Union Building Pictures Shown In Commons

Display Is Expected to Add Impetus to Drive for UK Social Center

The campaign for a student Union building is expected to receive a new impetus by the display of pictures in the Commons.

The pictures have been loaned by the Association of College Unions of which the University is an associate member.

The pictures reflect the club-like atmosphere that exists in this part of the university equipment, devoted exclusively to the welfare of the student.

Those leading the discussions of the papers on the morning program were President John T. Cross, Cleland, Pikeville college, and Prof. William S. Lester, Kentucky Wesleyan college.

New York, Jan. 7 (INS)—Technically, New York University was out in front place today in the chase after the National College Basketball championship.

The Violets were still unbeaten, and to the decisive victory over Notre Dame, which they had scored a week ago, they had added a triumph over the Southern champions, Kentucky, as well.

And of the 16,539 fans who witnessed the clash at a crowded Madison Square Garden, only 15,000 had agreed with Rupp.

Post card ballots with an attached card to be returned to the magazine for tabulation will be received by every registered student.

It merely established the right of large frank colleges to waste the time and energy of its students on the parade ground. In no way did it intimate that military training promoted "liberal and practical education in the several pursuits and professions of life" as specified in the charter of the 69 land-grant colleges. And until some such justification is found for military training, undergraduates will continue to insist that such courses be made optional.

Plaintive cries from professors to the effect that their salaries are unreasonably meager and their laboratories bare of necessary equipment have often been heard. But not one of these men has seriously questioned the use of the approximately $15,000,000 annual Federal appropriations which provide for the military training of more than 100,000 students in 278 schools and colleges.

Incidentally, this sum is almost exactly the same as the FERA appropriation for student part-time jobs. It is $15 per student per month, if we remember our elementary algebra—according to the very same Federal Government, the exact amount which will enable a needy youngster to benefit by education.

Within the last few years undergraduate pressure has transformed most compulsory chapter services, uninspiring and uncomfortable, into optional gatherings of interest and inspiration to those who want to attend. In the very near future, compulsory military training will be made universally optional by the same undergraduate pressure through unanimous, country-wide protest—National Student Mirror.

THE UNIVERSITY

The published Congressional Hearings on the War Department Appropriations Bills disclosed that the federal government spent $58,944.16 to maintain the R. O. T. C. unit at the University for the year 1931-1932. In addition, the costs of equipment issued from the War Department were not included.

Staggering—these figures. With dozens of students ignoring their personal health, starving themselves to get an education at the University, these thousands of dollars, enough to pay the tuition of 1,488 students, is being spent to create an emotional condition.

There could be justification for the government spending this money on a medical research foundation where the lives of thousands might be saved through experimentation.

How easily it could be used to increase the number of students working on F. E. R. A. projects. These sixty thousand dollars would pay the salaries of approximately 450 students on F. E. R. A. research projects—increasing the number now employed by almost 200 percent.

Is there justification for this expenditure at the University and as well for the expenditure of another $30,000 to maintain units elsewhere in Kentucky?

Significantly the houses of Congress have been extremely critical of these appropriations and apparently in the near future will refuse to approve such measures. Until that time, will the student body remain dormant?

UNLIMITED CUTS

Should college students be allowed to cut their classes as many times as they want to—No, of course not. Such a thing is preposterous and unheard of. It is absolutely out of the question and stupid. It is sheer nonsense. To do such a thing is being radical. These are the answers to that question as given by many of the professors and authorities of the universities today, and with that point of view it seems that they

THE DECISION

Smug News-Sheets carried front-page "I-told-you-so" when the U. S. Supreme Court ruled that the University of California at Los Angeles need not educate students who refused to submit to military training. A sigh of relief escaped many college presidents and parents were satisfied to know that their sons would fight and suffer in war even as they had.

The unimportance of the Supreme Court decision was realized by few.

Hoi Polloi

By STYLUS

The Resolution
 On January 1, 1935, we made a fitting resolution for the Seaman's column to live up to. We had to. They hung a whip over our heads. But, we thought of the various new deals all over the country and decided that the Kernel might also be able to use one. So, there's a new head, a new byline, and we hope, some new news.

