A UNIVERSITY IS A PLACE; IT IS A SPIRIT . . . VII

Andre Gides said: "Man is more interesting than men. God made him and not them in His image. Each one is more precious than all." Each man, herein pictured, is precious to the University of Kentucky because each, in his own tender, forceful, inimitable way has charted a course in service to Alma Mater which has set a pattern for others to follow. Each one of these three was recognized last June at the annual Alumni Banquet and was presented with the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Awards. Not one of them, Dr. Ralph J. Angelucci, '34, neuro-surgeon, alumni leader and distinguished citizen, William B. Arthur, '37, editor and publishing executive, and R. R. Dawson, '25, humanitarian and philanthropist will ever realize fully what their contributions of time, devotion and service have meant and will continue to mean to the University. The loyalty of each one of these three parallels patriotism to one's country and affection for one's family. For these shining attributes and for these men, the University is grateful.

Advisory Program at the University of San Carlos in Guatemala

By DEWEY G. STEELE
UK Department of Animal Husbandry

EDITOR'S NOTE: About six years ago the Government of Guatemala requested the U.S. Government to provide Advisory Service to the recently established College of Agriculture of the University of San Carlos. Dean Frank J. Welch of the U.K. College of Agriculture and Home Economics surveyed the situation. He was accompanied by Dr. J. Eduardo Hernandez, Department of Modern Foreign Languages, who served as Interpreter. As a result of Dean Welch's recommendations, the University of Kentucky assumed contractual obligations through the U.S. State Department to provide the services requested.

The accompanying report includes some relevant observations made by Professor Dewey G. Steele, Department of Animal Husbandry, who served as Advisor in Genetics in the College of Agriculture at the University of San Carlos from February to June in 1961.

The University of Kentucky, is actively engaged in a State Department contracts at the College of Agriculture of the University of San Carlos in Guatemala. The college was founded twelve years ago and is located on a new campus adjacent to Guatemala City. Professor L. J. Horlacher, former Associate Dean of the U. K. College of Agriculture and Home Economics, is the Program Chief. The program is administered by the Kentucky Research Foundation.

Other participants to date include: Miss Frances Flick, University of Iowa; Library, 1960. Dr. Herbert Massey, University of Kentucky; Soils, 1960. Dr. Dewey G. Steele, University of Kentucky, Genetics, 1961. Dr. Juan G. Rodriguez, University of Kentucky; Entomology, 1961. Mr. Harry C. Haynes, forestry experience in Latin America and other countries; Forestry, 1961. Dr. C. B. Godbey, Texas A. & M. College, Biometry, 1962.

Members of the Class of '25 will claim Dr. Godbey as a distinguished Alumnus. He is serving presently with special emphasis on Biometry in preparation for the projected Graduate Program of the College.

A vigorous new College in an old University

The College of Agriculture has some thirty individuals on its staff and about 160 students. Classes are conducted and Administration housed in an imposing new building. Laboratories are conducted in a Laboratory Building which is shared with the College of Veterinary Medicine and Animal Husbandry. There is also an auditorium of striking architectural design appropriate for the tropics.

Adjacent land is available for experimental purposes. Facilities for farm animals are very meager, but a recent grant from the Rockefeller Foundation will improve the situation whereby experimental studies in Animal Husbandry may be conducted. The University owns a coffee finca some thirty miles distant; Agriculture uses it for experimental and demonstration purposes.

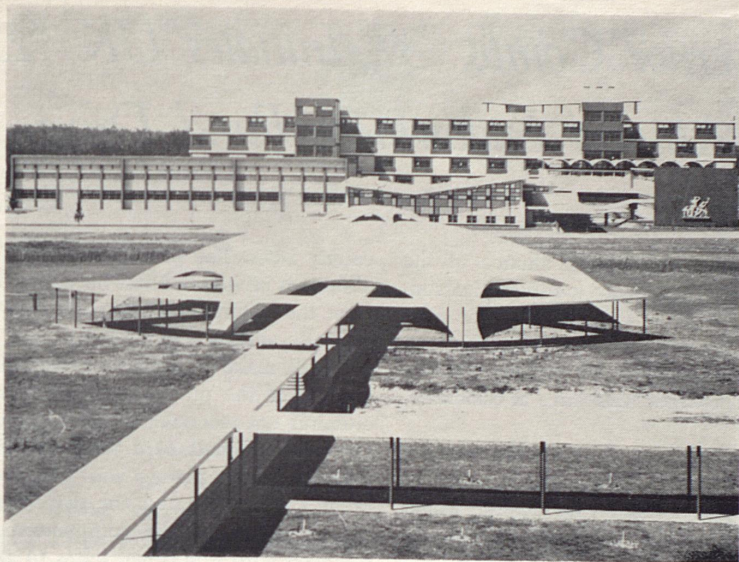

The College of Engineering has an elegant structure on the new campus. Its beautiful auditorium is finished in colorful tropical woods and it is otherwise well equipped for professional uses. Veterinary still uses quonsets to house some of its departments. A rectory was completed recently; it houses the Rector (President to us) and other administrative officers of the University. All branches of the University with the exception of Medicine are scheduled to move from their scattered locations in the city to the new campus. The new campus will eventually be very impressive, indeed.

