War World

The news from Europe this week has reported few highlights since hostilities ended. All German sectors of resistance were eliminated...

When New Zealand troops occupied the port of Trieste on the northern Adriatic, Sea Marshall Tito of the Jug-Slav Partisans took offense since he has aspirations for the acquisition of that port for his country, from Italy...

THE PACIFIC WAR: The week has seen American forces concentrating on the southern tip of Formosa. Further north on the mainland is Shanghai...

From China have come reports this week-end that the Chinese have recaptured the area around the port of Foochow, directly west of the southern tip of Formosa.

Faculty To Consider Student Amendment

SGA Announces Fall Committee An amendment to the constitution of the Student Government association was passed in the student election held Monday.

It changes the membership of the Judiciary committee of two students and three faculty members to a membership of five students, two chosen from the assembly, and three to be chosen by SGA from the student body at large.

The following SGA committee for next fall, with the exception of the Judiciary committee, were announced and approved by the assembly in the Monday meeting. The committees are as follows: Election committee: Owen Pace, chairman; Richard LeGrand, Betty Tevis, Mac Peckitt, Forum committee: William Buckler, chairman; Roger Yost, Juliette Jones, Angelina Stewart, Planning committee: Richard LeGrand, chairman; Jack Banahan, Nancy Lockery, Joe Covington; Finance committee: Jack Banahan, chairman; Wilma Jeanne Casada, James Durban, Social committee: Reginald Bowen, chairman; Geraldine Dugan, Dewart Coleman, Betty Jones, Kim Churchill.

Installation committee: The city of Keith Desker, chairman, Marjorie Hill, Marjorie Smith, Student Director committee: Emily Jones, chairman, Patricia Burnett, Joan Scott; Key committee: Richard LeGrand, chairman; Activity publication committee: Marjane Weinstrop, chairman, Emily Jones, Juliette Jones, Kim Churchill.

The name of Bill Sturgill and another junior to be appointed by President Jay Blayler will be submitted to the Board of Student Affairs who will select one of these as the junior representative of the student body on the Athletic Advisory board of the University.

The rules of the assembly were suspended so that Bill Stillman, chairman of the Administration committee, could report from that committee. A discussion of the number of points to be allowed each student for his activities followed and Stillman suggested that the proposed plan of independent students last Wednesday, at a meeting called for the purpose of rallying the group's new constitution, Florence Fox, Commerce sophomore from Lexington, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Named to the policy-determining executive council representing every college, were George Campbell, Agriculture; Rosanna Blake, Law; Ross Moore, Education; Mary Jane Lair, Commerce; Tom Gish, Arts and Sciences; Howard Stewart, Engineering; and Angelina Stewart, Graduate school.

Kyian Sales To Continue Kentuckians will be on sale from 1:15 to 4 p.m. in room 33 of McVey hall Thursday, May 31, for seniors and those persons who have paid a $2.00 deposit. They will be on sale from 9:30 to 12 Friday morning, June 1, for seniors and $4.50 sales.

WBKY To Receive Blue Programs Arrangements have been made between the Blue Network and station WBKY so that all Blue programs will be received directly into the WBKY studios, and WBKY has permission to broadcast over frequency modulation any and all sustaining programs from the Blue network.

Kernel Corrects The statement in the last issue of the Kernel which said that Dr. Loyal W. Croft, who is now in the Army, would resign his teaching position at the University next year, would be secretary of the Faculty club, was an error. Mr. Loyal Croft, who is head of the University library's circulation department, will be the new secretary of the Faculty club.

Faculty Extends Congratulations

For the University faculty I extend congratulations and best wishes to the members of the graduating class. In remaining in school and accelerating your studies as much as possible, you have rendered faithful and important service to the nation. You are now the possessors of the fulfillment of mankind's most noble quest - a world in which freedom, justice, and enduring peace, may everywhere prevail.

Leo M. Chamberlain, Dean of the University and registrar

For You-- To Remember

By Mildred Long, Kernel News Editor Especially for the Class of '45, is this last regular edition of The Kernel. It is designed to be among your souvenirs of these four years of college, which spite of war, and all the less pleasant things, have been rather wonderful.

Each of these "Senior Souvenir" features is so arranged that if clipped from the page, it will be just the right size to paste into the fly leaves of The Kernel. Along with your yearbook, you can keep a record of the treasured memories of 1941-1945.

In the past it was customary to send an editor of The Kernel edited by the seniors of the staff. Every rule of good journalism was deliberately defied. The writers indulged in every crazy whim and wrote what they wanted and hadn't dared put into print.

In 1945, we've attempted to give the seniors and those men who would have graduated, but had to go off to war, a little something to remember us by.

Will Name Graduate To Committee

To maintain interest among recent graduates, the University Alumni association will name one graduate of June, 1945 to its executive committee. This student member will be invited to monthly meetings of the committee as a member in full standing.

Kyian Sales To Continue

Kentuckians will be on sale from 1:15 to 4 p.m. in room 33 of McVey hall Thursday, May 31, for seniors and those persons who have paid a $2.00 deposit. They will be on sale from 9:30 to 12 Friday morning, June 1, for seniors and $4.50 sales.

2945 Graduates Schooled During War

College years for many of this year's graduates have all been war years. Because they have been at the campus either during the period of decreased enrollment, greater concerns outside of school, and less feeling of security, their college life has been affected more than that of any other year class.

Examinations Will Begin Thursday Spring Quarter Will Terminate On June 2

Examinations terminating the spring quarter began on Thursday at 8 a.m. and end 4:50 p.m. on Saturday, June 2. Graduating seniors with adequate standing have in most cases been excused by their professors from the final exams.

On Friday, June 1, from 8 to 9:30 a.m. classes meeting third hour on any cycle starting on either Monday or Tuesday; from 10 to 11:30 a.m. classes meeting fourth hour on any cycle starting on either Monday or Tuesday; from 1 to 2:30 p.m. classes meeting first hour on any cycle starting on either Monday or Tuesday; from 3 to 4:30 p.m. classes meeting second hour on any cycle starting on either Tuesday or Thursday.

Howard Receives Post

Capt. Joseph M. Howard of the infantry, a 1935 graduate of the University will replace Robert L. Stivers, commander of a Company, it was announced by the Military Department this week. He arrived Tuesday and will assume his regular duties at the end of this week.

Hunt To Edit Summer Kernel

Betty McClanahan Hunt, senior from Valley Station, and former news editor, will be summer editor of the Kernel. She will be assisted by June Baker, senior from Hopkinsville, and former editor of the Kernel, and former editor of the Kentuckian, will be managing editor. News editor will be Betty Tevis, junior from Richmond, and Peggy Watkins, junior from Lexington.

