LCC student shot and killed in north Lexington

Friends describe Brian K. Brown as a 'sweet boy,' police said they have no motives or suspects

By Ben Fain
STAFF WRITER

For Misty Gaitan, the way her friend was killed Friday morning makes it even more difficult for her to cope.

"It's just the worst," she said. "He was murdered in cold blood. It makes it hard to take."

Minutes after midnight on Friday, numerous shots were fired into the car of Gaitan's friend, 18-year-old LCC freshman Brian K. Brown, while he was driving in a north Lexington neighborhood. Brown was shot in the head and died soon after, according to a Lexington Police report.

Gaitan had known Brown for five years. The two attended Lexington's Bryan Station Middle School and High School together and worked at the Family Dollar store on West New Circle Road for the past few months. She last saw him alive at the store Thursday afternoon.

Brown

They graduated in May 2003 from Bryan Station High School. Brown started to attend LCC in August and worked 20 to 25 hours a week at the Family Dollar store.

Brown was on Fairdale Drive, only blocks away from the home he lived in with his grandmother, when the shots were fired.

He was dead when police arrived at the scene.

Memories

"He was a sweet boy," Gaitan said. "He was always kind and fun to be with."

Gaitan said Brown decided to go to LCC "to better himself," though he wasn't able to fulfill his true dream — playing basketball.

"He loved basketball. He always went to games," she said. "He would have played more, but he was short."

Brown was 5-foot-4, but that didn't keep him from standing out.

"I remember in school, he was just popular. Everybody loved him," Gaitan said.

"Hundreds of people are going to see him tonight (at his visitation), because he was just so loved," Gaitan said

Sunday afternoon.

Rebecca Whaley, manager of the Family Dollar store, said Brown worked there for the past seven months as a cashier and stocker.

"He was an excellent worker, very sweet and very outgoing," she said. "He would always give me a hug when he came in."

Since receiving word of his death Friday morning, times have been tough. "We're still really in shock about it," Whaley said. "Everybody who See BROWN on 3

WUKY office ransacked, items stolen

Second incident in last two months on the floor; plans being formed to prevent any future break-ins

By Tim Wiseman
STAFF WRITER

The offices of UK's public radio station, WUKY, and the Center for Computational Services were broken into early Friday morning, workers at the station said.

WUKY rooms were ransacked, and items including a $300 portable audio recorder were stolen, workers said.

The break-in at WUKY, which is located on the third floor of McVey Hall, was discovered by morning news announcer Bill Griffin at 4:30 a.m. Friday.

"I took one step out of the elevator with the key in my hand, and I saw an almost perfect circle about four to five inches wide in the corner of the door's glass," Griffin said.

After regular hours, the elevator in McVey Hall goes straight from the sub-basement to the third floor, Griffin said. The door in the sub-basement is always unlocked, he said.

Out of habit, Griffin said, he put his key in the newsroom door and went in.

"The first thing I thought was that someone might still be in there," he said.

He saw glass shards that spread out 10 to 15 feet beyond the door as he made his way into the newsroom, turning on lights and looking for any signs of an intruder.

After calling the police, he went on the air as normal. Station manager Roger Chesser happened to be substituting during the morning shift, and he arrived to see a police officer greeting him. Then, Chesser and Griffin had to juggle their on-air duties and the police.

"We were doing our thing and talking to the police at the same time," Chesser said.

Griffin led Chesser and the police through the newsroom, and everything seemed to be in order, Griffin said. It wasn't until around 8 a.m., he said, that the true extent of the break-in was discovered.

In the business area of WUKY, two offices had been entered and ransacked, he said. See WUKY on 3

Former BOT chair dies at age 75

By Elizabeth Troutman

Robert McCowan, former chairman of the UK Board of Trustees, died Nov. 12 from complications caused by Alzheimer's disease. He was 75.

McCowan served on the board from 1981 to 1989 and served as chairman from 1984 to 1988.

He was a graduate of the UK College of Commerce, now known as the Gatton College of Business and Economics. After earning his bachelor's degree, he worked as an executive for Ashland Oil Company from 1951 to 1988. He was promoted to vice chair of the company in 1980.

