Education school stiffens standards

By GREG HARTMAN
Kernel Staff Writer

Higher admission standards and changes in the major-minor system are in store for future teaching students, the faculty of the College of Education announced last week.

The action came in the face of a rising surplus of teachers and increasing costs in carrying on present programs. Future teaching hopefuls will need a 2.3 grade-point average to enter the Teacher Education Program, and will face different major requirements and a quota system for applicants.

Dr. Vernon Musselman, acting associate dean of teacher education, said the primary emphasis of the changes was to prepare better qualified teachers.

"Costs are only a minor point," he said. "What matters is that in the past we were certifying people who were not quite as well-prepared as we would have liked. Now that the shortage of teachers has been met, we can hold to higher standards and give our teachers a greater depth and breadth."

Musselman said the changes will emphasize majors and areas of concentration. Under the old system a person could major (get 30-50 hours) in one field and minor (get 18 hours) in some totally unrelated field. The person could then teach the minor subject.

"Now that we can produce enough teachers with strong majors, we don't really need people teaching in minor fields," Musselman said. "We're moving in the direction of eliminating

Congressmen invited to antiwar rally

All the U.S. senators and congressmen from Kentucky have been invited to meet with Kentuckians who will be participating in the mass antiwar march on Washington Saturday.

Steve Bright, who sent the letters, said the meeting would be held at the Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington. Bright said that would be the best place since many of the marchers from Kentucky will be staying there.

teaching minors completely, except where they reinforce majors."

Musselman cited the changes in the history program as an example of the new policy. Future history teachers will prepare by taking 30 hours in history, plus other hours in one or more supporting subjects like economics, sociology, etc.

Quotas have been set for admissions to the English and social studies programs, two areas in which there is an especially great surplus of teachers. The English teacher program will accept 35 applicants per semester; social studies will accept 30.

Musselman said raising the required grade-point average would also limit program sizes, but the effect would probably be slight. The new grade-point requirement, 2.3, is three-tenths of a point higher than the old.

Nun criticizes U.S. Vietnam policy

By MIKE MILAM
Kernel Staff Writer

Sister Margaret Holman, an educator at Catherine Spalding College in Louisville said last night in the Student Center that the "American people have made more Communists in South Vietnam now than were there before." Sister Holman based her remarks on a visit to the Paris peace talks early this year.

She said that her concept of Communism was somewhat changed. "I had many misgivings about Communism before I went to Paris," she noted. "My opinion now is a little different in that the people over there really believe that the war is really a fight for freedom from foreign influence."

She mentioned that she had drawn several conclusions from talking with negotiators for both sides. "The reason that they are at a standstill over there is because each side is very one-sided. There is also the surprising fact that many neutralists have found a home with the Communist party because of this strong independence drive."

She also recalled that our mere presence in Vietnam has inflicted a "blood bath on the people of that nation." "They (the National Liberation Front (NLF) negotiators) want every single American out of their country, and I tend to agree with them."

About the negotiators, Sister Holman praised the NLF team for what she termed their appealing personality. She called them "less sophisticated and very human."

"They answered our questions with precise terms and seemed more identifiable than the American diplomats," she noted. She also stressed that the NLF team was the only group at the conference to have women negotiators.

Fielding a question from the 25 or so students and faculty in attendance, Sister Holman described European views of the war in Indochina. She said Europeans can't understand why "we don't take the quick and easy way out of the war."

"They know that we are there to prevent the flow of Communism in Southeast Asia, but they can't understand why we should linger on, losing American lives."

She called President Nixon's

Vietnamization program a "racist policy" and said NLF negotiators would start talking of peace only when Nixon sets an absolute date for withdrawal. "The prisoners of war," she said, "would be held until every American is pulled out of South Vietnam."

The Catherine Spalding educator said NLF negotiators are well aware of the peace movement in America, adding that peace demonstrations are the only means those diplomats have of believing that the American people really want peace.