The casual reader will note the extreme classicism expressed in the heading of this column. Of course, all you Greeks know what "hoi polloi" means, whether the writer uses it or not. But this word "stylus" is a whang from the late Latin and for fear the reader may misunderstand our motives, we wish it distinctly understood that it is a reputable word for "pen." So, the deep and daring secret is out. Also, my ignorant friends, this particular pen is made in a most peculiar way, with a point on one end, and a blunt edge on the other. Take care, and be advised.

After due consideration of Coffman's custom of naming rose girls and suchforth, we decided to eliminate this altogether. We will probably toss a few orchids or maybe a bit of heliotrope during the forthcoming year, but it is to be remembered that we also deal in bricks-bats. How would your girl feel if she should be named "The Rosie Egg Girl of the Week" or some such complimentary moniker?

One of the first things that flashed across our minds when we came back after the holidays was the Chicago-U. of K. game. Aha, we thought, here is the place to see what happened. We did.

First of all, we learned that "The Great Plauton" is not a university, yow, and "Triangle" has been branding. We've heard him say lots of times that he'd "missed" the Delt and pin his old girl all over again. It didn't seem to work, according to report from her lodge, and now Faunce is doing a very Faunce hanger one's act.

We also learned that petite Caskey is wearing the SAE pin of one Bill Clay, Dartmouth sophomore who lives in Mt. Sterling. It's a very tiny pin, and we mistook it at first for the badge of her own lodge. KD. We'll bet Phyllis took that into consideration too.

We have sat in Dunn's many a time and listened to Jimmy Carroll tell about the five or six very special ladies to whom he pledges his undying affection. And allegiance, too, we suppose. We think we have seen him in the company of the Lily of our campus. We noted that she wasn't among the six he named. Carroll would probably casually explain it with a wave of his hand and a blithe, "Here's the top boys, here's the top!"

And a bit of a flash—What very dark-haired Delt went to New York for the holiday and took his square badge along with him, just in case?

We have it from a very good source that Rocky Stephens, another dark-haired Delt, but of the suave "other man" nature, is causing a lot of trouble between Chip Pal O'Rear and "Check room" Farris, the demon of all ladies' men. Farris wore the Delt pin for one evening, but the next morning Rocky had it back. We should appreciate knowing which of these two made the decision.

Also for consideration, there is the very strange case of Alphasg Richard Spokes. Dick, you know, punts the home town blonde smiles when the good brothers congratulate him, evades the cigar cut, and becomes very vague when the girls question him about his pin. This warrants some good sleuthing.

Something in the flash category—KD Nancy Becker has the sparkler of KA Frank Robinson. Best wishes to you both. We like the ring idea.

Wild Flowers

By CAPPEL McINCH

Cameron Coffman, champ scaldard of the University, began his career at Fort Spring, West Virginia, where the scenery is very fine. In his Pan Politics, Cameron runs the high hurdles on the track team and can toss horses around with considerable accuracy—well enough, in fact, to win the horse show pitching tournament last spring, teaming with T. C. Endicott.

Cameron is fond of all sports except golf. He can play soccer for hours at a time, but isn't at all fond of contract, roller coasters or classical music. Ham and strawberry short cake are very well thought of by Cameron, and he inherits his love for Irish potatoes from his mother, who is Irish.

Asy Caskey's mother plays "Hell's Bells" Cameron considers to be really something, and Loretta Young and Gene Raymond are his favorite movie stars.

He rides horses off and on, and the off part hurts when the ground is hard. As a child he had a pony, which fell with him one day on a concrete road, injuring Cameron's knee, which is still not quite well.

The name of Delt Tau Delt has a plaque on which each year they inscribe the name of the most worthy active. Last year they inscribed Cameron's name, and he says that this is one of the finest honors he has ever received.

Although he has been in Kentucky for four years now, he has never seen a Kentucky Derby, but still has hopes. Big cities have no fascination for Cameron, who says he supposes he is just a country boy at heart.

In his early days he was very fond of pets, and at one time had some dogs and cats, 65 pigeons, 15 rabbits, a ground hog or two, several squirrels, and a pony.