Among many other honors, McCowan was inducted into the UK Hall of Distinguished Alumni in 1980 and the Gatton College Alumni Hall of Fame in 1994.

McCowan and his wife, Nyle, were also known for their generosity to UK. They donated $1 million to the Sanders-Brown Center on Aging in 1993.

Friends and co-workers remember McCowan's sense of humor and welcoming spirit.

"Our paths crossed many times," said Bernard Vonderheide, a former UK public relations director. "He was charming, a funny person. He always had a good joke. He was an important person, but he was friendly to everyone."

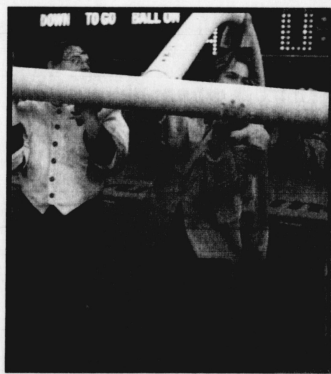

McCowan was known for both his leadership skills and pride in UK.

"His contribution was in his leadership ability," Vonderheide said. "He was a special person who worked in trying times. He made some tough decisions."

Vonderheide also said the staff was a priority to See BOT on 3

Rapper Chuck D criticizes American ignorance

The award-winning performer condemns Adolph Rupp, tells UK students not to be mindless consumers

By Matthew Towner
STAFF WRITER

Rap, race and reality are all issues near and dear to rapper Chuck D's heart. Friday night at Memorial Hall, the outspoken co-founder of the rap group Public Enemy tackled one more "R," Adolph Rupp.

Most speakers in the Bluegrass ease into an evening of discussion by shooting the breeze about UK basketball, but Chuck D came out firing against the former UK basketball coach, comparing him to Elvis Presley and John Wayne.

In Public Enemy's explosive 1988 hit "Fight the Power," the rapper, born Carlton Ridenhour in 1960, blasted the equally colorful treatment.

"I always chose the University of Louisville because they had the black people on their team," he said in reference to Rupp's rumored resistance to integration.

After the unconventional opening remarks, Chuck combined comedy and consciousness to comment on a platform that included political and social commentary on issues ranging from racism to the mixed effects of technology.

Smoking ban decision delayed again

Fayette Circuit Judge Larry VanMeter overruled two motions by attorneys for the Lexington-Fayette County Food and Beverage Association at a smoking ban hearing on Friday, but delayed ruling on the ban itself.

The association, which formed earlier this year in opposition to the smoking ban, moved to strike language in the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government's brief regarding studies of smoking bans in other locales.

The association also moved for a default judgment because the government had not filed a response to the association's complaint within the 10 days normally allotted.

VanMeter said that his instructions — requiring both sides to present briefs to him — made a separate response by the city unnecessary.

Neither side of the controversy expressed surprise at the results of Friday's hearing.

"Judge VanMeter has made his views on this issue very clear," said John Walters, attorney for the association. "We are prepared to take our case to the Court of Appeals as soon as he makes his ruling."

Members of Bluegrass Action, which supports the smoking ban, say they are not worried about the ban losing in court.

"We have said all along that this ban could stand up to a legal challenge," said Lisa Greathouse, a registered nurse and member of Bluegrass Action. "The tobacco industry and its allies' goal is to delay local anti-smoking efforts until it can get state legislators to pre-empt local laws."

Former UT student injured at UK dies

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — A former University of Tennessee track athlete who won a million-dollar lawsuit against the school for a head injury suffered at a meet in 1987 died Wednesday.

Scott Hartman, 36, never regained complete consciousness and died after a period of deteriorating health, his mother, Kay Hartman, told The Knoxville News Sentinel on Wednesday night.

"Scott fought a hard battle," Kay Hartman said. "The doctors told me the day he was injured they didn't know if he'd live through the first night."

Hartman was a 19-year-old freshman from Brentwood, Tenn., when he was hit in the head by a 16-pound steel field hammer, which is a ball attached to a wire, during warm-ups at a track and field meet at UK.

His injury was so significant it "required" custodial care for the rest of his life," the state Court of Appeals ruled in April.