She said there would be a "tremendous amount of discouragement if certain laws aren't passed to aid in the peace movement." She gave as an example the Cooper-Church Amendment to prohibit the push of American forces into other Southeast Asia lands.

Class boycott still on but details not final

By RON HAWKINS

Assistant Managing Editor Gatewood Galbraith says the boycott of classes scheduled for Wednesday is still on, but that all the details are not final.

Tentatively the boycott, which has received the endorsement of SG President Scott Wendelsdorf, will feature a program of speeches and possibly music for participating students.

Galbraith says the speeches will take place on the Student Center patio from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Among the tentative speakers are: Galbraith, Wendelsdorf, SG Vice President Rebecca Westerfield and Jim Williams. Galbraith speculated that the turnout for the boycott activities could range from 27 to 2,700.

Wendelsdorf said he endorses the boycott because of what he called the "opportunity" to discuss the issues of student code revision, hiring and firing and police on campus.

Wendelsdorf said he endorsed the calling off of classes by professors, but would be equally pleased if the teachers discussed the issues in their classes.

"I expect minimal response from the administration," Wendelsdorf said. "The strike is kind of a meaningless gesture. Unless the students are serious, nothing will come of it. Unfortunately, the turnout depends more on the weather than anything. I plan to be there regardless."

Sister Margaret Holman told a group of students last night about her recent visit to the Paris Peace Talks. She denounced President Nixon's Vietnamization policy as "racist" and called for the immediate withdrawal of all Americans from South Vietnam. (Kernel photo by Jerry Williams)

WASHINGTON—President Nixon told the Daughters of the American Revolution Monday night he believes Americans will take the "more difficult but wiser way" to stop the war in Vietnam so the 1970s, like the 1770s, will be remembered "as a decade of honor, of hope, of new birth for America."

Agnew dislikes China moves

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told Republican governors Monday he has misgivings about the American table tennis team's tour of Communist China.

A Republican source also said Agnew had indicated earlier he had doubts about the current administration course in dealing with relations with China. "He seemed to be implying we shouldn't have a thaw," this source said.

The source said Agnew also discussed China policy in a private conversation with a group of newsmen early Monday and emphasized then that the United States still has commitments to the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan.

At the Monday luncheon of the Republican Governor's conference, Agnew was quoted as saying the table-tennis tour of China had been over-emphasized at home.

"Basically, he was saying some of the things that were praised in China were things that would be criticized here," one governor said.

Agnew was quoted also as saying that one member of the team, whom he did not name, appeared to be returning home talking the Communist line.

Agnew reportedly complained that during the tour, a 15 by 15 foot room, the home of a Chinese family, was described as an apartment. He asserted the same quarters in the United States would have been denounced as evidence of repression and poverty.

Agnew mentioned to the governors that while he had been accused of avoiding newsmen during the Williamsburg conference, he actually sat up until early morning hours Monday talking with a group of them.

The vice president saw nine reporters in his hotel room in an off-the-record conversation that began at 12:30 a.m. and went on for 2½ hours.

In St. Louis, the Post-Dispatch reported in a dispatch from Williamsburg by Thomas Wottenad that Agnew told the newsmen he had not discussed his views with President Nixon. The story added that The Post-Dispatch was not represented at the off-the-record session, and said details of the meeting were learned from other sources.

The Post-Dispatch said Agnew expressed concern that the visit by the table tennis team had put the United States at a disadvantage in world opinion. He was quoted as having referred to the "courtous and enthusiastic reception" that the Chinese gave to the Americans, and to have expressed the view that the United States had been trapped into a disadvantageous position from a public relations point of view.

Manson's followers face death sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The judge in the Sharon Tate case declined Monday to spare the lives of Charles Manson and three women followers and formally sentenced them to death for what he called "seven senseless murders."

"Not only is the death penalty appropriate but it is almost compelled by this case," said Superior Judge Charles H. Older after denying defense motions for a new trial and for reduction of sentence.

