

Two or three complaints have been filed with this department that writers hesitate to pen more worthwhile letters to the column because such letters would be rather long and lengthy messages are not usually reprinted here. So, from now on, don't hesitate if you really have the material for a long discussion. If it is interesting at all, and suffers from being cut, it will be printed in its entirety. Again, we emphasize that names or initials should be signed. There are always the sceptics who accuse us of writing for ourselves. Just for the fun of it, I guess.

Mr. Bailey
Dear Sir: As a member of the junior class I voted for Mr. Bailey as president of the class, feeling that he and other class officers were supposed to make appropriate arrangements for the junior prom. However, it seems that the Men's Student Council, an organization in the selection of which I had no voice, is trying to dictate the terms of the junior prom, and that the student council officers are to be elected. Personally I think the Student Council should let Mr. Bailey carry out his plans unless they are opposed by those who elected him to this position.—J. C.

A Mess
This situation is typical of the "mess" student government is in. None of the student governing organizations know the extent of their powers, what they can do or what they can't. Personally, I would like to see up to regulate any such matter as this. But now, with such uncertainty, there is a definite need for some kind of reorganization or delegation of powers. That is, a student government for the all-University forum discussed in an editorial today. Read it and let me know what you think.

The Tri-Delta
Worthy of mention is the action of the Tri-Delta this semester. As regards to Hell Week, they have changed the name to Delta Week since emphasizing cleanliness and neatness. One item is to collect and clean washable garments. Another concerns pledges who are required to take a group of underprivileged children to the movies and treat them to ice cream afterwards. These kinds of tricks are still retained but an effort is being made to get away from this phase entirely.

Spontaneous
One of the best convocations we ever attended was that on last Wednesday. Spontaneous is the word that best describes the affair. It was between "this" and "that" world as shown in the following story told by Dr. George K. Brady. It was held in the department. In passing through Knoxville the night of the game, he stopped at a filling station where he bought a beer. The attendant who got the beer, told him "Here, take this nickel," says Dr. Brady, and call the newspaper to get the score. The fellow starts in, gets to the door, turns around and asks, "Who was that?"
Dr. Brady says he just didn't bother to answer.

On Hell Week
Dear Sir: Congratulations on your cartoon in last Friday's issue. What Joe College needs is, perhaps the University can again take up its academic pursuits. While the subject is still on our minds, maybe someone will be kind enough to enlighten the open-mouthed crowd which stood by watching from down Main street, in front of the rain last Saturday—just what they did of Hell Week is. Standing up under such pressures can be done by any age.—W. T. B.

Just Little Boys
Does it make them better fraternity men? I'm not asking for a revelation of the secrets of the Greek orders but just a little information that may clear up a rather prevalent opinion that the followers of Sigma Chi are nothing but a lot of little boys in long pants inspired by their daddies' fire-water. Incidentally, this Joe College staff is fast disappearing from other campuses throughout the country. What say you?—W. T. B.

Slow Death
It is very true that Hell Week is disappearing on some other campuses, and I think it is gradually dying down. The thing to be wished is that it be abolished altogether so that the fraternities could devote their time to more worthwhile projects which they should have shown they are fully capable of doing.

Most Worthwhile
The vocational guidance conference was held on Monday and Tuesday meeting were held on this conference for women students. We are still waiting for those many articles for editorial fare (?). From all the criticisms of our editorial actions, we would like to see these articles would be eager to write a few themselves. Some of these critics are getting a little tired from wondering about Sadie Hawkins day. Give us some suggestions on that all-consumable...

Richard Eilbott Shows Interest In Horsercracking

By PATRICIA HAMILTON
"Hiller is a shrewd man and very alive," said Richard Eilbott, German lawyer who recently arrived at the University to deliver a course of lectures and study American law and social science. He was apparently surprised when asked if he believed the rumor of Hiller's death. Dr. Eilbott left his native country last July and reached Lexington after stops in Holland, England and New York.

"I chose Kentucky because my friend and countryman, Lexington and said he felt he could learn to know America better here than in a larger center."
He lectures will discuss the ideology of modern governments as he has observed it from his own experience. Three of the lectures will be devoted to "German Philosophy as Applied to the German Empire," "The New Germanism" and "Huntley Dupre's and Dr. Amy Vandenberg's classes and will probably address other groups for which arrangements have not as yet been made.

Born in the little German village of Zentrach in the Bavarian Alps, Eilbott moved at the age of 13 with his family to Frankfurt where he later studied law. He was a better speaker in his practice. He began his university work at Marburg. "The studies were in the old times; I have no scar," he said, "where he studied sociology under Max Weber. His second year work was done at Munich where he fell under the instruction of Wolfelt, who may be called the founder of the German Kunst philosophy. After a semester at Leipzig where he studied law, he returned to Heidelberg and studied literature under Grundloff.

His law course which he began at Marburg university was interrupted by the war. He served three years in the German army as a lieutenant on the Eastern Front.

Between battles, concealed in the trenches, he continued his study by reading Nietzsche, Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, and Goethe. Their philosophies and those studied in his university training all contributed to form Eilbott's own philosophy which will be reflected in his lectures.