Hartman was treated at a rehabilitation center after his injury and eventually returned home to his mother's house, where he lived the past 14 years. His mother and a team of nurses cared for him.

At the Kentucky meet, Hartman was walking away from the throwing pit outside the foul line during warm-ups when he was hit in the back of the head by a practice throw from another athlete.

Correction

An article in the Oct. 29 Kernel incorrectly stated the opinion of Rep. Stan Lee, R-45th district Lexington, toward fetal homicide. Lee said that if you kill an unborn baby — outside the abortion context — you couldn't currently be prosecuted in Kentucky. He also said that unborn babies were being criminally murdered in drunk driving accidents.

came in here loved him." Lexington Police have no motives or suspects in Brown's murder.

On Sept. 20, only days after his 18th birthday, Lexington Police arrested Brown on a charge of possessing marijuana. Brown later pleaded guilty to the charge in Fayette District Court.

Police could not say whether the crime was drug-related.

Gaitan is convinced that Brown made a one-time mistake. "It was just a one-time thing. He never got in trouble before that — he never even had to go to the principal's office in school.

"He was a really good kid. We had to take drug tests for work, and he passed them," Gaitan said.

Donations and Services

Brown is survived by his mother, Peggy; his father, Keith; and his sister Ashley.

A Brian Brown donation fund has been set up at the National City Bank Bryan Station branch to help family members pay for funeral arrangements. Services will be held today at W.R. Milward Mortuary-Broadway at 1 p.m. Burial will be in the Lexington Cemetery.

said. This was not discovered until WUKY's regular staff began arriving. Griffin said, because that area of the office was dark and there were no signs of forced entry.

In the business offices, desks had been searched, said Lisa Baughn, a WUKY employee. She said the doors to the office had been locked.

Chesser reported the loss of a portable audio recorder, valued at about $300, and some personal items.

Baughn said that fellow employee John Midbo had several CDs missing and that some loose money had been taken from desks.

Glass on the front door of the Center for Computer Services was broken. Nothing seemed to be missing, said employee Teresa Moody. "They just moved one pile of books and that was it," she said.

This was not the first time something like this had happened. WUKY news director Alan Lytle said.

"This is the second incident in the last two months on this floor," he said. "The first time there were no signs of a break-in. I went to loan out some equipment, and it wasn't there."

Engineer Gordon Brandenburg said three mini-disc recorders disappeared about a month ago. He said the station had purchased a cabinet to secure portable electronics.

More will be done to prevent future incidents, Chesser said. "Every time something happens, we make modifications based on what we learn," he said. "We will make some changes."

The police report of the incidents was not available until today, said Cmdr. Travis Manley of UK Police Information and Communications.

turned-author and activist, everyone has two options inside the "2,000-by-3,000-mile vacuum" box that is America.

"You can make money by being dumb in America," he said, "or you can make a living being globally smart."

Chuck criticized America's foreign policy repeatedly referring to President Bush as "son of a Bush" or the "commander in chief" playing a game of "Grand Theft Oil."

The rapper said his recent tour in Brazil opened his eyes to a multitude of ideas that spit in the face of the present American mindset. He said Americans must become more aware of other cultures.

"American opinion is becoming a minority in the world," he said.

A Brazilian awards show opened the rapper's eyes to another problem in America, he said, with this one facing the contemporary rap music scene. While the Brazilian acts he saw showed an intense appreciation for their predecessors, he said Americans, and rappers in particular, are too hung up on images.

"Hip hop is a state of mind, not what you wear," the award-winning performer said. "Don't let hip-hop legitimize illogic."

Chuck blamed the images on television and in popular culture for this dumbing down of American society.

"Dumbness is getting a lot of props these days," he said, adding that too many people lack the conviction to question what they see.

"If you don't stand for something, you'll fall for anything," he said.

Chuck, who is a noted proponent of peer-to-peer file sharing, praised the positive impact the Internet and other technologies can have on music, but he said that more harm than good can come when someone doesn't think outside the box.

"Be on top of technology," said the rapper. "Don't let technology be on top of you."

"Everybody is playing a role," he said. "Don't just be turned into a mindless consumer."

The near-capacity audience reacted positively to most of the remarks, including some good-natured ribs on "hillbillies" in Kentucky and the harsher criticism of Rupp. One student in attendance said Chuck's outspoken remarks were necessary.

