Appreciation

One month ago we, the officers of the Alumni Association of the University of Kentucky, presented to you the first issue of the Kentucky Alumnus. The first issue of our new magazine had been for a long time one of those seemingly unattainable things for which we strove. It was a "Castle in the Air." However, sometimes an air castle is realized if the builder of that air castle dreams and plans and works enough, so we finally realized our air castle in the form of this magazine. To be sure the first issue was minus some of the stately corridors, towers and turrets with which every important castle is well equipped, but nevertheless we feel a goodly measure of pride in our achievement.

When the first issue was mailed, the editors had worked, thought and lived the magazine for so long that its final appearance was to them not so very good. Still it was out, the ground had been broken and a start in the right direction had been made. But withal we were a little doubtful as to the reception that the members of our Association would give to our offering. For a week we waited without any very great number of encouraging replies. Just when we began to feel that we had failed, letters praising the magazine began to come in in numbers. To further prove that the Kentucky Alumnus had been accepted by the Alumni, payments for dues began to come in until at the end of the first month of the new year for our Association there are more paid-up members for the year just dawning than ever before at this time.

We believe that the Kentucky Alumnus has made good and that it will be a factor in building up our Association to a point where it will be of real benefit to our University. This year, as last, the officers have set themselves to perform certain tasks for the Association and the University. Last year we promised the Kentucky Alumnus and the Alumni Directory. The Alumnus you have already seen. The Directory will be out and mailed to all those who have paid their dues, soon after July 1.

For the expressions in appreciation of the Kentucky Alumnus we are deeply thankful. To know that our efforts are not going for naught heartens us in the task that we have set for ourselves for the year just beginning. A little active backing and cooperation will do much in aiding those of us who are trying to carry forward the active work of the Association.

Six Faculty Members Are Retired

Title "Professor Emeritus" is Given to Doctors Pence, Pryor, Peter, Terrell, Rhoads and Garman After Years of Service to the University of Kentucky

(By Helen King)

Six men, tried and true, exemplifying the spirit of pioneers in the cause of education, have been retired from active service on the teaching staff of the University of Kentucky this year. These six men, all of whom have been given the title of Professor Emeritus, have served the University for a period of time which, if added together, would total 210 years of service and achievement.

These men are Dr. J. W. Pryor, head of the department of physiology; Dr. McHenry Rhoads, of the College of Education; Dr. Harrison Garman, of the University Experiment Station; Dr. A. M. Peter, professor of soil technology; Dr. Glanville Terrell, head of the department of philosophy, and Prof. M. L. Pence, professor of physics. All of them, except Doctor Terrell, have already reached the retirement age of seventy. Doctor Terrell will celebrate his seventieth birthday in October of this year.

To the men who have thus reached the goal of achievement after years of endeavor, there is bound to come satisfaction in the knowledge that the University, for whom they have worked so long and arduously, places on their records the stamp of official recognition and pronounces the words "well done." But to the Kentucky Alumni who have loved these men as part and parcel of the life of their Alma Mater, the honor paid to these old friends is tinged with regret.

Most of them, of course, will remain on the campus, carrying on the work that in the past few decades they have done so well, while one, Doctor Terrell, will return to his ancestral home in Virginia. Taking them, in order, according to the precedence of age, a brief sketch of the life of each follows:

Dr. M. L. Pence, a native Kentuckian, born on a farm in Daviess county, August 8, 1854, worked on the farm until about the age of twenty, attending the public schools until he was sixteen, and making, according to his own statement, little progress along that line. At the age of twenty he was sent to a private school in Ohio county, taught by Prof. John Clark, under whose tutelage he made a fine record. At the age of twenty-one he received a first-class certificate, and began teaching in the rural schools of his home county, Daviess, teaching three consecutive winter terms of five months each.

On February 22, 1878, he entered the A. & M. College of Kentucky, the present University of Kentucky, and was graduated there in 1881. During the time he was doing his undergraduate work at the old A. & M. College however, Doctor Pence was also employed on the teaching staff, having been given a position as instructor in elementary subjects and bookkeeping.

In 1891 he took a course in applied mathematics at the University of Virginia summer session, and in 1892 he undertook the study of physics at Harvard University. In 1889 he was made professor of civil engineering at what is now the University of Kentucky, and during the five years following he held this position, acting as head of the department for two years, and assisting Prof. James G. White in the instruction of mathematics.

In 1894 Doctor Pence organized the Department of Physics at the University of Kentucky, and served as its head for twenty years, retiring from active service as head of the department in 1914 because of ill health, and taking up lighter work in the department at this time. Doctor Pence has as his record of service, 54 years of teaching on the staff of the University.

Dr. J. W. Pryor, probably one of the best known authorities on the ossification of bones in this country and in Europe, and the only man in Kentucky to be listed in "American Men of Science," "Who's Who in America," "Who's Who of American Physicians and Surgeons," and "Who's Who of American Authors," was also the first man to administer ether in the city of Lexington.

The story of his achievements in the study of the ossification of bones reads like fiction, so remarkable and thorough have been his investigations and discoveries. Born in Palmyra, Mo., April 3, 1856, Doctor Pryor became connected with the University as medical examiner in 1886, while the school was still an Agricultural and Mechanical College, beginning his class room work in 1890, and in his 39 years of achievement, Doctor Pryor has never faltered in his service to the University.