When he returned from the war, he resumed his law course, this time at the newly organized University of Frankfurt, and received his degree in six months. He was chosen to assist Sinnheimer, who was reforming and principles of co-operation between employer and worker. He came to Lexington in 1932 from that time until the summer of 1938 Dr. Eilbott taught law at the University of Frankfurt and practiced law in that city.

Dr. Eilbott was reticent about current political matters in Europe. He stated that law practice in Europe was increasingly difficult for his wife. While in America, Dr. Eilbott met many lawyers whom he has never seen. He said that all those bearing the name are in some way connected. The surname was first attached to the family in the Middle Ages when one of Dr. Eilbott's ancestors was a special messenger (eilbott) to the Graf von Leinheim. Mrs. Eilbott, who is now in New York, has a son, who will probably join her husband later in the spring.

Choice Will Be Made From Field Of 27 Monday

First selection of five candidates from a field of 27 nominees for Junior Prom Queen will be held at 7:30 p. m. Monday, March 13, in the Union ballroom. John H. Morgan, director of publicity for the contest, said yesterday. The queen will reign over the Junior Prom, to be held April 1.

The queen and her two attendants will be chosen from a list of 27 nominees by an election conducted by the Men's Student Council within the next two weeks, Morgan stated. Judges for the initial competition will be Lloyd Mault, Campus book-store; Gene Meyers, athletic department; William M. Conant, Lexington business man; Gerald Griffin, journalism instructor; and Major George N. Randolph, military science professor.

Nominations for the honor were made by social societies and the Independent Association. They were: Bernice Turner, Jackson, and Martine R. DeWitt, Delta Zeta, Alpha Delta Delta; Jean Lawson, Corbin, and Evelyn Jean, Lexington, Alpha Xi Delta; Mildred Kash, Lexington, and Pat Robinson, Louisville, Alpha Gamma Delta.

Martha Jane Rich, Newark, N. J. and Peggy Tallman, Miami, Fla., Kapka Kappas; Dorothy Hillier, Lexington, and Sarah Biggs Henderson, Delta Delta Delta; Do Ann Young, Glenoe, Ill.; and Joan Jackson, Lexington, Chi Omega. Hattie Riddle, Cynthia, Zeta Tau Alpha; Catherine Crawford, Ashland, and Carol Keeton, Ashland, Kappa Delta; and Gem Teitbarbourville, and Elman Howard, Lexington, Phi Gamma Phi.

Independent Association candidates are: Harriet Tart, Ashland; Marie Clark, Rochester, N. Y.; Mabel Lowes, Lexington; Carolyn Sidman, Lexington; and Virginia Hayden, Augusta, Ga.

DRESS CONTEST BILLED FOR HOP Best-Costumed Couple To Win $5 Dollars

A costume contest to find the best dressed couple in Lexington will be held at the Sadie Hawkins' dance March 18 in the Union ballroom. Keys members said yesterday.

Five dollars will be awarded the couple dressed in the best costumes modeled after those worn by the 34 years that a native Kentuckian has been named Wildcat leader. Arthur Bickel, in this honor, was a candidate for an All-American team. He received a letter from the Federal of the 1932 team.

Part of the banquet program which featured an address by Governor Chandler, was the presentation of varsity letters and freshman numerals. Seniors, in addition to Opper, a candidate for an All-American team, to receive awards were Homer Thompson, Cab Curtis and Elmo Head. Juniors receiving letters were Goodman, Marion Clingish, Layton Rose and Harry Denham, while Lee Huber and Keith Parsley were sophomore letter winners.

Freshman numerals were awarded to Ray Abel, Ernal Allen, Billy Hedges, Jim King, Lucien Moyman, Jim Matheson, Reginald Palmer, Lloyd Matthews and Henry Walker. Arthur Bickel was recommended for senior manager position and J. M. Faulconer was presented a varsity letter for his work as senior manager this season.

Seay and Meece Will Give Reports Of Bureau Study

Prof. Maurice Seay and Dr. Leonard Meece of the bureau of educational research will report on a study made by the bureau of the "Financial support of Elementary and Secondary Education in Kentucky" at a joint meeting of the board of directors and the planning board of the Kentucky Educational Association to be held on Monday, March 11, at Louisville. The study which was started in September is being made by the bureau at the request of K. E. A.

Prof. Seay attended a meeting of the committee on rural education of the American Country Life Association last week at Chicago where he was appointed to the executive committee of the national committee on rural education.

LIMA SECRETARY WILL BE SPEAKER AT CONVOCAION Assembly To Be Held At 10 A. M. Monday In Memorial Hall

Dr. Warren Ketchner, acting chief of the division of international conferences of the United States Department of State, will speak before a general convocation at 10 a. m. Monday, March 13, in the Union ballroom. It is highly important that a university should have a philosophy of education, a distinct objective, and a spirit that will inspire it and its students. Dr. Paul L. McVey told members of the University of North Dakota chapter of Phi Beta Kappa here tonight.

The occasion of President McVey's speech was the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of North Dakota University's chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. Doctor McVey was president of the University at Grand Forks during his term.

Three hour classes will be discussed in an effort to offer students and faculty members to attend the lecture.