Summer Registration

Monday, June 11, will be registration day for the summer term of the summer quarter, with courses offered in all colleges and departments of the University. The term will end on July 18, and July 19 registration for the second term will be held. On August 25, the summer quarter will end.

Lieut. Harold Winn Awarded Medal Posthumously

Lieut. Harold E. Winn, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Winn of Maryland, and University graduate, has been awarded the Bronze Star medal posthumously for heroic action on July 13, 1944, when he was killed in the battle of St. Lo in France. The medal will be presented to his mother June 15 by an officer of the Fifth Service Command at Camp Leitchfield, Ky.

Lieut. Harold Winn Awarded Medal Posthumously

Lieutenant Winn was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1942. He was commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduation and reported to Camp Wheeler, Ga.

232 Eligible For Degrees At '45 Commencement; Judge Hamilton Speaks

Judge Elwood Hamilton

Over two hundred thirty-two members of the first University class to attend the University during four years will be awarded diplomas at commencement services on Still field next Friday night. Judge Elwood Hamilton, of the United States District Court of Appeals of the Sixth circuit, Louisville, will address the graduates, faculty, alumni and friends of the University on "A Covenant With the Dead."

7,000 Alumni, Faculty Serving In Armed Forces

Almost 7,000 former students and faculty members are now serving in the different branches of the armed forces, latest reports show. These men have received a total of 327 citations, other than the Purple Heart. It has been almost impossible to keep track of the Purple Heart citations that have been awarded alumni.

Bishop Watkins To Preside At Baccalaureate

Over two hundred thirty-two members of the first University class to attend the University during four years will be awarded diplomas at commencement services on Still field next Friday night. Bishop William T. Watkins, of the United States District Court of Appeals of the Sixth circuit, Louisville, will address the graduates, faculty, alumni and friends of the University on "A Covenant With the Dead."

Principal Speaks

Judge Elwood Hamilton, the principal speaker at commencement, will address the graduates on "A Covenant With the Dead." He will be followed by Bishop William T. Watkins, of the United States District Court of Appeals of the Sixth circuit, Louisville, who will address the graduates on "A Covenant With the Dead."

G.I.'s Must Retain Wolfish Gleams-Even In The Pacific

Edwin's Note: Staff Sergeant Arthur J. Weirich, who is with the Fifth Air Force Service Command, recently sent to a University of Kentucky student a copy of a letter, the nearest thing to the true American custom, held at a military post in New Guinea. The account is an eye-witness report.

For eighteen months these jokers in a Fifth Air Force Service Command unit plied along in New Guinea, repairing and maintaining Fifth Air Force fighters and bombers. Even at night of soft lights, sweet music, graceful couples on a dance floor, moonlight, and assorted subjects. Not by appearance, but by social graces, the New Guinea belles fit into the picture. Came the Philippine campaign and the black-eyed chicks were greeted with enthusiasm.

Of course, the lights weren't really soft; they were painfully bright. The tropical moon was blacked out with the usual tropical rain clouds. The girls were confined to dancing strictly according to the Rules Book. The ballroom was the big upstairs room of a Filipino home, and the couples could not exactly be called "graceful." Just the same, after eighteen months in the jungles of New Guinea, it was a "social highlight" to us.

This particular conventional whiffling was arranged by the unit commander, Captain Marshall J. Combs of Kansas City, Mo., and his adjutant, Lieut. Norman W. Cox of Buffalo, N. Y. The local mayor was consulted and he graciously arranged to have the dance held in his brother's home. Music was provided by members of a Sea Bee unit, leaving only one man necessary for a successful evening.

Here Captain Combs had to strike a balance between the GI version of a "rat race" and the rigid Philippine social customs which stem from the old Spanish Duenna system. The gentlemen could not call the ladies "the ladies" but were chaperoned at all times, which roughly translated, means AT ALL TIMES!

Mayor Assists: The mayor neatly resolved the problem by suggesting the outfit furnish transportation for the girls and their families and deliver the male contingent in an entirely different way. The girls were climbed into the backs of the trucks, none of them being allowed to ride the cab which the driver who shifted gears in lonely and slightly frustrated fashion.

Today We're Proud

The most unusual class in the history of the University will graduate a week from today. No one will forget the Class of 1945. Hardly had its members, as freshmen, become accustomed to the traditions and ideals of the University when it was thrown into the biggest mess of confusion and uncertainty it has ever known.

These freshmen of 1941 spent four years seeking an education, as best they could, in a crisis to which nobody could adjust themselves very quickly. They have known nothing but "wartime restrictions" almost from the time they signed their "entrance" cards into the University until the "exit" papers are handed to them on the platform at Stoll field, Friday night.

No other class at the University of Kentucky has gone through such a period. We hope that no other class will be associated with the experiences, the unnatural conditions, the sacrifices, and the disappointments that this first complete wartime class has been faced with the minute they put on the little blue "leonic" and looked forward to a college career.

Throughout the pages of today's Kernel, the last of this brief year, those four years have been sketched briefly, and are meant to be kept as souvenirs by you seniors, who can look back and remember—when.

On the editorial pages we first became aware of the problems of the University and we could eventually sense, even through the good natured humor that was sprinkled throughout the columns and editorials, that conditions were changing—even faster than we realized.

In the fall of 1941 President Herman L. Donovan delivered his first address to the student body in the first regular convocation of the year. Bitter feeling was felt because Memorial Hall, with a capacity of 1,100, could not possibly hold the 3,500 students then enrolled, plus the faculty, and plus the townspeople who had to be turned away from the doors. Seniors, that was your introduction to the problem that has only recently become more than a dream. You kept hearing "fieldhouse—fieldhouse" over and over again. That word means a lot more to you now than it did in the fall of 1941.

Then there was still a big homecoming celebration—the kind with parades and floats and decorations and fraternity buffet suppers and big dances in the Union. So far uncertainty hadn't bothered our enthusiasm to "Beat Yandy!" We bought tags which said, "Buy a tag and help build a fieldhouse." There was that fieldhouse again.

But we weren't thinking about a war yet. We were concerned mainly with the "Best Band in Dixie" which was being sent to Alabama at a cost of $1,500 to play for a football game. You see, there were no war bond campaigns or Red Cross drives that first year in college and we could afford a big splurge like this.

In spite of good times like these and the others that we were expecting, there was dissatisfaction somewhere. Kernel editors had us named the "What-The-Hell-Generation." We had characteristics that were unbefitting a college student but if we realized ourselves that we were "confused, disillusioned, cynical, self-centered, superficial, and materialistic," we didn't care.

