

"Wall of Death" by Charles Vampbell, WDAF-TV, Kansas City, Mo., won first prize in the spot news category of the 17th annual "News Pictures of the Year" competition. Approximately 75 winning photographs are on display in the Journalism Building.

Top News Photos Exhibited In Journalism Building

An exhibit of approximately 75 winning photographs from the 17th annual News Pictures of the Year competition is now on display in the Journalism Building.

The winners were selected from among 7,135 photographs entered in the contest, the largest of its kind in the world, by more than 650 photographers.

Photographs displayed along the Journalism Building corridors range from "cute" shots of children and animals to dramatic pictures of the Cuban Revolution.

Sponsored jointly by the National Press Photographers Association, the University of Missouri School of Journalism, and Encyclopedia Britannica, the exhibit will run through Nov. 11.

Dr. William M. Moore of the UK School of Journalism, and director of the local exhibit describes the display as "perhaps the finest of its kind anywhere." The exhibit will be presented in three showings. Dr. Moore said. The first portion will run until Oct. 31, the second will be shown Nov. 1-5, and the third section will be on exhibit Nov. 6-11. Each display will contain a different set of pictures.

The photographs were first screened in Columbia, Mo., and finalists were sent to judges in New York, Miami, and Denver where top winners were selected. In this show, additional prints rated high by the judges are also included.

In recent years this picture exhibit has become a regularly scheduled event at many institutions in the United States. It has appeared here since 1952.

Last year the show toured nearly 200 cities, and was exhibited at colleges, universities, public libraries, and museums. It is estimated that more than two million persons will view this year's show.

WORLD NEWS AT A GLANCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—The campaign now between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy over the status of American prestige abroad boiled into a feverish dispute Wednesday.

The running argument between the two presidential candidates was heightened by White House refusal to make public secret government papers on the subject—as Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, keeps demanding.

Carrying his campaigning from Illinois into Michigan—two crucial states—Kennedy insisted time after time that the report be released. He said the report has been suppressed to protect Nixon's claim that American prestige is at an all-time high.

Folk Singer At WBKY Tomorrow

Tedd Brown, a folk singer who once called his guitar "Suzie" but now refers to it as "my wife," will record the first of a series of programs for WBKY at 3 p.m. tomorrow.

David Blakeman, manager of the University FM station, said the recording will be made in WBKY's main studio and that the public is welcome to attend the session. He said it will last for a half-hour to an hour.

Blakeman added that persons desiring to hear Brown must be at the studio by 3 o'clock.

Brown, from Savannah, Ga., has sung professionally for the last 4½ years, but began singing as "a little boy in church." The balladeer also writes songs and has composed a group of them that relate to his home town. He is currently performing at a local motel.

The series of programs which Brown is going to record for WBKY will be submitted to the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, of which WBKY is a member, to be broadcast throughout the United States.

Honor Students To Get Study Room In Library

The Honors Program students soon will have their own study room in the Margaret I. King Library.

One end of a hallway is being partitioned off to provide approximately 258 square feet of space for the study area. The area on the third floor is directly above the entrance to the Reference Room.

Work on the study room is expected to be completed in about two or three weeks.

According to S. E. Gribble, assistant to the Library director, the study room will be separated from the Reference Room by a double partition in order to avoid any disturbance to students studying in the Reference Room.

The Library staff is cooperating so that the work may be finished as early as possible, Gribble said. Dr. Stephen Diechun, Honors Program director, said that the room will be painted, fluorescent lighting will be installed and tables and chairs will be provided.

Deferred Rush Meets Approval Of Most Frats

Officers in most UK fraternities are enthusiastic about the deferred rush system initiated this year.

After about two weeks of informal freshman rush under the new system, few fraternity representatives have any complaints about the system.

The consensus is that fraternities will profit by getting men who have already made their grades and by getting to know the men better before accepting them.

"The new system is better for us and better for the freshmen," Bill Uzzie, Sigma Chi rush chairman, said.

"We are having our regular parties and inviting rushees over so it is not really a financial drain."

