Dr. Otis A. Singletary University of Kentucky President

Now in his ninth year as president of the University of Kentucky, DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY is a Mississippian whose route to the Bluegrass State curled through Louisiana, Texas, North Carolina and Washington, D. C.

He came to Lexington from a position as University of Texas vice-chancellor for academic affairs. Previously, in Washington, he had been director of the U. S. Job Corps in the early stages of its development before moving to the American Council on Education as vice-president. He had gone to the capital in 1964 after three years as chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The UNC appointment terminated Dr. Singletary's first association with the University of Texas, this a seven-year stay that saw him, as a young historian, rise rapidly in rank from instructor to full professor and begin the shift to administrative work, first as associate dean and later as assistant to the president.

The Kentucky president, and his wife the former Gloria Walton, met when both were students at Millsaps College. He later earned master's and doctoral degrees at Louisiana State. The Singletarys have two daughters, Bonnie and Kendall, and a son, Scott.

Cliff Hagan Director of Athletics

"I've been preparing for this all my life," CLIFF HAGAN said before taking over as athletics director at the University of Kentucky in 1975. Hagan succeeded Harry Lancaster as director after serving as assistant director for three years.

Hagan's path to the athletics directorship began in Owensboro, Kentucky, where he established a then state high school tournament record of 41 points in leading Owensboro to victory over Lafayette in the championship game of the 1949 high school tournament.

At UK, he played on teams that won 86 of 91 games and an NCAA championship (1951). The 1954 team, undefeated in 25 games, elected not to participate in the national tournament.

Under his leadership, the UK athletics department continues to develop success in all areas of endeavor including a strong dedication to the academic well-being of the athletes.

JOE B. HALL

*Joe B. Hall
University of Kentucky Wildcats
Head Basketball Coach*

JOE B. HALL is beginning his seventh season as mentor of the Wildcats, coming off a year in which his senior dominated team captured the 1978 NCAA Championship. Since becoming head coach in 1972, succeeding the legendary Adolph F. Rupp, Hall has accumulated a record of 135 wins against 42 losses. His eleven year coaching record stands at 211-98. Broken down, it shows a 57-50 five year mark at Regis College, a 19-6 record at Central Missouri, and a 135-42 record at UK.

Hall became Rupp's top assistant in 1969 when Harry C. Lancaster was named athletics director. His record as freshmen coach was 60-15, including an undefeated (22-0) season (1971-72) which resulted in the Kittens being crowned National Freshmen Champions by Basketball News.

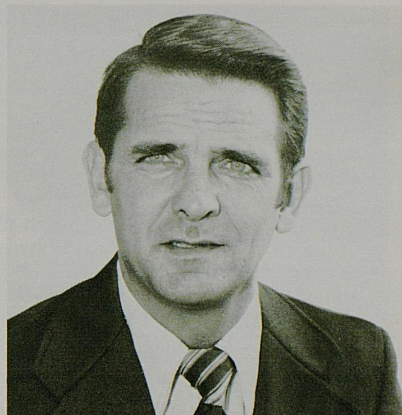

A popular personality on the clinic and convention circuits, Hall also has had much international exposure. In addition to the Globetrotters tour in 1951, and the "Down Under" tour in 1974, he has helped conduct basketball clinics for the U. S. Army in Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska (1968) and at Ramstein Air Base in Frankfurt, Germany and the RAF Base at Mildenhall, England in 1975. He also was Olympic Trials coach under Hank Iba at the Air Force Academy in July 1972 and was a member of the 1976 Olympic Basketball Committee. In 1978 he coached the U.S.A. team that hosted the first International Invitational Tournament.

LEONARD HAMILTON is beginning his fifth year at Kentucky after serving three years as assistant coach at Austin Peay. An outstanding recruiter with seemingly tireless energy, Hamilton has contributed heavily to maintaining a high level of young talent at UK. Specializing in coaching defense, Hamilton has had a positive impact on Wildcat defensive

DICK PARSONS

DICK PARSONS, in his seventh year as Joe B. Hall's No. 1 assistant, returned to the University as baseball coach in 1969. Before giving up his position to join the basketball staff on a full time basis, he molded a baseball team (1971) which established or tied 15 school records. He is a graduate of UK where he played guard under former Coach Adolph F. Rupp.

Parsons came to the University in 1958 after an outstanding career as a four-sports star at Harlan High School, where he had a three-year basketball scoring total of 1,276 points.