There was no Pearl Harbor, yet we were aware of the listlessness in class, the cheering half-heartedly at games, the increased "horse-play" in the stands, and the ill manners displayed in the Grill.

Then, war. "Instead of the American people climbing over the isolation intervention fence, the fence itself has been lifted by the Japanese and moved to such a position that there can be but one side for America to take. And that is to throw every bit of strength and spirit the nation can muster into the whole-hearted defense of the country."

With this idea the editorial page of The Kernel tried to present the general feeling of all. Students were told to (1) Keep cool, (2) Stick to their studies, (3) Prepare for the future.

But this was only the first year.

There was a question in 1942-43 as to whether or not sports would stay at the University, and Marvin Akers, veteran athlete on the basketball team, wrote four good reasons to The Kernel stating his opinions for why it is a must that sports stay. There was football that fall and there was basketball that spring.

A game of "Let's Pretend" was used as a starting editorial that year. A comparison between the 156 students from the University of Prague who were shot by the Nazis and 156 University of Kentucky students who, because of leadership or strength might be slain for the same reasons, was made. The headline "156 UK Students Are Killed" snapped many into a cold reality.

The status of the men enrolled was getting more acute and plans for having a tremendous fling before they were all called were underway.

"Harry James to play for Junior-Senior prom" was a dream headline that columnists played on for several weeks. The big squabble over having a big name band for the last rally "normal" dance in the Union brought hot arguments to light. "We can't afford it—we haven't that much money to spend right now," letters to the editor said.

But we tried hard, and even considered such bands as Jimmy Dorsey, Horace Heidt, Russ Morgan, Cab Calloway, Alvino Rey, Charlie Spivak, and Glenn Gray before the idea was completely ruled out.

The campus was humming "He Wears A Pair of Silver Wings," "At Last," "Black Magic," and "Why Don't You Do Right."

In 1943 the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve took a bite from all the remaining fraternities which left them staggering with hardly enough men for officers in the chapter. The big problem was what to do with the houses. Rent? Sell? Mortgage? When the girls eventually moved into them it took us several months to get accustomed to the idea. Sigma Chi's felt a little ridiculous calling for their dates at the Sigma Nu house, but it was done.

Another hard thing to get accustomed to was the presence of soldier-versions on the campus. We just had a wartime engineer of the "College Joe," that's all. We traded striped socks and saddle shoes for GI boots and khakis and we didn't quite know how to treat them.

It was true that "many of us knew little about Army life and many of us didn't even have any one we knew in the service"—then. But how peculiar such a statement would sound now!

Students broke the "never been to a convocation—never going to" tradition when the big "Farewell Convocation" was held in the gymnasium that year. It wasn't a mass demonstration of militarism. It was just a goodly service at which we honored all those boys who would be leaving soon to offer their aid in the defense of the country.

Tuesday's Kernel became the next casualty of the war. The press was forced to write to wartime conditions and cut down publications to one Kernel a week, so the Tuesday edition was done away with.

By this time the University had seriously gone to war. Civilian students knew rationing, crowded housing, and a curtailed social program. They bought bonds, they gave blood, and they collected scrap for the scrap drives.

In 1944-45 we succeeded in getting back some of those things which had temporarily died because of the war. The "Best Band in Dixie" was polished up a bit and we didn't even care if women too were allowed to march in the band. If it meant hearing that music at football games, we were for it. But it took lots of pushing and encouraging, through the editorial page, to get enough hand members—old or new—to try out.

And through four years of constant urging we are certain that the fieldhouse will, someday, be a reality. The contracts have been approved by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees and the $1,000,000 dream will eventually be a part of the University.

How different this is now from the vague "Buy a tag and help build a fieldhouse." In spite of war it isn't hopeless to look to the future because we have seen growth in the four hard years we've spent here.

So, seniors, you ought to feel pretty proud of yourselves right now. You're one group that no one will want to forget—if they could, because you stand for understanding, patience, courage, and fortitude. You overlooked all the unpleasant things that four years of college have meant and you stuck to the job ahead of you.

An interesting event of the week is the new sign which Riley Parks has painted on the back of her car. On the express card where one is supposed to list the value of the contents of a package, she listed $2.00. All I can say is that I certainly would like to see her wardrobe!

Speaking of getting serious, Merl Baker even arranged to take Emily Wilson on the "Y" Retreat. Special notice to Ethel Smith: I have heard your co-educational first aid class is quite interesting. Elizabeth Carey's latest interest is Gerald Debon.

The news that was being breaking up Dr. Niel Plummer's journalism class is that Mary Jane Dorsey's Bill Smith has landed in San Francisco after being overseas twenty-five months.

The burning question is where has Neville Dunn been all week? Girls at both dorms and sorority houses are threatening suicide.

Come on Jane Ellen Buchanan and Mabel Beebe, let's quit talking for time. Since this column is written on Tuesday, I don't want them to put anything over on me, so this is just to let them know that I know the pin may get a transfer.

Johnny Allen and Betty Rose have been making interesting scenery with their walks up and down Lexington avenue.

Seen Saturday night—Patty Cliff Lane and Joe Cwington on a first date. Also seen together quite a lot lately are Bill Sutton and Pat Griffin.

The girl who is easily the most popular girl on campus on Saturday nights is Joyce Casson. Most boys say she is a wonderful date!

Since we are nearing the time to leave for home I think this is quite appropriate.

So for future writers of this column, keep planning, keep getting married, keep getting in trouble, and keep dating—that is what makes life so interesting!

What Goes On There...

By Dora Lee Robertson

The Interfaith Dance at Auburn was so well lighted that you could see Sam's freckles, and the Alpha Psi brawl was so dark that only the girls in the white dresses got danced with. It wasn't said, however, that the dance wasn't well-lit in certain respects. The Phi-Sigma dance was more improvement, as far as electricity goes. The hall was just dim enough to make a white coat resemble a dinner jacket and transform a leer into a smile.

At a recent meeting of Alpha Chi Sigma, national honorary chemical fraternity, a chemistry professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology suggested radical changes in freshman chemistry. Under his plan three courses would be taught: one for those who had not taken chem in high school, one for those who had taken it in high school but did not plan to continue in it, and a third for those who planned to go on to the advanced chemistry courses.

Add manpower shortcuts notes: The University of Maryland is about to give up on the effort to revive lacrosse after first trials, for tryouts brought only 12 when 20 are needed or an intrasquad game, says the Maryland Deaconback.

A new course in the fitting of contact lenses, and a series of refresher courses are being planned by the School of Optometry, University of California, for optometrists returning from service in the armed forces.