When deferred rush was under consideration by IPC, some fraternity men expressed fear that a continuous rush during the first semester would be too expensive, especially for smaller fraternities.

But when interviewed yesterday, most fraternity officers indicated that the expense wasn't hurting them.

At Zeta Beta Tau, Ron Fleischman said the rush program "isn't hurting us financially."

"We are a small fraternity and deferred rush does hurt us some because we must put off getting new members for a semester," he said.

Alpha Gamma Rho Vice President Bob Smith said he thought at first the new system would decrease the number of pledges but has changed his mind since freshmen have gotten settled.

He said, however, that he thinks the rush period is too long "to keep up the interest of the boys."

A small typing room also will be included in the study facilities, he added.

"How much the room is used will

Drama Student To Star In 'Look Homeward, Angel'

Don Galloway, senior drama student, will play the lead role of Eugene Gant with a cast of 18 in "Look Homeward, Angel." The play is scheduled for Nov. 4, 5, 11, and 12 in Guignol Theatre.

Martha Earle Heizer, Mrs. Snowden; Charles Dickens, Mr. Ferrell; Jo Hern, Miss Brown; Penny Mason, Laura James; Charles Drew, W. O. Gant; Matt Barnett, Dr. Maguire; Howard Doll, Tarkington; Mary Warner Ford, Madame Elizabeth; Alvin Folk, Luke Gant; Jane Lee Forrest, Mrs. Marie "Fatty" Pert.

Wally Briggs, producing director, said he was "very pleased" with the cast which includes a number of veterans.

A "creative" type set is being built for the show, according to Arch Rainey, technical director.

"Look Homeward, Angel" was introduced on Broadway in 1957, starring Tony Perkins. It is an adaptation by playwright Ketti Frings of the novel by Thomas Wolfe.

All seats are reserved and student tickets are available, according to Doug Roberts, Guignol publicity director. The box office, phone extension 3300, opens Nov. 1.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

'Jack Paar - Here I Come'

Tedd Brown, folk singer and song writer, sings a ballad during an audition recorded Tuesday in a WBKY studio. The audition recording will be sent to a Chicago agency which may get Brown on the Jack Paar television program.

Social Background Affects Student's College Success

Dr. Ernest McDaniel, director of the Testing Service, agreed in part with the results of a study by Dr. Fred Anton Bunger which suggests that knowledge of a student's community background is necessary to predict probable success or failure in college.

Dr. Bunger, associate professor at Austin Peay State College in Clarksville, Tenn., based his findings on a study of freshmen who entered UK in the fall of 1958.

Also director of the Kentucky Cooperative Counseling and Testing Service, Dr. McDaniel said that although knowing a high school student's background would aid in evaluating the scores made on college qualification tests, "the tests as they stand now are fairly reliable predictors of a student's probable degree of success in college.

"Students from rural districts who make the same scores on the college qualification tests as do students from metropolitan areas generally do better in college than the ones from the city," Dr. McDaniel said.

Have Money, Will Loan-Carpenter

By HELEN JACKSON
Kernel Staff Writer

Dean Ceel Carpenter picked up the phone. The voice at the other end was different but the problem was the same one which has confronted students since the first college opened its doors.

"I can't return to school without a loan," the prospective student said. "I have a good job offer which I must accept or reject tomorrow, but I want to return to school. What shall I do?"

The answer given by Ceel Carpenter, dean of the College of Commerce who worked part of his way through college, was the one he has given hundreds of students. "Plan to come to college and continue your education."

As chairman of the student loan fund committee, Dean Carpenter finds himself in the role of financial adviser many times during the year. It is his opinion that no student should drop out of college because of lack of funds.

The National Defense Education Act of 1958 has made available long term loans for large numbers of students.

"This means great quantities of money. It is not peanuts anymore," said Dean Carpenter.

The University will receive $143,838 in three installments from the federal government during the 1960-61 fiscal year, he said. The college must match 10 percent of this amount from its own sources. Dean Carpenter never advises a student to stay out of school to work because he may get distracted and never come back. The dean is quick to point out that a college degree has a definite bearing on future income.

