

MADONNA HODIGITRIA-ELEUSA
(known as Madonna of Tidwin)
Russian, first half XVII Century
MUSEUM OF ICONS, RECKLINGHAUSEN

FM. 8
EXCLUSIVELY FOR H. GEORGE CASPARI, INC.
Sole Agent and Distributor for U. S. A.
Printed in Germany

+

Christmas Day
59

Dear Victor.

We have put up the large crucifix in our novitiate chapel & the smaller one in the chapel of the infirmary. I have not seen the latter in place, but the infirmary is very pleased. The large one in our chapel is superb. It is very majestic and grand and really one does not appreciate it fully until it is seen suspended at a certain height above an altar. It is so perfect for us that it seems to have been done especially for us & certainly we will have to buy it to make sure that it forms part of the finished chapel. Monday the chapel seems transfigured. Father Hart agreed in principle to consider the conning - but that will be at a rather distant future date since so many other things are to be done.

Thank you ever so much - yours was an inspired idea. I hope now we can go along with the tabernacle.

On the way home the other day, after my most pleasant visit, I stopped at Maketown. Could Carolyn get me a book or two about the Shakers, especially about their Kentucky colonies? I'd like to do a study of them.

Best wishes & prayers for a happy New Year. I remembered you & came in my masses today.

God bless you both -
In Christ Our Lord

John Louis