JOURNAL PRINTS LOCAL ARTICLES Lawyers Contribute To Quarterly

The Kentucky Law Journal, quarterly of the College of Law, has just published its March issue. Articles by Dean Alvin E. Evans, of the law college; Prof. Hugh E. Willis, University of Indiana, and University faculty members and law students are included.

"These classes" by members of the law faculty and "Student Notes" by Alan R. Vogler, John B. Brockman, Jr., and other law students, and book reviews are featured.

Dean Evans, in his article on "Irregularities of Testamentary Expression," suggests a "more accurate" method of dealing with the question of the word "mistake" as it applies to law. He further points out that the law should be interpreted in its plain meaning, no other meaning could be given.

UK Lawyers To Argue For Appeal Court Nod

Finals of law competition to determine four men who will present an argument before the Court of Appeals on Friday, April 14, will be held at 10 a. m., today in Memorial hall, tonight.

The traditional sporting tapping ceremony will be used to designate the pledges. David L. Davis, president of the organization, will conduct the ceremony.

Barkman Honored Perrine Addresses Engineer Students

Prof. John O. Barkman, field agent in duty, received an award from the Dairy Producers' Association of Kentucky for outstanding service in dairy work at its 12th annual meeting Wednesday at the Kentucky hotel in Louisville.

Professor Barkman has been in charge of the cream grading program for the College of Agriculture for the past twenty years.

In that position he has been very influential in improvement of dairy products and methods. Dean Thomas P. Cooper said yesterday. Dean Cooper further stated that Professor Barkman "has the confidence of the board and the department as an advisor in all matters which will result in better products or a greater income to the dairyman."

She Guides Houghton Will Lead; Forums To Touch 15 Fields

Ruth Houghton, director of placement for women at Purdue University will be the keynote speaker of the Vocational Information Conference to open at 8 p. m. Monday, March 13, with a general meeting in the ballroom of the Union building. The conference will continue through Tuesday with group discussions and will close Tuesday night with a banquet at "Men's Union" for all women students and conference leaders.

Dean Sarah B. Blending said yesterday. This is the most important conference of the University of Kentucky have ever held.

All group meetings on Tuesday, March 14, will be held in the Union building. The discussions will be divided into 15 fields into 15 sessions, with five professional fields discussed at 9 p. m., five at 10:30 a. m. and five at 1:30 p. m., in appointed rooms in the Union.

A general session at 3 p. m., in the ballroom, will be a general meeting with a resume of the conclusions reached in the smaller sessions. This session will be addressed by the Employer Experts from Army, Navy, and various other employers. It will be the last of the series.

STUDENTS FEET NET CHAMPIONS Governor Presides At Special Convo

With Governor Chandler as master of ceremonies, spirited cheering by the student body and informal banter between Athletic Council members, a special convocation was held Wednesday afternoon in memorial hall to honor the Southeastern Conference basketball champions. A capacity audience was in attendance.

Presiding in the absence of President McVey, Governor Chandler presented Bernice Shively, University athletic director; Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, secretary of the Southeastern Conference; and Coach Adolph Rupp.

Gray Will Talk At Pledge Rites Tau Beta Pi Will Tap Chosen Engineers

Dr. J. Archer Gray, pastor of Everybody's church, will speak on "Hoboing" at the annual spring pledging exercises of Kentucky Alpha of Tau Beta Pi, national honor society, Wednesday, April 5, at 10 a. m., today in Memorial hall, tonight.

The traditional sporting tapping ceremony will be used to designate the pledges. David L. Davis, president of the organization, will conduct the ceremony.

Disease Discussed New Law Course

The cause and treatment of dysentery was discussed at a recent joint meeting of the Kentucky Law Journal and the Lexington Association of medical technicians at St. Joseph Hospital, Lexington, Wednesday. Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, dean of the law school, spoke on the laboratory phase of treatment and Dr. Richard Ellis, local physician, revealed latest steps followed in clinical treatment.

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, representing the faculty, declared that the University needed a "good modern, up-to-date" gymnasium because Kentucky could hardly expect to invite visiting teams because of "lack of facilities."

He also cited need for a swimming pool and gave recognition to the swimming team. Governor Chandler said that when he took office steps were taken to initiate the fieldhouse project but that "cooperation was not forthcoming; but since the state is 'basketball conscious,' it is now time to try."

Bernie Opper, All-Southeastern guard, was named as "Man of the Year" in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament at Philadelphia, which probably he declined. Coach Rupp said, because the team had "met the obligations contracted for it at the beginning of the year," and that "post-season" games are also against the University's policy.

If It Worked, It Would Revolutionize

A suggestion was made the other day which, if it is followed up, could almost revolutionize social activities, student government, and teaching methods on this campus. Perhaps that is taking the suggestion in its most perfect form, but it is to be noted that the word is "could," not "would."

The suggestion is very simple in its idealistic stage. It involves nothing more or less than the selection of ten or fifteen students and ten or fifteen faculty members, and getting this group together for the frank expression of "what is wrong" here, but most important: "what can be done to improve students, faculty and University."