He was a two-time (1960-61) recipient of the coveted A. B. Chandler award, given annually for the player best exemplifying the qualities of leadership, scholarship, character and ability. Only four other Wildcats have twice been so honored since the award was originated in 1951.

He is married to the former Celia Cawood of Harlan. They have a daughter, Kathy, and a son, Ed.

1978 NCAA CHAMPIONS

Will Denote Rupp, UK Basketball

Public Donations To Build Museum To House Memorabilia

Adjacent to the entrance to Rupp Arena in the Lexington Center will be located the Adolph F. Rupp-UK Basketball Museum.

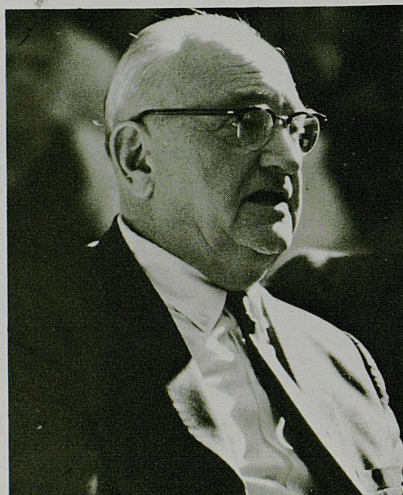

The purpose of the museum is to relive some of the past Wildcat teams' exploits and those of its great players. Included in the museum will be photographs, trophies, tape recordings, films and other memorabilia reflecting on past Kentucky teams.

"We have a unique opportunity to perpetuate the legend of the late Adolph Rupp and the rich basketball tradition that has been established by the University of Kentucky," commented DeWitt Hisle, chairman of the museum. "The museum will give basketball fans everywhere a fascinating insight into what this game has meant to followers of the UK Wildcats."

Rupp coached teams compiled an 880-190 record. He guided the Wildcats to four NCAA titles, an NIT championship and 27 SEC crowns.

The museum will cover Kentucky basketball teams from the first season in 1903, when the team recorded a 1-2 record, through the most recently completed season.

A small theatre area will be located in the museum and used to show films on the changing style of basketball over the past 75 years.

The material found in the museum is coming from the official archives of UK, Memorial Coliseum, the family of the late Adolph Rupp and from the public.

"Obviously one of the major advantages we have in establishing this museam is the fact that we can build it around a central figure, the late Adolph Rupp, whose 41 seasons as UK head coach resulted in some of the greatest accomplishments in the history of collegiate basketball," said Charles Atcher, archivist of the University of Kentucky.

Atcher says one of the guiding principles in planning for the Rupp-UK Basketball Museum is that the museum will show the continuing history of basketball at UK, which means the museum will be capable of expanding to display accomplishments of future teams.

The UK tradition is being continued by Joe B. Hall who replaced Rupp as head coach beginning with the 1972-73 season. In six years, Hall has led the Cats to four SEC championships, an NIT championship, the 1978 NCAA title and an overall 135-42 record.

Costing an approximate $200,000, the projects' funding will come from tax-deductible donations from the public. Operation of the museum will be funded by a small admission charge, "not to exceed $1," according to Hisle.

Donations to help establish the museum may be mailed to: Rupp-UK Museum, P. O. Box RUPP, Lexington, Ky. 40512.

Behind the Scenes:

Recruitment of Players Meticulous, On-Going Task

When Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall sends his recruiters, Leonard Hamilton and Joe Dean, Jr., to locate high school players to fill eight possible scholarships this year, they will be shopping for specific types of players and searching through organized channels. Coach Dickie Parsons takes time from his administrative and coaching duties and assists Dean and Hamilton when the recruiting duties become too numerous.

The process of locating likely Kentucky prospects, recruiting them, and finally signing them, however, does not occur in a short period of time. It is a process that is on-going. One that begins when a high school player is in his sophomore year and culminates when he is ready for college.

The best prospects are located through alumni, coaches, friends, and scouting services that publish lists of the nation's top players.

The best sophomore players are identified and watched as they develop their skills. As they become juniors, the recruiting effort becomes stronger and the UK coaches begin to research the player's background and past performance.

The coaches visit the player's hometown, get to know his coach and watch him play. When he completes his junior year they can begin to recruit him officially. The juniors are watched closely in Hall's basketball camp if they attend, and other All-Star camps. Some of the All-Star camps are run by the same people who publish the scouting services such as Howard Garfinkle in Pennsylvania and Bill Cronauer of Milledgeville, Georgia.

