Reunion of Classes

As this issue of our Alumnus goes to press, many plans are going through their final stages preparatory to the entertaining of all the alumni who are going to return to the campus at this reunion time.

For several months letters and notices have been going out of this office relative to the dates and the program for the classes ending in '2 and '7, and any and all old graduates that will again stroll the walks for a short visit to the school that gave them the opportunities of higher education. Now, all programs are ready for your final approval. W. C. Wilson, class of '13, has written to all the former student the former students living in Lexington, and always many of them are on hand for all parts of the program.

This year has so far been a very successful one as far as the Alumni Association is concerned. Handicapped by the lack of funds, the work has been carried on in a "big way" by the association officers. Active in the support of the university in the late state legislature. The executive committee has carried on, meeting each month. Many towns in Kentucky where alumni live were visited by someone of the officers, and much interest in the school revived, and in some instances the alumni were aroused to the point of organizing a permanent group.

L. K. Frankel, '00, retiring president of the association, is making an earnest appeal to all the "reuning" classes to return in large numbers, and if as many come back as have indicated they would, the association has completed probably its most successful year.

ces the alumni were aroused to the point of organizing a permanent group.

How long has it been since you were back on the campus? Many changes have probably been wrought by the progressive administration; yet, the same traditions and many of the same faces are here and will make your stay a joy and a benefit; the campus in its beautiful spring attire is welcoming the return of many for this, the fourth year of class reunions at the University of Kentucky. Since the beginning of class reunions four years ago the idea has grown to be an institution, and each year is looked forward to by faculty and university students alike. It means much to

L. K. Frankel, '00, retiring president of the association, is making an earnest appeal to all the "reuning" classes to return in large numbers, and if as many come back as have indicated they would, the association has completed probably its most successful year.

Walter Hillenmeyer, ex '11, acting as toastmaster, promises that the banquet will be "short and sweet." He says he is going to limit the two speakers to fifteen minutes each. Classes will be seated together at the banquet, and the way some of the classes are coming back, it looks like the hotel will revive the days of former years. Dr.

since last September, is going to have a big party Saturday noon. Howell Spears and several others of this class are making arrangements. Robert Carter, of the "baby class", '30, hopes that his class can meet together at noon on the same day.

Strollers, of course, can't be two places at once, but those who are here and do not attend a class luncheon, will have a meeting of their own.

Following the luncheons of Saturday, all alumni are to be the guests of President and Mrs. McVey for tea in the afternoon, at the president's home on the campus, Maxwell Place. Those of you that left the walls of the university be-

Class Reunion Plans Complete

At last we are able to announce the complete plans for the 1932 class reunions. The following is a brief outline:

Friday, June 3 Senior Ball
 Saturday, June 4 Alumni Day, including:
 9:15 to 11:00—Registration in Administration Building.
 12:30—Class luncheons, Stroller

luncheon, and annual Stroller meeting.
 2:30 to 4:00—Visits to campus
 4:00—Tea with President and Mrs. McVey at Maxwell Place.
 6:30—Annual Alumni Banquet at the Phoenix hotel.
 Sunday, June 5 Baccalaureate.
 Faculty Tea in University Club room, McVey Hall.
 Monday, June 6—Alumni Parade.
 Commencement
 University Luncheon in Commons, McVey Hall.
 Annual Alumni Association meeting.
 No set program will be arranged for the class luncheons, but each class will get together at noon, to reminisce, spin yarns, and tell of such experiences as they may choose.
 The banquet program will consist of one talk—the Honorable James Park, '15, who is now Commonwealth's attorney of Fayette County, will deliver this address. There will be special music numbers, group singing, and we hope to have a dance. Walter Hillenmeyer will be toastmaster and the President will welcome the visitors to the University.

We have tried to set aside plenty of time when old friends may mingle and review old times and happenings. Those members of the reunion classes who are now residing in Lexington are planning to form themselves into a reception committee which will aid materially in increasing the pleasure of all returning alumni. This committee will be on the campus to greet their classmates, tell them about their class luncheons, and furnish any other information. As you know, members of the classes of 1877, 1882, 1887, 1892, 1897, 1902, 1907, 1912, 1917, 1922, 1927, and 1930 are to be welcomed home in June.

President McVey and Mrs. McVey are inviting all returning alumni to tea at Maxwell Place at 4 p.m. Saturday, June 4.

Reverend W. E. Ellis, pastor of the Christian Church at Paris, Ky., has been asked to deliver the baccalaureate sermon. Reverend Ellis is well known for his splendid addresses and pleasing manner.