Manson and three women members of his hippie-type clan were condemned to death March 29 by the same jury that convicted them of murder-conspiracy. Miss Tate, a beautiful actress, was savagely slain along with four visitors in her home in 1969. The next night a man and wife, wealthy market owners, were similarly stabbed in a "copycat killing."

Manson, 36, his once bushy locks now a stubble, asked to speak before sentence was passed. Head bowed, he said in a voice wavering with emotion: "I have always lived in the truth of your courtroom. I have always done what I was told. Sir, I invented this courtroom... I accept this court as my father... I accept the judgment of my father."

The women, Patricia Krenwinkel, 23; Susan Atkins, 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 21, who all confessed roles in the slayings, declined to make any statement. They came to court with their heads shaved.

Judge Older said he felt death sentences would "show the revision of the community for the kind of conduct engaged in. This is an appropriate case for the death penalty. After 9½ months of trial all of the superlatives have been used...."

S. Viets scout A Shau Valley

SAIGON (AP)—South Vietnamese reconnaissance troops scouted the A Shau Valley Monday ahead of a big push into the old enemy stronghold later this week by allied forces, field reports said.

U.S. fighter-bombers for the second straight day attacked suspected enemy positions in the valley, 28 miles southwest of Hue and 375 miles north of Saigon.

Field officers said the main force of 2,000 Americans and 10,000 South Vietnamese are committed on paper to the operation in the valley, 30 miles long, later this week. Depending upon what patrols find, it may be a smaller operation or a larger one extending into Laos, they added.

The South Vietnamese have said their forces so far have made no significant contacts since they first went into the valley last Tuesday. The South Vietnamese forces include two regiments of the 1st Infantry Division and two brigades of marines. All took part in the incursion into Laos.

The allies have made previous ventures into the valley and have often met with heavy resistance.

The valley provides a convenient supply storage area and an incursion route to the coastal areas around Hue and Da Nang. A major supply complex lies west of the valley in Laos on one of the branches of the Ho Chi Minh supply trail.

A U.S. 101st Airborne Division spokesman, whose forces will take part in the drive, said Sunday he would not rule out targets in Laos if the situation warranted. But he did not say that any Americans would enter Laos.

The operation, code-named Lam Son 720, was announced last Saturday by President Nguyen Van Thieu and Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U. S. troops in Vietnam. Abrams said South Vietnamese troops were in the valley.

About 60 miles northwest of A Shau Valley, North Vietnamese trucks have crossed the Laotian border and driven 13 miles inside South Vietnam to scavenge war materials left behind at Khe Sanh by the allies, U. S. sources reported.

They told Associated Press correspondent J. T. Wolkertorster there were clear indications the enemy trucks had used Highway 9 to drive to the abandoned combat base in the jungled mountains of northern South Vietnam.

The issues are more important than the class boycott

Students, although often stereotyped, are a community of people with different views on different issues. It only stands to reason that an announcement of a student strike, a boycott of classes for this Wednesday, April 21, should create various opinions in different people's minds. There is the apprehension of some type of demonstration similar to last Spring, when irrational thinking by the University administration brought out the National Guard troops to the campus. Many students argue that a strike at the time of finals can only serve to hurt the student, while at the same time, it does little towards changing the University. Finally, there are students who feel a strike is simply uncalled for now or any other time. The "don't buck the system" syndrome.

It is because of these mixed feelings that we feel a student strike without student organization beforehand cannot expect to do the job it should. A few signs around campus and a few individuals speaking at a rally hardly presents a picture to anyone of the students at UK demonstrating a strong opinion on the issues of the strike.

This is not to say that the issues don't exist or aren't of importance. This past year we have witnessed students challenging the political hold on this University and our education. However, it is important to notice how these issues have been dealt with.