Doctor Pryor first became interested in X-ray research work in 1900, and in this work he made several discoveries concerning the growth of the bones, being the first man to establish the difference in the ossification of the male and female skeletons. He also discovered that ossifications began much sooner than had originally been thought, and corrected textbooks on the subject, with the result that these discoveries have been incorporated in textbooks in this country and in Europe and credited to Doctor Pryor.

Since Doctor Pryor first became connected with the University of Kentucky, he has been a member of the City Board of Health, the Fayette County Board of Health, president of the Fayette County Medical Society, first vice president of the Kentucky State Medical Society, a member of the Source Research Council of the United States, a Fellow of the American Medical Association, a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, of the American Association of Anatomists, Kentucky Academy of Science, Research Club of the University of Kentucky, Kentucky Education Association, Sigma Xi, Pryor Pre-Medical Society (named by the students in his honor), Omega Beta Pi, Pi Gamma Mu, and Kappa Alpha, social fraternity.

In 1927 Doctor Pryor read a paper on ossification before the Anatomical Society of Great Britain and Ireland, in London, and again before the Society Ecole De Meecin in Paris, in December of that year. This paper, 'Differences in the Time of Appearance of Centers of Ossification in the

Seniors Become Alumni

Class of 1929 Has Five Hundred and Eighteen Members to Be Graduated

On Monday, June 3, 1929, 518 new members were ushered into the Alumni Association when degrees were conferred upon that many members of the class of 1929. The new members of our Association were officially welcomed into the ranks of Alumni at the luncheon immediately following the commencement exercises by Dr. G. Davis Buckner. This is the largest class that has ever been graduated from the University of Kentucky and one that has seen the University in the midst of its present period of rapid growth.

The class of 1929, besides being the largest class to ever be graduated from the University, is in many respects a remarkable group of young men and young women. They entered the University at the time when the term "collegiate" was at its height of popularity. They came at an age when it was predicted that the collegiate youth was not of the calibre to last through the full four years at a college or university. They not only lasted but made up the largest group ever to be graduated from the University.

Numbered among the members of the class of 1929 are young men and young women who are destined to carry the fame of the University of Kentucky out into the world and who, when in years to come, return to the campus at reunion and homecoming times will bring with them names and records that will heap new laurels upon our Alma Mater.

At this commencement a new departure was inaugurated. The degrees were conferred upon the candidates in groups and the diplomas were later distributed from the office of the registrar. This shortened the program considerably since it would have taken a great deal of time for the whole 518 to pass across the platform and receive their diplomas. While it removes one of the old customs from the commencement exercises it makes it less cumbersome and lengthy.

This year the Graduate School which in the last few years has grown with a rapidity greater than any other department or college, conferred advance degrees upon sixty-five men and women. This is by far the largest number of advanced degrees ever to be conferred at one time by the University of Kentucky. During the last year there were more than 500 students registered in the Graduate School of the University. Numbered among these are several candidates for the degree of Ph. D.

Business Meeting Is Held

Newly Elected Officers and Members of Executive Committee Announced

The annual business meeting of the Alumni Association of the University of Kentucky was held in the University Commons immediately following the University luncheon, Monday, June 3, 1929. At this meeting the officers and new members of the executive committee were announced. The secretary's report was made and an amendment to the constitution of the Alumni Association was passed.

The officers elected were, president, Dr. G. Davis Buckner, '08, chemist at the University of Kentucky Experiment Station; vice-president, Sarah G. Blanding, '23, dean of women of the University of Kentucky; secretary and treasurer, Raymond L. Kirk, '24. These three officers served in the same capacity for the year 1928-1929, and the nominating committee did not see fit to nominate an opposition ticket. W. C. Wilson, '13, and Walter Hillenmeyer, '11, were reelected as members of the executive committee of the Alumni Association for a term of three years each. Lulie Logan, '13, was elected a member of the executive committee to serve out the two years remaining of the term of Mrs. E. T. Proctor (Marie Louise Michot, '16), who resigned. Mrs. Proctor is moving to Nashville to live in the future and felt that she could not serve.

The amendment to the constitution of the Alumni Association which was offered and passed at the meeting is as follows: "The president of the Alumni Association of the University of Kentucky is authorized to appoint six members of the Association as associate members of the executive committee to serve for a term of one year each. These six Alumni to be chosen and appointed with the consent of the executive committee." This new measure was offered by Miss Margaret McLaughlin, president of the Lexington Alumni Club and ex-officio member of the executive committee. She offered the amendment after the members of the executive committee had discussed the matter and authorized her to present it to the Alumni at the annual business meeting. This was done in order that interested and active Alumni over the state may take an active hand in the management of the Alumni Association and the furtherance of the interests of the University of Kentucky.

The report of the secretary-treasurer will be found on another page of this issue of the Kentucky Alumnus.

On June 3, 1929, that part of the roadway on the University of Kentucky campus which extends from the Science Hall to the President's house, was used for the formation of the procession for the Commencement exercises.