The Commencement speaker will be our president, Doctor McVey. All of you who were in school before he came to the University have something to look forward to if you have never heard him. And those who have heard him will not want to miss hearing this address.

Letters have been sent to all members of the reunion classes, urging them to return, and replies from these letters have been very encouraging. It is expected that the number of old grads and former students returning will exceed a thousand. A few of the classes are working on a kind of contest, each class trying to have the largest percentage in attendance, thus attempting, as they claim, to show which class has more of the old college spirit. The class of '07 is trying to win the distinction of having the greatest percentage back. It looks now as if they will win in a walk.

There is one thing which we wish to make clear. The class reunions are held not only for the 2 and 7 classes, but for all alumni of the University. This is the year that we make a special effort to have the 2 and 7 classes come back, but we wish to extend a cordial invitation to all alumni of our University, whether grad or former student, no matter what your class may be. We want all alumni to know that they will be heartily welcomed if they find that they can attend this reunion.

Elizabeth Smith, ex '30, has moved to Lexington after living two years in Corbin, Kentucky.

W. C. Wilson, chairman of Alumni Reunions, is working hard to make this homecoming from June 3 to 6 inclusive, the biggest and best in the history of the University, and this radio program, under the chairmanship of Dean Sarah Blanding, is going to be one of the most interesting features of an advance campaign to induce you to "come home".

WHAS operates on a frequency of 820 kilocycles and has been heard as far west as the Pacific coast, so plan to stay at home the evening of May 23 and have the thrill of hearing your Alma Mater on the air.

Wesley Carter, head radio announcer at the University studios, and Harris Sullivan, control operator, are other students to whom the Alumni owe their thanks for making this program possible. Elmer G. Sulzer, director of the University Extension studios, has cooperated with the committee in making this program interesting and attractive.

CLASS REUNIONS

fore Dr. McVey came will have an opportunity to meet and know the educator and economist, and his charming wife, who are guiding our institution.

Saturday night is to be the high light of ALUMNI DAY, the annual banquet. As previously stated the program will be very short and a "big time will be had by all".

Sunday afternoon all old grads are urged to attend the baccalaureate sermon, to be held in Memorial Hall. Monday, graduation day, will be a lively occasion for new and old grads alike. The parade will assemble and march to the Alumni gymnasium where the exercises will be held. The alumni that are here always have a space reserved in the parade and march with the faculty and students to the ceremonies. Reserve seats await those that take part in the procession. You are expected to be on hand in time to take your place in the line of march and welcome the new alumni to our ranks. WILL YOU BE HERE?

Too much can hardly be said at this time of year when interest is running high, in graduation and reunions, for we are prone to forget very soon after leaving our Alma Mater those who have done much to help us prepare for life. We soon lose the love of the old campus, with its pretty walks and beautiful trees. Or do we actually lose this love? Probably the spark just needs rekindling and we need to be reminded of old times and classmates to make us want to come back for a real enjoyable visit.

Any school is just as strong as the alumni supporting it; therefore, we must all contribute a few minutes thought and a little time each year to the institution that started us. Think what support that would be if all our 7,000 graduates alone would do just this. Then there are many more thousands that are loyal to the school they attended, though they did not finish its courses. It is entirely true that our UNIVERSITY is a state supported institution, but it is also true that the alumni, more than anyone else, know and appreciate its great work. Only strong alumni organizations can insist that the university gets the state support that it richly deserves and so badly needs.

A visit, a new spark of the old love, new interest, new acquaintances, a growing Alma Mater will result from a few days spent at class reunions. WE WANT YOU BACK! YOUR CLASS MATES WANT TO SEE AND HEAR FROM YOU. DON'T YOU THINK YOU CAN MAKE THE PILGRIMAGE?

DEAN ANNDERSON TO SPEAK

Dean F. Paul Anderson has been chosen as one of the speakers on the Alumni Radio Broadcast, Monday, May 23. Dean Anderson is very anxious that many alumni return for the reunions and will have a special message for them. We know that all alumni will be interested in hearing him.

ENGINEERS' DAY MAY 25

Dean F. Paul Anderson, of the College of Engineering, University of Kentucky, today announced that the annual engineer's day would be observed at the college May 25.

The public will be welcome to visit the college during the afternoon of that day, according to Dean Anderson, and all shops and departments of the college will be open for inspection. Work of the students will be on display.

100TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

At the last meeting of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association, it was decided to begin plans for celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of President James Kennedy Patterson. President Patterson was born on the 26th day of March, 1833, in the Parish of Gorbels, Glasgow, Scotland, the first of six children born to the union of Andrew and Janet Kennedy Patterson.