Students responded with rallies and revisions on the code, forums on the issues of publish or perish and the problems of a student community. The Tripartite plan provided for more student participation in academic affairs and the list easily continues. Yet, at no time have students called for a boycott of classes when these issues have been the prime concern. Instead, because of the work of students, the Board of Trustees has been forced into showing their true colors with the cutback of Tripartite and the Kernel funding.

If the purpose of the student strike is to gather students at the Student Center to listen to speeches then all of us might as well stay in class. The same type thing usually happens in the classroom anyway.

We feel that a more reasonable effort for students to undertake on April 21 will be to attend their class, and if a final exam or some other test is not already scheduled, start a discussion in the class on the issues we have faced all year. By this means, all of the students in the class may become involved in a discussion of opinions, as well as the professor himself.

A student strike may create a controversy or make a point to the public outside the University, but we have witnessed the awareness and change which can take place when we work from within. Why should we quit now?

Kernel Forum: the readers write

Radical alternative

To the Editor of the Kernel:

The Graduate and Professional Students Association is so convinced it is the voice of the people that it is massing full organizational strength behind its own candidate for the Senate.

In truth, though none will deny the good works of GPSA, many grads remain indifferent to it. Conversely, the membership of that group includes students of Library Science, Medicine, Dentistry, and Law—who elect Senate representatives from their own colleges.

I have no intention, as one person has done so far, of withdrawing from the race. Graduate students of UK deserve at least one radical alternative to the GPSA machine.

Paying the price

To the editor of the Kernel:

I am shocked and dismayed at the apathetic position taken by GPSA and the Kentucky Kernel reporter who attended the last meeting of GPSA on March 29. Attention should be paid to the fact that at this meeting it was announced that there would be something of a cutback in health services to the student at the outpatient level. This will mean, of course, that the individual student will pay the price of a ten percent cut in funds to the Medical Center, a cut which is the direct result of a wave of anti-intellectualism sweeping Kentucky and the nation. It seems that lately it is becoming harder and harder for students to stay in school because funds have been cut or left at pre-inflationary levels so that Universities cannot function effectively. The reason for the latest health service cutback was, ironically enough, jealousy on the part of other Kentucky Colleges and universities who feel that health care for the UK student is better than the care of their own. Since misery loves company, why not reduce our services to their level of mediocrity?

Already the public is being primed to accept the cuts. Recently, our President Dr. Singletary denied too much was being spent on the medical facility at UK. When funds to its health service are cut, then, the public will be ready to accept it on the grounds that perhaps there may be some truth in the charges trumped up by the other universities in Kentucky since Dr. Singletary made a point of mentioning them. Very clever, and very psychological. But it won't work.

What is most shocking is the fact that GPSA has accepted the cuts without much of a struggle. What is even more ironic is that the reporter covering the story and reporting so apathetically was Sallee Bright, sister of SG President Steve Bright. Apparently, she missed the point of what was happening at the meeting. Or perhaps she, like so many other students, is at a loss for words at a time when students' throats are being systematically cut by those who believe that too much knowledge is dangerous for young people and colleges present too much of a threat for the status quo. Once again, those who have the most to lose are silent. Can one really feel sorry for those who complain when it's too late?

RON WEINBERG
Graduate Radiobiology

EDITOR'S NOTE: While the Kernel welcomes your viewpoints concerning the GPSA meeting, we refuse to accept your criticism of one of our writers because she happens to be the sister of a Student Government president with whom you evidently may have disagreed.

Showed concern

To the Editor of the Kernel:

We wish to call your attention to six of the candidates for Student Senator present for a meeting to discuss the proposed Student Health Insurance Program. While all candidates were invited to attend this important meeting, the following six persons showed their concern by attending this meeting.

Allied Health: Nancy Totten; Business & Economics: Ronnie Summers; Education: John B. Fritschner, and Pam Sallenges; Medicine: Ronald D. Weddie; Social Professions: John Reibling.