"Whatever he has to do to get his point across," said marketing freshman John Owens. "He was definitely strong."

McCowan, who he said often stood up for UK faculty. In 1997, McCowan was responsible for the decision to select David Roselle as UK president. Roselle was responsible for handling the NCAA basketball investigation, designed to "clean up" the athletic program and UK.

McCowan had the attitude of "Let's have a program that plays by the rules," said Vonderheide.

Roselle said cleaning up UK was important to McCowan. "The issue for Mr. McCowan was never athletics — it was integrity."

"He grew up on Rose Street, went to UK and loved UK. A lot of people say he loved UK, and he really did. He didn't want anything bad to happen to the university."

McCowan's work to restore integrity to UK athletics resulted in new personnel and cooperation with the NCAA, Roselle said. It also prevented several penalties from the NCAA, he said.

"They did it right and were rewarded," he said.

Roselle spoke at McCowan's memorial service Saturday. McCowan was buried in Lexington Cemetery. Survivors include a daughter, Jill Sloneker of Cincinnati; a son, David W. McCowan of Lexington; and seven grandchildren.

"He was a very good leader," Roselle said. "He was proud, never arrogant, strong — never a bully. He was everything good and nothing bad."

Women's basketball team gets second exhibition win

Junior guard Sara Potts leads the Cats with 25 points; DeMoss coaches UK to an 88-59 victory Saturday

By Todd Brittingham
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

In their final game before it counts, the UK women used defensive intensity and a fast-breaking offense en route to an 88-59 exhibition victory over the visiting Premier All-Stars on Saturday night at Memorial Coliseum.

"It's a style of play that I enjoy coaching and most players enjoy playing," head coach Mickie DeMoss said of her team's fast break offense.

"We were able to run and make good decisions, and that allowed us to extend the lead in this game."

The Cats and the All-Stars played a sluggish first half in which neither team established a flow. The defensively-dominated half saw UK take a 35-29 halftime lead. For the half, UK shot 32.6 percent from the floor, and the All-Stars shot 30.6 percent.

"I think at times we lost our focus in the first half," senior center SeSe Helm said. "We have to stay disciplined."

The Cats did just that when they started the second half. Using defensive discipline, UK converted on three straight All-Stars turnovers to open the half with a 9-2 run.

The All-Stars had two subs, and UK took advantage with high-intensity, fast-paced play throughout the second half. Junior guard Sara Potts scored seven of the nine early second half points.

"I have really been working hard on trying to improve my all-around game play," Potts said. She finished with a game-high 25 points.

UK used a dominating inside game to help seal the victory. The Cats controlled inside scoring with a 50-20 advantage led by Helm, who scored 17, and Jennifer Humphrey, who put up 13.

Rebounding was also in the Cats' favor, as UK had a 58-35 advantage for the game. UK also dished out 17 assists to only 12 turnovers for the game.

"We've emphasized taking care of the ball," DeMoss said. "I'm a tough critic, and I think we can still get better, but we are making better decisions. I think the team has taken more pride in taking care of the ball."

The All-Stars chipped away at the lead throughout the game, but the Cats never allowed the score to get within eight points in the second half. Premier was led by Tomeka Brown's 18 points and Jamie Lewis, who added 15.

"Against certain teams we aren't going to get those easy looks," DeMoss said. "But against this team tonight, we were able to take advantage of their lack of transition defense."

"We have team goals that we set, and it seems like the last two games we've reached most of those goals," DeMoss said.

"Sometimes it doesn't look pretty, but we're finding ways to win and that's the important thing."

UK opens regular season play on Friday, Nov. 21, against IUPUI-Ft. Wayne at 6 p.m. in Memorial Coliseum.

Cool Cats keep Bishops in check

Hockey team sweeps second straight weekend series, goaltenders get shutouts to put Cool Cats above .500

By Ben Roberts
STAFF WRITER

The Cool Cats shutout visiting Ohio Wesleyan 8-0 Saturday night to gain their second series sweep in the last two weeks.

