failed to do this, but they changed their status in the University at least in the eyes of the spectators, from sedate, cravat-wearing, future lawyers to a bunch of raging, roaring athletes.

Both teams presented an impressive offense. In fact there is some question as to whether either team completed a pass, or completed anything at all.

True to pre-game notes, both teams presented an amazing array of talent, including notables from such institutions as Penn State, Duke, Texas Christian, Western Reserve, and Transylvania. The starting line-up was as follows:

Second Year	First-Third Year
Rose	LE	Williams
Edwards	LT	Shelbourne
Tocous	C	Martin
Dubin	RE	Gillis
Jackson	RB	Gillis
Spigler	QB	Hartford