In the spring of 1842, Andrew and Janet Patterson decided, due to the difficulty of finding employment, to emigrate to America. Accordingly, the family took passage on the Perthshire on April 26th and landed in New York harbor on June 19th. After many hardships in New York, Janet Patterson's brother, William Kennedy, furnished money for a farm which they bought in Indiana at the high price of $7.00 per acre. William Kennedy also furnished the transportation money.

James Kennedy Patterson learned many practical lessons from the farm life. The nearest school was too far away for him to attend, so he learned what he could from the farm, from his mother, and from the few books which they possessed. This training was of great value to him when he was called to the Presidency of an Agricultural and Mechanical College. He had opportunities, also, to study with a neighbor, an Englishman who had a good library.

In 1849, Andrew Patterson announced that he had made arrangements for his son to serve a five year apprenticeship in Madison. On his arrival there, he went to the homes of two Scotchmen, James Finlayson and James Falconer to make a brief visit. Through this connection, his father made the acquaintance of Rev. James Brown and Robert French and it was soon decided that he would study under Mr. French. Due to James Patterson's ambition and hope, he received aid from many who admired him and were able to give him the support needed.

James Patterson returned home in 1850 and taught at various schools for several years, teaching in Kentucky for five months. Then he and his brother entered Hanover College, from which James was graduated in 1856.

After leaving Hanover, he became principal of the Greenville Presbyterian Academy, at Greenville, Ky. Under his direction the school grew until both he and his brother were engaged to teach. After that, he taught for some years at Transylvania College in Lexington. Later, he taught at Sayre Institute and the Agricultural College, while teaching at Transylvania.

The organization of the A & M College was made definite in 1866. James Patterson became its third president in 1869, and held this position until 1910. He fought for the University at all times. He has been called the "Builder of a Great University".

President Patterson had many trials and hardships in his term of President. However, it is due to his great work at the beginning of the history of the University that has been an aid in helping those of later years to carry on and make of it a still greater institution.

And that is why, at this time, we are making plans to have a great celebration next year. We hope that many alumni will return to pay homage to the memory of this great man on the 100th anniversary of his birth, a man who helped so much in the moulding and making of our University of Kentucky.

STUDENT LEADERS CONVENE AT U. OF KY.

Representatives of student government organizations of 12 southern colleges and universities attended sessions of the 11th annual convention of the Southern Federation of College Students at the University of Kentucky, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 28 to 30. The convention, which opened with a dinner at the Phoenix hotel Thursday night, closed Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, delivered the address of welcome at the first business session of the convention. The response was given by Clarence Gover, Birmingham-Southern College. Other addresses at the opening business session were:

University of Kentucky for luncheon at the University Commons.

"Student Publications and Editorial Problems" was Mr. Wells' subject and "The Honor System" was the topic of Mr. Penney's address. The delegates witnessed the international tennis exhibition on the University courts late Friday afternoon.

The University of Kentucky chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa and the men's student council were hosts to the delegates at a dinner-dance at the Lafayette hotel at 7 o'clock Friday night. There was another business session of the convention at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning in room 314, University library, when officers were elected. There was a motor tour of the Bluegrass region for the delegates Saturday afternoon.

Official delegates to the convention were: University of Alabama, E. E. G. Branch Jr.; University of Florida, William Herin and Selwyn C. Ives; Birmingham-Southern, Clarence Glover and Kenneth Goare; Tulane, William F. Penney, North Carolina State, Mark Wilson and C. E. Brake; University of Maryland, Ralph I. Williams; Mississippi State, R. O. Cox; Georgia Tech., Ivan Allen Jr. and Gordon Wells; Centre, Fred Rowell; Washington and Lee, James Copeland; University of Kentucky, Gordon Finley, Bennie Martin, John Kane and William Luther.

FOUR STUDENTS GIVEN GOLD SERVICE KEYS

A. during their college careers, were presented gold keys in recognition of their work recently at a meeting of the University of Kentucky Y. M. C. A. on the campus. Those receiving keys were Robert Stewart, Morehead; William Shafer, Falmouth; Fred Hafer, Falmouth, and Robert Gilmore, Owingsville.

SUMMER COURSE AT U. K. SCHOOL

A six-weeks' summer course for students in the elementary grades and in secondary departments will be offered at the University of Kentucky training school beginning June 6. Teachers and prospective teachers who wish to enroll in courses in directed teaching and grade and secondary school students wishing to complete their work in less than the regular time prescribed, or who wish to make up back work, are offered this opportunity at the University training school.

Contrary to its policy during the regular school year, at which time only 30 pupils are enrolled in any grade in the elementary department and not more than 35 are enrolled in the secondary department, the training school will accommodate all summer school students who wish to attend. Inquiries relative to summer school have already been received from high school students in many sections of the state, applications already having been received from Ashland, Paducah and Somerset.

