Fraternity council selects '88 officers

By JODI WHITAKER
 Staff Writer

The UK Interfraternity Council elected its 1988 officers last Monday. "IFC will be in good hands," said Bob Dunn, current president of IFC, referring to the new batch of IFC officers.

IFC officers for the upcoming year will be:

- president — Edwin Hendrick from Alpha Gamma Rho
- vice president of rush — Gerry Greenwell from Sigma Nu
- vice president of finance — David Durik from Phi Kappa Tau
- vice president of chapter services — Mike Johnson from Sigma Chi
- vice presidents at large — John Christopher from Phi Kappa Tau, Brad Chambliss from Phi Kappa Tau, Bob Dickson from Kappa Sigma and Simone Biancoinci from Lambda Chi Alpha.

Dunn said bringing together the Greek community will be one of the biggest problems IFC will face in the coming year.

The new officers will try to organize activities — such as fund-raising — among the different fraternities. However, Dunn said, the success of events depend on the dedication of all fraternities.

"If the individual chapters don't want to do it, then it won't happen," Dunn also said that the alcohol policy will be taken for granted by the new officers.

"They will have no trouble adjusting to the policies," Dunn said.

Edwin Hendrick, IFC president-elect, is excited about the upcoming year.

"We will be mostly trying to promote interfraternity relations between the chapters," Hendrick said. "We need to promote getting the fraternities and sororities together in events where we defeat the party image, where we are getting together to help the community and show the greek community as being something good."

The presidents of the individual fraternity chapters, who are also IFC representatives, elect the IFC officers. The candidates campaign mainly to these people in hopes of being elected to an office.

"I'm very excited about new officers," Hendrick said. "We have people with good ideas who have proven themselves in their chapter and I am very excited with their ideas."

Vengeful employee had gun on downed plane

By JOHN ROGERS
 Associated Press

CAYUCOS, Calif. — A fired airline worker furious over his dismissal boarded a jet carrying a gun — and possibly explosives — to kill his supervisor and wrote him a death message on an airsickness bag, the FBI and court documents disclosed yesterday.

"Hi Ray, I think it's sort of ironic that we end up like this," read the unsigned message, which authorities say was written by David Burke to Raymond Thomson. "I ask for some leniency for my family, remember. Well I got none and you'll get none."

Investigators found the chilling message written on an airsickness bag at the site where Pacific Southwest Airlines Flight 1771 crashed on Monday, Los Angeles FBI Special Agent in Charge Richard Bretzing said.

A .44-caliber Magnum pistol found Wednesday at the crash site was linked on Thursday to Burke.

Officials also said additional evidence indicates an explosion as well as gunfire may have destroyed the plane bound from Los Angeles to San Francisco. All 43 people aboard were killed.

A multipart affidavit filed in Los Angeles Federal Court before and after a search warrant was obtained for the Long Beach home of Burke, 35, concludes that "there is evidence to believe that David Burke was involved in the destruction of PSA Flight 1771."

Burke worked 14 years for USAir, parent company of PSA, but he was fired as a Los Angeles customer service agent on Nov. 19 after he was filmed by a hidden camera while allegedly stealing less than $100 from flight cocktails.

In a visit to San Francisco on an unspecified November date, Burke borrowed from friend and fellow USAir worker Joseph Drabik a .44-caliber Magnum Smith and Wesson handgun and 12 rounds of ammunition. FBI agents traced the gun back to Drabik, who said he had loaned it to Burke, the affidavit states.

The affidavit by FBI Special Agent Kevin D. Kelly, alleged "Burke harbored resentment against the USAir station manager Raymond Thomson regarding his dismissal by Thomson," and that the men had a meeting at 12:30 p.m. the day of the crash. After that meeting, Burke bought a one-way ticket for the PSA flight.

Both Burke and Thomson died in the crash. Burke was identified Thursday by a print taken from a finger found at the crash site.

Bretzing said that if Burke had survived the crash, he would have faced charges of air piracy and murder.

Experts have said that it was unlikely a handgun could cause enough damage to bring down the airliner unless the crew were disabled.