Autonomous operations

Unlike our University, each College functions almost as an autonomous institution. Starting dates, closing dates, class schedules and even time required for completion of curricula are not the same throughout the University. There is considerable duplication of course offerings because only a few of the colleges cooperate in this regard. The same applies to libraries because there is no general library nor even cross referencing of volumes in the respective college libraries. Agriculture and Veterinary have a common library and these two colleges also cooperate with Engineering in some basic courses. Perhaps more of this type of cooperation will occur as an educational necessity when other colleges move to the new campus.

Our contribution

The primary service of the University of Kentucky at San Carlos is advisory in character. This comes as considerable surprise to some of our people because it is perfectly natural to think that a professor would continue to profess formally. Rather, the philosophy is to let San Carlos help itself. Other services consistent with the contract include the purchase of laboratory equipment, additions to the library, additional professional training of key members of the staff, scholarships to work functions almost dates, closing required for com throughout the tion of course ges cooperar oraries because oss referenti aries. Agric rary and the eering in sou of cooperati when other co students, and visits to our University and sister institutions by students and staff. It was a pleasant experience to meet so many individuals who had visited our University. They extended a cordial welcome to the writer when he arrived on their campus. They hold UK in high esteem.

Features of University life

Some students in Agriculture come from families which conduct large agricultural enterprises but the majority of the students are from more modest backgrounds and find it necessary to work part-time. To make the latter possible, classes are scheduled from 2 to 8 p.m. U. K. alumni will find support for their well known hostility to early morning classes!

Class schedules also permit many of the staff to hold part-time jobs. This is not without some real merit because the college is able to utilize the experience and practical knowledge of many competent men something like medical schools do in our country. Under the present economic conditions in Guatemala it is almost a necessity. Since there is considerable prestige associated with teaching, some professors find it easy to leave the University for more remunerative employment.

Most of the curricula in the University require six years for completion. Before a degree is granted, the candidate must stand examination and present an acceptable thesis. The procedures are quite similar to those of our graduate programs. The final hurdles may not only delay the awarding of a degree but prove too formidable for a student to negotiate. These formalities are in the tradition of Salamanca, the parent University of San Carlos.

Appraisal of Program

Alumni and other taxpayers are well justified in asking whether this cooperative educational venture is worthwhile. The answer is YES. The program has been characterized by smooth functional relationships; curricular offerings have been strengthened; laboratories have been equipped; and, authoritative additions have been made to the library. The young college is better equipped to meet the challenging agricultural problems of Guatemala. Our Good Neighbor Policy has made a constructive contribution of enduring value.

President Frank G. Dickey and Dr. Merl Baker, Executive Director of the Kentucky Research Foundation, conducted an official inspection of the program a few weeks ago.

Governor Combs, '37, Initiates UK "25" Alumni Endowment Fund Drive

Hopeful that every alumnus and alumna of the University of Kentucky will make a substantial contribution to the UK Alumni Fund during the four years leading up to the University's centennial celebration in 1965, Governor Bert T. Combs, UK '37, kicked off a special endowment fund drive at commencement last June.

He urged every graduate and former student to begin immediately to contribute $25 a year for four years, so that the Alumni Association would have a substantial part in the University's centennial program.

Governor Combs further implemented the campaign by inviting alumni leaders from the 15 Kentucky districts to dinner at the Mansion on August 8th, to outline the campaign to them and to enlist their help in organizing the drive on a county-by-county basis. The plan is simple. Each alumnus and alumna is invited to boost his annual fund contribution from the minimum $7.50 requested to a total of $25 annually and to sign a pledge card stating that each one will make a similar contribution through 1965. A copy of the pledge card is printed here and each alumnus not receiving a direct appeal is requested to clip the attached card and send it to the Alumni Office with his pledge and 1962 contribution. Governor Combs initiated the drive by making the announcement from the commencement platform and followed with a personal letter to all members of the "older" reunion classes meeting this year and during the next three years. The 25th, 35th, 40th, and 50th reunion classes of the four-year period have received the Governor's letter.