Beside the road extending this distance were signs which read "Band," "Trustees," "Faculty," "Alumni," "Seniors," and other signs designating the locations of the separate groups of the University.

At half-past nine the campus was a busy scene of persons clad in academic caps and gowns hurrying about in an unusual manner, and altogether it formed a pleasing sight because everyone seemed happy and friendly.

The campus of the University of Kentucky now presents a greatly changed aspect from that of a short time ago. Today one finds an orderly arrangement of buildings, walks and shrubbery which immediately catches the eye and holds one's attention in rapt amazement. Forcibly there is brought to mind the fact that an artistic yet practical guiding hand has splendidly fashioned the available things. Nature has played its part as only it can in Kentucky. The grass, shrubbery and trees were bathed by gentle breezes which had an added value in that they cooled the usually over-heated natures of the Kentuckians present.

The word was finally passed along the line by some military looking persons that the procession was soon to move and each should assume his designated place and remain dignified.

The band played and the march was on.

The colorful procession headed by the band wended its scholastic way down the hill and as a whole it was a very impressive sight. The casual observers along the line of march, standing in respectful attention as the procession passed in review, noted a line of uniformly-gowned persons which was varied only by the colored hoods which marked the academic degree of the wearers. But the more discerning observed that the long line of academicians was broken about midway by two persons clothed in gray and devoid of color except for two small pieces of ribbon, one blue and one white, which were attached to a small circular piece of cardboard, that was pinned on the breast of each of the two gray-clad marchers.

Even though their kind was greatly outnumbered by the others, yet they walked proudly, unfaltering and unafraid.

As a matter of fact, those in the procession preceding the two belong to that grave throng called erudites and those following are classed as neophytes.

In another sense the scene presented a picture similar to that of early Christian times. The king, judges and executioners proceeding down the hill, followed by the persecuted martyrs who were in turn followed by a long line of mourners dressed in black who realized full well that within the hour they too would be classed with these two (University) martyrs.

The cry went up from the on-looking throng, "Who are those two fearless individuals who travel thus?" Those present who knew, understood and had some pride, said, "Shut your mouth, that represents the Alumni Association of the University of Kentucky."

And so the procession went slowly down the hill and into the "Temple Corporis" which the gods had transformed for the hour into a shrine where the neophytes were to be consecrated and changed into that little appreciated Kingdom of Alumnia.

Those two martyrs who had trudged detached and were seated unobserved in the great throng even though one ranked as the president and the other as the secretary of this local mythical Kingdom of Alumnia, felt a keen glow of pride and warmth as the degrees of bachelor were awarded because they were no longer lonely. Their number had been increased by 518 and they felt that in the future when May is passing into June that the martyrs who march down the hill in the Commencement procession as Alumni of the University may not be ashamed of their number.

Memorial Building Is Dedicated

Kentucky World War Dead Commemorated by Beautiful Auditorium on University Campus; Funds for Its Construction Raised by Popular Subscription

At the close of the World War there was started in Kentucky a move to raise funds for a memorial to Kentucky's sons and daughters who gave their lives in the service of their country. The building, as it was planned, was to be built upon the campus of the University of Kentucky and to serve as a memorial and a utilitarian purpose as well.

On Thursday, May 30, 1929, this dream of several patriotic citizens became a reality when the memorial building which now is known as Memorial Hall, was dedicated with fitting ceremonies. President Frank L. McVey presided and the principal speaker of the day was Hon. Patrick J. Hurley, assistant secretary of war of the United States. Governor Flem D. Sampson accepted the building for Kentucky and Charles N. Manning, who was chairman of the executive committee of the Memorial Building Association, gave a short history of the building and the efforts to raise the funds.

The program for the ceremonies follows:

PROGRAM OF DEDICATION CEREMONIES OF

IN MEMORIAM—Reading of Poem by Prof. Frank D. Fowler

BENEDICTION—The Rev. Mr. Hayes Farish

Early in 1919, after the signing of the Armistice, there was started in Lexington a movement to raise funds for the construction of a memorial building to commemorate those Kentuckians who lost their lives in the World War. It was planned to build the building on the campus of the University of Kentucky. Similar movements had been launched in neighboring states and in some the money already had been raised and the construction of the buildings begun. It was decided that the funds for Kentucky's memorial to her war dead should be raised by popular subscription, and $300,000 was the amount believed necessary.

This plan was well received and prominent men and women from all over Kentucky became interested in the project. A preliminary organization was effected and a general committee was named. The general committee was headed by Edward H. Hines, of Louisville, who had been named state chairman of the fund.

On July 10, 1919, the first meeting of this general committee was held in Louisville and it was decided to follow the general plan of the Liberty Loan Drives since every county already had been organized and prominent men and women from each formed the committees. With this for a basis the quota for each county was fixed and the drive for funds began.

The committee decided that by placing the building upon the campus of the University of Kentucky a two-fold mission would be filled. It would be primarily a beautiful and fitting memorial to Kentucky's war dead, and it would be useful to the University of Kentucky and the state. Also since it was to be used by the University of Kentucky the maintenance costs would be taken care of.

