COACH GAMAGE RESIGNS

At the meeting of the Athletic Council Wednesday afternoon, Harry Gamage tendered his resignation as head football coach at the University, which resignation was duly accepted by the members of the council...

"PRINCIPLES OF LIFE" "Principles of Life That Will Work" was the subject of an address given by the Rev. George Heaton to members of the Pitkin club, Wednesday. At this time he outlined and illustrated the practical application of Christian religious principles in every day life.

It is valuable that a group of college students should have the opportunity of hearing religious subjects discussed by speakers who are cognizant of the doubts which come to the mind of the student and who can present clearly the principles of religion which are pertinent in present situations.

Lexington is fortunate in having several leaders in religious thought who understand the problems of resignation which face thoughtful college men and women.

It is inevitable that one's conception of religion should change during the course of his four years at college; that after a period of testing, one's beliefs should emerge clearer, more definite, and strengthened.

Freshmen who enter the University usually come to college trained in the religious doctrines of their elders. Four years spent in college are to be truly an educational process, in the sense that one's whole idea of the scheme of life must be brought out for serious consideration, and the beliefs which one has fondly accepted unquestioningly must be proved pertinent in the problems of existence.

At a time when the student seriously realizes that he can no longer follow blindly but must develop his own set of beliefs, it is most valuable that he can have the benefit of the experience of persons who have faced the same problems and who have solved them in a way which is adequate. When these persons can present their ideas clearly and concisely their worth as students' great.

TEACHER AND STUDENT "The way to have a friend is to be one." These words of Emerson are particularly true in application to the lack of understanding which usually exists between the teacher and the student.

Students often regard members of the faculty as impractical persons far removed from the ordinary interests of life, or perhaps as strict disciplinarians concerned only with grades and credits and always ready

the student body for some time, "Austria and the Peace of Europe," was Doctor Dengler's subject and the entire situation in that regard was discussed and in such a manner as to make everyone present feel that the speaker had indeed

Doctor Dengler brought out the interesting fact that the chief matter which prohibited the reign of peace in Europe was the memories of hatred which had been built up and kept alive over a period of years. This is essentially, we will all agree, the chief reason why peace cannot be permanently assured throughout the world.

Doctor Dengler's discussion of Hitler and the reaction which took place in Austria to the Hitler movement was interesting from several angles. According to the speaker, there were two classes in Austria in regard to Hitler. First, there was the class of young people, university students, who favored the Nazi movement and secondly there was the class of older persons who were associated either with the Socialists, the Catholic church, or the Jews who were all very much opposed to Hitler.

The address was concluded by Doctor Dengler stressing the cultured aspects of civilization and saying that by the methods of culture and education, peace could only be preserved. The Kernel commends Doctor Dengler upon his excellent address and hopes that it will again be the privilege and pleasure of the University, to act as host to him.

and anxious to puncture the self-confidence of the student by underestimating his classroom achievements. They over look the fact that professors, being human, cannot be expected to be infallible. Their shortcomings may be improved upon students in a way that is often irritating, but we must remember that as a whole, teachers are tremendously interested in the scholastic welfare of their students.

Many professors judge all their students by a few who have made a right opinion that every student is bent on merely "getting by." Often students who show a desire to do more than the minimum amount of work required for a passing grade are discouraged by the suspicions of the professor that he is being "dirty-nosed" and by the scoffings of other students.

Friendship between professors and students both inside and outside the classroom is one of the most delightful and profitable phases of school life. The men and women who are our teachers are, in most cases, earnestly trying to inculcate into the student the love of knowledge and an ambition to experience the best that life has to offer. Both teachers and students need the encouragement and inspiration which comes from friendship outside the classroom. Let us break down the walls of reserve and be friends in the true sense of the word.

THE KERNEL

We believe that it is generally known to Kernel readers that the paper is owned by the students and that it has bought and paid for its own plant. In fact there was a story in the last issue telling of the Chancellor Doffus, when the speaker for purchasing a new linotype machine to augment the equipment now in use. But how many of you are aware of how this financing is carried out, and what The Kernel's plans are for the future?

It is the dream of the head of the Journalism department, Prof. Enoch Greban, to make The Kernel a daily paper and in connection with that to establish courses that would lead to the granting of M.A. degrees in Journalism.

The Kernel has prospered during the past nine years, and has held its own even during the depression that has affected everything and everybody. It has had to depend wholly on advertising for its maintenance, and its growth in the future will in the same manner depend on the advertising. Anyone who knows of the general plan of newspapers is aware that the cost of distribution alone generally exceeds the subscription price, and that advertising revenue must meet all other items of expense.