It should be noted that at this meeting the opportunity to participate in the actual input of the proposed plan existed. The meeting was not to "rubber stamp" the existing proposal.

We believe that if the interest and willingness to work through proposed solutions to problems is at all indicative of their dedication and concern then these individuals merit your consideration for Student Senator.

Big brother?

To the Editor of the Kernel:

As patrons of the Student Center Grill, we are appalled at the Big Brother tactics of an unknown person, thing, or organization. Whoever, or shall we say, whatever, seems to be using electronic surveillance to see who rips off the Grill cash register, or maybe there are some other shrouded reasons?

We believe that a sign should be placed warning the students and employees that George Orwell is alive and living in Lexington over the Grill cash register.

A question should be asked that if today the cashier then will tomorrow bring snooping on the customers? Newthink anyone?

Pollution board cracks down on Lexington

FRANKFORT, (AP)—The state Water Pollution Control Commission cracked down on the City of Lexington Monday, ordering a halt to new tap-ons to the city's main sewage treatment system and setting a deadline for expansion of treatment facilities.

Under a motion offered by Health Commissioner William McElwain, the commission directed that:

▶ The city advertise for bids to expand its Town Branch plant by June 1, award the contract so construction could begin by August 1 and to have the work completed 18 months thereafter. The commission said it would consider lifting the ban on new sewer tap-ons once construction began on an expansion which would raise the plant's capacity to 18,000 gallons of raw sewage a day.

▶ A $1,000-a-day fine be sought against the city for every day it failed to comply with the order. ▶ The city divert to its West Hickman Creek treatment plant all effluent which cannot now be given secondary treatment at its Town Branch plant.

The commission further voted unanimously to hold a public hearing at an unspecified date on Lexington's total plan for disposing of its waste and on the question of whether the city should be required to take its effluent directly to the Kentucky River.

Monday's action climaxed years of efforts by the state commission to get Lexington moving on expanding its sewage treatment facilities.

Arguing against the tap-on ban was Harry Miller, an attorney for the Lexington Homebuilders' Association, who maintained that such a move would destroy the 14th fastest growing city in the country. He said the home building industry did all it could to get the city moving on solving its sewage problems.

But the three-man majority on the city commission has delayed progress on the plant expansion, Miller asserted, so that work will not have to begin on it until after the election for city commissioners in November.

The reason for those delaying tactics, he maintained, was that the city would not have enough money in its treasury to expand the plant without imposing a new sewer service charge or some other tax. The three-man majority on the city commission had been elected on the promise to remove the unpopular sewer service charge, which it did last year.

Miller contended the only reasonable approach would be for the commission to impose a substantial fine against the city and then probate it on the condition it proceeded with the expansion on a time schedule set by the state commission.

The city's attorney, Montjoy Trimble, pleaded instead for a "tolerance permit" which would allow the city to operate as at present provided it proceeded in accordance with its own time schedule. That schedule would have the plans completed by Oct. 1, the project advertised for bids 60 days later and the contract awarded within a further 30 days and completed within 18 months.

Trimble also maintained the city should be allowed to expand the Town Branch plant so it would have a daily capacity of 24,000 gallons of sewage. The present capacity is 12,000 gallons.

Walks doom UK to third loss in a row

Pitching wildness by Mike Horn, Greg Stairs and Jim Roach allowed the University of Louisville to deal UK its third loss of the season yesterday. The Cardinals, 10-7 victors, and the Cats have a rematch scheduled for Tuesday at 3 p.m. here.

Home runs by UK's Dave Bair and Steve Tingle boosted the Cats to an early 4-1 lead. Bair, currently the squad's hottest hitter, also ripped a double.

Starter Horn lost his control in the third inning and reliever Stairs failed to duplicate his game-winning performance of last week. The U. of L. team took advantage and tallied six runs in the frame.

The Cardinals added three more runs until UK, a come-from-behind team of late, rallied for three in the ninth.