With the campaign duly launched the workers began to solicit funds. The campaign had progressed for some time when it was seen that the total amount desired would not be forthcoming from individual subscriptions. Since the building was to be built in Lexington and Fayette county the committee felt that the city and county should help in its construction. On the strength of this the city of Lexington was asked for $75,000 and Fayette county for $25,000, the money to be raised by a bond issue to be put before the voters in November of 1919. At this time 100 prominent citizens of Lexington and Fayette county were approached and asked to guarantee the money in the event that it was not forthcoming from the proposed bond issue. The voters passed the bond issue, but it later was held unconstitutional by the Fayette County Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals. When the measure was thus killed the underwriters of the bond issue were called upon to make good their guarantee. However, there was considerable misunderstanding among the guarantors and only a part of this money was realized then.

The drive for funds waned at this time and at the close of 1919 less than $70,000 had been realized in actual contributions. Two other campaigns for funds were carried on in 1920 and 1921. Some additional money was realized from these two drives.

The Memorial Building project remained in this condition until in September, 1927, when a meeting of the executive committee of the Memorial Building Association was called. At this meeting it was brought out that the assets on hand at that time were $93,447.04. In addition to this there was several thousand dollars in pledges as well as a major portion of the $100,000 guaranteed by the citizens of Lexington and Fayette county outstanding.

At this meeting it was decided that the University be authorized to proceed with the erection of the Memorial Building since it had already been agreed that the memorial should be in the form of a building on the campus. President McVey stated that the University authorities believed that it should be in the form of an auditorium. Complete authority was given to the University. (Continued on Page Twenty-two)

Memorial Hall, Kentucky's commemoration of her World War dead, was recently dedicated with impressive ceremonies. The memorial is in the form of a beautiful auditorium and is located on the campus of the University. THE YEAR CLOSES

WITH this issue of the Kentucky Alumnus we bid you au revoir. The next issue will reach you soon after the first of September. This September issue will be called the "Football Number" and will contain all that there is to know about the team, its possibilities, personnel and probabilities of winning. The editors of the Alumnus already have made arrangements to get all the information and send it on to the Alumni. In other words, with pictures and stories we will give you just as much information as if you were here and were allowed to watch the practice up until that time.

With the close of the year the officers of the Alumni Association feel a certain measure of pride in the accomplishments of the year just passed. Several things were outlined last fall and these have all been carried through. Some of them with greater success than others. Still, all the promises made have been kept. It is the belief of the writer that during the past year more has been accomplished by the Alumni Association than during any year since the Greater Kentucky Campaign. The greater portion of the responsibility goes to President G. Davis Buckner for his untiring effort and work in this direction. He has been an enthusiastic worker, an inspired leader and is filled with a great love for the University of Kentucky.

For the year that is just beginning the officers of the Association plan a continuation of the activities that have been begun and to work toward a more successful reunion of classes and homecoming of Alumni next June, and for an extension of the influence of the Alumni Association through the formation of new Alumni Clubs in every section of Kentucky.

ALUMNI TRUSTEES

WE HAVE often tried to impress upon the Alumni of the University of Kentucky that even though they have completed their scholastic work on the campus they are still an integral part of their Alma Mater. They are its finished product and through them the University is known and credited. That they are still a part of their Alma Mater is even better shown by the fact that now the Alumni are represented on the board of trustees of the University. On July 1 each graduate will be mailed a nomination blank upon which to set down those Alumni whom he thinks would be the proper persons to represent our Association on the governing board of the University. These nominations will be returned to the University and the names of the six men receiving the highest number of nominations will then be placed upon a ballot which will also be sent to every graduate. Of these six three will be voted for and the names of the three receiving the highest number of votes will be submitted to the Governor of Kentucky and one of them will be appointed. When you receive this nomination blank give the matter serious consideration, put down your selections and mail it back to the campus by the time limit set. Our University is growing rapidly and just as rapidly is gaining recognition all over the United States. We as Alumni owe much to the University of Kentucky and it is through us that it will attain preeminence or mediocrity.

DUES ARE DUE

LAST month when we mailed out the first issue of the Alumnus we sent to all the active and paid-up members of the Association a statement for dues for the year 1929-1930. To date this has received a most encouraging response. Today there are more members paid-up than ever before at this time of the year. This is a great help to us here in the Alumni office, especially at this time. If every unpaid member who receives this issue of the Alumnus would clip the coupon on page twenty-three and mail it back with his three dollars, then we could give our time and energies to obtaining new active members. Almost every one of you who will receive this copy of the Alumnus has been active and paid-up for several years. You intend to become so again this year. Why delay? Help us to help ourselves to help our Association be the largest in its history this year. This year we have undertaken several activities for the Alumni Association which, while they in the end will be of great benefit to the Association, are a great drain on our limited finances.

Reunions and Homecoming Big Events

Old Grads from All Parts of United States Gather on Campus During Commencement Week; Newly Adopted Plans Prove Successful

Alumni and former students of the University of Kentucky who were in Lexington and on the campus of the University Saturday, June 1, will vouch for the fact that a real homecoming was held and also that the first trial of the new class reunion system, while it left much to be desired, went over. The program that had been announced previous to the event, was carried through without a hitch. There were more than 150 graduates and former students who registered at the reunion and homecoming headquarters at McVey Hall and this same number attended the annual banquet that evening at the Lafayette hotel.