But Kelly stated in his affidavit that while the exact cause of the crash is not known, Don Llorente of the National Transportation Safety Board had told another FBI agent that "on the basis of the dispersal of charred documents from PSA Flight 1771, spread over a seven-mile swath, the probability exists that the aircraft came apart at a higher altitude due to possible explosion, which would not have originated from a bullet."

Detonators and explosive devices were among the FBI agents' list of things to look for when searching Burke's home, but the affidavit says no such items were recovered.

The plane's flight data recorder was extensively damaged and it was not yet known what information could be gained from it, said NTSB spokeswoman Rachel Hallerman.

Happiness in God, priest says

By JULIE ESSELMAN
 Staff Writer

People may find happiness only through themselves and through service to God, Father John Powell, S.J. said last night at Christ the King Church.

"No one can make you or me happy except ourselves," he said.

Powell, a Jesuit priest and professor of Theology at Loyola University in Chicago, gave a talk titled "Happiness is an Inside Job" to more than 1,000 people. Powell has published 14 books on theological and psychological themes and is the second best-selling Christian author in U.S. history.

Powell began his talk with the assumption that God wants all people to be happy. "This is God's will for us," he said. "A sign of God's action in a person is joy."

He emphasized that happiness is not something one can directly attain; rather, it is a byproduct of other actions. "Every time we seek happiness directly, it always fades," he said. "Happiness has to come from within."

Powell then suggested four major steps in the pursuit of happiness. First, he said, you must accept yourself the way you are and be happy about it.

"God didn't want you to be other than what you are," he said. "What-

Fur auction to help arthritis sufferers

By EVAN SILVERSTEIN
 Staff Writer

There is a common perception that arthritis is a disease that only affects the elderly.

But as one of 500,000 Kentucky arthritis victims, UK student Lisa Fuks knows how the pain of arthritis is felt by people of all ages.

Fuks, however, is optimistic. Through the efforts of the Bluegrass Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation and its Up and Away with Arthritis program, the 22-year-old speech pathology junior said arthritis victims can know they have a place to turn to.

Fuks, who suffers from rheumatoid arthritis, said there is a need to educate people about 2 arthritis be-

Law students swallow story, give TV away to bold thief

By THOMAS J. SULLIVAN
 News Editor

What do UK law students do when an unknown man tries to take the television out of their student lounge?

A. Detain him until the authorities arrive.
 B. Send him to the Dean's office for verification.
 C. Ask him to wait until Superior Court is over and then help him take the television off the wall.

Well, if you're one of seven UK law students who were confronted with that situation on Nov. 9, the correct answer would be "C."

The thief entered the student lounge where the television is "securely bolted" to a wall rack, told the students he was there to take the TV, and "some of our brightest students helped him," joked Paul VanBooven, associate dean of the College of Law.

Hank Davis, a second-year law student, was one of those students.

Though Davis said he wasn't one of the students who helped the thief, he was in the student lounge when the ne'er-do-well arrived.

"We had a break in our class from 4:30 to 5 (p.m.) and we went down (to the lounge) to watch Superior Court," Davis said. "There were about seven of us."

The students were talking about the case being tried on the show when a man came in, Davis said. "He said that he was with the rental company that rented the TV to the school — he needed to take it back."

The students asked the man to wait until "Superior Court" was over before taking the television, and he agreed, Davis said.

The thief then sat down and watched the rest of the program for about 15 minutes, Davis said.

After it ended, some of the students helped the man take the television off the wall. "We helped him lower it as he took it loose," said Russell Adkins, a first-year law student.

The following day, Davis said he saw a sign where the television used to hang requesting information on the television's whereabouts.

After a trip to the Dean's office, Davis said he became aware that the television had been stolen.

"Needless to say, the TV has not been found — needless to say, there are a few red-faced law students," VanBooven said.

Arias hopes Nobel helps peace plan at least they should leave us in peace," he said.

At a white-tie ceremony in Stockholm, Sweden, meanwhile, King Carl XVI Gusaf handed the Nobel prize in literature to exiled Soviet poet Joseph Brodsky and gave seven other laureates their awards for economics, physics, medicine and chemistry.