A total of 306 students have applied for loans this semester. Since July $75,192 has been made available by the committee to these students.

"National Defense loans are especially good for states like Kentucky, which have a relatively large population and low income," said Dean Carpenter. "It enables our young people to finish college and be more competitive with young people from other states."

A student can borrow a maximum of $500 a semester, with 10 percent of the loan due a year after graduation. The remainder, with a 3 percent interest, is due within a 10-year period.

Recipients of the loans must be citizens of the United States, willing to defend the Constitution. They must be full time students, in need of financial assistance, and able to maintain satisfactory college grades.

Any student can obtain a loan but preference is given those in the teaching, science, engineering, mathematics, and language fields.

There are times during the year when the loan fund is depleted and students are denied assistance, according to Dean Carpenter. This is due to irregularity of receipt of the federal allotment.

Presidents' Council Meets At Spindletop

The House Presidents' Council met Saturday at Spindletop Farm and discussed the formation of an organized women's government on campus.

Miss Dixie Evans, director of women's residence halls, Miss Pat Patterson, assistant dean of women, Joyce Malcomb, president of House Presidents' Council, and Mary Jo Parsons, house president of Delta Delta Delta sorority, spoke to the group on three main topics.

They discussed the purpose, the function, and the plan of action for the Intercollegiate Association of Women Students, a national women's government organization which has been on campus in an inactive status since 1957. All women students qualify for membership in AWS.

The council divided into planning groups after the discussion and made plans for establishing an active women's government on campus.

The plans were formulated into one master plan at a meeting of the House Presidents' Council Monday at the Delta Delta Delta sorority house.

"The council wants to get the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of government set up on campus," said Miss Malcomb. "The council now has the responsibility of filling all three branches."

A steering committee of representatives from the five major women's organizations and four women's honoraries will be formed to organize the proposed government.

For A Quiet Library

The time is rapidly approaching when midterm examinations will be upon us and the usual overflow of students from dormitories and fraternity houses will shatter the tranquility of the Margaret I. King Library.

With the present expansion of University enrollment and the addition of new facilities to the Library, it is becoming increasingly important that all students realize that the Library is not a social spot for meeting old friends and keeping up with the latest jokes.

Many students go to the Library to study because adequate facilities are not available elsewhere. Some have outside reading assignments that cannot be completed outside the Library. But regardless of the reasons for their being in the Library, all students must realize the purpose of the institution and should understand that most people there are trying to study.

Comprehension is almost impossible and studying cannot be productive if there is not a quiet atmosphere which encourages concentration. This silence can be shattered and studying made fruitless by the thoughtlessness of one or several inconsiderate students who cause annoyances and unnecessary commotion.

Very little, if any, disciplinary action can be taken against those who either don't know or don't care how to conduct themselves in the academic atmosphere of a library.

Library administrators are aware that students have to take a periodic break from their books to drink a cup of coffee or a coke and smoke, so they are planning a lounge for book-weary students in the addition expected to be completed in 1962.

But until this new section is completed, every student and faculty member should take it upon himself to observe the courtesy of silence in the Library. If he feels he cannot be a good companion enabling the others in the room to study undisturbed, he should stay away.

If the Library is to serve its function as a haven for students who want to get away from the noise and confusion of University residence halls there will have to be cooperation on the part of everyone.

Back To The Army

Compulsory ROTC is no longer the only militaristic aspect of life at the University. Ex-servicemen among the residents in the men's dormitories must grow nostalgic for their Army days when they note the similarity between military chow lines and the queues formed in Donovan Hall cafeteria every evening at dinner hour.

Nonveterans, unable to find consolation in reminiscence, can only paraphrase Milton and say, "They finally get served who only stand and wait." And wait they do—for as long as 28 minutes as on Monday night. They were timed.

Unfortunately, there is little cafeteria personnel can do to alleviate the situation. The addition of Haggin Hall, housing 575 men, has not been offset by an increase in the number of serving lines in the cafeteria. The result is lines—seemingly endless lines, lines that make no visible progress.