Waves training at Smith College received circular from a tutoring firm offering to "beautify American manhood with a varied collection of anchors, flags, baltieships, tracer shells or anti-aircraft guns."

"Little Henry"

A "Little Henry" episode occurred at Auburn last week that should be of some interest. The murals of artist Diego Rivera were on exhibit in the architecture building. One of the enterprising students, who concentrate on making life a bit less drab, had a fiendish brain-storm. When the murals were unpacked, he drew one apparently quite similar to the artist's, attached a blue ribbon and a price tag (100.00) and put it up alongside Rivera's. For a number of days everyone in the architecture department was fooled, including the faculty.

This is the last column of the year and we have quite a few things to look back on.

First of all, we really liked those football games; the new AST met the same in throughout the year; the basketball games and the cheerleaders; "Pinky" the little white dog; the Founders Day and Student Convocation which started campus traditions, and Betty Power's Gossiping account.

There were some other things that happened that we'll remember about this year with a lump in our throat, such as the increase of gold stars on the Service Eas in the Union and the flag at half mast, but the tears came with my laughter.

"Always tip your hat before striking a lady."

"Our room-mate, bless her little heart, bought us a lug wrench for our birthday. When the clerk showed it to her, she was dismayed at the dullness of the steel, and asked him for a 'bright and shiny one because it's for a present!'"

"You've all heard about Jack and Jill and their little trip up and down the hill. Well, dig this: Jack and Jill fell down the hill—a trick that's mighty risky. If that's what water makes you do, I think I'll stick to whiskey."

"We saw two funny things this week. One was Lucy Meyer carrying her own typewriter to the typing room. The other was Don Lail."

"And now, with a fond farewell to those who aren't returning to UK, and a few sprinkles of sympathy to those who are coming to summer school, we say adieu. Don't think it ain't been fun."

G.I.'s Must Retain Wolfish Gleams-Even In The Pacific

Edwin's Note: Staff Sergeant Arthur J. Weirich, who is with the Fifth Air Force Service Command, recently sent to a University of Kentucky student a copy of a letter, the nearest thing to the true American custom, held at a military post in New Guinea. The account is an eye-witness report.

For eighteen months these jokers in a Fifth Air Force Service Command unit plied along in New Guinea, repairing and maintaining Fifth Air Force fighters and bombers. Even at night of soft lights, sweet music, graceful couples on a dance floor, moonlight, and assorted subjects. Not by appearance, but by social graces, the New Guinea belles fit into the picture. Came the Philippine campaign and the black-eyed chicks were greeted with enthusiasm.

The war brought many social changes to the University; scarcity of civilian men, soldiers quarters in the dormitories—all except Jewell. Familiar pre-war events such as name bands, and the election of a band sponsor were laid aside for the time being.

Let's look back to those days when the seniors, then freshmen, asked questions every bit as dumb as any asked today. The men in our class were haunted by upperclassmen who constantly saw that we wore our caps—the little blue and white caps with the seemingly far off date of '45 just above their bills—Ah! 'Tis the Bessie that I mean! But we were later proud to wear them; no class has worn them since.

During the summer of '43, 1,200 army personnel moved to the campus to engage in the Army Specialized Training Program. And what an effect that had on the date books! The local manpower shortage was somewhat taken care of with the presence of so many soldiers, but the shortage of civilian men forced all fraternities but one to close.

Senior Souvenirs From The Sport Page

By Dick Lane

Baseball, track and golf bowed out, tennis wavered, football skipped a year, and basketball came out with an all-time record win list in these four years of war to collegiate athletics at Kentucky.

From the sports pages one finds, the fifth year of football played by the Wildcats of the University began in September, '41, with Coach Kirwin depending on the speed of Junior Jones, Noah Mullins and Ernal Allen and the weight of Clyde Johnson and Clark Wood. The ability of freshmen Charley Kuhn, Phil Cutchin and Ben Kressinger had defeated the Tennessee yearlings and their presence was expected to help the varsity team. The Army took one of the first men from the team when they called Mal French, a center with variety experience, which weakened an already weak line.

At the end of the season, for the first time in Kentucky athletic history, the most valuable player award was made to two players, Mullins and Allen, at the annual Alumni banquet for the fiddlers.

Fourteen victories in 18 scheduled starts against the top scheduled opponents of the entire nation, the Southeastern Conference championship, a post-season clash with the strong Great Lakes Naval Training Station five and a berth in the eastern eliminations of the National Interscholastic Basketball tournament is the brief story of the 1941-42 Kentucky hardwood season.

Nine victories and ten defeats was the story of the Kentucky 1941 baseball season. The Cats failed to click on the field in the manner predicted, and so finished deep in the second division of Southeastern Conference standings. The worst defeat was a 28-2 shelling suffered at the hands of Mississippi State during an extended southern trip. Milt Tocco, Cat first baseman, was the best all-around performer on the team.

Under the capable coaching of Downing the Kentucky team finished a fourteen-game schedule with a record of nine wins and five losses.

The outstanding achievement of the year was the naming of Wildcat, Clyde Johnson, 225-pound tackle, on the All-American eleven.

A tabulation at the campaign's close showed three wins over Washington and Lee, George Washington and Xavier; six losses — to Georgia, Vanderbilt, Alabama, West Virginia, Georgia

Within the last four years, football left and returned to the University sports scene. Time was when such action stunts as this appeared regularly in the Kernel.

Tech and Tennessee; and one tie, with Virginia Polytechnic. Teams that took part in four bowl classics at the season's close were met by the Kentucky squad. Although tending up on top of the basketball conference with eight wins against a lone setback, the Wildcats failed to retain the title by dropping to the Volunteers of Tennessee in the finals of the Southeastern Conference tourney by the count of 33-30.

Coach H. H. Downing's rascalleers experienced a mediocre season, losing seven matches while winning only two. All of the Cat's opponents proved strong, with Notre Dame and Miami University, two of the strongest teams in the nation, taking the Kentucky boys by an 8-1 score.

The fall of 1943 was the first time in 52 years of football that the Wildcats did not field a team. Only four of the 12 teams in the Southeastern Conference played a regular schedule. Although the gridiron logs had been laid away, Athletic Director Bernie Shively and Coach Kirwan remained on the campus helping Coach Rupp with basketball problems and teaching both civilians and ASTP.

When 15 freshmen and two sophomores reported for basketball practice early in the season, the University of Kentucky was only expecting to floor a team, but four months later they found the same squad the Southeastern Conference champions of 1944 and contenders for the National Invitational Tournament title in Madison Square Garden, averaging their only loss by defeating the University of Illinois 61-60 in the return match. The mediocre team that Kentucky was supposed to present turned out to be one of the top teams in the nation under the tutelage of Coach Rupp.