OFFICE OF ALUMNI AFFAIRS

July 1, 1962

My dear Fellow Alumni:

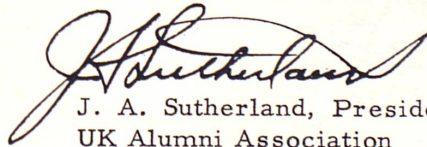

The opportunity to serve you as President has come my way. This in itself presents a rare challenge to me individually. It is my greatest desire now to instill within each of you an equal challenge so we will move forward en masse.

As a member of your Executive Committee and President of our Alumni Association I challenge you with the following program:

1. Complete the building of your Alumni Center and furnish same.
2. Concentrate all efforts to secure more contributors to the Alumni Association.
3. Create within each Alumnus the true spirit of the University in educating our leaders for tomorrow.

I earnestly solicit the support of each alumnus for the coming year and pledge to you my greatest effort in making our University and the Alumni Association the best ever.

Sincerely yours,

J. A. Sutherland, President
UK Alumni Association

NEW ALUMNI LEADERS CHOSEN FOR 1962-63

Mr. James A. Sutherland, '40
President

James A. Sutherland, '40, Bloomfield, Kentucky is the newly elected president of the UK Alumni Association. Richard E. Cooper, '38, Somerset, is the vice-president. Newly elected members of the executive committee are: Mrs. Hampton C. Adams, Mrs. Elmer Gilb and Mr. Guy A. Huguelet, Jr., all of Lexington; Mr. L. Berkley Davis, Owensboro and Mr. R. R. Dawson of Bloomfield. Each will serve a term of three years.

Mr. Sutherland, a businessman and county judge of Nelson County, has appointed the following persons to serve one-year terms as UK alumni directors: Douglas Williams, Hopkinsville; Dr. V. A. Jackson, Lexington; Roger Caudill, Morehead; Mrs. Robert O. Clark (Betty Carol Pace), Glasgow; Robert M. Hardy, Frankfort; Gilbert Kingsbury, Ft. Mitchell; William K. Howard, Wallins Creek; William Detherage and James W. Harris, both of Louisville.

ANNUAL REPORT TO THE ALUMNI

The annual meeting of the UK Alumni Association was held in conjunction with the Fifth Alumni Seminar and Alumni Picnic on June 9, 1962 on the lawn of Spindletop Hall, Iron Works Pike, Lexington.

Dr. Harry C. Denham, '41 of Maysville, out-going president of the Alumni Association presided. Present for the meeting were approximately 450 alumni, Seminar participants, UK administrative officers and distinguished guests.

Dr. Glenn U. Dorroh of Lexington made a motion that the minutes of the 1961 annual alumni meeting be approved as published in the August 1961 Alumnus magazine. Seconded by Mrs. H. C. Adams of Lexington, the motion carried unanimously. Miss Helen G. King, Director of Alumni Affairs at the University, gave her annual report as follows:

Mr. President and Fellow-Alumni:

In the closing line of Robert Frost's "Hyla Brook" he says: "We love the things we love for what they are," and because you are here today, because you have demonstrated, through your presence, your devotion and dedication to the University where you began, I will take a few short minutes now to impose upon this dedication and this present company in an effort to impart to you the needs and hopes and dreams of your University; in an effort to make the intangibles more tangible, the ideals more real and the needs more graphic for, in the words of the Apostle John, "He who has the goods of this world and sees his brother in need and closes his heart to him, how does the love of God abide in him?"

Fifty years ago President James Kennedy Patterson said: "Let Kentucky rouse from her slumber, shake off her lethargy, and in the provision which she makes for the education of her sons, dare to be free."

Another great University of Kentucky president, Frank LeRond McVey left this message with you: "The great alumnus is the one who rejoices in the advancement of his Alma Mater and does not mourn the old days. . . . If he is a great alumnus he knows his university cannot stand still. New faces must appear in the faculties, new buildings must be built on the campus, and changes must take place in the curriculum and procedure of his college. His University must be a contributor to the life of his time as it was in previous generations. It is the spirit of the place that becomes dear to him. The spirit of learning, of work, of ideals is, after all, the true quality of a university.

The great alumnus is ever ready to say a heartening word for his alma mater to encourage it in the work it is doing, to believe in it, and to regard it as a force for the best things in the life of his country. The University not only needs the time and resources he may give to the solution of its problems but also requires the faith he has in its work and purpose."

And so, you come back for your class reunions and you find many changes, new faces, new buildings, new leadership—but the spirit is the same and the hopes and dreams are the same—only the faces of the faculty and the face of the campus have taken on a strange, new and sometimes, to us oldsters, an impressive and somewhat awesome look.

These changes have resulted from the combined efforts of many people; the ad-administrative officers of the University, the board of trustees, state officials, faculty cooperation and finally, the heroic efforts of a comparatively small but dedicated group of University alumni.