The first event on the program of the day was registration and gathering of the different classes in McVey Hall. The first Alumnus to register was C. C. Jett of the class of 1899, and he was followed closely by W. S. Scherffius, also of that class. Those who came afterward came too thick and fast for the registration clerk to keep track.

After the registration and greeting of friends, groups who were intimate during their undergraduate days went on a tour of the campus to call on friends among the faculty members who were in their offices holding informal receptions all day. At 11 o'clock the class day exercises of the class of 1929 were held in the newly dedicated Memorial Hall and to this the greater portion of the homecomers went. N. Gray Rochester, of the class of 1912, was the principal speaker at the class day exercises, and his talk was most enjoyable to all those who heard him.

The next few hours of the day were given over to Alumni to visit friends and to hold individual class luncheons if they desired to do so. A great many of them did just this and along just before luncheon time could be heard all over the campus from the older of the Alumni this greeting: "Come on! Let's go over to Billy Bradley's."

At 4 o'clock that afternoon President and Mrs. Frank L. McVey were hosts at a reception in honor of the visiting Alumni and a few of the older faculty members. By turning to the picture at the top of page 12 a good idea of the number who turned out for this event can be had.

The banquet which was held at the Lafayette hotel that evening at 7 o'clock was the big event of the day. The ballroom of the hotel was beautifully decorated and covers were laid for all those who had returned. Dr. G. Davis Buckner presided and John T. Faig '94 was the principal speaker. The program for this event follows:

PROGRAM

SONG—"On, On, U. of K."

WELCOMING ADDRESS—G. Davis Buckner, '08, President U. of K. Alumni Association

CO-EDS ADRIFT—Miss Willie King, '27

INTRODUCTION OF JOHN T. FAIG, '94—President Frank L. McVey, University of Kentucky

WHAT DOES THE FUTURE HOLD—John T. Faig, '94, President Ohio Mechanics Institute

OUR ALUMNI AND ATHLETICS—Birket Lee Pribble, '24, Football Coach

The program was carried out after a most enjoyable menu had been served. Much to the delight of all present the after-dinner speeches were both interesting and short and the event of the evening was interesting and enjoyable throughout. The reunioning classes were given special places at the banquet tables and during the course of the evening many events of their day were lived over again.

Sunday there was nothing on the program especially for Alumni, but a great many of them attended the baccalaureate sermon which was in the new Memorial Hall.

The only activity in which the visiting Alumni failed to participate was the commencement procession. A place had been set aside for them in the procession, but a feeling of shyness or some other unexplainable reason was responsible for but two in the line of march. A fuller and more complete account of this phase of the homecoming program can be found on page seven.

However, all those present attended the commencement exercises and the University luncheon which followed in the University Commons on the third floor of the newly completed McVey Hall. At this luncheon there were more than 400 Alumni, graduates, faculty members and friends of the University. Short talks were made by Dr. Carl VanDoren, of Columbia University, who made the commencement address; James Park '15, who represented the board of trustees of the University; Dr. G. Davis Buckner '08, representing the Alumni Association, and Claire Dees '29, president of that class, who represented the youngest class in the Association.

Dr. Buckner welcomed the members of the class

SPORT NEWS

(By Wayman Thomasson)

Football Captain Married

Will Ed Covington, the thin blonde pine from Mayfield, almost realized the ambition of his life last season down at Nashville when he broke around the great Abernathy's end and raced fifty yards through the Vanderbilt second-line defense and finding himself in a clear field behind perfect interference proceeded to "faw down and go boom," the Vandy safety falling on him before he could rise again. As Covy played a great game that day his mind must have been on the game, but after his great effort was finished his thoughts turned back to the old home town down in Western Kentucky where a girl was waiting for her hero's triumphant return. That day Covington presented himself to Gloomy Gamage with pitiful mien and requested a belated visit to his "family." Departing from his usual procedure the coach granted the request and now—oh, well it happens in the best of families. Our handsome football captain was secretly married for five months. Now the news is out, but Covington is still going to play football for Kentucky next fall.

The Baseball Season

The history of the Wildcat athletics is pregnant with baseball failures. But, as a part of the widespread rejuvenation of Kentucky teams, even the baseball team was infected with the germ of improvement and today stands ahead of all the southern teams with nine victories and one defeat. The lion's share of the credit must rest at the door of Coach Pat Devereaux, the lovable little Irishman who just won't let his boys lose. In Cincinnati in one of the last games of the season, the 'Cats were meeting their crucial test. The score was 2 to 0 in favor of the Ohioans and only one 'Cat had garnered a safe hit. Coach Pat threw his boys into a huddle and after the first batter was walked mixed in a little strategy with a squeeze play and three hits to concoct a four-run solution to his scoring problem, finally winning the game by a 4 to 3 score. Johnny Cole, veteran first-baseman, led the Kentucky team in hitting with an average of .405 for the season. Letter men included Captain Baldy Gilb, Layman, Trott, Murphy, Kellog, Barnes, McBrayer, Covington, Rhoads, Mauser, Toth, Augustus and Kruger.