Breaking from ceremony, the king strode across the blue-carpeted stage to hand the medal and certificate of award to Charles J. Federsen, an 83-year-old retired American chemist. Pedersen, one of the oldest laureates in the 86-year history of the prize, took a few halting steps from his chair to accept the prize.

Arias, 46, receiving his award at a less formal ceremony at Oslo University, said the prestige of the Nobel prize should enhance the prospects for the Guatemala accord, which was signed Aug. 7 by himself and the presidents of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala.

Bah, humbug!

People get too caught up in the holiday season to have much time to enjoy it

Holidays suck! All of them. The only good thing about them is that we get a few days off from school. As far as having fun and celebrating them, thumbs down.

For example, Christmas is coming in two weeks, and there is nothing delightful about it. You would think that a college student 10 hours away from home would be excited about going home to buy and to receive gifts.

Well this one isn't. Maybe the receiving part is good, but half the time you end up with gifts you don't even like. Usually, with college students, we get things that people think that we can use at school.

"Oh, thanks Mom, a clock. I really needed one, my alarm broke on my other one that's why I haven't been to my nine o'clock class for the last two weeks."

In the back of your mind, you're saying, "What I really wanted was a Kenwood five-piece stereo with a compact disc." But a clock is a lot easier to take to school, plus it fits in the room nicely.

To continue, where did we get the idea that Christmas break is a time for us to relax? We usually go home from school, and you would think that we would stop working, but we get the part-time job for a few weeks to make money to buy stupid gifts for people that we know that they don't appreciate.

Christmas is the most annoying holiday (excuse me, Christ). To spend this hard-earned money we have to go to the malls and stand in line for hours. Every year at this time, stores start having the pseudo-holiday sales; we buy what we think is a bargain. Things are so expensive I can't believe how inflation rises in just two months. And the traffic is worse than rush hour on Nicholasville Road. And people call this a holiday.

During Christmas, they also have on all the stupid kiddie programs. Yeah, they say that they're for kids, but I'm sure that all of us college students blow off studying for tests to gather around the TV with our roommates and maybe a can of beer, to watch "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer." C'mon, this deer has had a nose bleed for years. Anyway, if I were Rudolph, after being rejected so many times I would have told Santa and the rest of the reindeer to take their sleigh and shove it.

We can't forget "Frosty the Snowman." I don't know what the guy who wrote this story was thinking when he named this snowman, because all of the frosties I've seen are chocolate. I get them from Wendy's all the time.

And how many times has Charlie Brown ruined the Christmas pageant by buying the scrawniest Christmas tree. "Good grief, Charlie Brown."

I only like two of those TV specials: "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" and "Scrooge." The Grinch does an excellent job of stealing all the presents and Christmas trees from all the little boys and girls. He knows that we don't need all of that crap. It's a commercial enterprise, anyway. But then he wimps out in the end; he gets a present from someone, which he probably didn't like anyway, and suddenly he's a Christmas fanatic. Ghez.

Scrooge was a little different from the Grinch. He was smart because he had money but wouldn't go to the malls and spend it on the ungrateful people. If only the ghost of Christmas Future had stayed where he was, Scrooge would have his money today — but he, too, wimped out because of old Tiny Tim.

Or those of us who have the long-distance relationships wonder if our so-called "companions" will remember to send a gift. But some of us get lucky and we get that Valentine gift that we've been waiting for — but that's not from the "Valentine" that you wanted — that's what we get for a holiday.

That leads us to Easter, wonderful, similar to Christmas with one exception, you don't have to spend so much money. But you have to What's with this obsession of being happy and sharing at Christmas; believe it or not there are some people who would rather have money instead of socks.

from the top of their lungs when the clock strikes 12 and the ball drops in New York City. Then everyone sings "Auld Lang Syne" off-key. And half of the people don't even know all of the words. Great, this is the way we start off a new year: getting drunk to wake up the next day with a hangover.

After recovering from a hangover and resolving never to drink again, we spend the rest of January looking for someone special, anyone, to spend Valentine's Day with. This is a holiday where everyone is left wondering nervously: "Am I going to get a Valentine's Day card?"