Freshman goaltender Simon Ebelhar recorded his first collegiate shutout in Saturday's game, just one night after senior goalie Justin Clark blanked the Battling Bishops 6-0.

UK head coach Mike Sosnowski said he was pleased with the performances of both of his goaltenders.

"Our goaltending has been outstanding all year, but to get two shutouts for two guys who worked their tails off is something good for the whole team," Sosnowski said.

Ebelhar, who stopped all 17 Ohio Wesleyan shots, credited the Cool Cats defense for the blowout victories.

"They definitely stepped it up," Ebelhar said. "We knew we had a little easier competition, and we took advantage of that. It wasn't difficult to get the shutout, but I'm still really excited about it."

Team captain Colin Hoss returned this weekend to anchor the UK defense.

After playing in the first four games of the season against Tennessee and Eastern Kentucky, Hoss suffered a broken hand in practice and was forced to sit out the next six weeks.

The senior defenseman had three pings inserted into his right hand after the injury and had to deal with several delays in his comeback.

"I've been waiting for this for six weeks," Hoss said. "I thought I'd be back a lot sooner than I was, but they kept telling me the pings couldn't come out for another week. It took a little bit in that first game to get my head back into it, but it's on its way."

Sosnowski said getting Hoss back in the lineup was crucial to the team's morale.

"Getting Hoss back, not so much on the ice but in the locker room, is what's important," he said. "He brings a big presence to the guys when he has his equipment on as opposed to when he has his suit on."

On the offensive end of the ice the Cool Cats had five different goal scorers and 11 players who registered at least one point.

UK forwards Joe Obermeier, Mark Marfise and Adam Engels each had two goals apiece.

Forward Justin Smith and defenseman Dustin Hamilton added a goal and an assist for the Cool Cats.

Five UK goals came on power play opportunities, where the Cool Cats had a 56 percent conversion rate.

"With power plays, you hope for one out of four," Hoss said. "To get five out of nine tonight was incredible."

After going 1-8-1 over a 10-game stretch, UK (9-8-1) is now enjoying a four-game winning streak, and the Cool Cats are above .500 for the first time since Oct. 10.

UK players said they were happy to once again have a winning record and are now looking to Friday's matchup with Wright State.

"It's a big relief," Ebelhar said. "It's a big weight lifted off our shoulders going into a pretty good Wright State team next week."

DIALOGUE

[I'VE BEEN SPELLING "DIALOGUE" WRONG!!!] — I SURE FEEL STUPID...

IN THEIR OPINION

'McJob' entry not a mistake

It's official: If you have "a low-paying job that requires little skill and provides little opportunity for advancement," you have a "McJob."

The forthcoming 11th edition of Merriam-Webster dictionary will include the term, which describes such jobs as the infamous low-paying ones at the world's biggest fast food company, McDonald's. By defining the term, which has been in use for quite some time by the public as well as in print, it has brought the wrath of the fast food giant onto them.

Granted, a listing in the dictionary that since its first publication in 1898 sold 55 million copies worldwide and claims to be the best-selling dictionary on the market, will make the term more official. It is also understandable that the McDonald's corporation is not happy about this development.

But it does not warrant such actions as chief executive Jim Cantalupo calling the definition a "slap in the face" to the 12 million people who work in the restaurant industry, according to an Associated Press article.

Merriam-Webster is not responsible for employing a vast army of underpaid workers who are so unhappy they came up with a term describing their condition. If anybody is at fault for this it is McDonald's for handing down such employment practices to its workers.

As the "corporate vision" includes "a People Vision — to be the best employer in each community around the world," according to the McDonald's Web site, maybe the fast-food giant would be better off changing some things in its own locations. Rather than complaining about the usage of "McJob," the corporation needs to offer better wages in order to stray from the stained image.

This, however, might not be financially feasible for the company McDonald's budget is already tight due to financial trouble as well as a new ad campaign reportedly costing more than $1 billion worldwide set on reinventing the image of the fast food provider, so an increased wage for its workers might be out of the question.

Yet, the only thing that can change the usage of the term "McJob" is a change of conditions at the source. Only then will McDonald's employees respond with a smile and a resounding, "I'm lovin' it" when asked whether they like their jobs.