On the Cinder Path

A colorful figure was erased from the sport picture last spring when the great William Gess was graduated, leaving behind only glowing tales of his victories, and numerous records which he established. Gess holds the Western Conference record for the 1,000-yard run, the Southern Conference record for the half-mile run, and the state records for the quarter and half-mile runs. Only a regrettable accident prevented his representing the United States in the Olympic games at Amsterdam. Running in the Olympic finals at Boston after qualifying in Chicago and Cincinnati, he was crowded off the track at the first turn. Crippled by the loss of Lewis Root, Gess, and others, the track team was weaker than usual and only three members represented Kentucky in the Southern Conference meet at Birmingham, Hayes Owens, Claude Urevig and Wayman Thomasson. Of these only Thomasson was able to place. Running from eighth place at the last turn in a field of fifteen he finished three yards behind the Washington and Lee entry to capture three points.

Coach Johnnie Mauer has inaugurated spring basketball at Kentucky. The success of this innovation is vouchsafed by the fact that his teams have won 24 out of 34 Southern Conference games the last two seasons, defeating Notre Dame and Miami in prominent intersectional games. Notre Dame later drubbed Penn, the eastern champion. Captain McGinnis received All-American consideration in College Humor's famous sport section.

* * * *

Baldy Gilb is Kentucky's most versatile athlete since Turkey Hughes, the one and only Wildcat four-letter man. Baldy played in the most important role on the Wildcat football team last season, calling signals and backing up the line in addition to the major portion of the line plunging duties. He made a letter in basketball and captained the baseball team.

Shipwreck Kelly and Jack Phipps are two of the most promising looking freshman football players ever to flaunt the green at Kentucky. They are both backs.

To flavor the anticipation of the greatest season in history next fall, the football schedule is published:

 October 19—Carson-Newman at Lexington.
 October 26—Centre at Danville.

WILL TOUR EUROPE

Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, '03, who has been acting head of the journalism department since February, will leave the latter part of June for an extended trip abroad. She intends to spend the summer traveling in England, Scotland, Ireland and the Continent. She will return in time to assume her duties as professor of journalism in September.

JOURNALISM DEPARTMENT GETS RECOGNITION

The Department of Journalism of the University of Kentucky has been placed among the best of all departments and schools in the United States. The information came from the United States Publisher of May. This publication undertook to classify the schools of journalism throughout the country. There were 23 in class "A" and 33 in class "B." Among those with an "A" rating, along with the University of Kentucky, are the University of Michigan, University of Nebraska, University of Missouri, University of Wisconsin, University of Indiana, University of Iowa, University of Minnesota, and Columbia University.

Dell Mack Ramsey, one time star performer on the Wildcat football team and in 1924 captain, returned to the campus this month and appeared for the second time in cap and gown. He received an advanced degree in mechanical engineering. He is at present located in Hamburg, N. Y., where his address is 25 Highland avenue.

Portwood, Captain Dees and Gilb, three stars of the gridiron who will leave the University this month and from now on will play their games on the sidelines. These three men have been invaluable to the football team for the past three years.

Secretary Makes Report

Details of Year's Work Given at Alumni Meeting; Summary Is Published

The report of the secretary-treasurer of the Alumni Association, made at the annual business meeting, June 3, 1929, is as follows:

At the beginning of the year 1928-29 the officers of the Alumni Association set themselves to accomplish several things, namely, to begin the publication of a new magazine for the Alumni Association, to bring about a system of class reunions, to begin the organization of Alumni clubs over Kentucky, and to publish an Alumni Directory. Today we are glad to say that the Kentucky Alumnus is a reality, the Alumni Directory is on the press, we have attended our first reunion, and a start has been made toward the organization of Alumni clubs.

Early in the year the Alumni office was visited by a most disastrous flood which destroyed all of our records, equipment, supplies and mailing machinery. This catastrophe set us back both financially and in the work that we had set for ourselves. The financial cost was a hard blow but the generosity of the Lexington Alumni Club and many other interested Alumni, helped us out of this difficulty.

During the year there was mailed by the Alumni office 35,900 pieces of mail. Of this number 13,700 were personal letters, circulars and post-cards, 21,200 copies of the Kernel and 1,000 copies of the Alumnus made up the balance.

As for the finances this year we did not do so well. Last year we closed the year with more than $600 and no outstanding debts, while this year there is little more than $400 left on hand with outstanding debts that will more than take up that amount.

The Alumni Association is today moving forward more rapidly than it has for several years. With the continued backing of those of you who have been faithful for years it will be possible for us to really make progress this year.

The reception with which the Alumnus was met, the enthusiasm of those of you who returned to reunions of your classes and interest of the others who came back for homecoming, is a good indication that we, as an Association, are about to move forward and take our place with the associations of other universities and colleges.