Or those of us who have the long-distance relationships wonder if our so-called "companions" will remember to send a gift. But some of us get lucky and we get that Valentine gift that we've been waiting for — but that's not from the "Valentine" that you wanted — that's what we get for a holiday.

buy a billion eggs and the smelly vinegar and dye for the Easter basket. The best thing about the Easter basket and this holiday are the jelly beans — they're fun to eat.

As for Peter Cottontail, phooey. Where did the Easter Bunny come from, anyway? I thought that Easter was the day to celebrate the fact that Christ rose from the dead. Instead, we're obsessed with some rabbit who goes around delivering eggs to all the little children. Who does he think he is? Santa Claus? Forget Peter Cottontail, he's overslept on Easter too many times for me.

We can't forget that wonderful holiday that just passed us. Yeah, right, some holiday. Four days off from school. They didn't even give us four days because we only had Thursday and Friday off. Saturday and Sunday is the weekend, which we get off anyway.

On Thanksgiving Day, all you do is watch football games and parades. Maybe some friends will come over or vice-versa, and you might get lucky if there's a party.

We can't forget the boring moments of meeting your relatives. Thanksgiving somehow often ends up as a family reunion day. You have the aunts that pinch your cheeks and give hugs that last 10 minutes. Oh, it's terrible. Why did pilgrims have to come here, anyway.

I can't believe mothers take a week to prepare the food for this holiday. This is another expensive one, and I can't stand it because once this day is over, you have to eat leftover turkey for a month. But I thought that nightmare ended when you got to college. Even in the cafeteria, you find 100 ways to make a meal out of turkey.

Well, there we have it — a year full of boring times, but the popular ones that people throughout the world celebrate some way or another. Holidays are spaced just far enough apart to allow us to recuperate before another rolls along.

Just when we pay off our charge card from one occasion, it's time to spend up for another. Everyone gets so caught up in preparing for the stupid holidays that there is barely enough time to enjoy them. And these are what we call holidays?

Miracle Legion hopes to make better timing this time in town

By ROB SEBASTIAN
Staff Writer

"Kentucky's just incredibly beautiful, more so than any other state we've been to," said Mark Mulcahy, lead singer for Miracle Legion.

Mulcahy, along with the rest of his band — guitarist Raymond Neal, bassist Steven West and drummer Jeff Wiederschall — formed about four years ago in Connecticut. The band derived its name as a play on American Legion, which the band was called for a short time.

Miracle Legion played in Lexington about two years ago when Cafe LMKOF was still a reality. Their stay was a little short-lived. "We got mixed up in the time zones and got there around 11:30," said Mulcahy. "We thought it was only about 7:30."

The band has itself out of New Haven and has frequently played in clubs in different parts of Connecticut. The band then started playing clubs where it wasn't too well-known and, according to Mulcahy, just kept going in any direction that it could get a gig.

On the way home from a gig in upstate New York last year, Miracle band also released an EP in 1985 entitled The Back Yard.

On vinyl, the band emphasizes a stripped-down sound with occasional harmonica and saxophone spots. It is a sound that becomes more minimalist in concert according to Mulcahy. "We put as much on each record as possible and don't worry about trying to duplicate it live later," he said.

He lists artists such as The Byrds, Pete Townshend and even Frank Sinatra as having influenced each individual group member. The band covers a variety of themes, such as the importance of self-worth, but as Mulcahy says, "each song has its own meanings for different people."

Since the band members did not have their picture featured on their first album, they decided to strive for something a little different for their second album cover. The band poses on the back cover decked out in garish outfits and face paint.

"That picture was influenced by the painting on the front cover," said Mulcahy, "and it's definitely more interesting than just a straight picture."

Completing the "miracle" motif, Vegetable Miracle will open the show.

Big Blue Bash held to support abused children of Lexington

By TOM SPALDING
Staff Writer

Wildcat basketball fans, known nationwide for their support and enthusiasm, can pull double-duty tomorrow afternoon at the annual Big Blue Bash.

While UK fans hope to celebrate a victory over Louisville, hundreds of abused children in Lexington will celebrate something more than a basketball game. The money raised by the Bash goes to the Lexington Child Abuse Council.

