The operation, which was not an emergency, was very successful, ac-cording to Mrs. Dickey, wife of the president.

Panhellenic Tea For New Students Will Be Saturday

The annual Lexington Panhellenic Tea will be held Saturday afternoon in the Student Union Ballroom.

The tea is given each summer by the Lexington Panhellenic to fa-miliarize Central Kentucky girls, going to college this fall, with rush and sorority life.

All Central Kentucky girls who will be attending colleges in the fall have been invited. During the tea they will see displays featuring the pins, magazines, insigna, and other symbols of the sororities be-longing to the organization. There will be a representation from Central Kentucky sororities other than

The Lexington Panhellenic organization is composed of sorority alumnae who are interested in furthering knowledge of sororities.

The fall welcome week program will be modified this year. The first day will be a day of orientation for all new students. On the second day, the students who have already met their deans and worked out their schedules will register and classify in the morning. Those who did not participate in the summer orientation will meet their deans and advisers in the morning and classify and register in the afternoon.

Dr. Harper said the new plan would provide personal attention for each student and make him for each student and make nim feel less "just like a number." He continued by saying that under the present plan many freshmen become discouraged and drop out of school even before classes begin.

Dr. Harper outlined the four major advantages of the new sysmidsummer would strengthen good relations between parents and the school.

2. The new student would feel that he had some individual im-portance, because of the face-toface relationship with the deans, advisers, and the professors.

3. The preregisteration of fresh-men in the summer would allow the University to provide all desired class sections, thereby eliminating the closing of sections.

4. A new emphasis on the academic side of University life will be presented.

The larger format, attractive front cover, larger type, and scattered pictures of University buildings and activities, promotes the school and makes it appealing to the prospective students. This one drastic change will do much to promote the public relations, and interested students can now see the excellent features UK has to offer as well as read about them.

offer as well as read about them.

Bits of information are included in the endless details that tend to encourage the student and cause him to feel that he is being treat-ed with kindness and consider-ation, and not just another speck in the midst of more than 8,000 scholastic trojans.

Many UK officials would do well to follow the new approach of the catalog—encouraging the student and informing them of matters with a kind approach. Usually the officials that deal with a large number of students tend to throw the information at the student. Those that sling the harsh state-Those that sing the harsh state-ments with a broad frown, tear down in a few words the good public relations built up by the catalog and by the officials who care about a student's welfare. Truly, in a university the size

Superior Student Conference Lt. Gov. Wyatt Will Be Held July 9-14

The Superior and Talented Student Project Interregional Conference will be held on the campus July 9-14.

The focus of the project is upon the "under-achieving" students who rank in the upper 25 per-centile on tests of mental ability and achievement. Its purpose is not only to discover these students but to find, develop, and help com-plete procedures and programs in secondary schools which will more effectively serve such students.