Todd responds to benefits criticism

On Thursday, UK President Lee Todd e-mailed the following letter on retiree benefits to UK faculty and staff.

One of the most difficult issues we face as an institution, a state and as a nation is the soaring cost of health care. The percentage of the federal and state budgets that are spent on Medicare and Medicaid continues to rise, thus reducing dollars that can be allocated to education and other vital services. The same is true for every business and university that is desperately trying to maintain quality health care benefits for its employees and retirees. This brings us to our current challenge of addressing the cost of retiree health benefits.

Two weeks ago, Dick Siemer, executive vice president for finance and administration, sent out a broadcast outlining the plan to start the discussion on the Retiree Health Benefits Task Force recommendations. Like recommendations from other task forces, we have presented the issues simply to start the conversation. Likewise, with this recommendation we have scheduled numerous opportunities for faculty, staff and retirees to come together and discuss this issue. And, as usual, nothing in this recommendation is final — that's why we have the open forums to get your input.

I have frankly been disappointed in the negative and critical reaction to the work of the Retiree Health Benefits Task Force. This is a group of your peers who have been diligently working to identify some potential options to a very complicated issue. This criticism is being launched even before the Task Force has an opportunity to discuss the issues in the forums that we announced two weeks ago.

Going back to the 2001 Health Benefits Task Force, this administration has worked very hard to maintain or enhance the level of benefits for UK employees and our retirees. We have already implemented several of the Work-Life Task Force recommendations, like the enhancements to the Family and Medical Leave Policy, the Temporary Disability Leave, and the Funeral Attendance Leave Policy. For many of you we were able to add the day after Thanksgiving as an additional paid holiday. While the cost of UK's health insurance has increased over $17 million in the past two years, the university has absorbed that cost so our employee contributions would not have to be increased. UK's share of the health insurance cost is now $56.9 million.

I am committed to making this university a better place to work, but we are also driven by limited resources and the rising cost of our benefits. The reality is that there are no easy answers to the health care crisis at this University or throughout the country. We must face the fact that we simply can't continue to provide the same level of benefits for the same cost. This is not just my problem or the Task Force's problem; we are in this together, and it has an impact on all of us. This is why your constructive input and ideas are important. Will everyone be happy with the eventual outcome? Of course not, but through the forums everyone can gain a better understanding of our situation, and we hope provide some ideas that can improve the Task Force recommendations and how we move forward on this issue.

WEEK IN REVIEW

Here's a look back at events and issues from last week. If you want to sound off on any of these, e-mail the Dialogue desk at dialogue@kykernel.com.

MONDAY

LCC is one of the state's most overcrowded universities, and President Jim Kerley says the school is trying to come up with creative ideas to meet the needs of students, the Kernel reported.

Charles McGrew, Institutional Effectiveness and Planning coordinator, said the results of a 2001 LCC study showed the square-foot per-student, per-class ratio is the lowest in the state. At LCC, there are 4.5 square feet per student, per class; the next lowest is the Kentucky Community and Technical School, with seven square feet. The state average ratio in 2001 was 13.8 square feet per student, per class.

TUESDAY

UK has raised Athletics Director Mitch Barnhart's pay to nearly $500,000 for this year, the Lexington Herald-Leader reported. His base salary is $383,000 after a recent 2.2 percent raise. Along with $70,000 in performance bonuses and $30,000 in retirement pay, he's making a little more than the $375,000 he agreed to on signing with UK last year.

President Lee Todd said that Barnhart's accomplishments include working with UK fund-raisers, providing football tickets to the provost for prospective donors and putting $1 million a year for the next two years from the athletics budget into academic scholarships.

WEDNESDAY

UK Police responds to two or three false fire alarms a day, said Cmdr. Travis Manley of UK Police Communications and Information Services, the Kernel reported. UK Police is responsible for securing areas during possible fire emergencies.

The No. 1 cause of false alarms is burnt microwave popcorn, said Garry Beach, UK's fire marshal. He said it isn't uncommon for a fire truck to crash into a person's car while responding to an alarm. Other areas of campus are not as well protected when fire trucks are busy tending to false alarms, he said.