The UK pitchers allowed fourteen walks to ease Louisville's road to victory. The Cardinals' hitting star was Bill Gatti, who went three-for-three. John McCracken picked up the win.

Four-time winner Bill Lewis has been chosen by Coach Dickie Parsons to pitch today. UK, now 13-10, have added Georgetown to its schedule. The two teams will play here on Thursday, April 22.

Despite Steve Tingle's home run against Louisville yesterday, UK lost its third straight game, 10-7. The two teams meet again in Lexington today. (Kernel photo by Ken Weaver)

Broyles to speak at football clinic

Frank Broyles, head coach of the University of Arkansas and immediate past president of the National Football Coaches Association, will be featured lecturer at the Second Annual University of Kentucky Spring Football Clinic April 23-24.

Kentucky coach John Ray, also a featured lecturer, announced that two other members of Broyles' staff—defensive coach Mervin Johnson and offensive coach Don Breau—will participate in the program, along with Wildcat assistants Dave Adolph, Dan Sekanovich and Alex Gibbs.

The clinic, which was attended by 450 coaches at its inauguration last April, will include seven hours of lectures, exhibitors, entertainment, door prizes, refreshments, a buffet luncheon and the annual Blue-White intersquad game at 1:45 p.m. April 24.

Ray will kick off the activities at 6:30 p.m. April 23. Johnson, Adolph and Breau also will participate in the program, which concludes at 10 o'clock that night.

Broyles will be opening speaker at 8:30 a.m. April 24, followed by Gibbs and Sekanovich.

Soccer team still winless

The first win is the hardest to get.

The UK soccer team, winless in all of its spring matches, fell again Monday to Asbury College, 3-1.

Osmiin del Cid tallied for UK in the second period, but not before Asbury had built a solid lead.

Saturday, the squad lost to Miami of Ohio, 2-1. Patricio del Gado scored UK's lone goal in a well-played game by both teams.

UK hosts a soccer clinic this weekend, and the squad takes on Morehead and Indiana University in a pair of "mini-games."

UK hosts soccer clinic Saturday

By GIL LAYMEN
Kentucky Soccer Clinic
Coordinator

Recently the first Kentucky Soccer Clinic was held at Louisville Atherton High School. Although it was primarily structured for educators, over ninety percent of the people who attended were high school students. Those students have a need, and they are searching to have it fulfilled. Our athletic programs are supposed to be educational—and sometimes they are. However, we cater to the 7-footer or the 200-pounder in probably the most educational of all competitive activities—team sports.

The average American male who desires to become a member of an athletic team meets overwhelming odds and frustrations. Even at full maturity, he may not quite reach 5'9" in height and 165 pounds in weight.

Often we wonder why man's masculine image is decaying; yet, we know that the athletic field is the last outpost where the male can still display his biological differences from the female's. Strength is not obsolete there.

It seems to be an unsound practice for our school athletic program to spend 85 percent of their money on the five percent who need it least.

The sport of soccer is emerging in the state of Kentucky. And there are two primary reasons why it will continue to grow:

1. The lack of expense in conducting such programs.
2. It gives an equal opportunity for the student of smaller stature.

Although Kentucky will not be a leader, it has a vast opportunity to become one of approximately twenty states that are making significant headways in this area. The state of New York has 600 high schools playing soccer; St. Louis has over 20,000 registered soccer players; and even Cincinnati has nearly 4,000 youngsters playing on organized teams.

Almost all of the approximately 360 member schools of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association play basketball while about half play football.

I wonder what happens to the youngster who just doesn't seem to fit into such a structured system?

Clinic at UK

On Saturday, April 24, beginning at 10:30 a.m., there will be registration for players, school administrators, teachers, and coaches for a clinic on the rapidly growing sport of soccer.

The following is our planned agenda:

- II.—11:00 a.m.: Introduction—Oil Layman, Soccer Coach, Murray State University.
- III.—11:15 a.m.: Soccer Film.
- IV.—12:00 p.m.: Soccer Teaching and Fundamentals—Coach A. Rizk, University of Kentucky.