Kentucky was well represented on the all-SEC first team by placing three freshmen, and one man on the second team. Bob Brannum was placed in the pivot slot, Jack Parkinson at guard and Jack Tingle at guard. Wilbur Schu was placed at forward on the second team. Rudy Yessin and Tom Moseley were given honorable mention.

Brannum was picked on the Sporting News' All-American and was considered, on Pie's All-American file.

In the Collegiate Basketball Record, Coach Adolph Rupp was honored by being named as one of the greatest net-meters of all times. His 1923 team was named as national collegiate champion. He also had six of his former players listed as All-Americans.

The fall of 1944 saw the resumption of football at Stoll field as Coach Kirwin resumed the sport again after a one-year lay off. The season got under way with a grand style as the Wildcats, using the "T" for the first time, romped over the Ole Miss eleven, 27-7, in a night game before 10,000 fans. As the season progressed the Cats, hampered by injuries and inexperience, were defeated in all but two of the remaining eight games. They defeated V.M.I. and West Virginia in easy fashion but lost to Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi State. Michigan State won a close game, 2-0, and the Georgia Bulldogs won out in the last two minutes of play, 13-12.

In basketball the Cats toggled Indiana, Ohio State, Temple, Wyoming and Long Island University during the Christmas holidays.

'The Lowe-Down'

By Dick Lane

This being the last issue for the regular school year we decided to look back over the records and the players for the past season and review some of the facts and figures.

Do you remember the first football game of the season when the Wildcats walked all over the boys from Ole Miss and the papers came out the next morning with the headlines screaming that UK had promise of a great team and how they had shown great ability in defeating the Rebels? This was the first game of the year and was played at night. The spirit on the campus was at an all-time high, for the Cats were on the way to a supposedly good season. Well, something must have happened to the keen edge the boys had displayed because the Volunteers took the next game in almost easy fashion. Then came the games with the Alabama Crimson Tide and the Mississippi State Maroons. The scores of these games were not very impressive and then the game in which Michigan State defeated the Cats 20 when Schu's punt was blocked behind the goal for an automatic safety. Kentucky outgained Michigan State all the way except in the final score. We defeated the V.M.I. Cadets and the West Virginia Mountaineers with points to spare. The game in which we had Georgia whipped until the final two minutes, then the passing of McCall defeated the Big Blues 13-12. The final in which the Volunteers from Tennessee scored 21 points to win the game and then receive a bid for the Rose Bowl. That game was the 40th meeting between these two bitter Southeastern Conference rivals and the Vols wanted to go to the Rose Bowl so bad, they played their hearts out.

After a none too impressive football season the basketball season came along and reestablished the name of UK in the headlines of the sports sheets all over the nation. After the first six games the Wildcats were named as one of the two leading teams in the nation. Coach Rupp had again put together a team that was to win the admiration of the fans from coast to coast. It was during the second game of the season that Alex Groza was classed I-A by the army. Jack Tingle was elected as captain of the team and Jim Howe and Dick Derrickson passed their physical examination. The Cats defeated Indiana and Ohio State in quick succession and then took a train ride into the East to defeat the University of Wyoming, Temple, and Long Island University, making it eight straight victories. The Volunteers once again upset the apple cart for the Cats with a 35-34 victory to destroy a perfect mark which had reached 11. It was during this game that the fans from the stands participated in the game and a few fists went flying to make the rivalry more bitter between these two schools. The students on the campus couldn't wait until the return game with the quietest from Knoxville and there was much talk of retaliation but as we all remember the game caused a fit of heart failure but UK won and no blood was shed. Alex Groza, one of the greatest players to grace the courts in the blue uniform was drafted into the army and Coach Rupp placed Dutch Campbell in the pivot position. Then the game that everyone will remember was played in Louisville at the Army with the Fighting Irish from Notre Dame. In the overtime period the Irish won out 59-58 and the national rating of the Cats fell a few notches. After a quick victory over the Georgia Bulldogs and the Engineers from Georgia Tech, the Michigan State Spartans handed the Big Blues their worst upset of the season, 66-50. The rest of the regular season was a snap for the boys who breezed through the opponents and went on to capture the Southeastern Conference and to receive a bid to the NCAA Tournament in Madison Square Garden. They lost the first game but captured the consolation game from Tufts college.

The only statement that can be made for the losses the Cats suffered this great season was that the loss of Groza was too much for any one team. As a whole, the 1944-45 basketball team was a great outfit and with many letterman back, all we can say is WATCH OUT FOR THOSE WILDCATS NEXT YEAR.

When spring rolled around the tennis team took an easy win over the boys from Eastern State but were the victims to a powerful quartet from UC. The only bright spot of the tennis team is the play of Al Reynolds who was praised by Coach Downing as being one of the best players ever to play for UK.

Reporter Quizzes Students About Honors Convo

By Tommy Gish

The University, seeking to establish a new tradition on the campus, held an Honors Day convocation at Memorial Hall recently, at which some 200 students were recognized for their scholastic achievements. Wondering what students thought of the convocation and the idea of making it a tradition, this reporter interviewed several students on the campus and recorded their ideas.

Opinions varied considerably as to whether the convocation was a success. However, it was thought by most persons interviewed that it would be a very worthy tradition to add to the campus.

"The idea behind the convocation is excellent, but the program presented lacked drama, and any tradition must have a certain amount of drama if it is to remain a tradition," said one of the women honorees.

Another coed present said that the whole program was "wonderful." She said that outstanding students on the campus should receive recognition for their efforts.

"There is too much overlapping between the convocation honoring outstanding women on the campus and this program," said another. "It is monotonous attending so many convocations honoring the same group of students."

Much enthusiasm was expressed over the talk made by Phillips the program, and one of the best speeches I have ever heard," said one man. This opinion was shared by several other persons.

"The whole thing was terrible, and it was bored all the way through it. It was just like all the other convos, with maybe a different slant," complained one woman.

Other observers shared this same opinion. Many said it was a very poorly organized program, and that it appeared that some on the program were completely unprepared for their share. However, they all thought that if the quality of the program is improved in the future, then the University would have another worthy tradition on the campus.

By John Violette

In September of '41 freshman beanies were featured in Vogue, and freshmen were sorry of it. About the same time Dr. H. L. Donovan requested an appropriation of $80,000 to build UK's field house. A week later the new president made his first formal appearance at convocation, and saw 750 students turned away because of insufficient seating facilities in Memorial Hall. It was a good plug for the proposed field house.