Cameron finds column writing interesting and lots of fun. People are very helpful, he finds, almost too much so. He hopes to be a newspaperman, and ultimately, a successful columnist. Well, after all, someday someone must take over Walter Winchell's post. We hope it will be Cameron Coffman.

LITERARY

Important Announcement
 Cha Delta Phi, with the cooperation of Professor Enoch Greban will sponsor a contest beginning February and continuing through May. Material for the contest may be either prose or poetry; a prize of one dollar will be offered for the best prose piece and the same amount will be given for the best poem. Members of the faculty will be the judges and the right will be reserved by the sponsors to pre-approve that if none of the material received merits the rewards, no prizes will be given.

Now is your chance to prove your merits in the literary field; competition will be keen; start now and send your material to Editor of this column.

Sonnet
 I did not know that love could fade and warn,
 I did not expect sharp lashes from you;
 I did not believe you could sting me with your tongue.
 And look with cold eyes, and chill me through.
 I had heard others say that no other speech
 Could be as cruel as a lover's, and draw
 Hot torture into a heart. Ah, but you teach
 Me well; I've learned that the ancient law
 Of "tread softly" is wise, and one who would buy
 Wisdom must pay a high price, which
 Is sometimes enough to cause love to die.
 Ah, well, dearest—this price, this cup
 I've bought the wisdom heavily, as if it should be
 Only—why were YOU the one to sell it to me?

What America Is Reading
 "Wild Flowers," appearing so consistently among the best—like non-fiction, caused us to see if the South-ers were keeping it there. But no, people up North seem to like it, too.
 "Mary Poppins" seems to be making great progress and is taking the children as well as grown-ups by storm.
 "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" has taken second position among the popular fiction in three weeks' time.

Literary Bits
 "February Hill" is an excellent popular novel... Thornton Wilder's forthcoming novel, "Heaven's My Destination," has a super-morose as a hero... For a complete contrast, Mark Van Doren has written a strange novel about two perfect beings: "The Transients"... From Paris, Gelett Burgess sends his analysis of Gertrude Stein... "One in my youth," he confesses, "I took a dose of hashish. I had a gorgeous vision. And at last there was revealed to me the awful secret of death... I babbled of the revelation. And a friend took down my inspired words and when the apocalypse passed, and I awoke, I found he had written this message: 'Death is caused by the splinterfication of spratulated mucilage.' Gertrude Stein's writings are just as wonderful as that."

The best part of our knowledge is that which teaches us where knowledge leaves off and ignorance begins.

NEW BAND SPONSOR Will Be Selected

A new sponsor to lead the "Best Band in Dixie" will be selected by the entire University of Kentucky band in their annual election in the hand practice room Friday, January 18, according to an announcement made yesterday by William Duncan, business manager.

The candidates, consisting of one member of each sorority and three independents, will be nominated by a chosen committee composed of Mr. Duncan, Robert McDowell, Fred More and Billy Stone, all members of the band.

Although selection of candidates by the committee has already begun, the nominees will not be notified until the day of the election.

Annual Farm Meet Set for Jan. 22-25
Twenty-third Convention of Group to Feature Prominent Speakers

The twenty-third meeting of the annual Farm and Home convention will be held at the University agricultural experiment station January 22-25, covering all phases of farming and home-making.

Groups to meet during the convention will include dairy farmers, rural church workers, veterinarians, bookkeepers, and home-makers.

M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C., will be the chief speaker on the program. Other important speakers will include Dr. Frank L. McVey, of the University, Dr. U. V. W. Darlington, bishop of the M. E. church, south, Huntington, W. Va.; J. C. Nisbet, associate editor, Hoards Dairyman, Ft. Atkinson, Wisconsin; J. E. Hutson, chief of the tobacco section, AAA, Washington, D. C.; Carl G. Taylor, regional director, land policy section, AAA, Washington, D. C.; H. W. Mumford, dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois; Ed O'Neal, president, American Farm Bureau federation, Chicago, Illinois; and Nat B. Sewell, state inspector and examiner.

Privileges of Three Revoked by Council
The social privileges of Joe Bosse, Norman Morton, and Lewis E. Simpson were revoked until March 1, 1935, by the Men's Student Council meeting at 8 p. m. yesterday in the dean of men's office, for failing to appear before the council when summoned.