This group would necessarily be composed of some "radicals" and some "conservatives" for it to be effective. It would demand of its members downright hard thinking, and it would have as its purpose the planning of an all-day session or forum for all members of the University. Unless some sort of plan were followed, the all-University forum would either lapse into a gripe session or fail for lack of frank expression and serious thinking.

That is the suggestion in its embryonic form, but there is need for a more definite plan. Would such a forum accomplish anything? Would it fall of its own weight? Would students and faculty members be interested? Give some thought to the matter and then make your suggestions.

Proud Of The Ag-Engineers

Do you know your college? Or, did you know that our department of agricultural engineering supplies plans to Kentucky farms—plans covering such buildings as barns, silos, poultry houses, storage houses, general barns, sheds, and tool houses? And that this same department reported that last year it answered requests for 1,389 sets of plans from Kentucky farms, and that the demand for these drawings is steadily increasing?

And that isn't all. According to a Lexington Leader editorial, farmers in this state normally spend around $17,000,000 each year on repairing buildings and constructing new ones. More than 6,000 buildings were put up in 1948 on Kentucky farms and there is need for still more new ones and the remodeling of old structures. But these buildings should be grouped so that they enhance the beauty of the farm home premises.

So, to solve this problem, our College of Agriculture is prepared to give ground-plan sketches and expert advice, consulting convenience and at the same time respecting the aesthetic principle.

The services don't stop at that. There are pamphlets, bulletins, and hundreds of other helps offered by the college. But these few examples should suffice to indicate the excellent work being done by this branch of the University. Students should feel proud that their college doesn't selfishly and short-sightedly confine its activities to the classroom alone.

A pamphlet from the chemistry department of an eastern university advises us against eating the cellophane wrapper on candy bars. "Cellophane," it says, "is practically indigestible." We had never given much thought to the matter ourselves. But evidently there is a pressing need for the dissemination of this information, so if any of you have been eating candy bars without removing the wrapper, we will come to a bad end."

The idea is rather significant though, mankind being warned not to eat cellophane by a group of chemists who have thought the thing out. Makes the human race look a bit silly, we think. For years, squirrels have been cracking open nuts and eating only the kernel, squirrels know about not eating the shell, but Man has to be told that cellophane is "indigestible."

If Hitler is dead and we've been wasting our invective on a double for four years, we're pretty mad about the whole thing. What are those foreign correspondents doing over there, we want to know? Sitting around writing their autobiographies? This fellow Bauer says Dr. Fuhrer inadvertently swigged some poison at a banquet and keeled over ten minutes later. Could anything be more logical? We can almost see the expression on Goering's face when the chancellor gave forth his final "Ach!"

Well, all we've got to say is that if they've been kidding us about George Bernard Shaw all these years—if he's been dead and some office boy has been writing those plays from beneath a corn-silk beard, we don't think it's funny, we don't think it's funny at all! That those foreign correspondents, anyway!

The other day one of our professors was illustrating the law of gravity. "When I drop this pencil," he said, "it will fall to the floor." He dropped it and sure enough it did fall, but we wondered what would have happened if it hadn't. What could he have said, the craser floating on air in front of the class? He might have cleared his throat and explained that there were exceptions to every rule, but that wouldn't have been very effective. He might have put his foot on the craser and forced it to the floor, but that would have been awkward. Altogether it would have presented quite a problem. Would have upset the class no end too.

Condid Comment—
Governments used to operate under the feudal system. Napoleon saw the defects of this method of procedure and instigated an entirely new system. It worked for a while, but now it too is becoming known as the futile system.

We Americans are a whimsical people. The nations of the world are chafing at the bit to annihilate one another. Crises are upon us with the regularity of a daily newspaper. Thirty-thousand Americans meet in Madison Square Garden and are wooed by Dorothy Thompson. Things in general seem to be in one helluva mess. And yet, Sam Goldwyn calmly announces his forthcoming picture, "The Wizard of Oz," a full technicolor. There's something about this idea that we like. "The Wizard of Oz," descending on the earth (in full technicolor) like oil on troubled waters to quiet the nervous wrangling of humanity.

When I'm in love with you, my sweet,
Come live with me and be my love,
With or without our bread and meat
What matter such mundane affairs

Those sentiments I've heard before,
Go try them on another, sweet,
My stomach's bigger than my heart,
So please shut up and pass the meat.

Moving The Barrier By Modern Methods

CAMPUSCENE

- The Case Of Swing,
- You Intelligentsia

By JIM CALDWELL

Several nights ago this writer permitted himself to be dragged along to a local auditorium to hear a couple of Russians play a couple of pianos at one and the same time. As far as piano-playing goes, they were pretty good, but like all other "artists," they confined themselves solely to pounding out classical music and diligently ignored the popular stuff so dear to the hearts of this younger generation.

Every time I go to a job like that I sit and hope against hope that the performing artist will temporarily step out of his stuffed shirt and break into a popular ditty. But it never happens. For some mysterious reason they all look upon our beloved swing as something vulgar and unworthy of recognition. The same condition applies to all the other persons who profess to know all the operas by heart, but who seem to be proud of the fact that they never heard of Larry Clinton. To me this is nothing but narrow-mindedness and is not at all becoming to these people. In the following lines I shall attempt to show why I think they are wrong.