By attending summer school at the training school each summer and carrying additional work during the regular school year, a pupil may complete the four-year course in three years. Classes will be provided for pupils who need special attention in the development of the fundamental skills and in the use of the tool subjects, such as reading and spelling.

U. K. STUDENTS' ART PRAISED BY CRITICS

Work of University of Kentucky students, displayed at the Cambridge School of Domestic and Landscape Architecture, Cambridge, Mass., has received praise from Boston art critics and members of the staff of the Fogg Art Museum at Harvard University.

The displays included etchings, aquatints and linoleum block prints done by students in the art department at the University of Kentucky. Prof. Edward W. Rannells, head of the department, under whose direction the students received their art instruction, has received several letters of praise for the exhibit at Cambridge. Among those praising the Kentucky students' work were Albert Franz Cochrane, art editor of the Boston Evening Transcript, and Frederick B. Robinson, assistant director of the Fogg Art Museum.

Students whose work is on display at Cambridge are: William D. Frazer, Lexington, aquatints; Miss Mildred Shute, Ottumwa, Ia., landscape etchings; Miss Mabel Palmer, Lexington, and Miss Alza Stratton, Lexington, soft-ground etchings; Miss Esther Greenfield, Lexington, aquatints, and Miss Rita Mounts, Lexington, linoleum block prints. The critics gave special praise to an aquatint, "The Vigil," by Mr. Frazer.

U. K. STUDENT KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Jerome B. Respass Jr., 18, son of one of Kentucky's most prominent turfmen, was burned to death Saturday morning, April 30, in his automobile after crashing into a telephone pole.

Young Respass, whose home was in Erlanger, was a sophomore student in the College of Agriculture and was popular in Lexington. He was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity, and resided at the S. A. E. house at 230 south Limestone street. He was a member of the Block and Bridle, honorary agricultural fraternity. He left Lexington at 6 o'clock Friday night for Bardstown where he attended a dance. His friends here said they presumed he was motoring into Louisville from the dance when he met his death. The youth was an Episcopalian.

U. K. LOAN FUND AIDS 70 DURING SEMESTER

Approximate 70 students were aided by the student loan fund last semester, and, despite rumors to the contrary, the fund is in excellent condition, according to an announcement from the office of Prof. W. S. Webb, chairman of the loan fund.

The refusal of loans to many students has been made, not because of lack of funds, but because of the failure of students to make standings the previous semester, or because of insufficient actual need of aid from the fund.

No large amounts of money are being paid into the treasury at present, due to the fact that most of the borrowers are able to pay only the interest on loans, and have asked for extensions of time for the payment of the principal.

HISTORIC PAPERS IN U. K. KEEPING

The Bryan Station chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, has committed to the custody of the University of Kentucky library a collection of old papers connected with the history of Bryan Station. These papers were the property of Miss Katherine Craig, Grant, Boone county, and were given by her in 1929, shortly before her death, to the Bryan Station chapter to be preserved for the chapter and used to honor the memory of the pioneers of Bryan Station.

The collection of 14 manuscripts contains, among other papers, nine deeds made to and by various members of the Craig family in the period from 1801 to 1830. John Craig Sr., who signed several of the deeds, was the commander of the garrison at Bryan Station during the siege of August 15 to 17, 1782. One interesting deed is in the hand writing of Col. Robert Johnson. It was signed by him and his wife, Jemima Johnson, Dec. 3, 1813. A grant of land from the governor of Virginia to Edmund Logwood, dated May 14, 1787, conveys to him 10,000 acres "in the county of Fayette on the waters of Ohio and Little Sandy." (Fayette county in those early days reached to the Ohio river). There is also a survey and plot of this land made for Edmund Logwood in 1783.

HEALTH SCHOOL PLANNED

The University of Kentucky will inaugurate a school for public health workers June 14 in connection with its annual summer session, according to an announcement by Dr. Jesse E. Adams, director of the summer school. The school will be the first of its kind in Kentucky.

Dr. Adams and other officers of the school expect it to become a regular part of the summer session each year and hope that the University will become a center for this type of work for the southern states.

The school will offer special training for health officers, public health nurses, those engaged in treating tuberculosis patients or seeking to prevent its increase laboratory technicians, school teachers who do health work, and university students interested in entering the field of public health work. The latest developments in public health work will be included in the courses.