The benefit is being held after the UK-U of L game at Rhinestone's on Athens-Bombesboro Road. UK head coach Eddie Sutton and the entire UK men's basketball team head a list of local celebrities appearing at the Bash.

Activities at the event will include a dance, featuring music by Jon Kody and Montage, and an auction. The auction begins midway through the dance and the highlight is expected to be the sale of the UK-U of L game ball.

"It's a fund-raiser held every year," said social worker Patti Tatocouler of the Child Abuse Council. "It's one of two fund-raisers we have every year. The money is used to keep the Child Council going."

Tatocouler said she appreciates the help and enthusiasm provided by the Council's supporters.

"I know that Coach Sutton really supports us," she said. "We feel real lucky to have him involved with us. They're very supportive of the council."

Tatocouler said she hopes fans would bring their enthusiasm from the game with them to the benefit. "We'd just like to invite everyone to please come," she said. "We'd really appreciate their support."

Tickets for the Bash can be purchased at First Security, Sageser, Dawahares, T. J. Cinnamon's in Chevy Chase, Mailroom Diet Center and Dickens. The cost is $20 in advance and $25 at the door.

For more information call the Child Abuse Council at 259-1974.

TORNADO

The Rainmakers
Mercury Records (PolyGram)

Given frontman Bob Walkenhorst's gloomy nuclear vision and acerbic phrasing, the Rainmakers might be more aptly titled the Acid Rainmakers.

But it's amazing what a guitar band can do with an articulate and driven singer/songwriter. Walkenhorst has the satirical bitterness and brazen emotions of an early Elvis Costello. He just doesn't seem to take himself as seriously.

Rather, the Rainmakers create their storms with dancing rites. The words are there if you care to listen, but the music here is the thing.

And Walkenhorst isn't above showing up the comic side of some perhaps not-so-funny subject. "Tornado of Love" is about whirling emotions — incestual ones. "Run run run little sister," goes the chorus. "Outrun your brothers/Outrun the twister/You got a thing for older men/Are you too good for your own kin?" Now how couldn't you laugh at that?

"Rainmaker" makes you wonder just who is performing the miracles in the face of high industry and high-tech artillery. In Walkenhorst's "Assorted Sizes War," they wailed around the global block/looking for some heads to know/And most of them came home heroes/Heroes in a box.

When the Rainmakers do slow down, they question distanced emotions in "Small Circle," where "We make love to people we don't even like."

The honest, guitar-first music on Tornado is enough to sanction its worth. Its open-eyed lyrical approach racks up countless bonus points. Because if you've ever seen the L.A. scene, you know it ain't no Jan and Dean.

BETE NOIRE

Brian Ferry
Reprise Records (Warner Bros.)

I don't think anyone ever really listened to Roxy Music's lyrics. Brian Ferry's voice was so full of emotion that what he said was almost an infringement on the moment.

Roxy Music defined grace during the '70s. Ferry was the white man's version of his mentor, Otis Redding. At his best, Ferry could evoke as much emotion as Redding.

However, Bete Noire is an anti-thesis of everything Redding ever did.

These nine songs are as musically cliched as they are lyrically. Whereas Ferry used to leap nimbly through tempos and cadences, Bete Noire simply lulls the listener to sleep. It's better than Yes.

Another outlet is the "Volunteer Voice." Consisting of columns, stories and fund-raising news, the pub-

Letterman gives operator NYC trip

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — A telephone operator who helped talk show host David Letterman get through to the Soviet Union is getting a free trip to New York City for her efforts. Sheryl Scott, 21, of West Mifflin, assisted Letterman in his repeated attempts to reach a Leningrad hotel during Tuesday's taping of his "Late Night With David Letterman" program on NBC. Letterman was hoping to offer someone at the hotel — anyone — a free trip to New York City in honor of this week's summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

When he finally got through, at 2 a.m. Leningrad time, the hotel operator hung up. So he offered the trip to Scott, who works in AT&T's Pittsburgh office.

ever God wanted me to do, I'm fully equipped for it."

He cited perfectionism as a source of unhappiness. "You can't be a perfectionist and be happy," he said. "People must accept themselves as mistake-makers, he said. To do otherwise is "stinkin' thinkin'."