Victor Emanuel Muncy, B. S. 1891, is dean of mechanics and electricity at the Ohio Mechanics Institute in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. Dunn began his teaching career in 1917, but soon after entered the United States Army during the World War, having become a captain in the infantry when he was discharged. He now holds the commission of Major in the reserves. In 1920 he returned to the University of Kentucky to complete his college course. News of the Clubs

ASHLAND

The University of Kentucky Club of Ashland, Ky., the youngest of the active Alumni clubs, has begun its life with real activity and interest. J. Sneed Yager, '24, president of the new club, with the assistance of a large number of other active and interested Alumni, has made an excellent start. This club has established a regular monthly meeting date which is the first Tuesday evening in each month. The meeting is in the form of an informal dinner and is held at the Hotel Ventura and the time is 6:30 o'clock. The officers of the Ashland Alumni Club are J. Sneed Yager, president; Harry B. Tilton, vice-president; Catherine Leachman, secretary, and William Eaton, treasurer. Regular meetings have been held each month since the reorganization of the club in March of this year. A regular program of activities is being planned by the officers and members.

CHICAGO

At the May meeting of the University of Kentucky Club of Chicago, officers for the year 1929-1930 were nominated and elected. D. S. Sample, '25, who is with the Bailey Meter Company, was elected president, and Hal Nichols, Ex., who is with the American Car and Foundry Company, is secretary and treasurer. The annual dinner-dance which is one of the activities of the Chicago club, was held this year on May 4 at the Cambridge Club. A large number of Kentuckians was present and the affair was a success from every angle. Each year at the May luncheon the Kentucky Derby is one of the outstanding topics and a goodly delegation from this organization is always on hand at Churchill Downs for the running of that classic. This year was no exception although they, among the thousands of others, were damped by the downpour that came during the afternoon. Last fall this club, in conjunction with the Kentucky Club of Chicago, a separate organization, played hosts to all the students of the University who were in Chicago to attend the football game between Kentucky and Northwestern. The Chicago club is one of the most active of the University of Kentucky Alumni clubs and one that continues year after year. This year with the election of the two young officers will prove no exception.

Male and Female Skeleton," has since been translated into French and German. Sir Arthur Keith, retiring president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, recently wrote Doctor Pryor requesting his picture, which is to be placed "among the truly great" in the halls of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, at Lincoln Fields, London.

Dr. A. M. Peter, noble son of a noble son of Kentucky, a product of the early training and environment of the old A. & M. College, son of the man who was the first professor of chemistry at the A. & M. College at its establishment in 1865, and known from his undergraduate days as "Little Doc," has a life story that is resplendent with the halo of service to his Alma Mater.

Born in Lexington, May 25, 1857, under the shadows of Transylvania University, Doctor Peter first attended the College of Arts of the old Kentucky University in his undergraduate days, and during that time was assistant instructor in chemistry. Later, however, when the Agricultural and Mechanical College became a separate unit and was organized as a district college, the elder Doctor Peter came over to the South Side of town to the new school, and with him came his son, who was then graduated from the department of chemistry of the new Agricultural and Mechanical College in 1880.

That year he received his appointment as assistant professor in chemistry at A. & M., and also assistant chemist to the Kentucky geological survey. In 1885 he received his masters degree, and since June, 1886, he has been connected with the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station in the capacity of chemist and chief chemist, up to the present time.

In 1904 he took over general supervision and control of chemical work of the Kentucky Geological Survey, and in 1910 was made professor of soil technology in the State University of Kentucky. In 1913 his own University, the University of Kentucky, conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Science in recognition of his wonderful attainments.

Doctor Peter is a member of the American Chemical Society, of the Society of Chemical Industry, a Fellow of the American Institute of Chemists, a member of the National Geographic Society, member of the Kentucky Historical Society, and organized and was first president of the Lexington branch of the American Chemical Society. Doctor Peter will remain on the campus, and will continue his research work in chemistry.

Dr. McHenry Rhoads, another Kentuckian who has devoted his life to the educational needs of his state, was born in Muhlenberg county, July 17, 1858, and received his A. B. degree from the West Kentucky College at South Carrollton, Ky., in 1880, later taking his Masters degree from the same college. He received his Ph. M. from Hartford, Kentucky, College in 1887, and his LL. D. from Georgetown in 1924.

Doctor Rhoads first came to the University of Kentucky as a member of the faculty in 1911, accepting the position of professor of Secondary Education, serving part of the time as State High School Inspector. In 1924 he was granted a leave of absence from the University of Kentucky to take up his duties as State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and returned to the University in 1928 when his term in public office expired.

Doctor Rhoads has to his credit, besides the work he has done in the Education College at the University, the organization of the Public School system of Frankfort, the reorganization of the city schools of Owensboro, and the development of the county high school system of Kentucky to more than 400 high schools, together with the reorganization of the State Department of Education.

Doctor Rhoads was recently elected as Kentucky's delegate to the World's Federation of Educational Associations convention, to be held in Geneva, Switzerland, this summer, and will leave Lexington June 19, on his trip. He will make his first trip abroad in this capacity.

Besides the other honors already mentioned, Doctor Rhoads has been a member of the National Association of College Teachers of Education for many years, of the Kentucky Educational Association, Pi Gamma Mu, Kappa Delta Pi, and ex-officio member of various institutions. He will celebrate his seventieth birthday, July 22, in Geneva.