The 1932 May Queen

MISS RUTH WEHLE

Upon instruction of Gov. Ruby Laffoon, Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, appointed Miss Ruth Dowling Wehle, Lexington, as the university's representative at the mountain laurel festival, to be held at Clear Creek, Bell county, June 11 and 12. Miss Wehle was crowned May Queen at the university, and during her three years in school at the university has been prominent in campus activities. Directed by Elmer G. Sulzer, the University of Kentucky band will again go to Clear Creek this year to take part in the laurel festival.

MAY DAY, 1932

By Cameron Coffman

In medieval England it was a traditional custom for one day of the year to be set aside for a general marry-making. On this day, which was chosen in May, a king and queen were elected from among the finest and most beautiful of the young people. For a year they reigned as king and queen and at the close of the year their reign ended. Another May day came and another pair were chosen to reign for the ensuing year.

May Day, with its crowning of the queen, its ancient dances, its academic procession, its conferring of honors, is fast becoming a tradition on the University of Kentucky campus. Fortunate it is that the University has seen fit to begin this practice thus dignifying its customs and ideals, that it may gather unto itself the respect and dignity that only tradition can bring.

May Day at the University of Kentucky was established in 1923 with no particular definite purpose in mind other than a parade and some manner of entertainment in connection with the day. In order to make the day more important and that the students of the university might have the opportunity to confer the honors which were gained during the year, a special meeting was held in the morning of the designated day. This meeting called for a gathering of the seniors, an address, and the announcement of honors. The day is planned by SuKy, a pep organization on the campus, but the seniors are the special sponsors of the occasion.

The 1932 edition of May Day fell on May 6. The opening ceremony of the day was the convocation held at 10 o'clock, at which time William Gess, Lexington attorney and former track star at the university, delivered the address. At the conclusion of his address the awarding of the Algernon Sidney Sullivan medallions was announced. Robert Allen Wise, Morganfield, a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, and Elizabeth Poole, Lexington, a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority, were the student recipients. Miss Katherine Pettit, Lexington, was chosen as the most outstanding citizen for this award.

At 2 o'clock the annual parade was staged through the streets of Lexington. A typical old Kentucky Colonel mounted on a beautiful horse, which was roan with white mane and tail, headed the parade. He presented a very picturesque figure with his silk topper and long cutaway coat and with his horse strutting in the true fashion of a Kentucky thoroughbred. Immediately following was the Queen of the May riding in one of the almost obsolete horse-drawn carriages. The queen, Ruth Wehle, was accompanied by her Maid of Honor, Miss Opal Hubble. Following the queen's carriage was another horse drawn vehicle which contained the queen's attendants, Misses Virginia Young, Lois Neal, Christine Johnson, and Lillian Gooch.

In the parade was included the floats of the different fraternities and sororities. The SuKy circle offered a loving cup to the sorority which entered the most beautiful float in the parade, and a cup to the fraternity which entered the most comical one.

After the parade had passed through the down-town section of Lexington, it proceeded back toward the University and halted at S'oll Field, where a throne was set up for the coronation of the queen. The coaches drove onto the field where the queen and her attendants alighted. To the strains of a march, which was played by the coed band, the queen and her attendants advanced to the throne where the coronation rites took place. The maid of honor placed the crown on her majesty's head. After a series of folk dances and stunts the day's festivities were adjourned until 9 o'clock, when the annual Gingham dance was held. During the dance pledging to SuKy was held and the announcement of the float winners was made. The cups were awarded to Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and Alpha Delta Theta sorority.

At 12 o'clock the final waltz was played and the day's festivities came to a close and one more May Day had gone on record at the University of Kentucky.

STATE EDUCATORS HEAR ADDRESSES BY RESEARCHERS

Approximately 125 educators, including representatives of all senior colleges in the state, attended a conference on education research recently at the University of Kentucky. The business of the conference was devoted entirely to research in the field of higher education, and the speakers included several national authorities on this subject.

The United States office of education and the University of Kentucky were the sponsors of the meeting, the first of its kind in Kentucky.

Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, presided. One of the principal speakers was Dr. Fred J. Kelly, chief of the division of colleges and professional schools, United States office of education.

COLLEGE OFFERS FARM CIRCULARS

The following timely farm circulars can be obtained from county or home demonstration agents or by writing to the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky at Lexington. Both name and number should be given in writing for them.

The Lawn

This circular deals with making new lawns and rejuvenating old lawns, including kinds of grasses to sow, how to sow them, fertilizing, and other information of interest to persons desiring to improve home grounds. N. R. Elliott, field agent in landscaping, is the author. Ask for circular No. 256.

Seeding Meadow and Pasture Crops

Members of the agronomy department summarize in this circular specific information about sowing grasses, clover and lespedeza alone and in pasture and meadow mixtures. This is circular No. 242.