One of the most significant developments in the area of alumni effort has, during the past three weeks, become a visible development. On the southeast corner of Rose and Euclid Avenues, east of the stadium, earth has been turned and the foundation is being dug for a new campus home for the Alumni of the University of Kentucky. The oft talked about and much dreamed about Alumni Center has begun, financed, in major part, by a group of 500 alumni and friends of the University who, in 1959, began a systematic series of contributions to the Alumni Century Fund of $100 a year for five years, pledging a minimum of $500 each for the purpose of erecting just such a building.

The building, about which much has been written and much has been said, is to be a colonial type structure which will house the alumni offices and, in addition, will contain conference rooms and facilities for alumni, student and faculty functions.

President Frank G. Dickey, Vice President Frank D. Peterson, Chief Engineer Elgan B. Farris, Director of Accounts and Control O. Clay Maupin and members of your Alumni Executive Committee have worked cooperatively to get this important project underway and to them and to our local alumni in the construction business, you and your Alumni Association are forever indebted.

To us, your professional alumni workers, who hoped for or dreamed of such a building for many years, there is a group of people for whom an expression of gratitude is quite inadequate; however, I would like for you to see these busy, unselfish and dedicated men and women and to express your public appreciation to them.

Will the administrative officers I have just mentioned, the members of the Alumni Executive Committee and their husbands and wives and, last but not least, the members of the Alumni Office staff present, rise and be recognized.

Now, the facts about your Alumni Center. We set out to raise $250,000 to erect the building. This was accomplished through the work of volunteers and without the help of fund-raising counsel, but, in the three-year period since the drive was started building costs have sky-rocketed and it is estimated now that, in order to complete and furnish the building adequately, we will need $100,000 more. Many of you here today and many of your former schoolmates and friends are financially able to contribute $500 each to the Century Fund. Without your help, and the help of many others, we will not be able to present a completed building when re-union time rolls around next year. If 500 of us can invest $500 each in the future of the University and the Alumni Association, surely there are 500 more who can do so. The responsibility is squarely up to you.

A few moments ago I pointed with pride to the members of the Alumni Office staff because I would remind you that, in addition to the Alumni Century Fund campaign which has been a continuous operation since 1959, from last May the alumni office staff has sent out 200,000 pieces of direct mail, has kept records on 32,000 alumni, helped staff and conduct the annual meeting of the Southern District of the American Alumni Council held in Lexington in January; staffed and handled many of the details of the 1961 and 1962 Alumni Seminars and conducted the day-to-day details of alumni membership in Spindletop, secretarial and bookkeeping duties, billing and answering a million questions, ranging from, "what happened to my transcript," to "what time is the parade."

Your executive committee, in addition to chaperoning through the hard work involved in plans for a new building, has found time to sponsor a senior picnic for 1962 graduates in May, hold an annual self-study session last June in Owensboro, work with a faculty committee on selection of recipients of the Alumni-Faculty awards, serve as hosts for the annual Alumni Seminar, the southern district meeting of the American Alumni Council and sponsor an exhibition basketball game the net receipts from which amounted to more than $9,000 for the Alumni Fund.

In addition, your Alumni Association awarded this spring the 13th four-year all expense scholarship to an incoming freshman in the amount of $2,800; initiated last June and is continuing the presentation of Distinguished Service Awards to outstanding alumni and/or citizens and has been the medium through which Dr. R. C. Kash, of Lebanon, Tenn., a 1925 graduate, has established a sophomore scholarship. It has been the recipient also of a University graduate fellowship in biochemistry from Dr. W. D. Salmon, '20 of Auburn, Ala., $1,000 from R. R. Dawson, '25, of Bloomfield, Ky., for the Dawson scholarships in Engineering; $500 from J. Ray Jenkins, '25, of Elizabethtown, Ky., for a Hardin county scholarship and a contribution of $575.00 from W. L. Lyons, Jr., of Louisville.

Members of your professional office staff have conducted numerous alumni club meetings in Kentucky and have furnished programs for a number of metropolitan clubs including Cincinnati, Atlanta, Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Los Angeles, Chicago, Charleston, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Nashville, New Orleans, St. Petersburg, and Washington, D. C.

In addition, we have participated with other University staff members in a series of visits to specified areas in Kentucky where we met with high school seniors and their parents in an effort to interpret the University to the people and to answer questions and have participated also in a campus Career Day for high school seniors, in last summer's orientation program for prospective students, and in a University High School Counsellor-Alumni Leadership conference on the campus this spring.