Some Of It Is Really Good
Despite the snubbery of the intelligentsia, there is actually in existence some popular music that is truly worthy of being recognized as MUSIC in any man's ear-trumpet. Life other average swing tunes, who detest jitterbugs and like to take Arnie Shaw sitting down, I am of the firm conviction that much of our popular music possesses a marked intrinsic value.

Surely such numbers as "Stardust," "Night and Day," "Marie," "Tea for Two," and the "St. Louis Blues" are more than passing fancies. There are of course many others which could be named, but these five stand out in my mind as being most deserving. As far as I'm concerned, just about anything by Cole Porter can be recognized anywhere as music.

What You Gonna Dance To?
Another good reason why popular music should not be frowned on is that people like to dance. Since styles change in dancing just as in anything else, so must the music for this dancing alter with the times. If one had to depend on the classic composers for this music, it would be a long time between dances. Sebelius and Bachmannoff and the rest of the boys aren't accustomed to dashing off a ditty every time they think of a word to rhyme with "moon." Consequently, dance orchestras wouldn't have an entirely new repertoire to cast before the jitterbugs every few weeks—as they do under the Tin-Pan-Alley system.

They too, I'm afraid the boys and

Ex-lawyer Fabian Mathis back in town last week-end jubilantly displaying to shag to "Largo di molto," "Fantasia, Opus 3," et al.

They'd Soon Wear Out
If lovers of classical music are wise they should be glad that there is such a thing as the transient kind. If there were only the former variety in existence our music-loving people would play it over and over so much that they would eventually grow tired of it. And one must admit that it would be a pretty sorry state of affairs if everyone got to be sick and tired of the old masters. Therefore, it is self-evident that we need something to furnish a contrast and thus keep our "fine" music fine. That something is our much-criticized swing.

Down To Our Level
Last and by far the most convincing argument in our case for swing, however, is the undeniable fact that much of the concert music being composed today sounds surprisingly similar to our present-day swing. Best example is the "American Symphony," by a composer named Morton Gould. It sounds very, very much like the impressionistic swing pieces of Raymond Scott. When Gould is played by a dance band, it is quite "rubbable." Go the next time an "intellectual" scoffs at the traditions of "Tommy Dorsey," we can just remind him that even his own composers are beginning to admit that maybe we have something here.

I realize that this bit of advice to the intelligentsia is going to "get over" like the proverbial lead zepelin, but still I am begging for the day to come when I can go to a piano concert and hear Gerstwin as well as Rimsky-Korsakoff and the rest of the tongue-twisters.

Crooks Will Speak At ATO Banquet Tonight

Mu Iota of Alpha Tau Omega will hold its thirtieth annual Founders' Day banquet at 6:30 tonight in the Union building. Dr. Harry M. Crooks, president of Pikeville College, Pikeville, will be the principal speaker.

Prof. L. E. Nollau of the College of Engineering, an alumnus of Mu Iota chapter, will act as toastmaster. Joe Crosson, Benton, will welcome the new initiates on behalf of the active chapter, and Charlie Smith, LaGrange, will make the response for the new initiates. Bob Nickerson, Paris, is chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Dave Lewis, Middletown, Ohio. Invitations have been sent to ATO alumni living in Kentucky and surrounding states. An attendance of over 100 actives, pledges, and alumni is expected.

Dr. Crooks has been president of Pikeville College since 1938, prior to which he was president of Alma College, Alma, Mich. A member of the Beta Mu chapter at Wooster University, of which he is a graduate, he also belongs to Phi Beta Kappa, the Knights Templar, the Michigan Authors' Association, and the National Educational Association.

Alpha Tau Omega was established on the University campus in 1909 when the national fraternity absorbed Mu Iota, a local society. The first college fraternity to make its appearance after the War Between the States, ATO was founded in 1865 at Richmond, Va. by three young Confederate soldiers. At the present time this fraternity has 94 active chapters located throughout the country, and 92 alumni associations.

Spring Is Here . . . We See From New Co-ed Clothes

In the spring a co-ed's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of clothes and very lovely indeed are the new outfits being seen this season.

Glenda Burton was seen in a shirtwaist dress, fresh earth in color with small white figures, a princess style teal blue coat with large pearl buttons and hat, gloves and shoes in fresh earth.

Sara Fisher has a dawa pink slipper satin formal cut on old-fashioned lines with full skirt, puffed sleeves, and square neck. Her black velvet evening bag matches the black velvet hat, binding around the neck.

Spring means lots of riding for houseworn. Agnes Gilbert. Her habit has brown jodphar boots, coat, Derby and crop, tan jodphars, white shirt, brown and yellow tie and natural string gloves.

Frances Griffen will brighten up the campus in a match maker sweater and skirt of dusty blue and a plaid jacket of white, dusty blue, and japonica. Her accessories are of japonica.

Charlotte Perival has chosen to start the spring season in varied colored suit. The jacket is of tweed striped in blue, green, red, and white. This is of soft blue. With this she will wear a wide brim light blue felt hat with a red band. Her bag shoes and gloves are blue.