Butterfat Content of Milk and Cream

Prof. Fordyce Ely, head of the dairy division, discusses the variation of the butterfat content of milk and cream, considers conditions that tend to increase or decrease butterfat, and explains some of the common causes of such fluctuations. Among the subjects discussed is the operating of the separator. Ask for circular No. 251.

Home Canning

Most farmers this year are planning to grow enough vegetables and fruit to supply the family through the spring, summer and fall, and also a surplus to can for winter. Circular No. 220 deals with all phases of home canning by the most approved methods. It contains time tables for vegetables and fruits, family budgets, score cards and other information. One chapter is devoted to canning meats.

Two of Kentucky's football heroes, Shipwreck Kelly and Ralph Kercheval, turned in 23 points to give the Wildcats a 63-49 victory over Tennessee in their annual track and field meet.

Kelly won the 220-yard dash and the broad jump, and was second in the 100-yard dash. Kercheval took first place in the javelin and 220-yard low hurdles.

Kentucky ran away with nine first places and seven seconds. By winning the meet, the Wildcats swept the Tennessee - Kentucky athletic slate for the year with the exception of the 6-6 gridiron tie of last November.

KENTUCKY'S TRACK REVIEW

By Cameron Coffman

The Wildcat Track team of the University of Kentucky concluded their 1932 season by trouncing the Volunteers of Tennessee on the Vol's field by the impressive score of 68 to 49. The winning of this event gave the 'Cats the athletic edge on the Tennesseans this year, as the Kentuckians held the highly touted Vol's to 6-6 tie on the gridiron and won two decisive victories on the hardwood court. Although this was the final dual meet the Wildcats will journey to Atlanta the last week in May to make a bid for Southern Conference honors. "Shipwreck" Kelly, Captain "Jake" O'Bryant, Howard Baker and "Scaley" Roberts will be the members of the team who will make the Atlanta trip. This conference meet will mark the final appearance of the veteran "Shipwreck" Kelly who has treated the fans of the Kentucky football and track teams for the last three years to an exhibition of athletic ability which is rare among college players. For the last three seasons he has proved to be a menace to the opposing teams on the gridiron and his speed on the cinder track has placed him ace high among the sprinters on the South. Last year at the Southern Conference meet he won the hundred yard dash and was officially recognized as the foremost dash man of the Conference.

Captain Jerry O'Bryant will also make his final appearance as a Kentucky representative at the Conference meet. For the last three years his performances have been characterized by the same consistency. Last season he set a new track record for the mile run.

KENTUCKY'S TRACK REVIEW

Howard Baker, who has shared honors with Captain O'Bryant this season in the mile run, also performs in the half-mile and two-mile run. Baker, who is a junior, has showed excellent form and will be on hand next year to continue his long list of victories.

George "Scaley" Robert's leap of 6 feet one inch against the Vanderbilt jumper in the meet with the Nashville team places him among the topmost jumpers of the South. He will undertake to repeat this leap in Atlanta, and in so doing should be listed with the pointers.

Johnny Hieber, who has suffered with an injured leg most of the season, ran the hundred yard dash at Tennessee in 10.1 seconds to win over Kelly by a slight margin. Hieber, a senior, has completed his third year on the Big Blue team.

Leland Mahan and Ed Milliken, quarter-milers, have both put up very creditable performances and have won a majority of their races. Mahan also ran the half-mile in most of the meets.

Harry Emmerich and Ralph Kercheval, the low and high hurdlers of the Kentucky team, have presented strong opposition throughout the season among themselves and their opponents. In a large percent of their races only a fraction of a second separated the two Blue hurdlers. Kercheval, who is the sophomore that made such a brilliant name for himself on the gridiron last fall, added more renown to his athletic standing by his exhibitions on the cinder track this spring. In practically all of the meets he placed in the following events: high hurdles, low hurdles, javelin, and broad jump. Emmerich has just completed his second year as a member of the Kentucky team. His performances have been noteworthy and he has been in the counters in every meet with the exception of Vanderbilt.

The weight men on the team, Johnny Main, Johnny Epps, and Ken Andrews, have made a very creditable showing with the shot-put and discus. Epps and Andrews have annexed enough places to win their varsity awards and Mains has added his name to the athletic records of the University of Kentucky as the record holder in the shot-put.

Carrol Ball, the sophomore flash, has showed excellent form and speed to win several first places. In the 100 and 220 yard dashes, Ball will be Coach Shively's right-hand man next year as Kelly and Hieber, the other dash men, will be graduated.

Bob Porter and Billy Hubble, both seniors, have vaulted above par this spring and have won a number of places in their event.