This is not exactly the case with The Kernel because its distribution is not an absolute necessity, but the subscription price, paid by the students as a part of their registration fee, has been turned over entirely towards paying for the $30,000 plant.

Local merchants and business men have always shown a loyal support to The Kernel as the student newspaper of the University. They realize that its readers make up the University community. They long ago realized the value of a first hand communication with the student body through the columns of The Kernel.

Any and every student who contemplates making purchases of books, food, clothing, or any other merchandise shows wisdom by investigating the local retail market before he goes further. Local merchants can give him what he wants, with rare exception, and in almost any case can give him better prices than he could find elsewhere.

A frank appeal is made to every reader of The Kernel to consider minutely the advantages and savings offered him by its advertisers. They are the ones who realize the value of a contact with the University community and we are willing to prove their loyalty to that community.

It is not an idle suggestion, but an active, sincere request that The Kernel make its readers: Read its ads, know its advertisers, and patronize those advertisers. For thus will YOUR paper grow!

Jest Among Us

Since hearing the Commerce College's plan to secure employment for its graduates, we have just about decided to switch over to a lowly stenographic course.

Free Advertising? One young lady is so anxious to obtain a four-day Thanksgiving holiday that she not only signed a petition to that effect in The Kernel newspaper, but also added her telephone number.

Rodeheaver Interviewed Famous Musician Has Had Most Picturesque Life; Is Man of Sincerity

By HARRISON ELLIOTT

I was nine years old, when I knew the thrill of attending one in a series of revival meetings. "Billy" Sunday and his retinue at Knoxville, Tennessee. Today as I can recall a momentous occasion, because it was all so huge and spectacular... and so immense and vivid. I marveled at the small but agile evangelist taught the Gospel in stately and understandable language... I heard the great choir sing... and who could forget the manner in which a quartet sang "Home" Sunday by the pastor. He was called upon by the pastor of a little church a few miles south of Knoxville. He believed in the evangelist who had become ill while holding a revival at the little church. Rodeheaver went to the people he liked her. He liked it. He was well recommended, and his good prominent evangelist, employed Rodeheaver as his soloist and singing leader. With Biederweyer, Rodeheaver went on for five years. Then he joined "Billy" Sunday. With this eminent evangelist, Rodeheaver has served for twenty-five years. Mr. Rodeheaver says that Billy Sunday is the most interesting man he has ever met. In all of Mr. Rodeheaver's thirty years of evangelistic work he has sung and played an average of two programs every day, and has appeared before more people than any other living soloist.

"Cradle Song," which introduces Paramount's newest European adventure, "Dorothy Wiese, to American audiences opened yesterday at the Kentucky for a three-day run. The play of the same name has been produced in every civilized country, and was bought in 1921 by Paramount, but has been held back by them until now. It was written by G. M. Martinez Sierra, and was adapted to the screen by Marc Connelly.

The play has been filmed with full regard for the tender, majestic and emotional qualities of the story. Dorothy Wiese, who played a similar role in "Mädchen in Uniform," gives a magnificent interpretation of Sister Joanna in the film.

The story is a powerful tale of the frustration of a woman's instinct of motherhood by convent walls. Joanna feels to raise several younger brothers and sisters. Then at the age of 18 she becomes a nun. A baby girl is left on the door step of the convent, and she is permitted to raise it. She lavishes upon the child all her pent-up mother love.

The child grows up and brings to all of the sisters a joy and happiness which they would not have known had she not been there. When she is nearly grown she falls in love with a young engineer and desires to marry him. Her decision to leave causes a sorrow among the nuns which is made all the more poignant by her previous happiness.

Evenly Venable plays the part of the young girl. Others in the cast are Kent Taylor, Sir Guy Standing, Louise Dresser and Gail Patrick.

PETITE PIECE Looking Back

By LORRAINE LEPERE By JANE M. HAMILTON

It was a typical November day in Detroit. The city airport was enveloped in a heavy gray rain that made dull sheets of glass out of the runways, and the neon signs about the hanger sent red splashes into the dense atmosphere. Every plane coming into the port required the aid of the field lights, and the passengers, what few there were, emerged from the planes in a rather bedraggled state. I shivered and felt sorry for them. Down the length of the field I could see, a short distance from the ground, a black and yellow monoplane coming in for a landing. The wheels and tail end plane his the ground with perfect timing, and the ship rolled the length of the runway, coming to a stop a few feet from where I stood hanging over the wire fence. A tall, thin, goled figure crawled out of the cabin and ran up to me.

"When," he said, "Kind of rrip up today, isn't it? I didn't think you'd be here."

"Nothing could have kept me away," I told him decisively. His name was Captain Young, and I had met him in a small western town the year before. Since both our families had returned to Detroit, he had agreed to show me about the airport, and promised to tell me some of his experiences with those days, and he spent all his spare time working out navigation charts. You didn't get paid for that stuff in those days!