THURSDAY

Students who think they have received unfair parking citations should appeal their tickets, Student Government suggests, and the organization has taken on a role in hearing appeals itself. The Kernel reported that SG passed legislation Nov. 5 outlining a process for students to appeal citations before a jury of their peers.

Appeals first go to a parking administrator and then to an adjudication officer, who is appointed by the parking appeals committee. If the citation is appealed further, students will go to the SG judicial board, which decides whether to grant a hearing.

FRIDAY

The College of Pharmacy received its largest grant ever Thursday, a $6 million gift from the National Institutes of Health to aid in ongoing research for new treatments for nicotine addiction.

The research is an example of the UK studies that could benefit smokers in the state and throughout the country. Research on the potential of Indian tobacco for helping drug abusers in the department previously received a $2 million grant and will be first tested on animals.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Despite scandal, ministry continues at St. Augustine's

The recent letter to the editor written by Will Kirkland on Nov. 11 addressed the current state of affairs at St. Augustine's Chapel on campus. We have no basis for commenting on the situation regarding Father Chris Platt. However, we do want to clarify some misinformation presented in the article concerning the absence of ministry at St. Augustine's.

Although traditional Sunday services geared for the general community have been discontinued, there is a very active group that continues to meet, worship and share fellowship at St. Augustine's. The Lutheran-Episcopal Campus Ministry holds its main weekly gatherings with the theme "Free Food for the Body and Soul." This gathering is open to all UK and LCC students (regardless of membership in an Episcopal or Lutheran church community) to share a free meal, have fellowship and join in a brief worship service, including Eucharist (communion), geared toward college students. This gathering takes place every Wednesday at 7 p.m.

The campus ministry also offers Bible study groups and other social events. The ministry has also been involved in many community service projects, such as serving meals at the Hope Center, collecting food for God's Pantry, working on a Habitat for Humanity house, participating in the Crop Walk and serving meals to some of the UK area's homeless population. The ministry is currently in the process of developing a student lounge for the purposes of outreach, social events and other activities.

Although there is anger among some UK students and members of the Lexington Episcopal community regarding the changes at St. Augustine's, we are grateful for the support of Bishop Stacy Sauls of the Episcopal Diocese of Kentucky and Bishop James Stuck of the Indiana-Kentucky Synod. Their vision, risk, faith and partnership give meaning to the truth we are "all one in Christ." We invite students at UK and LCC to be part of this oneness in Christ at LECM.

For more information, please contact our minister, Pastor Barry Neese, at 254-3727 or at Lutheran@Episcopal-CM_UK_LCC@gx.net.

Cats make Vandy look dandy

By Jeff Patterson
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — UK football head coach Rich Brooks first noticed it during the pre-game warm-ups. He knew it was true as he paced the sidelines during the game.

His team just was not ready to play. "Guys were making mistakes in pre-game warm-ups, from dropping balls to not hustling to not flying around," Brooks said. "It looked like we were in the 'Twilight Zone' in pre-game warm-ups, and that is kind of how we played."

The Vanderbilt Commodores made Saturday's game in front of 26,440 fans at Vanderbilt Stadium a 60-minute nightmare for UK (4-6, 1-5 Southeastern Conference).

Vanderbilt (2-9, 1-6 SEC), which entered the game with the nation's longest conference losing streak at 23 games, all but shattered UK's fragile bowl aspirations with a 28-17 victory that brought down the goal posts.

It was UK's first complete game of the season. It just wasn't the kind Brooks had been searching for.

"We just got our ass kicked for 60 minutes," Brooks said. "Finally, we played a 60-minute game but it wasn't good."

For the Cats, all their nightmares came true.

They couldn't stop the run. Vandy exploited UK's rush gaps 41 times for 263 yards.

UK couldn't stop the pass. Vandy sophomore quarterback Jay Cutler threw four touchdowns on 14-of-17 passing for 175 yards.

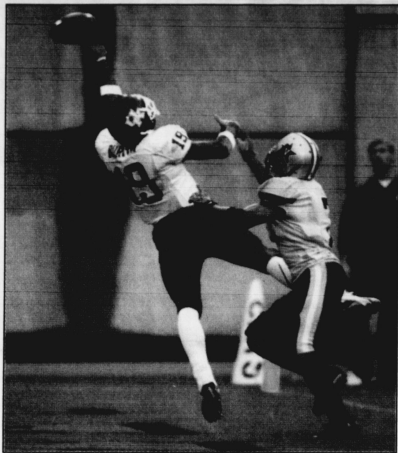

"This definitely is the best game I have played here so far," Cutler said.