Manpower costs reached a new high in '41. Seventeen freshmen spent four thousand dollars and seven days and nights pledging 306 new members, a cost of $14.68 each. Then came the first formal of the year, and the stage in the Bluegrass room had to be enlarged to accommodate Jimmy Linnecord, James for "Whatcha Know Joe?", and his orchestra. That was the year that 20 students were listed in College "Who's Who."

Betty Wells Roberts was chosen to represent the University on Fred Allen's program, and the nasal-voiced emcee greeted the southern belle with "Con-gratulations." And the administration put down its foot in a hefty manner on the first petition of the year. The petition for an extension of the Thanksgiving holidays was refused.

It was in 1941-42 that Broadway was successfully brought to campus in five major productions: "The Philadelphia Story," "Ladies in Retirement," "Old Acquaintance," "Ah Wilderness," and "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Those were good days. Then tragedy struck—December 7, 1941. Surprise was the campus reaction to the sneak Japanese attack. Dr. Donovan called for calm, obedience in this "Mist Serious Crisis."

Not long after war had been declared Dr. Niel Plummer was seen riding his victory bike to school, and he could "stand up and ride" too. The quarter system was soon introduced to UK with no change in fees. On the campus it was all out for war.

It was early in '42 that The Kernel took first place at the State Press meet, and was lucky enough to capture six prizes out of a possible nine. That was when the Troopers made front page every week. Someone finally caught on and held a separate convocation in the Grill. The place was jammed. Dr. Herman L. Donovan was installed on May 6, and on May 29 750 students received diplomas at the largest commencement in the history of the University. At the exercises on Stoll Field Senator Alben Barkley and Irvin S. Cobb received honorary degrees.

In September old students returned to familiar scenes, and new freshmen repeated historical blunders such as mailing letters in the postoffice ashcan. They marveled at the snake dances which still held a prominent place in pep-rallies, and after goggles-eyes returned to their sockets they too joined in the fun.

It was in the first month of school that Dr. Donovan called on the University for total war, and the students began their trap-drive which reached a high of 79,000 pounds. Some of the former female students lent both beauty and brains to the army by joining the W.A.A.C's.

It was in '42 that the trustees obtained the site for the proposed field house, and the pigskin used in the homecoming game was given for a $25,000 War Bond purchase. As in the past the campus again went berserk over Sadie Hawkins day. Girls chased the men, and the men were glad of it. And the Thanksgiving holidays were cut to a single day.

At the Christmas formal, Ted Weems and his orchestra marked a temporary 30 after most successful careers to visit Uncle Sam. It was early in '43 that Sgt. Alvin York of World War I fame visited the University for the Annual Farm and Home convention. And a female was featured with the "Best Band in Dixie," Jean Lowry, a girl trumpeter, took the spotlight with the University band.

It was in March that Governor Keen Johnson spoke before 4,000 people crowded in the gym to honor 800 soldiers departing to shoulder arms for their country. Rumors began to circulate that the University soon would be operated only for military students, but Dr. Donovan soon put a timely stop to the whispers.

It was early in May that the dorms were evacuated to accommodate 500 soldiers who arrived to form an Engineering Unit. That was when the technician film of campus life was begun. Soon after the Independents took the spotlight by winning the SGA offices of president and vice-president with Spagnuolo and Hurt.

In 1942-43 Guignol again upheld its reputation with the hits "Claudia," "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Watch on the Rhine" and "My Sister Eileen." Dr. Ward surprised the English department with a degree from Duke.

The students curiously watched as the Maintenance department took up Stoll Field. They finally learned that it was an obstacle course being built for the pleasure of the new trainees. That was the University during war time, but it was still old UK.

The first Kernel headlines for the year told of 1,200 military men on the campus, excluding freshmen and sophomore ROTC men. Then came the World War Loan drive, and the faculty and students exceeded their quota by 52%. UK had gone to war with Lucky Strike Green.

At the beginning of the term Dr. Donovan came forth with the statement that the proposed field house would honor the dead of World War II. Plans were still indefinite. Then student hopes fell because of another headline The Kernel carried, "Field House Hopes Grow Dim as Appropriation Bill Omits Fund Requested for Building."

And it was in early '43 that John Powers of the Powers Model Agency came to the University to judge the Kyan Beauty Queens. Betty was just coming into favor on the campus when Memorial Hall was redecorated with dove-wing colors. Many would dislike to have seen George Petty and the decorating.

In the 1943-44 season Guignol scored again with "Dark Eyes," "Angel Street," "Blythe Spirit," "Candlelight," and "Accent on Youth." Remember Dr. Schick as the Baron in "Candlelight?" The SGA election was contested by Ray Garrison who said "The whole darn thing was full of fraud." Ray was elected chairman.

Then came '44, and Pic selected Bob Brannon for All-American. It was in April that the YWCA brought its memories out for an airing. They were celebrating the YW's 100th anniversary. Those were the days when there were full page ads in The Kernel. Then Chrusman and Baker came up with one for Ripley.

They pulled off the first tie for Y&S president in the history of the University.

That was when the Y petitioned to have American-born Japanese Navy students brought to the University.

'44-'45

And the last year for you seniors rolled around. When the registration figures leaked out campus women went wild. More civilian men had registered in '44 than in any other quarter since the winter of '42. The ratio was still three girls to a guy. The Army returned part of the men's dorms to their civilian status, and the war curtailed the freshman beanies.

Ely Culbertson came to the University with his peace plan, and then entertained many students in the music room with a demonstration of his bridge skill. Three hundred and sixty-five women joined the YW in '44, and the discussion groups were revived in the men's dorms.

Roosevelt ran again, and a box appeared in the Kernel stating that students who wished to vote would be permitted to return home to do so. Sixteen students were selected to appear in "Who's Who," and the "Best Band in Dixie" put an urgent appeal in The Kernel for a symbolist.

Then the Kentucky-Tennessee feud started anew over Kentucky's reception in the hills. And every columnist in The Kernel was trying to pacify angry students.

The spring of '45 brought the first Founders day celebration. There was a convocation, a historical exhibit, speakers, and people from everywhere. You just can't forget Kentucky. There's something about the Bluegrass that is fine, fine, fine.

Then they added a swimming pool to the University's planned Field House. And veterans began to pour in, and the news of the President's death shocked the campus.

Came the news of Germany's defeat, but there wasn't a wild celebration. It was taken in the stride as only a step in the total winning of the war. We still had the Jap on our hands.

There was the drive which netted two carloads of clothing, and Dr. Donovan's plans for the fieldhouse were approved. Then came the tests. We're gonna miss you, and we're wishing you the best of everything.

How things have changed! This bicycle picture is faded they aren't really that old! but University students once really looked like this. Now Dr. Niel Plummer's bicycle is the best known on the campus.