The situation will be even worse when juniors move into the dorms next semester. Unless some arrangements are made to handle the increase, another military phenomenon may make its appearance on campus—emaciated men looking like liberated prisoners of war.

Pointing out that those who planned men's housing have shown little foresight will not solve the problem. Therefore, we will not bother to do that. Instead we will merely suggest two possibilities:

The attitude of Scrooge might be taken, i.e., let the wretches starve to death and thereby decrease the surplus population. Or, as a last resort, additional serving lines could be provided.

We are inclined to support the latter suggestion.

Until the condition is ameliorated, however, we suggest that dorm residents take a textbook along when going to dinner. All that time shouldn't be wasted.

Unsweetened Coffee

"Black as the devil, hot as hell, pure as an angel, sweet as love," reads the coffee recipe of Charles Maurice de Tallyrand-Perigod. But, we hasten to add, this is not the recipe followed at the Student Union Grill. The missing ingredient at the SUB Grill is sugar.

We know that not all college students possess all the attributes of maturity, but we do feel they are capable of sweetening their own coffee, and surely we would not be expecting too much of the grill's management if we asked it to put sugar containers on the tables.

Students now have to tell the waitresses behind the counter just how little or how much sugar they desire in their coffee. This would not be too bad, perhaps, if it weren't for the fact that they seldom attain the proper mixture of coffee and sugar.

Until the grill does see fit to trust its customers with its carefully hoarded sugar dispensers, we shall just have to reconcile ourselves to coffee that is never quite sweetened properly.

'Delightful' Game

To The Editor:

After seeing a very delightful game this last weekend, I noted that the word "sobriety" actually means little to a great number of football fans.

To the left of my wife and myself, one very inebriated elderly man sat unconsciously throughout the game; in front, three couples obviously not interested in the game expended their alcoholic breaths into gigantic balloons which blocked any view of the playing field; on the right, a drinking pair seemed to maintain their poise and dignity. Also, many people were seen partaking of these so-called "therapeutic distillates," resulting in a rather wobbly-kneed condition.

As a climax, one intoxicated Boy Scout, campaigning for a football player for president, hooted incessantly. Realizing that no temperance union could have handled that crowd, I left dejected.

Sympathetically yours,

FRANCIS M. BUSH

Lethargic Footballers

To The Editor:

I can't quite go along with the "What School Spirit?" attitude depicted in the Kernel.

First, for some odd reason, enthusiasm of the fans seems to be strangely correlated with the performance of the team. Possibly the lethargic performance of the crowd is directly related to the lethargic performance of the Wildcats. I feel that many left the game Saturday night not because we were behind, but because they felt humiliated at the Wildcats' feeble attempt to play a good sound game of football.

True, by some strange twist of fate along with a good defense at times we were still in contention near the end of the game. But what if we had pulled it out of the fire, is that supposed to make everything hunky-dory? Is that supposed to make us forget the lack of organization displayed on the field for the first 59 minutes, the 4 fumbles, the bad center, the inability of our safety men to react to the great strength of Georgia's punter by simply backing up a respectable distance, the overall poor blocking, and the costly mistakes made by our so-called superior pass defense?

Many of us are interested in good football win or lose. I'm afraid many of the promoters of the so-called "School Spirit" are so overcome with the emotion of making a lot of noise that they fail to understand that football is like a fine art. It is completely unrehearsed and one of the few really creative entertainments available to us today. I know from experience that the Kernel will readily criticize campus plays, certain concerts, visiting politicians, and visiting lecturers. Are you so overcome with the emotion of school spirit that our athletic teams are immune to such criticism. If you want to convert someone, why don't you start with the team. There are less of them, and the way our line was outrushed Saturday night, they could probably use it.

Blanton Collier is quoted as saying, "Kentucky Fans Don't Understand Football." I would only like to add to this statement, how can anyone ever be expected to understand football played in such an erratic manner?