"Bud" Hocker, Baker's running mate in the two-milers, won the annual intramural cross-country run last fall. He has continued to present the same long strides which has enabled him to a first place in the Louisville meet and also several seconds.

Kentucky's mile relay team, which is composed of Ed Miliken, John Carter, Leland Mahan, and Jack Hickey, has won several firsts this year, but they were unable to cope with the speed of the Vanderbilt quarter-milers, and the Commodores' record of 21 years of no defeats stood intact.

A summary of this season's results shows three victories, which were gathered at the expense of Louisville, Berea, and the University of Tennessee; while the Commodores of Vanderbilt and the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech presented too much opposition for the Wildcats and were victorious. Kentucky's three victories were by overwhelming scores.

The prospects for next year's team look bright to Coach Shively and the track fans. Kelly and Hieber will be missing from the dashes, but Carrol Ball will be back and the freshman squad has several speedy men. Ball will also run the 220 yard dash. Carter and Hickey will return for the quarter and Mahan will be on hand for the half-mile. Howard Baker will again run the mile, and Hocker will run with him in the two-mile. The hurdles will be well taken care of by Emmerich and Kercheval. In case a substitution is needed from either of these men, Coach Shively has Carl Hand and Coffman of this year's squad, while Leslie and Shedd of the frosh squad will be working for a position.

"Scaley" Roberts will be missed next year, and his high jumping ability will be hard to replace. But Miller who jumped 5 feet 7 inches this year, should improve a little by next season and can be counted on for some points.

"Alumni Education"

Add "alumni education" or "continuing education for alumni" to the list of so-called college problems. This problem represents the breakdown of a good many assumptions that nobody ever really had the right to make; and those who ought to know this best and who have known it longest have been the last to face and admit it—the colleges themselves.

One of these assumptions has been implicit in the very terminology of the graduation ceremony—the abracadabra of "Bachelor," "Master," "Doctor," "cum laude" and such words which express with an admirable dignity the desideratum of a leisure-laden scholastic tradition that is just as indigenous to the American scene as the awkward mortarboard on the tousled hair of an engineering undergraduate. With what bitterness of disappointment and disillusion the distinguished John Jay Chapman of Harvard exclaimed to Princeton Phi Beta Kappa men some years ago: "The alumni are ignorant, and they delight in it!"

Mr. Romyn Berry said the same thing, writing in the Cornell Alumni News more recently—and he said it with penetration and good humor when he observed that "research beckons but makes few sales."

"Scholarship," said Mr. Berry, inimitably, "hitches its wagon to a star. Research beckons yearningly. But Higher Education is stymied by the regrettable and unalterable fact that most sophomores are nineteen years old and healthy. Scholarship is always being kept back and held down by the damned students!"

So, too, the pursuit of sweetness and light among typical American alumni, while more assiduously undertaken than some cynics are likely to believe, is considerably hampered by the grim business of struggling to survive in this American scene and to serve the social order—which they are doing very well, thank you—as respectable and useful citizens.

Now the significant and encouraging thing about this problem of continuing education for alumni is the fact that while the alumni themselves may have been the last to recognize it as a problem they have been the first to try to do something about it. If American college alumni were ever really the "semi-simian mob" of Upton Sinclair's characterization in "The Goose Step," they have moved up rapidly in the evolutionary scale.

And in our climb toward common sense we have had more help from outsiders than from our alma maters, who have more often than not shown the common biological disregard of their innumerable alumnal progeny.

For nearly a decade the conventions of the American Alumni Council, representative of the organized graduates and former students of American and Canadian colleges and universities, have been the forum for earnest discussion of what should be the continuing educational relationship between the college man or woman and his institution. There have been other strong relationships for more than a century—social, athletic, financial—and these American relationships have been unique in the world history of higher education, unmatched by similar organized loyalties in the vastly older and more distinguished European universities.

But these relationships the alumni themselves have been the first to say are not enough. Why not a continuation in fact of what every one wants to believe is the fundamental tie between the college and its alumni—the intellectual and education interest of undergraduate days? Mr. Levering Tyson then alumni secretary of Columbia University; Mr. Daniel Grant, then alumni secretary of the University of North Carolina; Mr. Wilfred B. Shaw, then alumni secretary of the University of Michigan—these were the pioneers in the coterie of alumni workers who persisted in raising this question and in demanding that something be done about it. Even so the discussion remained largely academic (i. e., static) until the interest and support of the Carnegie Corporation, through Mr. Fred C. Keppel, its president, and of the American Association for Adult Education, through Mr. Morse Cartwright its director, were enlisted. These organizations provided the funds and encouragement for the first study-attacks upon the problem, made by Mr. Grant and Mr. Shaw.