"All in all, he's just a plain guy. He comes from a mighty good family, sure, but he has perfectly plain tastes and likes to do the same things any other average man likes to do. Beautifully done the way his own country has treated him."

"The Colonel, to us, was Slim. We never called him anything else. Not even after he was made a Colonel of the Missouri National Guard when he came to Lexington. When he told me that he really wanted to know something about him, let me tell you that he'd think I was an awful numskull if he knew I ever professed to know a thing about his personal affairs. Besides, he's in a mess now." (This was during the time of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh's little son.)

"Never mind," I told him. "This isn't for publication, you know, Young among friends."

"Well," Young began, "first of all, let me tell you that nine-tenths of the stuff you read about Slim is all hokey. He's just a quiet guy that can't face an audience. When we were in the Guard together, Slim could get up the best paper on how to attack the enemy from the air that you ever wanted to read, but he'd blush all over when it came to reading it, even just to us fellows."

"Slim was never known to have a girl. All of us had wives or girls we went with steady, and we threw some swell parties. Slim came to 'em all right, and he'd be just as good a fellow as the next, but he never drank, never got noisy or rough, and never was known to bring a girl."

"The thing I remember that he enjoyed more than anything else was a bowl of good hot chili. I've seen him eat that would fold me up but they never bothered Slim. And he'd drink milk with it too."

"He couldn't stand the name 'Slim,' you know. I've only met her once, but I think she must be just the right person for him. I mean she's quiet too, but she's got a way of making Slim think she's just as good as anybody else. None of the publicity he got ever did that for him."

"The thing I like about him is that if I met him tomorrow, and he didn't have a dime, or if he had a million, he'd say and do the same thing."

And now, with only the annual Tennessee set-up in store, the Big Blue can take their well-earned rest. Some victims of the mighty pen of our snickering scoundrel insist that he only digs up "dirt" on them to cover his own trail of glory.

Mr. Edward Farmer, Phi Sigma Kappa, visited his home in Louisville last week-end.
Guests for Sunday dinner at the Phi Sigma Kappa house were Sarah DeLong, Ruby Dunn, Carolyn Johns, Mary Shible, Connor Dawson, Albie Robertson.

Monday—Did enjoy having third hour in the Commons where I did see DOT GURTES. She does have that "do I make myself clear" look. Also saw HELEN HAGGETTY and DODD BEST. To the opening night of the Guignol, HOWARD SMATHERS did give a very realistic performance in the second act and the public was afforded a more clear view of MARJORIE POWELL than ever before.

Tuesday—Since convocation came at 10 o'clock I did decide not to go to my other hours and did sleep blissfully till noon when I went to the Den of Iniquity for lunch. Did get wind of several etes who are comprising a list of five most attractive boys in each fraternity. On it were Sigals GENE BRYANT, TOMMY FISCHER, LANGEN HAY, TOM CLOWDER, WOODSON KNIGHT, and Kays BOB SNEYDER, JESS SIMPSON, ST ODD A R D PICKRELL, JOHNNY BRECKINRIDGE, and CONNIE-WONNIE-TUM-TUM GAINES.

Wednesday—Did pass HANDLE BAR HANK FINLEY and TOOTS CAYWOOD on my way to get wised up at college. Also GATHERINE REED which caused me to wonder why she does not have her hair cut; and BUSTER HUBBARD whose power did get turned off; and ALICE REYNOLDS whom I admire very much.

Sunday—A very uneventful day, but did hear many interesting things; how amused CLAY MCKEE is at the number of Chios who tried to sweet word him at open house; why A. B. HILLENMEYER did stop speaking to LA BELLE DUNCAN; the interest PRENTISS

PEPY'S DIARY

Saturday—Did wake up with my head so big that I could not lift it out of bed, so did give up all idea of going to school. Slept all afternoon but betook myself to the dance which I do think was a great success. Allagan KATY GOVER was with Kappas RED BULLOCK. Also present were KITTY MAHAN, JEAN ALLEN, CHARLIE VANERMAN, LOUIS BROCK, HAPPY HOULIHAN, TIPPY CALHOUN, JANE TURNER. Likewise PASH GLASS, and I did think how suitable to call him Lindbergh since he always rides alone. Hied myself to the night club, but my head had begun to shrink so I did deem it more advisable to come home and to bed.