Not A Monstrosity

To The Editor:

In his unjustified and vicious attack upon the forthcoming addition to the Margaret I. King Library, Mr. Roark has not only violated the rules of good taste, but he has shamelessly flaunted his abysmal ignorance of the hallowed principles of architecture.

Far from being "a monstrosity and abortion of art," the new structure will stand as mute evidence of its designer's ability to subordinate himself to the mandatory canons which generations of craftsmen behind him have proved inviolate and, at the same time, how to display his own creative originality, not in spite of, but because of the classical dogma he has accepted with the humility of the true artist.

The discipline of an immortal tradition has served here as a cohesive factor in evolving a structure whose beauty can reach, simply and lucidly, the heart of every student on the campus.

ELLSWORTH TOOHEY

Deferred Rush

Alpha Tau Omega member Garland Woodroof thinks smaller fraternities have a better chance of building themselves up now.

"We're very much in favor of deferred rush," he said. "We're one of the smaller groups and in this type group the rushees get to know everyone better. They won't be swept off their feet with one big party."

Most of the fraternities are not planning any special functions. The usual rush procedure seems to be to invite rushees to regularly scheduled parties and to dinner.

Jack Farra, president of Phi Delta Theta, said his chapter invites several boys over for dinner each week and asks rushees to their parties and intramural games.

In previous years freshmen were rushed during the first weeks of school and were pledged shortly after classes began. Under deferred rush, fraternities will rush freshmen throughout the semester and pledge them next semester. Upperclassmen are rushed and pledged earlier in the year.

Spence Says

By Newton Spencer

Jesse Outlar, sports editor of the Atlanta Constitution, is disillusioned concerning the meaning of the word riddle.

He states in his story on the Kentucky-Georgia encounter: "Quarterback Francis Tarkenton, riddling the nation's third-ranked pass defense with amazing ease, pitched Georgia into a 17-13 victory over Kentucky Saturday."

Georgia's two touchdowns came on passes, but an otherwise stout Kentucky secondary limited the Bulldog quarterback to six completions in 15 attempts and 67 yards.

This can hardly be called riddling a defense.

In the five previous games, Tarkenton had completed 61 of 103 passes.

If any pass defense was riddled Saturday, it was Georgia's. Jerry Woolum and Jerry Elsaman hit on 12 of 29 tosses for 215 yards. Georgia was fifth in pass defense before the game.

English Instructor Robert White, in a recent letter to the Kernel, complained about the "adolescent glee" shown concerning the Kentucky victory over LSU.

This is hardly any different than the English Department's necrophilic glee over its heroes.

We would like to include something on the sports pages that would interest Mr. White. Maybe a profile of Walt Whitman or Oscar Wilde.

Unfortunately, however, these two weren't too athletically inclined.

SHARP UP — Wear a hat. When wearing a coat and tie for some dress up occasion—you aren't fully dressed without a hat (I know, I know—you are saying "I can't wear a hat"). May I ask "Why not?" There are some real jaunty hats on the market this season, and the brims are so narrow—they are almost extinct. These small shaped hats are truly smart—and you'll be smart to wear one!

THE NEW LOOK — In sweaters—is the deep, deep vee neck line (wear a tie with this one). This deep vee is very trim in appearance, and comfortable for class rooms and sport wear (gives one more freedom of movement). This is the same type that I mentioned (last week) "Don Buehler" was catin' around in.

JOE JOHNSON — Civil Engineering and Alpha Gamma Rho member, always looks very neat and trim. The last time I saw Joe he was wearing a copy of the English hacking suit of soft shadow plaid—a white snap tab shirt and a narrow tie of burnished gold. Joe, I tip the fashion hat to you.

JOHN CODY — Sigma Nu and General Business Major sports a sport outfit that I like—a blue and grey shetland coat — ocean blue flannel slax—dark blue and grey challis tie against a soft blue B.D. Oxford shirt. He has used two shades of blue very effectively and thus created a set of swinging threads. Speaking of swinging, Cody—where's Ella?