V.—1:00 p.m.: Soccer Strategy and Tactics—Coach M. Sabie, Morehead State—Coach Jerry Yeagley, Indiana University—Coach Dave Foster, Transylvania College.

VI.—2:00 p.m.: Soccer Games—U.K. vs Indiana University; Morehead State vs Indiana University; U.K. vs Morehead State.

Everyone is welcome to participate in the most widely played team game in the world. The program will begin immediately after registration at 11:00 a.m. in the Alumni Gym.

Students named Kentucky Colonels

By DAHLIA HAYS
Kernel Staff Writer

As a result of state Rep. Dottie Priddy's visit to UK last Friday, the stereotyped image of a Kentucky Colonel may be in for a drastic revision.

Rep. Priddy drove from her home district in Jefferson County Friday morning to bestow the title of Kentucky Colonel on four UK students for a service they rendered her early last fall.

The newly appointed student-Colonels are Dave Lemaster, Ralph Schiefferle, Jon Adams, and Bob Ward.

The four students were returning from a Young Democrats' barbecue at Hopkinsville about 1 a.m. one night last October when they encountered four women futilely trying to change a flat tire on the Western Kentucky Parkway.

The damsels in distress turned out to be Rep. Priddy, her secretary, and two young girls, daughters of the two women.

Lemaster, who was driving, said that he decided to stop when one of the other boys pointed out that there were four of them and apparently the same number of ladies standing near the stricken auto.

The four students stopped, changed the tire, and forgot about the incident soon after returning to UK.

Rep. Priddy did not forget. Early last week, each of the four received a call from Dr. Glenwood Creech's secretary asking them to report to Dr. Creech's office Friday morning at ten.

The boys got together, compared notes, and decided that Rep. Priddy must be behind the telephone invitation. They did not know, however, that they would be appointed Kentucky Colonels by the end of the week.

In contrast to Harlan Sanders and other more "typical" Colonels, neither of the rewarded foursome sports a goatee.

In even greater contrast to the "Colonel Image," all of the four have hair in the long-to medium-long range.

Rep. Priddy, who is up for reelection this year, told a Kernel reporter during a tour of the campus Friday that some of her best campaign workers had long hair.

Physics Department sets up advising council

An advisory council for the purpose of helping the Department of Physics and Astronomy "respond to current conditions and the needs of technology" has recently been established in the Physics and Astronomy Department.

Ben R. Gossick, chairman of the department, said "we face a time of transition and we must look for new policies. We need people who have been out in the field." These people hopefully would also have contact through which students could gain employment.

The advisory council plans to meet about twice a year, and students can then give "critical comments about our curriculum and about our teachers." The students who want to comment to the council can make appointments through the secretary of the Department of Physics and Astronomy. Then the council will evaluate these comments. "We'll be getting some valuable feedback," Gossick speculated.

This is not a new plan in other schools, Gossick said, but he doesn't know of any other state schools that have it.

you're still young enough to enjoy it.

Having the want is one thing. Having the wherewithal is another. The trouble with being young is that all too often you have the one without the other.

But the 1971 MG Midget is something else again. Here is a true sports car for under $2500* — the lowest price you can pay for the real thing.

In this case the real thing includes a race-winning 1275 c.c. engine. Racing-type rack-and-pinion steering (2.33 turns lock to lock) for cool, crisp driving. Heavy-duty suspension for superb road-hugging. Disc brakes up front for straight-line, non-fade stops. Twin reclining bucket seats. And full sports car instrumentation with an electric tach.

Which only goes to show that, even though MG has been engineering sports cars for over 40 years, there's no generation gap. For the name of your nearest Austin-MG dealer and information about overseas delivery, dial (800) 631-1971 except in New Jersey where the number is (800) 962-2803. Calls are toll-free, of course.