When the player becomes a junior, he is sent a questionnaire that he is asked to complete that gives the coaches his basic information, size, weight, address, parents names, etc.

He is then sent a letter from Coach Hall and a packet of information on the University. The packet includes a basketball press guide for the current year, information on the academic offerings of the University and data on the UK basketball program.

The 200 players that UK considers the best in the nation are then placed Lush foliage, neatly trimmed sidewalks and attractive campus buildings comprise the University of Kentucky's beauty, a factor in recruiting future basketball players who visit the University.

Modern educational classroom buildings such as the one shown above enhance the view of the University of Kentucky for prospective athletes. They are allowed to visit the campus during the school year under NCAA regulations and the opportunities for an excellent education as well as the attractiveness of the campus work on behalf of Kentucky.

on a weekly mailing list beginning with their senior year. Each is given as much individual attention as is possible.

As the year progresses, the list decreases until the coaches single out the top 30 prospects. That list is divided between the coaches and the recruiting becomes more earnest.

They are looking for evidence that the player can do college level academic work, is a good citizen with sound character, has ability, size, speed and quickness, and has sound fundamental basketball skills.

The coaches are allowed three face-to-face contacts with the players under NCAA regulations. These are spaced out through his senior year. The first occurs at the beginning of the season, another comes at the conclusion of the season, and the third comes when the player signs. Many of the meetings are held in the presence of the player's head coach.

Coach Hall is given regular reports on each prospect and sees each of the top 20 play once and the top eight choices at least twice during his senior year.

Also under NCAA rules, a coach can "exchange pleasantries" with a prospect and can write or telephone him as often as he would like. Coaches can therefore watch the prospect practice and play as often as he would like but cannot have face-to-face contact, other than to say hello.

All colleges can offer a prospect the same things such as room and board, and tuition. What Kentucky offers in addition is that its staff is one of a few active coaching staffs that have won an NCAA title and know how to win one. It offers Kentucky's winning tradition.

At the end of the recruitment process, Kentucky hopes to sign players that will continue that winning tradition through their abilities, character, and basketball skills.

Auburn University

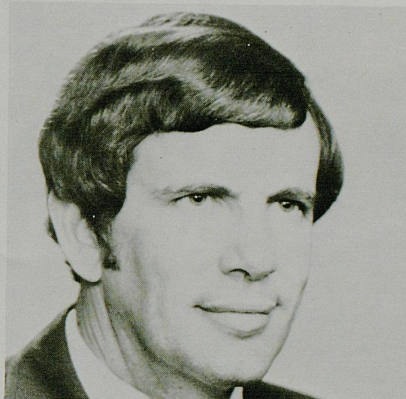

Auburn, Alabama

Sonny Smith takes over the Auburn basketball program this season after a successful two year stint at East Tennessee State University.

Smith, 41, took ETSU to co-championships of the Ohio Valley Conference in only two seasons before joining Auburn University. His teams posted a 30-23 record during that period and he was named OVC Coach-of-the-Year in 1978 for his accomplishments.

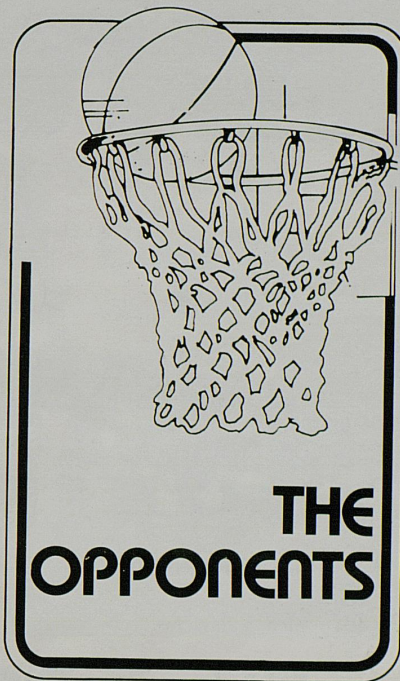

Prior to his college coaching career, Smith served as an assistant at Virginia Tech, Pepperdine, and William and Mary. While at VPI, where he was used for recruiting, the Gobblers made appearances in the NIT and the NCAA.

In 11 years of high school coaching, Smith led his teams to a 126-87 record.

SONNY SMITH
Head Coach

Smith graduated from Milligan College with a B.S. in Physical Education. He has done graduate work at Appalachian State University and the University of Virginia.