AM — Trying to finish this while "Stu Goldfarb" browses through the sport shirts. He is breathing fire at me to get this hassle over with—He wants me to get on the stick and say—

So long for now,

Smith, Mann Named To I-M Council

Roger Smith, Baptist Student Union, and Shelton Mann, Zeta Beta Tau, have been named to this year's Intramural Sports Council.

The two will join Intramural Director Bernard Johnson and Jim Stubblefield, intramural graduate assistant, on the council.

Smith will represent the independent teams while Mann is a spokesman for the fraternities.

The council's functions are four-fold. One function is to help arrange all intramural schedules. A second function is to make suggestions regarding the improvement of the program and to solve mutual problems.

A third duty is to rule upon all official protests. The remaining role of the council is to set the policies for the conduct of intramurals.

KA, SAE, DTD, PSK Win

Danny Hamner Paces PDT To Win Over SN

Danny Hamner raced 80 yards for a touchdown Tuesday night to pace Phi Delta Theta to a 22-7 win over Sigma Nu.

In other action, Kappa Alpha edged Sigma Phi Epsilon, 12-6; Sigma Alpha Epsilon topped Lambda Chi Alpha, 22-14; Delta Tau Delta had an easy time with Alpha Tau Omega, 20-0; and Phi Sigma Kappa squeaked by Zeta Beta Tau, 13-6.

Hamner scored a second touchdown on a 40-yard run while John Provine tallied the other PDT touchdown on a 40-yard romp.

The KA's utilized two long scoring runs by John Beifus and Jim Channon in their victory over SPE. Beifus' run was good for 40 yards while Channon's covered 50 yards.

Tom Cooper passed 25 yards to Ralph Moblely for the only SPE score.

Jack Crutcher, Kenny Baker, and Willie Hylton teamed up to lead the Deltas in their easy win over ATO.

Crutcher twice passed to Baker for touchdowns and Hylton scored the third TD on a 10-yard run.

In the high scoring SAE-LXA battle, Sid Remley scored twice and Buddy Broadbent once to offset the brilliant play of LXA's Harold Jetter and Claude Chaffin.

Jetter ran 75 yards for one score and took a 15-yard pass from Chaffin for the other score.

Bob Grant ran for one touchdown and passed to Jack Wilson for another as PSK edged ZBT.

The first PSK score came on a 60-yard pass from Grant to Wilson. PSK then won the game on a five-yard touchdown scamper by Grant.

UMPING PAYS WELL
PITTSBURGH (AP)—Umpires do almost as well as the players in a World Series. Four umpires received $4,000 each and the two foul line umpires got $2,000 apiece. Each umpire also received $30 a day for hotels and meals, plus $100 for incidentals during the entire series.

Not bad for a fellow who needs not open his mouth and needs only hands to motion each decision. Of course, they must have good eyes.

Women Aren't Really Smarter

Men, do you protest when your grades are compared with those of women?

If so, a report issued by Dr. James W. Gladden of the Sociology Department may be the argument you've been looking for.

The report, based on observation and general research, indicates there are several good reasons why men take such a battering from women in the academic struggle.

During the first two years of college, girls are about one and one-half years more mature than their male counterparts, Dr. Gladden said. It isn't until the last two years that the men begin to shine. By this time, most of them have decided on a career and are about even with the girls in maturity.

The less ambitious girls usually drop out of college in the first two years, while those who remain are often top students who give the men stiff scholastic competition.

For example, the ratio of about 60 men to 40 women in freshmen classes usually jumps to 80 men to 20 women by graduation, Dr. Gladden said.

Also, men often take more specialized courses which require more hours of study and time in the laboratory than do many of the general courses which women often take.

Women are usually more willing to spend time on their studies, especially those which demand rote preparation, while men are more likely to ask questions and argue with professors causing their grades to suffer in some classes.

In addition, families usually expect their daughters to make better grades than their sons. A pattern is set in the earlier years of school when it is sometimes considered unmasculine for boys to make top grades.

In high school, girls who excel scholastically are definitely more prevalent than boys. However, this pattern disappears in college.