Men Voice Their Views On Current Style Trends

Most men students at the University of Kentucky have definite ideas about what is good and what is bad in their clothing. So closely do a majority of these opinions concur, it is fairly easy to list the masculine preferences and to relatively certain of displeasing only a few.

In the matter suits, Kentucky men show a decided liking for the three-button, single-breasted dress model. Double-breasted are worn to some extent, but are generally regarded as slightly more formal. Favorite materials are Harris tweeds, covert, diagonal wales, and pinpoints, though on the decline, are still rather popular. Green seems to be the predominant color, with brown a close second.

Tyrodian hats are still being worn, though the present trend is toward wide-brimmed, light-weight hats of the "cross country" variety. Pork-pies and semi-pork-pies seem due for a comeback.

The universal favorite in shirts is the plain white Oxford cloth variety with button-down collar. Tab and round-point collars are growing more and more popular, with the starched collar definitely on the way out.

Student taste in neckties points to the faded variety, with plain color silk reps not far behind. Greens and reds are the most prominent colors.

Option on socks seems to be divided into two camps, one conservative, the other radical. The first of these prefers plain color six-third rib in cotton or lace, and wool socks in the Argyle patterns. The latter group goes on record as liking gay stripes and checks, the louder the better.

Favorites in shoes are the wing-tipped style of brown hand-stamped calf, and that undying love, the two-tone saddle oxford with the red rubber sole.

Tweed and camel's hair are the preferred materials for overcoats and topcoats. Gabardine is the generally favored cloth for raincoats with fly-fronts and finger-tip lengths. Also dear to the heart of Joe College is the reversible type coat which makes one ready for any kind of weather.

Formal dress is enjoying a boom at present with tails nosing out tuxedos for first position.

For less formal occasions Alene Calvert has chosen a shirt waist model in three of the newest spring shades. The waist is chartreuse, the belt fuchsia, and the pleated skirt is aqua. With this she will wear a chartreuse hat and bag and shoes of tan alligator. Her princess coat is of rough gold wool with a flared skirt and boxy sleeves.

Merry Kirkpatrick's suit is pink mauve with a sunning skirt and has a matching turban. With it she will wear a blue Shetland sweater. She has black patent ties, her neckless and toeless pumps and bag.

Nancy McKee has a powder blue sweater with a sunning skirt and wide Roman striped belt. With it she wears a navy blue soft wool reefer cut out on the same lines as the dress and an off-the-face navy blue bonnet with lots of veiling accessories of fresh earth.

Jean Megerle will dance her way through the spring in a bouffant neck of that lovely peach shade. The full skirt is sprinkled with gold sequins. Her sandals are worn gold kid tied with peach bows.

An evening dress of varying shades of pink is what Alice Wood Batley has chosen for spring. The pink satin bodice fits at the waist in a point and is caught in the back by velvet straps of a deeper shade. The full skirt is of net and varies its shades to match both the bodice and the straps.

SAE To Honor Fifteen Initiates

Initiation services for 15 pledges of Kentucky Epsilon of Sigma Alpha Epsilon will be held today in the chapter house. Following the formal initiation there will be held the annual Founder's Day banquet in honor of the new initiates. Granville Clark will serve as toastmaster and will introduce Judge Robert N. Gorman of Cincinnati, who will give a brief address. Wilfred Crutcheffeld will speak for the newly initiated pledge class.

Special guests for this dinner will be the members of the SAE chapter at Centre College and the following alumni: O. A. Bakhaus, Dr. W. T. Maxson, F. S. Good, T. P. Bryant, J. J. Huddleston, C. C. Jett, Homer L. Baker, J. T. Jackson, Jr., Rodgers Baker, Tom Nichols and Carlton Ball, all of Lexington. John Whitaker, Russellville; Hogan Ballard, Bryansville; Norman P. Judy, Millersburg; Lieut.-Gov. Keen Johnson, Richmond, and Dr. F. W. Witt, and Dr. H. V. Johnson, of Georgetown.

New members of the fraternity will be Billy Nash, Harry Alexander, Julian Nichols, Jimmy Young, Fred Triplett, George Schlegel, James Powers, Bart Paynter, Robert McGill, Carysle Kirkpatrick, Milburn Keith, Leonard Greathouse, Wilfred

Crutcheffeld, Ben T. Adams, Jr., and Milton Sorenson. Fraternity colors will be carried out by the table decorations of purple leather and yellow jonquils. Yellow candles will be used on all the tables.

New Trustee Feted By Faculty Women

Women faculty members entertained with a luncheon yesterday in the Union in honor of Mrs. Georgia Blazer, Ashland, recently appointed member of the Board of Trustees.

Mrs. Blazer the first woman to become a member of the Board was appointed in January to the post and will serve for the first time at the April meeting of that group.

American Collegians Favor Pre-marital Venereal Tests

Opinions Of Students Reflect Those Of Nation

(Note: A law requiring the test recently went into effect in Kentucky.)

By JOE BELDEN, Editor
Austin, Texas, March 9.—A blood test to detect venereal disease before marriage should be required by law. By an emphatic majority of 93.1 per cent, the nearly one million and a half college students of the nation believe in this, according to a poll taken by the Student Opinion Surveys of America.