The second step is "to be responsible for everything we do and feel," he said.

He described an "owner" as someone who accepts this responsibility, while a "blamer" blames his feelings on other people's actions.

People's feelings and actions depend only on their own perceptions, he said. In this way, what one person sees as a catastrophe, another may view as a challenge.

"The third step is to 'make your life an act of love,'" Powell said. "Love is a decision and a commitment," he said. "It is the distinctive mark of a mature, happy person."

Finally, Powell said happiness can be attained by prayer. "It has to become part of your life," he said. "If you know your own needs, you will reach out to God."

Powell's talk drew a very favorable response. Kevin Steele, campus minister at the Newman Center, thought Powell's talk emphasized the need for service. "Happiness is a by-product of a life of service, with Christ as an example," he said. "Some of the happiest people are givers."

Powell's talk was sponsored by Lexington's Bluegrass Spirituality Center/House of Prayer and Christ the King Church.

SPRING BREAK '88: Let's Make A Date!

April 16 Could Be The Most Important Day Of Your Career

Why April 16? Because that's when you can take the Fundamentals of Engineering examination and become qualified as an engineer-in-training... the first step in becoming a Professional Engineer.

If you're an engineering student consider this. P.E. registration allows more career flexibility and choice. Professional Engineers aren't locked out of a career path; jobs are theirs for the choosing in government, industry, construction and private practice. Many employers require registration for advancement to senior engineering positions.

It will never be easier to take the exam than now, while courses are still fresh in your mind. The test, developed by the National Council of Engineering Examiners, will be administered on April 16 at sites selected by the Kentucky State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors. The cut-off date for exam applications is February 1.

For more information, call the state board at (502) 564-2680.

Clip and return the coupon below for a free brochure on how to become a P.E.:

UK's volleyball team has to beat Texas-Arlington — again

By TOM SPALDING
Staff Writer

The way the UK women's volleyball team sees it, there are 15 teams that stand in its way on the path to glory.

"Every team is in the position when they look at the opposing teams and say 'you're in my way,'" said UK senior outside hitter Annette Ewasek.

Tonight it's the Mavericks from Texas-Arlington who stand in the Wildcats' way.

The 32-6 Mavericks joined Kentucky in the Final 16 by defeating Arizona State in three straight games. The Wildcats advanced by beating North Carolina State in straight games last Saturday at Memorial Coliseum.

UK, 30-1, will battle Texas-Arlington at Gregory Gym on the campus of the University of Texas in Austin. Game time is 8 p.m.

"They won't have the home-court advantage," junior middle blocker Lisa Bokovoy said. "But they'll definitely have the home-state advantage."

ABOUT THE GAME

Matchup: Kentucky, 30-1, vs. Texas-Arlington, 32-6.
Time: 8 p.m. tomorrow.
Place: Gregory Gym in Austin, Texas.
Radio Coverage: None.
TV Coverage: None.

"A gym's a gym," Ewasek said. "We may not have the crowd support we have, but at this point we have just one loss on the road."

That one loss was no stranger to the Cats. UK lost to then No. 6 Colorado State 3-2.

But Texas-Arlington isn't a stranger to Kentucky, either. The two nationally ranked powers (UK is 8th, Texas-Arlington is 12th) met in the first round of the Wildcat Classic Nov. 6 in Memorial Coliseum. The Wildcats came away with a three game win, 15-6, 16-14, 15-9.

"And that concerns me," UK coach Kathy DeBoer said. "The history of sports is filled with people who beat some team had one time and the next time they met they lost."

But some Cats aren't worried about overlooking them.

"From playing them, I know a lot more about them," said senior middle blocker Lisa Dausman. "At this point of the season if we overlook them we'll lose and we're gone."

The Lady Mavs are led by a pair of juniors, Jackie Bennett and Ana de Oliveira.

Oliveira has 420 kills on the season for an average of 3.28. In the Lady Maverick's loss to Kentucky, she picked up 11.

"She was the Most Valuable Player of her conference and is a very experienced player," DeBoer said.

"If (Oliveira's) on, we could have trouble," Dausman said. "She didn't play well here, but she's got to be better."