DOUGLAS is showing in BETTY SCOFFET, about the person of color who has connections with the Good Samaritan and who does think RED DAVIS the cutest little red headed thing ever was. My hand does now tremble when I think of the jealousy this will surely cause in the hearts of HUD DAVIDSON, BREEZY PARRISH, JOE RUPERT, CREIGHTON COMER, and DOB REA CRESTON. Did go to a movie and chatted afterward with several Phidelt freshmen who complained of the virginal arm of VERMIN VERBAL GATFSKILL. Did hear that the two State Chios who crashed the Transy Triodt dance did have the biggest rushes there.

Hort Club Members Hear Ben E. Niles

He has traveled over the state and is familiar with the horticultural opportunities and needs of the state in the interests of the fruit and berry production.
Louis A. Fister, senior in the College of Agriculture, gave a short talk on the history of Stayman apples. After the talk apples of that variety and cider were served.
The Hort club will assist the state Horticultural society with displays at its annual meeting here December 5 and 6.

The Kappas are again practicing their quaint custom of continuing to rush other sororities' freshmen long after pledging has been held. Perhaps they should be admired for their pertinacity and "never say die" attitude.
Some say that Doug Parrish's acknowledged yen for Tridelt Nancy Dyer is explainable by her resemblance to the red-head's lost love Caroline Powell (nee Rounsavall).

Coach Gamage's resignation Wednesday afternoon came as a surprise except to those who were "in on the know."

It is believed that Coach Gamage has received attractive offers from several other schools, to come there as head coach of football, and he is expected to make a statement in the near future as to his future plans.

The schedule which was released Wednesday includes eight definite games, one tentative game and an open date, which may be filled in the next day or two.

Led by Carlisle, all-state forward from Kavanaugh, who scored 19 points, the University of Kentucky Kittens ran rough-shod over an independent team known as the Dunn Drug store five and sent them out of the University gymnasium Monday night on the short end of 51-12 score.

Besides Carlisle there were three other all-state players from three states. They were Edwards, Indiana center, who tallied 13 points; Young, Florida forward, with eight markers; and Fred All-Kentucky from Manual and St. Xavier in Louisville, making three points.

Others on the freshman team and the points they made were Donohue, member of last year's St. Xavier high school team, four points; Scott, four points; Mansfield, Adkinson, and Baker who failed to tally.

The independent team was led by Lucien Conleton, who scored four points, and Darrell Darby, member of last year's team, who played forward and scored two points.

CAPTAIN WILSON INELIGIBLE FOR TENNIS

Prof. H. H. Downing, coach of the Wildcat tennis team, has been notified by Dean Funkhouser, chairman of the eligibility committee of the Athletic council that Howard Wilson, captain-elect and Number 1 player of the tennis team, is ineligible to compete any longer on the varsity tennis team.

Wilson's ineligibility makes it necessary to elect a new captain besides materially weakening the team. The complete freshman team from last year is eligible and in school. These players are: Randall, Tulloch, Moore, Stahr, Warren, and Collins. Bishop is to complete this year after a season's layoff, and Rush and Jenkins show promise of being varsity material.

Varsity Netmen Show Form in Drills

An outstanding group of freshmen including several state tournament players have been designated and they will have a playoff in the near future. O'Brien plays Bishop and Moore plays Ward in the semifinals. The winners of these two matches will play each other for the final round and for practical assurance of Number 1 position on the tennis team.

Showing quite a bit of improvement during the past week, the Wildcat basketballers of the University of Kentucky seem to have settled down and are taking their practices seriously as they prepare for their opening game of the season against the Alumni on the night of December 5. Tucker has been on the up-grade for several days and from all indications will get the call at one of the forward posts. Lawrence and Settle are battling it out for the other forward post. Y. Cabinets Begin Drive for Funds

More than $125 was pledged to the student finance drive by members of the freshman and senior cabinets of the Y. M. C. A. at a joint meeting of the groups Tuesday night. The student drive for funds to carry on the work of the organization started Tuesday and will continue until December 5.

All men students on the campus will be interviewed by members of the cabinets with the hope of raising at least $300. The recent drive for contributions from the faculty was very successful, and it is expected that the goal of the students will be reached during the two week period.

Cooperation

Rooting Sections and College Newspapers

ISN'T it unusual for you to associate a rooting section scene in the stadium with your campus newspaper--the Kentucky Kernel? Yes, it is, but look at it from the following point of view:

A rooting section must cooperate in a precise and minute manner, the slightest lack of cooperation may ruin its successful functioning. Isn't such a lack always ruinous to the successful operation of any group? Well, therein lies the association.

The Kentucky Kernel needs the cooperation of every U. K. student....it requires your support. It's inevitable that you patronize many business institutions. Many such institutions advertise in the Kentucky Kernel, thereby furnishing you a newspaper. Why not support them?

So, let's cooperate....patronize Kentucky Kernel advertisers....let them know it....and aid this student undertaking.