Even with its first 100-yard rusher of the season, UK had trouble moving the ball. Sophomore running back Arliss Beach had his best game of the season carrying the ball 18 times for 109 yards and one touchdown.

Trailing 14-3 late in the first half, UK senior quarterback Jared Lorenzen seemed poised to lead the Cats out of their standard slow start.

On first-and-10 at Vandy's 22-yard line, Vandy sophomore defensive end Johan Hays rushed Lorenzen, who threw an off-balanced pass that sophomore safety Kelechi Ohanaja intercepted.

"The interception was a huge, huge play because we finally looked like we had a little life in making a drive down the field," Brooks said.

Despite its typical first half slumber, UK could not wake up.

Cutler led Vandy on a six-play, 80-yard drive to start the second half. He connected to freshman wide receiver Marlon White for the 43-yard score. No UK defender was within a 15-yard radius of White.

The quick scoring drive helped sum up the day for the UK defense.

"We just weren't ready to play," said senior defensive end Jeremy Caudill.

Brooks took the blame for his team's lack of preparation.

"The way we played makes me sick to my stomach," Brooks said.

UK added a touchdown with 28 seconds left in the game on an 11-yard pass to senior wide receiver Chris Bernard.

After the clock hit zero, Vandy fans stormed by UK senior center Nick Setzke on their way to tear down the goal posts. Setzke walked through the fans stunned.

"I've never been this embarrassed in my life," Setzke said.

Needing two wins against two Top-10 opponents for any chance at a bowl, the Cats have two choices.

"We can pack it up or we can beat the hell out of Georgia and Tennessee," said sophomore linebacker Chad Anderson.

Vandy plays Grinch, steals Abney's wish

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Derek Abney wants to be remembered.

He wants to be a part of something truly special at UK. He thinks a bowl game will do that.

He speaks of a bowl like a kid talks about his Christmas wish list.

Abney deserves a bowl game. He has earned one with his grit and determined plays the last four years.

But with each loss, his wish grows more faint.

That is the worst part of this UK football season: seeing Abney so close to his dream but never close enough.

There should be a happy ending to this season. Someone should play Santa Claus and deliver that bowl to Abney and his fellow seniors.

But that might not happen. This season may end without the perfect conclusion to four years of perseverance by UK's seniors.

Abney thinks a bowl game is the only way to be remembered, but he's wrong.

Bowl games at UK are special. A bowl game, however, does not guarantee a spot in the memories of UK fans. Take that beloved 1993 Peach Bowl. How many players from that squad can you name? What magical moments from that season do you replay in your mind?

The same goes for that 1999 Music City Bowl. Beyond a grotesque elbow injury James Whalen suffered in the bowl, that UK team barely registers a reaction in the minds of Cat fans.

Or there's the Outback Bowl team from January 1999. Sure, Tim Couch and Craig Yeast have a special place in the hearts of UK fans. But it was not a bowl game that made those two so memorable.

We remember Couch and Yeast because they gave us more than we expected. They endured a difficult beginning to deliver some amazing memories.

Bowl games are rare around here, but so are players like Derek Abney.

He has made a name for himself with his highlight reel of kick returns and sure-handed grabs. He has amazed fans and coaches alike.

Vandy head coach Bobby Johnson said he considered Abney to be one the "greatest ever" when it came to special teams.

No one forgets players like that, especially when such tremendous talent is coupled with complete class.

Abney wears his emotions on his jersey. He lights up as his team lights up the scoreboard, and he sheds tears after heartbreaking defeats. Through it all, he keeps his eyes on his dream.

His single-minded devotion to this dream should not blind him to what he has earned already — the respect and admiration of his teammates, opponents and fans.

Abney may not get his biggest Christmas wish, and that is a shame.

A greater shame would be to measure the heart of Abney and his fellow seniors solely on the criterion of a bowl game.