The significance of the survey is seen in bold relief when it is considered that college youth forms a group on the eve of marriage, an important part of the population that is vitally concerned with its own immediate future.

On a subject that up to recent times has been taboo in "respectable" conversation, the menace of syphilis, survey interviewers for the Kernel and other cooperating campus newspapers, found students quite ready to express their opinions. Colleagues of all geographical sections, economic standings, ages, and sexes were asked, "Do you believe a blood test before marriage to detect venereal disease should be required by law?" The results:

YES . . . 93.1 per cent
NO . . . 6.9 per cent

Student opinion is almost in complete agreement with national public opinion, for other polls of the general citizenry have shown similar numbers approving. And students in all sections of the country believe by almost identical majorities that blood tests should be compulsory to aid in eliminating as far as possible this hazard to health and marriage. Men and co-eds showed no appreciable differences in their responses.

New Hampshire legislators have been the first to vote for compulsory Wassermann tests for all seeking marriage licenses. The question has been brought into front-page focus under the leadership of Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States, whose campaigns against venereal ailments points out that the syphilis organism, spirous chloa pallida, attacks 796 out of each 100,000 Americans every year. Of the schools where sample interviews were conducted, representing a true cross-section of American colleges and universities, nearly half of them make blood tests available. In only a few are they compulsory.

Dorsey To Play

Tommy Dorsey's orchestra will be in Louisville tomorrow night to play for the President's Ball, which will be held in the Home Show building at the State Fair Grounds, beginning at 9 p. m. The ball, held annually for the benefit of infantile paralysis victims, is being sponsored by the city of Louisville. General admission will be 50c per person.

A Wise Word Before Choosing Your Outfit . . .

To remember in choosing your costume:
Do not combine more than two of the bright colors but three of the softer shades are compatible.
Hats should match the predominant color of the outfit.
Shoes and bag should match each other and harmonize and contrast with the rest of the outfit.

Bass-Baritone Will Present Song Recital

Lansing Hatfield, young American bass-baritone, will present a song recital in the vespers series at 8 p. m. Sunday, March 12, in Memorial hall.

A native of Virginia, Hatfield studied at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore and at Lehigh Rhyne college. He has been recipient of several musical awards and scholarships and has done radio and concert work.

The singer has chosen the following program for his recital:

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

Punching up a few hot sparks from the basketball coals and finding that Kentucky's Southeastern Conference champions have been invited to take part in the N. C. A. A. tournament.

The N. C. A. A. (National Collegiate Association) is scheduled to hold the first stage of its eliminations in Philadelphia March 17-18 and the affair will be as private as a hermit's snout. Only four teams have been as yet invited to the invitational tourney: Kentucky as Southern representative, Ohio State as Yankeland defender, Villanova as the East's team and Dartmouth from New England.

The sole object of the tournament is to crown a national champion, but in order to be initiated as the champ the winning team must pass through more stages than a fraternity initiate.

From the Philadelphia tourney the winner passes to Northwestern for another season and ultimately to San Francisco for the final slice from the wedding axe.

But at this stage there is a slight hitch—no other tournament is running loose posing their champions as the national titlist. Other than the N. C. A. A. ten party tourneys are also being held in New York and Kansas City. The former is strictly on invitation while the latter is open to all comers and last year, with 32 teams entered, crowned Warrensburg, Mo. Teachers as their national champion. Temple was smitten upon by the New York set together, called the New York Sports Writers' tournament, as the nation's best.

Something Wrong

One is led to question which is the keener—competition among the teams or competition among the tournaments. Although it was just two years ago that the seed for the first national college tourney was sown, already the cage affairs border dangerously near post season football ground.

The winner of each tournament will probably consider itself a national champion, thus making the spot smack of the wrestling industry, where every grappler who can throw a slow breaking curve goes about posing as the champ. Since practically every college that is large enough to distribute circulars plays basketball, trying to draw a national titlist from this horde of teams is as futile as a blind man searching in a dark cellar for a black cat that isn't there. You really couldn't find the national basketball champion with a diving rod.

Kentucky Undecided

Kentucky is as yet undecided to accept or decline their invitation but chances are that the Wildcats' uniforms have been salted away with the moth balls and old lavender for the season. Although it is to be considered a great honor to be asked to play in such a tourney, let Coach Adolph Rupp give his opinion.

"We've had a tough season of 20 games and have met all the obligations we contracted at the first of the season. Now the fellows are due a rest."

Since the players and the schedule are usually played out at about the same time and since the futility of trying to select a national champ is obvious, the move seems very wise.

Here's another unusual letter which I will attempt to answer in words of one syllable. It's from a Western patriot who is all aroused and—guess what? He's mad at me and you too, if you are a Kentucky fan. The letter is a complaint about the article I wrote concerning the proposed Kentucky-Western game but is there anything or any person, except parachute makers, who don't receive complaints. Read on, heed!

"Dear Mr. Creason and other UK students who feel there is only ONE college in the state of Kentucky, namely that of the University of Kentucky: You are so deeply entrenched in your egotistical and biased viewpoint that you feel no other school exists except this little university." (If you smell anything, here's probably the writer of this letter burning the hide off me because he's really a terrible cook.)