During the spring and fall of 1961 your Alumni Executive Committee lost from its ranks three devoted and wonderful friends and co-workers, Homer L. Baker, of Louisville, and H. D. Palmore of Frankfort, both past presidents of the Alumni Association and our beloved Miss Margie, first lady of the alumni.

For those of you who would like to return to the campus this fall I would remind you that homecoming day is on November 10 and our opponent is Vanderbilt. Those of you who have participated in the Fifth Annual Alumni Seminar which closed this noon will join with us, I am sure, in expressing our appreciation to the distinguished alumni and faculty participants and to Dr. Max Wasserman, coordinator of the Seminar and his hard-working committee. In addition, the Alumni Association bows its thanks to the Faculty Awards Committee, to the members of Omicron Delta Kappa and Mortar Board for assistance in selecting the nominees for the great teaching award and to Dr.

Leo M. Chamberlain for his advice and counsel in our Alumni Loyalty Fund scholarship program.

If there are skeptics left in this audience now, I would refer you to the up-coming report of the treasurer, together with this admonition. In April, your Executive Committee voted to abandon, insofar as is possible, the use of the term "Alumni Membership" and adopt, instead, the terms "gift" and "contributor." At the same time this committee voted unanimously to indicate on all future mailings, one of which has been sent out, that we hope for a minimum annual contribution of $7.50 from each of you to your Alumni Fund.

We need added dollars annually with which to increase our support to UK and to make this support really significant. You, a cross-section of the loyal, can spear-head a program of giving this year the like of which Kentucky has never seen before. You can give, not only your dollars but your efforts on behalf of the Alumni Annual Fund drive and you can help us to lift our sites, improve our programs and increase our activities and remember:

"There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done,
There are thousands to prophesy failure,
There are thousands to point out to you, one by one,
The dangers that want to assail you.
But just buckle right in with a bit of a grin,
Then take off your coat and go to it.
Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing
That cannot be done, and you'll do it."

Helen G. King

Director of Alumni Affairs

Mr. William M. Gant of Owensboro made a motion that the Director's report be approved as read. Seconded by Mrs. H. C. Adams of Lexington, the motion carried unanimously.

Dr. Denham then called on Mr. B. A. Shively of Lexington, treasurer of the Alumni Association to give the Treasurer's Report on the financial operations and status of the Alumni Association for the year 1961-62 which ended May 31, 1962, as follows:

Mr. Shively made a motion that the treasurer's report be accepted as outlined by him and as audited by Mr. O. Clay Maupin, auditor for the Alumni Association. Mrs. Joe Morris of Lexington seconded the motion and it carried unanimously. Mrs. H. C. Adams gave a report on the Century Club Fund and said that the new Alumni Center building was coming along nicely and urged all alumni who have not joined the Century Club to make every effort to do so as more funds were needed to complete and furnish the new building. Mrs. Adams said that $177,124.20 had been deposited in the Century Club Fund.

Mr. Richard Wells of Pikeville made a motion that Mrs. Adams report be accepted. Seconded by Mrs. Joe Morris, the motion carried unanimously.

At this point Dr. Denham announced the new officers of the Alumni Association who were elected by the general membership to serve for the year 1962-63. They are as follows: President, Mr. James A. Adams, Mrs. Elmer Gilb and Mr. Guy A. Huguelet, Jr., of Lexington; Mr. L. Berkeley Davis, Owensboro and Mr. R. R. Dawson of Bloomfield.

Out-going President Denham took this opportunity to address the group and welcomed the reunion classes. He expressed his sincere thanks and appreciation to the members of the Executive Committee for their cooperation and help. Dr. Denham then introduced Mr. Sutherland the new president and turned the meeting over to him.

Mr. Sutherland gave a brief welcome to the reunion classes, to the executive committee and to all alumni present and pledged to do his best in serving the University as president of its Alumni Association. Since it is the prerogative of the new president of the Association to appoint additional members to serve on the executive committee, Mr. Sutherland

Record Attendance At June Reunions

Alumni of fifteen classes returned to the campus June 9th to attend the reunion festivities. Approximately 450 attended the picnic held for the first time at Spindletop Hall, alumni-faculty club on the Iron Works Road. This was a record attendance for this affair. Distinguished alumni participating in the Seminar were guests. The Golden Anniversary Reunion Class of 1912 was presented Half Century Club certificates at the banquet held in the ballroom of the Student Union that night. Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, Vice-President of the University, was presented a julep cup by the Alumni Association for distinguished service to the University.

Mr. James W. Cary, '12, Exeter, California, received the award for the alumnus who had come the farthest distance. Mr. Herman Robinson, '06, Lexington, was given the award for representing the oldest class present.

President and Mrs. Dickey were hosts for a reception honoring the reunion classes, faculty, seniors, their families and friends at a reception at Maxwell Place on Sunday afternoon following the baccalaureate exercises.