Remember the SaKy placards that lived up the grandstand and on Stoll Field, for such games as Homecoming? And what crowds there were, then. With transportation not a problem, alumni, and friends came to pack the stands. Those were the days!

Phi U Entertains Fayette Seniors

The alumnae chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics fraternity at the University, entertained with a tea in honor of the Phi U seniors in the five high schools of Fayette county.

In the receiving line were Miss Stue Eshken, Miss Jennie Mae Trigg, Evelyn Thompson, Alice Freeman, Martha Jane Phipps, and Nancy Lockery. Alternating in the receiving line were Betty Dowell, Ollie Lee Hays, Rebecca Lowe, Ruth Peterson, Peggy Puryear, and Doris Applebaugh, and Leavita Thornberry.

ALUMNI NEWS

THEN and NOW

PERSONALITIES

Case-Ex Sergeant Douglas J. Case Jr., 29, has recently been awarded the Air Medal for meritorious achievement in aerial combat. Since his arrival in the European Theater of Operations on January 20, 1945, Sgt. Case has been serving with the veteran 350th bombardment group as a radio operator on a B-17 Flying Fortress heavy bomber. His missions have taken him to some of the most important targets in Germany. He has participated in attacks on the enemy's overcasted oil producing plants and shared in the Eighth Air Force offensive against Germany's transportation system. Before entering the AAF on February 6, 1943, Sgt. Case was a student at the University.

Warren-Ex S. Sgt. John J. Warren, 24, left waist gunner in an Italy based 15th AAF B-17 Flying Fortress, has been awarded the Air Medal for "meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flight." Sgt. Warren, Louisville, Kentucky, was a student at the University of Kentucky majoring in engineering before he entered the army on May 30, 1942. After completing basic training, Warren studied aircraft armament at Lowry Field, Colo. He won his wings upon graduation from flexible gunnery school at Kingman, Ariz. The Kentucky Flying Fortress gunner flew his first combat bombing mission on Nov. 11, 1944, against a railroad yard at Salzburg, Austria. Sgt. Warren has flown 24 missions over enemy oil refineries, railroad yards and bridges in Germany, Austria, Northern Italy, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

Hesson-Ex Capt. Hugo Hesson, Lexington, is Chief Check Pilot of the C-47 aircraft section of the Flight Training School at an ATC Base at Marrakech, F. M. This is the North African Division of the Air Transport Command. Capt. Hesson has supervisory duties over all the instructors and check pilots assigned to duty with this type of aircraft.

Walker-1942 Second Lieut. Thomas L. Walker, Louisville, has returned from the European theater and is now being processed through the Redistribution Station in Miami Beach, where he will be reassigned. While overseas he was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in combat against the enemy, and the European campaign ribbon with one battle star.

Beard-1940 Capt. Elliot B. Beard, Shelbyville, is a flight leader with the 96th "Hell Hawk" group. The captain wears the Air Medal with five Bronze Oak Leaf Clusters and the blue ribbon signifying that his group has been awarded a unit presidential citation.

Rogers-1942 Second Lieut. Joe W. Rogers, Lexington, a co-pilot, helped bring his B-26 Marauder back to his home base after it was battered with flak. Lieut. Rogers has been awarded the Air Medal with three Bronze Oak Leaf Clusters.

Baker-Ex Seaman Bill Dudley Baker, from Louisville, an aerial gunner, has been home for the past two weeks, but has now reported back to San Francisco. He was a former student at the University.

James-1944 Ellis Jones, of Gallatin, Tenn., has been visiting in Lexington for the past few days. "Cong" Jones received a B.S. degree in Commerce from the University in March, 1944, and entered the Merchant Marine immediately afterwards.

Clark-Ex Seaman Clark of Lexington is now home on furlough. "Tik" Clark is a physical education instructor for the WAVES at Hunter College, New York, and was a former student of the University.

Blair-Ex First Lieut. William Blair of Akron, Ohio, arrived in Miami, Fla., on May 11, 1945 after completing his missions as a B-24 pilot with the 15th AAF in Italy. Lieutenant Blair was a former student of the University and left school in the spring of 1943 to enter the service. He has been awarded both the Air Medal and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Price-Ex Second Lieut. Charles C. Price, 19, Lexington, is co-pilot of a B-17 Flying Fortress of the 95th Bombardment Group, and has been awarded the second Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal for "meritorious achievement" while participating in Eighth Air Force bombing attacks vital industrial targets in Germany, and on Nazi airfields, supply dumps and gun emplacements in conjunction with advances by Allied ground forces on the continent. The presentation was made by Colonel Jack E. Shuck, group commander. Lieutenant Price is a member of the Fortress group which was cited by the President for leading the first American bombing attack on targets in Berlin, in March, 1944, and was cited previously for its outstanding bombing attacks on railroad marshaling yards at Munster, Germany. As a component of the distinguished Third Air Division, the group also shared in a presidential citation given to the distinguished group for its historic England-Africa shuttle bombing of an important Messerschmitt fighter plane plant at Regensburg, Germany. The AAF co-pilot attended the University before entering the service.

Marcum-Ex Cpl. Robert M. Marcum, of Turin, has been awarded the Bronze Star for heroism in action with the 149th Infantry, 38th Division on Luzon. Marcum's company was attacking the Japs in the Zambales mountains of central Luzon where they had strongly fortified cave positions near Clark field. Corporal Marcum set a one-man ambush for the Japs one night; he attacked a group of the enemy single handed with grenades and a small arm and succeeded in killing several of the enemy and driving the others away. In addition he has been awarded the Combat Infantry Badge, the Asiatic-Pacific and Philippine Liberation ribbons each with a campaign star, and the Bronze arrowhead for making an assault landing on enemy shores. Prior to entering the service, Cpl. Marcum attended the University.

Taylor-Ex James W. Taylor of Somerset received his navigator wings and his commission as a second lieutenant in graduation exercises at San Marcos Army Air Field, San Marcos, Tex., on April 28. He was a former engineering student at the University and entered the armed service in September, 1942. Lieutenant Taylor was a visitor to the campus last week.

Things were once like this, two men and one woman—now it's three women to one man.

Why Not Teach It All?

By Jean Paxton One of the most pleasant places on the University campus is the Home Economics Management House. With cheerful surroundings, delightful food, and charming hostesses, any place is bound to be good, and this has them all. Usually there are five girls at a time there, with Miss Helen Wilmore, assistant professor in the Home Economics department, as house-mother and instructor. These five girls divide the house work equally, with Miss Wilmore seeing that it's properly done. Their work is judged on the basis of "would you do this in your home?" Sometimes they would, of course, but it's still wrong. Each girl has a different job each week, beginning on Thursday night. One week, she may be cook, the next, house, upstairs or downstairs housekeeper, or assistant cook. As cook, the student does the marketing, plans the meals, and sees that they are executed properly. The assistant cook, as the name implies, is there to help the cook. Dish-washing, table-setting, and potato peeling usually fall to her. For the duration of the war, these two girls have to meet a difficulty others before them were spared. They must stretch ration points in their own personal book to fill the food needs of six people—not an easy thing to do.