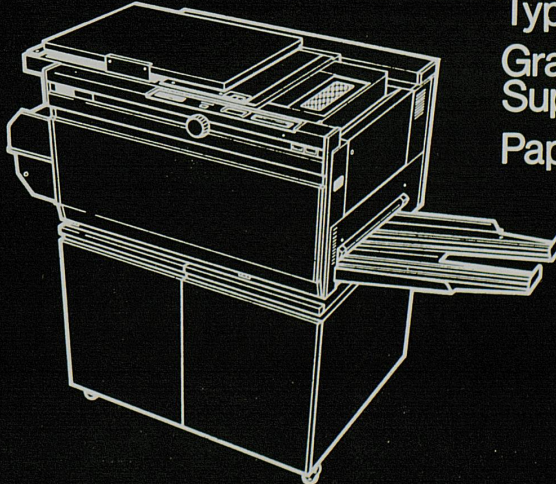

DR. HARRY M. PHILPOTT
President

Dr. Harry M. Philpott became Auburn University's 11th president on Sept. 1, 1965, and since then, Auburn has witnessed a growth unmatched in its history.

Enrollment at the main campus increased from 12,000 in 1965 to 18,000 this fall, with several new buildings being constructed to serve the student body.

Dr. Philpott joined the Auburn staff after serving as vice president of the University of Florida. After coming to AU, he became chairman of the Alabama Educational Study Commission which developed a 10-year plan for education in Alabama. From this study emerged the Alabama Commission of Higher Education.

'New' Is the Word in Nursing

By Betty Tevis

More than the building is new at the University of Kentucky College of Nursing.

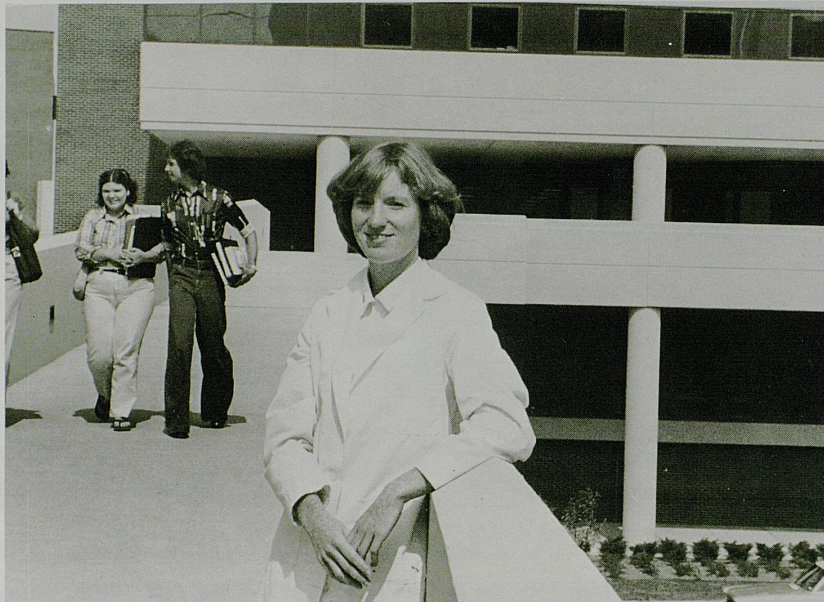

One hundred thirty licensed and experienced nurses—including both men and women from their 20s into their 50s—are enrolled in UK's new Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree program.

Another 70 nurses are students working for their master's degree.

All attend classes in the new College of Nursing/Health Sciences Learning Center, and are taught by a nursing faculty of 46 persons described by nursing Dean Marion McKenna as "dedicated and committed."

UK's new nursing curriculum is up to the minute, reflecting recommendations of the state Council on Higher Education and the National League for Nursing, as well as the changing nursing needs of the Commonwealth.

The new degree program, says Dean McKenna, is not chiefly preparation for acute care. UK nursing students already know about that, and much more, since they're already licensed as registered nurses and experienced in their profession.

Student Elizabeth Holloway, right, with new nursing building in background, calls nursing program "extremely demanding." She's working on bachelor's degree.

Trained for Many Specialties

At UK nurses are being trained to fit into the health care delivery system, to run clinics, to teach prevention, to plan health campaigns, to apply crisis theory and grief theory, to operate intensive care units, to offer primary care and care in industry.

At the UK College of Nursing, the baccalaureate graduate in nursing is seen as a professional practitioner who functions in collaboration with the physician.