A special story concerning the Distinguished Service Awards presented at the banquet appears on Page 3 of this issue.

Sullivan Award Presented To Dr. R. B. Atwood

The grandson of a slave received the University of Kentucky's highest citizen award—the Sullivan Medallion—at Commencement this past June. Dr. Rufus Ballard Atwood, President of Kentucky State College, Frankfort, has devoted a lifetime to the education of young people and to the development of programs for the advancement of interracial relations. He will retire this year as President of the institution he faithfully served for many years.

Dean Welch Leaves UK, Joins Tobacco Institute

Dr. Frank J. Welch, Dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, has resigned. In 1957 and 1959 he took a leave of absence from the University to become one of the three directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority and has recently served as assistant Secretary of Agriculture in the Kennedy Administration. He came to the University in 1951 from the University of Mississippi where he served as Dean of the School of Agriculture. He has joined the Tobacco Institute, Washington, D. C.

THE ARMY SAYS FAREWELL TO STAHR

With pomp and circumstance and sincere regret, the United States Army said goodbye last June 28 to Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., UK '36, following his resignation as its civilian head to accept the presidency of Indiana University.

After 17 months as Army Secretary, during which time the U. S. ground forces have grown in strength "to a degree unprecedented in peacetime history," Mr. Stahr was honored by the Army Chief-of-Staff, General George E. Decker, with a farewell review and reception at Ft. Myer, Va.

The secretaries and chiefs of all the services were present to pay tribute to Mr. Stahr at a colorful review which opened with a 19-gun salute, the parade of the "Old Guard," the drum and fife corps of George Washington's Army dressed in knee breeches, red coats, white wigs and tricorns, a review of the troops by outgoing Secretary Stahr while the Army band played "My Old Kentucky Home," the presentation of the Division colors, retreat and finally, in celebration of the Stahr's 16th wedding anniversary, a ride by Mr. and Mrs. Stahr in the post's "marriage carriage" from the parade ground to Patton Hall, where General and Mrs. Decker were hosts at an elaborate reception.

On the reviewing stand with the Secretary were General Decker and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer.

On the morning of June 28 President John F. Kennedy, at a private farewell conference with Mr. Stahr, presented to him a foot-high, two-foot wide plaque embossed with Mr. Kennedy's inaugural medal in bronze, mounted on polished wood. At the bottom of the plaque an inscription to Stahr reads, "Exemplary and vigorous leadership for our Army." It is signed by the President and is a departure from precedent as it is the first of such plaques to be presented by Mr. Kennedy.

On July 1, Mr. Stahr took office as President of Indiana University.

J. H. FAUNCE, JR., '36, Villanova, Pa., has been elected a vice president of Lukens Steel Company. He is in charge of market and commercial development.

Branded: One Maverick

By NANCY BALLANTINE

(Editor's Note: The KENTUCKY ALUMNUS is indebted to the author and to the Louisville Courier-Journal for permission to reprint this feature. Mrs. Ballantine is the wife of Thomas A. Ballantine, Jr., UK '48, the daughter-in-law of Thomas A. Ballantine, UK '25 and Marie Pfeiffer Ballantine, UK '27, and the sister-in-law of John Ballantine, UK '52 and William Ballantine, UK '57. To quote the Courier-Journal Magazine editor, "As the reader may have guessed, Nancy was an Armstrong for several years—long enough to grow up and graduate from a college none of her in-laws will admit even exists—before she became Mrs. Thomas A. Ballantine, Jr. And that was four children ago.")

Listen, Mama and Papa. If your son has reached the age of unreason or is even considering marriage (and this is the traditional time of year for such shenanigans), you should take heed to these words.

Have you looked the girl over, really looked her over? Try for a second to forget that breathtaking blond hair or the beguiling smile and be cold-blooded. Is she going to Fit In? Will she be Hard To Explain To Your Friends?

Think about it now. Otherwise, when the cry and the tumult of engagement parties has quieted and the wedding reception dust has settled, you may find yourselves with a maverick in the family fold.

The Ballantines can tell you. Ask them.

Now, maybe you wouldn't believe it to look at me, but I am something of a collector's item in that family group. By ancestry and education, I'm about as maverick as you could imagine. And yet I'm positive the weight of this knowledge did not bear down on them in the days before I became one of their number.

They gave me only a superficial check, you see. Big things, they questioned me about—like was I addicted to dope or drink and where did I stand on Harry Truman.

Misled, perhaps, by my free and open countenance, they felt they could take some things for granted. But they were wrong.

Take my college career.