Slipping through the other little illicities that follow, here is an interesting part: "The SIAA and K-AC opponents are NONE AS GOOD AS WESTERN and are lucky when they happen to beat Western."

Let's see now, didn't someone speak awhile back about egotism and prejudice? How do you like that? Remember friend, people who speak such noisies shouldn't swing golf clubs. In all Kentucky there is possibly no person more lopsided in his sentiments than myself but as yet I can not recall my ever placing Kentucky in a class above any other school.

The letter continues: "Western is really hesitant to ask UK for a game and they will feel UK will not risk playing them."

It was less than three weeks ago that Ed Diddle, Western coach, in his Associated Press interview contradicted this statement. How's about getting together on your stories?

No friend, Kentucky has not (and I hope never does) played Western and for many reasons, several of which I set to typewriter tempo a few weeks back. If Kentucky met Western what right would we have to play games to such teams as Murray, Morehead, Louisville, Eastern and the other state schools? Western may be out of the teams class but didn't Murray hold them to a two point win this year and didn't they beat them last season? I suppose it was to give the fans a thrill that Western just beat Morehead by four points in the recent KIAC tourney. Would you book Western for Kentucky and d-up such teams as Notre Dame, Miriquette, Long Island, W. & L. Xavier and Cincinnati just to appease the growing pains of some other team. That may be your sense of progress, but not mine.

Incidentally, the letter was from a former Western student who somehow neglected to sign his name. (Come, let's not get all heated up over this, we're both Kentucky students and should be looking for our school's interests.)

Twelve inches makes one foot and one foot makes one tiret, all of which has very little to do with anything I have tried to express, except that I'm getting tired of all this arguing. Round and round the discussion goes, where it will stop—I am if I know.

CATS WILL SWIM CLOSE TO HOME

Blues Meet Eastern Tuesday Night

Kentucky's far-famed "dryland" swimming team, undefeated this season in seven successive starts, will celebrate its "homecoming" against the Eastern State Teachers College Tuesday night at Richmond.

The meet will be contested in Eastern pool, where the orphan Kentucky swimmers travel twice a week for practice dives. Since the nearest thing to a swimming hole on the Kentucky campus is an overgrown bird bath, the Wildcat-fish have, since the team was organized three years ago, borrowed Eastern's pool for rehearsals.

All proceeds from the water carnival will be turned over to the Kentucky team to help send the team into the Southeastern Conference tournament which will be held at Knoxville in April. At present the team funds are slimmer than a six o'clock shadow and, unless the meet Tuesday night nets a good profit, the squad may not be able to enter the league elimination.

Monday night the Cats are slated to take the water against Berea College in the Mountaineer pool. Neither of the teams are expected to cause the powerful Blues any trouble. In a previous meeting, Kentucky rolled over Eastern by a huge score and since that time the Teachers have dunked Berea by a convincing margin. In order to live the Eastern "homecoming" the Cats, holders of five state time records, have vowed they will be out to better their own times. The 300 yard medley relay team, who established a new conference time for the distance three weeks ago, will also attempt to slice its record cloaking of 3:21.9.

Students To Attend Berea Conference

The Southern Economic and Labor conference, sponsored by the Student Christian Association of Berea College, is being held March 10-12 in Berea. Students attending from the University are Mary Koppus, Harriet Hendershot, Marian Villau, Dorothy Hill, Marcia Randall, Barbara MacVey, Harold Schickelraut, O. D. Hawkins, and Elizabeth Cowan, YW secretary.

The principal speakers at the conference will be Edwin E. White, Congressional minister of Pleasant Hill, Tenn., and author of "Highland Heritage," Malcolm Ross, publications director of the National Labor Relations Board, and Lucy Randolph Mason, public relations representative of the Textile Workers Organizing Committee.

Students from all colleges in Kentucky will participate in the conference.

WAA Will Attend Play Day At Centre

W. A. A. basketball team will go to Danville Saturday, March 11, to participate in a play day given by Centre College. The team will go to Cincinnati for a similar program with the University of Cincinnati March 18.

Correction

The story concerning the swimming team in last Tuesday's issue stated that Kentucky would definitely enter a team in the Southeastern Conference tournament to be held at the University of Tennessee in April. This is incorrect. Although team members hope that it will be possible, official approval has not yet been given.

All-Ag Tourney

The All-Ag intramural basketball tournament, the first of its kind to be staged here, will begin Monday night in the Gym Annex. Round-Robin games will be played Monday through Thursday, and the elimination tourney will follow on March 27-28. Five teams, the Dairy Club, Block and Bruile, Alpha Zeta, the Poultry Club, and the N-H Club, have entered.

Baseballmen Are To Report At Gym

All candidates for pitching and catching positions on the Kentucky varsity baseball team are asked to report to Coach Frank Moseley in alumni gym as soon as possible.

According to Coach Moseley's plans, all pitchers and catchers will start outdoor conditioning Monday. The first call for other varsity positions will be made the latter part of March. There will be a freshman team but the practice date has not yet been decided upon.