Bennett, who led the team in hitting with a 364 average, earned special praise of the UK head coach.

"She's an excellent player with a good touch and a soft shot," DeBoer said.

DeBoer said another player to watch is Texas-Arlington setter Shawn Sweeten.

"Setters like her give you problems," DeBoer said. "She can set the ball up well and cause you problems."

Dausman agreed. In the teams' first meeting, Sweeten had 22 assists and set up over half of the Lady Maverick's 41 team kills.

"She can jump," Dausman said. "A good setter can mix it up a lot and run more options."

In the other semifinal, South Region top seed and No. 7 Texas takes on 20th-ranked Florida. The winner of the match-up will face the UK-UTA victor and play for the right to go to the Final Four in Indianapolis.

"It would be very gratifying to win," Dausman said. "It would be nice to show people in Lexington that there's a lot more than just football and basketball."

Gymnastics team is 'excited'

By SALLY MACY
Contributing Writer

So, you don't feel like studying for finals on a Friday night. The UK Women's Gymnastics team may have just the right answer.

The Gym Kats will hold their fifth-annual "Excite Night" at Memorial Coliseum at 7 p.m. tonight to generate enthusiasm for the upcoming season. The night has more than just bars and beams in store for sports buffs.

The gymnastic performance will be spiced with personal appearances by former UK basketball stars Kyle Macy, Rick Robey, Charles Hurt, Jack Givens and Derrick Hord.

Prizes will be given away with the top one being a trip for two to Jamaica. Other gifts include a weekend at the Hyatt Regency, a king-size waterbed, a VCR and a $200 shopping spree at Rich Schwartz.

"We use Excite Night to gain exposure from the whole city of Lexington," UK gymnastics coach Leah Little said.

UK will begin its regular season Jan. 17 with a home match against defending national champion Georgia. Little has high expectations as she looks toward the 1988 season.

"We have a chance to get a bid to the National Championships," Little said. "It's really kind of early to tell. We have a lot of depth, more than we've ever had."

UK is a young team led by senior co-captains Kendall Lucas and Robin Leggett.

"We have a very good group of girls," Lucas said. "If we all work together, there's no stopping us."

Although basketball overshadows most of the other sports at Kentucky, Little maintains her tiger attitude. She has to; the Southeastern Conference has four teams ranked in the Top 10. Little said they need all the fan support they can get.

"We compete in the hardest conference in the country," Little said. "I hope everyone will come out to support us. We need people out there cheering us on."

Kentucky polo club player Michael Finney advances the ball against the Lexington Polo Club. The UK club completes its first season tonight.

Polo club ends season

Staff reports

The Kentucky Polo Club plays its final match of the fall season against Colorado State tonight at the Horse Park.

UK Polo Club President Michael Finney said Colorado State's team is one of the more established clubs in the country. But UK plans to saddle up anyway.

"I expect that we will do well," Finney said. "The only thing that will hold us back is lack of experience in playing together."

This was the first semester for the UK polo team. Finney said they have played "surprisingly competitive" although their record to date is 1-3.

"We expected to get killed everywhere we went," Finney said.

The UK club plans to play a full spring season of nine games.

The plan calls for cease-fires, amnesties for political prisoners, and democratic reforms. It also called for an end to outside interference, a theme Arias voiced again as he accepted the 25-carat Nobel medalion.

"We say to all members of the international community, and particularly to those both in the East and the West... I say to them with the utmost urgency: Let Central Americans decide the future of Central America."

He mentioned no countries directly, but previously he has singled out U.S. support for the Contra rebels in Nicaragua and Cuban involvement in Nicaragua and El Salvador.

The plan has been credited with prompting the start of peace talks between some of the protagonists. But the accord has yet to produce cease-fires in the guerrilla wars in El Salvador, Nicaragua and Guatemala.

Arias has called for a Christmas truce to last through Jan. 15 when the five presidents are to reconvene and to assess the progress of the plan. The Sandinista government in Nicaragua has rejected the truce proposal.

Hundreds of Norwegians gathered outside the ornate 560-seat auditorium to watch a glittering line enter the hall, including government ministers, diplomats and the royal family headed by Norway's popular 84-year-old King Olav V.