My husband, his mother, his father, his two brothers, his sister-in-law and his aunts and his cousins all went to the University of Kentucky. Who is out of step in this cozy arrangement of alumni songs, rush-week chit-chat and college cheers? Me, that's who.

Oh, I try to cover up as best I can. For instance, I am the first one on his feet when a band, any band, strikes up "On, On U. of K." I am as beautifully conditioned in that reflex as Pavlov's dog. (I once dumfounded an entire roomful of people in a Chicago restaurant where a piano player, casually working through a medley of college songs, struck the fatal chords and I leapt to my feet so fast I overturned my cup of onion soup.)

But facts are facts, and we all must learn to live with them.

I went, though I try to keep it quiet in the interest of togetherness, to a small girls' school in Virginia. May heaven forgive me. We didn't even have sororities!

My worst times are spent at Kentucky homecomings. What can anyone reminisce about with me? I never had a glass of beer at Tuttle's, never had a class under Miss Margie and I am not prepared to engage in open conversational warfare with any member of the Bryant-Collier-Bradshaw-Rupp sports fanatics. (They all are very attractive gentlemen, so far as I can tell.) I was never a cheerleader for, sad to tell, Hollins doesn't have a football team. Ah, the wasted years.

Now, Tom's mother and father have been very sweet about the whole thing. Really. But I know they've spent some sleepless nights.

They've got my ancestors to worry about, too, you see.

From the moment the first Ballantines, the original cast, first landed in this country, they made a bee-line for Kentucky and they have not budged one jot since. (Well, there was John Wilkes Booth, who sort of hung around Washington. But he was only a second cousin once removed or something and anyway, his name wasn't Ballantine.)

What were the Armstrongs doing during these misty early years? Who's to say? Not I, certainly. Apparently they were the roving kind, a gypsy crowd that wandered happily about from Virginia to Georgia to Missouri until they finally lit in Texas, where they did stay put. (Talk about being Hard To Explain To Your Friends!)

Can't you imagine the nervous whispered conversations my in-laws must have held? "Why did Nancy's group move about so much?" You can't blame them. I wonder myself.

The Ballantines have managed pretty well with me; but, mark you, they come of hardy stock, and they are given to snapping their fingers at obstacles that would stagger more timid types. They have given their maverick a warm welcome, but it would work that way with just run-of-the-mill folks.

So, friends, if you entertain hopes of having that sweet young thing that Junior is so gone on just fitting right into your family circle, stop, before it's too late and look her over. Skip all the folderol about her position on the tariff question and don't waste good time checking on her Communist leanings. Find out how long her family has been in this state—and, for the love of heaven, check on where she went to school.

The entering freshman is given an opportunity to meet his academic dean who, in turn, assigns him to a faculty adviser. He is then assisted in preparing a schedule of classes for the fall semester.

Chamberlain Retires, Albright Appointed As His Successor

Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, UK Vice-President for the past fifteen years, requested a change of duties this spring and has returned to the College of Education for teaching and research responsibilities. He will teach courses in higher education and assist in the development of a Center for Higher Education.

In recognition of his many contributions the UK Alumni Association presented a gift to him at the alumni banquet June 9th.

Commenting on Dr. Chamberlain's request, President Dickey said: "It is with extreme reluctance that I recommend this change. I know of no individual who has been of greater assistance to me as president of this institution and his counsel will be sorely missed."

Dr. A. D. Albright, University Provost, has been appointed executive vice president to succeed Dr. Chamberlain. Dr. Albright came to the University in 1954 as chairman of the College of Education's Division of Administration and Bureau of School Services. While serving as Provost he had the responsibility of planning, coordinating and studying all instructional programs of the University and academic deans reported directly to him. He has served on the faculties of the University of Tennessee, University of Utah, Yale University and Teachers College of Connecticut and he has also served as consultant for the Fund for the Advancement of Education of the Ford Foundation and the Carnegie Foundation.

A $12,500 grant from the Atomic Energy Commission has enabled the University to establish a laboratory for its new course in general radiation biology.

DR. ELLIS V. BROWN, UK chemistry professor, attended the eighth International Cancer Congress held in Moscow in July and reported on research he has conducted with chemicals known to produce malignant tumors in laboratory animals.

DR. W. C. DeMARCUS, UK astrophysicist, was among the 60 scientists who presented papers at the 11th International Astrophysical Symposium held in July at the University of Liege, Belgium. The paper detailed the UK scientist's calculations that Uranus and Neptune, two major planets not discovered until modern times, are composed of not more than 15 or 20 per cent of hydrogen.

The 1962 Kentucky General Assembly authorized construction of a community college at Elizabethtown. Dr. R. D. Johnson, Dean of Extended Programs, said that the structure is expected to be opened in September, 1963. It will accommodate 500 students.