Classes are taught in the evenings as well as the daytime and each class is offered every semester to accommodate students.

In addition to its teaching function, the College of Nursing is doing research funded by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, by the National Institute of Mental Health and by the United States Public Health Service.

And the College is continually seeking ways in its department of continuing education to take more teaching to nurse practitioners in the field. Currently, it is devising programs to be aired via educational satellite.

Dr. Juanita Fleming, a former American Council on Education fellow and now assistant dean for graduate studies, believes graduates of UK's master's program in nursing will be prepared to assume leadership roles and "contribute to the changing health care system."

Four Graduate Specialties

Graduate students specialize in one of these areas: nurse-midwifery, adult nursing (medical-surgical), parent-child nursing or community mental health.

Susan Bobek is in the community mental health sequence. She's from the Chicago area, chose UK for its curriculum and the opportunity for rural clinical experience (she spends two days a week in Frenchburg and Mt. Sterling) as well as for the compactness of the master's program (one calendar year).

The work is demanding, Ms. Bobek says, and the faculty helpful while "treating you as a mature adult."

She's pleased about the "ladders and lattices" within nursing education which allow a nurse to "branch out" into pharmacology, for example, or into psychiatric nursing.

Ms. Bobek, who already has a master's degree in education, hopes to teach.

Cawood Ledford calls the action of the NCAA Champion Kentucky Wildcats on

radio 59

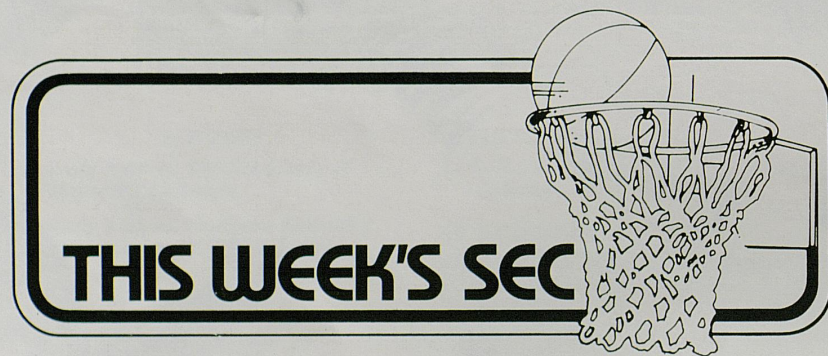

The dust has hardly settled in Auburn, Alabama where last Thursday Kentucky captured its first win on the road for this year 86-83 in overtime.

The Wildcats tied the first game at 72-72 with 14 seconds remaining to put the game into an extra stanza. Auburn gained an early four point edge in the overtime before a rally sparked by Kyle Macy cut the lead. Jay Shidler converted a heroic steal at midcourt into a layup that gave the Cats a one point advantage with 13 seconds left and LaVon Williams hit both ends of a one and one at the free throw line to give Kentucky its win.

Dwight Anderson began to see his jumpshot connect in the game and finished with a team high 19 points on 7 of 9 from the field and 5 of 6 from the charity stripe. Williams added 15 points, Macy 12, Truman Claytor 11, and Chuck Verderber 10.

Bobby Cattage, Auburn's sophomore center, led all scorers with 23, followed closely by Rich Valavicius with 20, Benny Anthony 16 and Bubba Price 12.

Kentucky won the rebounding war 30-28 and hit 56 percent from the floor while Auburn hit on 52.5 percent of its shots.

A Year At The Top

A Year
At The Top
Kentucky Wildcats '77-'78

by John McGill and Walt Johnson, photography by Walt Johnson

This book is not just about basketball nor just about Kentucky basketball. In 144 pages, including 45 color and 170 black and white photographs, you can follow the Kentucky Wildcats from the beginning of the 1977-78 season to the finals of the NCAA Basketball Championship in St. Louis. Many inside stories reveal the pressures associated with being the nation's #1 college team from the start of the season to the end. Only once in the weekly polls was Kentucky ranked below #1 and proved in March that they deserved this ranking by winning the National Championship. It was truly a great year for the players, coaches and fans. You can relive these exciting moments in "A Year at the Top." Also available, our new 33 1/3 LP album, "Wildcat Basketball '77-'78". The highlights of the '77-'78 basketball season are recalled with exciting play-by-play excerpts from Cawood Ledford's game broadcasts and comments by Coach Joe Hall.