They have likewise generously made possible the conduct and publication of the further study at the Ohio State University, here reported. This investigation is a preliminary and practical attempt to discover whether the graduates of a large and representative land-grant state university in a typical American city have learned, among other things in their college experience, the habit of keeping on with learning. And finding that this useful habit has not lapsed, the investigation seeks to discover how it functions and in what ways this university might take up again the privilege and the challenge of serving its alumni learners. The results and conclusions, if sparse and tentative, are yet illuminating.

The study has been directed by one practised in the techniques of educational and social research, bringing to the inquiry a wide background of philosophy and experience in the field of adult education—Professor Jessie Allen Charters, of the department of Adult Education at the Ohio State University.

Here, then, is one more practical attempt to carry forward a little farther an important educational movement the proper direction of which this report conceivably may help to reveal.—Reprint from "Alumni Interest in Continuing Education," Ohio State University 1932.

Summary of Recent Survey

Preceding the inauguration of the Alumni Study under the Carnegie Corporation Grant, much interest had been shown in continuing education.

Alumnae Groups had experimented with Program Papers and had engaged in many discussions as to the best methods of procedure. In some of the more formal discussions representatives of the University had participated.

The Alumni had also had committee and group meetings, both with and without representatives from the university, to canvass their interest in the plan. The questionnaires which two groups had sent out to their constituency had brought a disappointingly small percentage of answers.

The consensus of opinion as expressed at the Alumni Day Conference was that the study had been necessarily inadequate and amateurish; that a more careful study would reveal facts hitherto unascertained.

The afternoon demonstration of continuing education was a revelation of widespread interest among alumni, many of whom had traveled long distances for the occasion, and who would not likely have returned to the campus but for this program.

Mr. Frank Fowler, director of Guignol theater, will leave as soon as school is out to join his mother in Los Angeles, Calif. He will study toward his doctor's degree in English at the University of California, and return to Lexington next fall to resume his duties in university.

Arrest At Varennes

Dark days in France were those after July 1789 when the Bastille, symbol of political suppression, was stormed by Parisian mobs, led by portly, enraged shop women. For sickly King Louis XVI there followed ominous months, filled with jeers and insults from petite bourgeoisie. Royal edicts no longer impressed the rabid Assembly, intoxicated with Montesquieu's doctrines of the equality of man. By June 1791 the Capet blood was rapidly becoming less blue and more watery as the sixteenth Louis shivered in the Tuileries.

As TIME, had it been published June 25, 1791, would have reported subsequent events:

... Cast aside were wigs and brocade by timid King Louis and his family as they fled last week from Paris disguised as servants. Successfully plans and preparations of Count Axel ("Friend of the Queen") Fersen were carried out as Baroness Korff (an unidentified servant) and her attendants (King Louis as valet, Queen Marie Antoinette as governess) passed the revolutionary guards with faked passports. Then delays and Royal indiscretion made of careful plans a tragedy of errors.

At Somme-Vesle impatient young Duc de Choiseul waited four hours for the royal shipment, dismissed his hussars at sunset, sent word along the route: "Treasure' delayed."

His body guard from Somme-Vesle to the frontier missing, King Louis himself anxiously looked for it in Sainte-Menehould through the carriage window, was recognized by the village postmaster's son, Drouet, ardent Revolutionist. Instantly Drouet set off to prevent the escape.

Gasping for breath after a wild ride over back roads through the blackness of Argonne Forest, ex-dragon Drouet aroused rustic night owls at Le Bras d'Or at Varennes crying, "To arms!" A half hour later brakes complained on the hill above town and a heavy coach came to a stop before an overturned cart barricading the road. Torchlight gleamed on half a hundred bayonets as Drouet, and Varennes Procurator Sauce, took the protesting royal family prisoners.

News of the flight spread like wildfire, armed peasants poured in from the countryside. Choiseul's hussars blundered into Varennes too late, urged Louis to force his way out. Louis vacillated. Many royal soldiers were shot as they tried unsuccessfully to clear the town.

With dawn, thundering hoofs from Paris pounded out the knell of Monarchy. Sorrowful M. Romeuf, aide-de-camp to La Fayette, strode into Sauce's house hating his errand, respectfully presented the National Assembly's order of arrest. Royalty glanced through the document, smiled bitterly. Said Louis Capet: "There is no longer a King of France!"

Cultivated Americans, impatient with cheap sensationalism and windy bias, turn increasingly to publications edited in the historical spirit. These publications, fair-dealing, vigorously impartial, devote themselves to the public weal in the sense that they report what they see, serve no masters, fear no groups.