Dr. Glanville Terrell, head of the department of philosophy at the University of Kentucky, is the only one of the six men who has been retired this year from active service who expects to leave the University and the state of Kentucky. Having been born in Virginia, as he so ably expressed it to your reporter, "A man never quite gets over being born a Virginian," so Doctor Terrell will return to his native state in the near future, where he has a sister. He will occupy his ancestral home, Jerdone Castle, in Louisa county.

Doctor Terrell came to the University of Kentucky in 1900 from Georgetown College as professor of Greek and German, later teaching Latin also, until in 1909 when he was appointed head of the department of Greek, and again in 1917 was advanced to the rank of professor of philosophy in charge of the department.

He was born in Louisa county, Virginia, October 20, 1859, and was educated by private tutors until he reached college age, when he attended Leland Stanford, Jr., University, from which he received his A. B. degree in 1894. In 1898 he received his masters at Harvard, and again in 1900 attended Harvard when he received his Ph. D. degree.

He has written extensively, having published a series of articles in the High School Quarterly on the "Acropolis," and one of recent date in the Classical Journal, entitled "Hannibal's Pass Over the Alps."

Doctor Terrell is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and was first president of the Kentucky chapter, which was installed partly through his efforts and is the only chapter in the state of Kentucky; is a member of the University of Kentucky Research Club and of the American Philosophical Association. It is with regret that his associates and former students see Doctor Terrell leave Kentucky, but he promises to return once each year.

Dr. Harrison Garman, professor of entomology, was born at Lena, Ill., December 27, 1858, and came to the University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station as entomologist and botanist in 1889. He was later appointed professor of zoology and entomology, and in 1896 was made professor of entomology, the next year having been made state entomologist, which position he has held ever since.

Doctor Garman was educated in the public schools in Normal, Ill., later receiving his degrees from Illinois State Normal and Johns Hopkins. He is a member of the Association of Economic Entomologists, the Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science, the American Society of Naturalists, the American Society of Zoologists, the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences, and the American Society of Botanists.

So their records stand, each one a testimonial to their ability, loyalty and qualifications for leadership; each man an example to which Kentucky Alumni point with pride and say, "If I am a success, it is because such men as these constitute the teaching personnel of the University of Kentucky." All of them are beloved by the students who have come and gone, and it is with sorrow that the Alumni Association sees them resign their teaching duties, a regret born of the knowledge that "young Kentucky" may never know their influence.

REUNIONS, HOMECOMING BIG EVENTS

of 1929 into the Alumni Association and urged them to begin early as active members of the Association. In replying, Dees promised Dr. Buckner that in the future when he and any of his classmates were back on the campus that there would be more than two Alumni in the commencement procession.

Immediately following the luncheon the Alumni Association held its annual business meeting and the new officers for the coming year were elected.

Some of the highlights of the homecoming and reunions are as follows:

Dr. A. M. Peter, 1880, represented the oldest class that was present at the homecoming.

* * * *

T. E. Warnock, '02, was present to see his son receive his degree from the College of Engineering of the University. They attended the social functions together. Young Warnock received the E. B. Ellis prize of $100 for being the student in the College of Engineering with the highest scholarship in his freshmen and sophomore years.

* * * *

The class of 1894, from a standpoint of percentage, had the greatest representation of any class present. Out of a class of twenty there were five present at all the functions.

* * * *

The class of 1919, known as the victory class of the University, had the largest number present at the various affairs. There were twenty present from this class.

* * * *

James M. Hays, '94, who is circuit judge in his adopted home, Okmulgee, Okla., decided at the very last minute that he would attend the reunion of his class. Notwithstanding the fact that his home is more than 1,000 miles from Lexington, he and his wife and son got into their automobile and made the trip in record time, driving two days and one night.

* * * *

Birlett Lee Pribble, '24, better known to those of us who used to see him in action on the football field as "Big Boy," made his first appearance as a public speaker and he didn't fail to tell the Alumni something about the athletic outlook and problems.

Members of every class left determined that five years from this month they would return and bring with them a better representation from their class.

MEMORIAL BUILDING IS DEDICATED

versity at this meeting, and the committee approved of the preliminary sketches that had been prepared.

Soon after this the contracts for the building were let and the construction was begun. The University agreed to carry the balance necessary until the collections were made.

The building was completed this spring and the date for the dedication set for May 30.

The new Memorial Hall is a gem of architecture and adds materially to the appearance of the campus and is filling a long-felt need for an auditorium. It is beautifully proportioned and carries in its tower a master clock which controls all time pieces on the campus as well as the bell signals for classes. Directly behind the building will be seen a beautiful little amphitheatre.

Alumni of the University of Kentucky were active all during the campaign for funds and an Alumni committee was formed to raise funds from Alumni, who responded generously. This committee was composed of E. B. Webb '10, T. R. Bryant '08, Frank Battaile '08, George Carey, Ex, Harry G. Edwards '05, Dr. S. B. Marks '99, Dr. A. M. Peter '80, Mrs. Albert Shouse '13, Mrs. Charles J. Smith '95, J. D. Turner '98. Four Alumni of the University of Kentucky have acted in the capacity of secretary for the executive committee of the Memorial Building Association. These are W. E. Freeman '04, Herbert Graham '16, W. C. Wilson '13 and Raymond L. Kirk '24.