The downstairs and upstairs housekeepers have their jobs fairly well-laid out just in the name alone. Controversies arise over the stairs sometimes, but never very serious ones. Each of the cleaning implements has a place all its own in the closet world, and is always kept in that place for all the rest of the world to see. This not only is a handy way to have things when you need them, but it keeps the housekeeping from molding itself to one housekeeper in the week's time. The hostess greets and takes care of guests in general when they are there, presides at the head of the table, saying grace, and at all times makes herself agreeable—even in the early morning. It's a tough job, too. Each girl makes out a schedule at the first of the week to allot all their time—just when and how it will be spent. An hour a day must be devoted to reading the paper and keeping up with recent magazines. They wash, sew, and sleep when it's put down on paper. After getting up every morning at 6 o'clock, most of them hit the bed about 9 or 10 at night. They are learning all they'll need to know about running a house when it comes time for them to do it. Only one subject isn't taught—what to do about the husband.

Four Years-- Times Change

By Casey Goman

Four years have passed. Four years of war. Four years which have put women in the forefront of the home front.

Women, women, women are everywhere in what were formerly organizations exclusively for men. In years gone by the only woman allowed in the "Best Band in Dixie" was the sponsor elected by the men of the band, but now the whole band is predominately feminine, from bass drummer to drum major. Men from years before the war blink in disbelief when introduced to Drum Major Margaret Cash, who has taken the place of the six-footer of pre-war years. Even the pace has changed, for women in the organization speed up the tempo, but march at half-step. The Best Band in Dixie has gone co-ed with a vengeance, all because of the war.

Women have invaded fields in radio which were supposed to be man's prerogative—studio operation and the like. Nowadays, you find curious females learning to "jack the board" and operate the dial on the control board; learning most of the phases of studio operation. They still call for a man quickly if anything goes wrong, however.

Women's voices kept them from the announcing field before the war when there were men to do the job, but in these days more than half of WBYK's staff of announcers is made up of women.

Journalistically, too, women have come into their own as a result of the war—women editors, women sports editors. The women even do the job, as their own printer's devilish days. They set type in the Kernel Press, head their own copy as they never would have had the opportunity to do if the war hadn't come along.

The engineering quad resounds with feminine laughter, and the engineering societies are coed. Mr. Mangan, manager of the machine shop shakes his head dolefully as he watches women invade his domain.

Conductor on bus: "Can't you read that sign? It says 'No smoking.'" Frosh: "Sure, mate, that's plain enough, but you've got a lot of dippy signs here. One of 'em says 'Wear Nemo Corsets,' so I ain't paying any attention to any of 'em."

Chaperones were Dr. and Mrs. Charles Barkenbus. Four years of war have recast the balance of college life.

Margaret Skinner

Skinner Named Outstanding Frosh

Margaret Skinner was awarded the Alpha Gamma Delta Cup as the most outstanding freshman girl and received the Morfar Board freshman cup. She is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, Omicron, SuKyu, and was recently initiated into Phi Beta. She is also winner of the Alpha Gamma Delta pledge award for the best scholastic standing.

Alpha Chi's Give Annual Picnic

Alpha Chi Sigma, chemistry fraternity, held its annual picnic last Sunday at Clifton.

Members and pledges with their dates included: Betty Barnes, Dick Hunt, Janet Wallingford, Fred Hill, Maxine Johnson, Jack Kidwell, Ellen Zeigler, Jimmy Brown, Mary Mulligan, Tommy Earle, Mable Carnes, Lloyd Erkin, Ann Schoellites, David Siononis, Don Locke, Prince Harrill, Judy Maier, and Vernon Hopkins.

Chaperones were Dr. and Mrs. Charles Barkenbus. Four years of war have recast the balance of college life.

Minerals Displayed To Benefit Students

By Dora Lee Robertson

Because minerals are one of the essential things in world economy, a display of them has been made by Prof. David M. Young of the Geology department, in Miller hall, for the benefit of University students and faculty.

The ores of iron, the ferro-alloys, copper, lead, zinc, aluminum, magnesium and tin are displayed with accounts of their modes of occurrence, origin and chief uses.

World production of these ores emphasizing the position of the United States, is shown, giving the average annual world production from 1929 to 1938.

The following are some of the metallic ore minerals displayed: Iron Ore. Although the iron age began about 7,000 years ago, most of the modern uses of iron developed within the last century. Iron is probably the most abundant constituent of the whole earth, although it ranks fourth in the outer 10 miles of the crust. The United States, producing 27.2 per cent annually, leads in the world production of iron ore.

Ferro-Alloy Metals. The high quality, special purpose steels required by modern industry cannot be made from iron and carbon alone. Small amounts of other metals are alloyed with steel. Although the total amount of the metal is small, its use is essential. Thus, the distribution of deposits of the ferro-alloy minerals becomes a critical factor in world economy.

Copper. As copper occurs extensively in the native state, it was discovered and used by man very early in history. Today it is as indispensable as iron. Its properties, especially its ability to transmit electrical energy, make it essential for electrical and other uses. Copper is widely distributed throughout the world. In fact, workable deposits of copper are more numerous than those of iron. The United States leads in the world's production of copper.

Rock Asphalt. In 1938 the United States produced 61 per cent of a world total of 8 million tons of petroleum asphalt used in paving, roofing, and waterproofing. The products of refined petroleum are many and their uses are varied. The more important are gas, gasoline, naphtha, kerosene, fuel oils, lubricating oils, waxes, greases, asphalt and coke. In addition, a great number of synthetic organic compounds (including rubber) are produced from both petroleum and natural gas.

Clay. There are many varieties of clay with a great variety of uses, including building material, household ware, refractories, electrical ware, and as a filler or surface in various products (paper and rubber). The United States is first and sixth respectively in the production of sulphur and asbestos, and first in the world production of rock asphalt.

Pvt. Robert Foster Killed In Action

Pvt. Robert (Bud) Foster of Millwaukie, Wis., was reported killed in action on Luzon, April 4, 1945. Private Foster attended Carleton college and entered the service in March, 1943. He was in the ASTP at the University for three semesters and then was transferred to the 43rd Division Combat Engineers, who participated in the invasion of Luzon.