The Medical Center Library has received several books from the estate of Abraham Flexner, prominent Louisville educator who died in 1959. The books deal with the history of medicine and medical education and are a gift from Mr. Flexner's daughter, Mrs. Jean Flexner Lewinson, Arlington, Va.

Construction is now under way on the Student Union addition which will include a kitchen, cafeteria, grill, theater, faculty lounge, and an enlarged ballroom. The campus book store will also have space in the addition. The present building will be completely remodeled.

PROF. VIC PORTMANN was honored April 19th with a dinner and testimonial sponsored by the UK School of Journalism and the student chapter of Sigma Delta Chi. After 35 years in teaching, Prof. Portmann has gone on change of work status with the School of Journalism. He has served as secretary-manager of the Kentucky Press Association since 1942.

Beginning next spring, the UK Alumni Association annually will honor the top-ranking graduating senior of each Kentucky high school. President James A. Sutherland has announced that the alumni body will present an academic achievement award to the top graduate of each high school in the Commonwealth. Kentucky Football Outlook — 1962

By Ken Kuhn

UK Sports Publicity Director

In the lingo of the space age, everything is "GO" in the top-priority project to blast University of Kentucky football back into a high orbit of success in 1962.

A new band of technicians, headed up by immensely popular and capable former Wildcat star Charlie Bradshaw, took over the direction of activities last January 10 and while the problems are staggering to varying degrees there is tremendous confidence that the job can be done.

The 37-year-old ex-Marine, youthful veteran of nine years' coaching duty at both UK and on the staff of Paul (Bear) Bryant at Alabama, returned to his alma mater with his eyes wide open and determined in his belief that Kentucky can be shaken out of the doldrums reflected by the fact that no Wildcat eleven since 1956 has won more than half of its games in a single season.

Setting the overtone of confidence and optimism that has exuded to the team and fans, Bradshaw declares flatly: "If I didn't think I could get the job done, I wouldn't be here."

The determined new grid chief with the positive approach feels that "there is a nucleus for a good football team here at Kentucky this fall and we intend to develop it and build around it until we come up with a winning combination."

If a dependable and competent running game can be organized to accompany what should be one of the nation's best passing attacks, the Kentucky offense in '62 should prove troublesome, Bradshaw believes. His philosophy favors a 70-30 percent balance in favor of the ground operations and Kentucky will attack from the T formation. "I would be most foolish not to take advantage of our extremely fine passing potential," he explains, "and we will use this weapon advantageously. However, I strongly believe that running has to carry the burden as excessive passing detracts from aggressiveness in the line."

New emphasis will be placed on defensive play, Bradshaw announced. "Defense has become paramount in the Southeastern Conference in the past few years, making it mandatory for teams to have better offenses and a stronger kicking game. We intend to work this to our advantage by improving our defense to the point where it compliments our offensive attack and helps us win ball games."

Chief problems facing the new staff will be the development of overall depth, since only 17 lettermen return on a squad of 46, and finding interior linemen to take over graduation-riddled positions. Among 17 departing monogram winners, 12 were guards, tackles and centers.

Strength should come from the

passing attack in general, a seeming wealth of capable ends, an experienced hand at quarterback and a pair of standout tackles.

The Kentucky passing game in '62 shapes up as one of the nation's most dangerous and strongest in Dixie. On the receiving end, the Wildcats will have the services of two-time All-Conference star Tom Hutchinson—pass-catching leader of the SEC and seventh nationally last fall—along with unsung "other end" Dave Gash, who caught 16 for 198 yards in '61. On the throwing end of this outstanding battery is senior quarterback Jerry Woolum, third ranking passer of the country at the time he broke a leg in Kentucky's seventh game a year ago. Now completely mended, Jerry is the heir apparent to the SEC passing crown and high national honors. Gash seems certain to be one of the league's best receivers while Hutchinson rates the nod as Dixie football's best candidate for All-America.

In the running department, the Wildcats will have the services of last year's leading ground gainer—halfback Gary Steward (3.6 average)—and three others of the top five. However, much room for improvement exists and qualified back-up men at every position have to be found. Offensively, this phase of operations stacks up as the biggest problem as the Wildcats ranked a disappointing ninth in league rushing statistics last season when the UK ratio was 51.3 to 48.7 in favor of runs.

The kicking game, which has been weak for several years, should be improved with added emphasis placed on it and the development of top punter Darrell Cox (34.9 average) after a year of experience at kicking under pressure. Back for better years in the place kicking department are Tommy Simpson, a strong kickoff man and long field goal hopeful, and Clarkie Mayfield, PAT and short field goal specialist.

The Wildcats are looking for better days, but nobody is expecting overnight miracles.