This means that these men will not be permitted to attend any University dance or other social function under penalty of suspension from school.

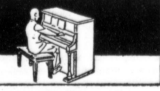

The council decided to "see what could be done" about changing the present unsatisfactory system of registering. Cameron Coffman, Henry McCown, and Phil Ardrey were appointed to write a resolution in the students' behalf, which will be printed in the Kernel, and to appeal to the proper authorities.

INSTRUCTOR GIVES ADDRESS
Mr. A. J. Lawrence, College of Commerce instructor, attended the convention of the National Commercial Teachers Federation at the Stephens hotel in Chicago December 26 and 29. He delivered an address to the delegates on "College Instructors' Participation in Course of Study Making."

WHEN YOUR MIND IS TIRED—

GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

JAMES S. MacVICKAR '35—PSYCHOLOGY.
He says: "I think there's a great field for psychology—so I try to do books for it. When I'm licker or 'low', smoking a Camel gives me a quick upturn in energy. Physical and mental fatigue drop away! The enjoyment one gets from Camel's fine flavor is an important psychological factor in maintaining poise."

How to get back vim and energy when "played out": Thousands of smokers can verify from their own experience the popular suggestion "get a lift with a Camel." When tired, Camels will make you feel refreshed—as good as new. And science adds confirmation of this "energizing effect." Camels aren't flat or "sweetish," either. You can smoke Camels steadily. Their finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS never get on the nerves!

MOUNTAIN CLIMBER. Miss Georgia Engelhard says: "Plenty of times I have thought 'I can't go another step.' Then I call a halt and smoke a Camel. It has been proved true over and over that a Camel picks me up in just a few minutes and gives me the energy to push on."

PRO FOOTBALL ACE. "CH" Montgomery of the Brooklyn Dodgers says: "After a tiring game, or any time when I feel like it, I light up a Camel and get a swell 'lift'—soon feel 100% again. I am seldom without a Camel—they don't interfere with healthy nerves."

WHO WILL BE THE KENTUCKIAN BEAUTY QUEEN ?? WHO IS U of K's MOST POPULAR MAN

To Be Decided at THE KENTUCKIAN DANCE Friday Night, Jan. 11-8:30-12

Congratulations are in order for Alabama's great work in the Rose Bowl. Being a member of the same conference brings some reflected glory to Kentucky and this is especially appropriate since Kentucky scored more points on the Alabama machine than any other team this season.

Although Alabama scored four points more on Kentucky than they did on Stanford, Johnson played a more All-American game than Grayson of Stanford. Johnson made both touchdowns, did a considerable amount of punting and threw some fine passes all of which easily overshadowed Grayson's attempts.

Putting Washington and Lee in place of Maryville in the lead-off position on the Kentuckians' football schedule for 1935 makes a harder row to hoe for the Wildcats and except for the open date, the schedule contains no set-ups. This is following the practice of most of the leading teams in the country of scheduling only hard games. Any team recording a win over all the teams on the Cat's schedule would undoubtedly go to the Rose Bowl.

The injustice of officials of a basketball game is aptly illustrated by the unfortunate experience that occurred to the Wildcats at the last week. The team played two quints of equal calibre, the University of Chicago and New York university. The first game was fairly played and Kentucky's great team won by about 25 points. The second game was with New York playing in Madison Square Garden.

Before the game, athletes and sports writers in the "know" members of the team that the game was in the bag and that New York university "had" to win. However, the team expected fair treatment and went on the floor. Circumstances turned out worse than they thought possible. When officials saw Kentucky controlling the tip-off they went to work on Edwards and in a few minutes he had three fouls on him. On his fourth foul, Edwards said he was further than six feet away from the ball when he was put out of the game so New York U. could get the ball.

The players were knocked off their feet time and again without fouls being called. Lawrence had his sweater almost torn off and Tucker received a few bad bruises. The crowd turned against the referees and booed them for minutes at a time without any effect. After the game the sports writers and coaches were all unanimous in saying that the Kentuckians were robbed. One New York daily said that "Assault and Battery" had been done at the Wildcats' expense. Ned Irish, promoter, was especially free with his condolences after the game and assured the Kentuckians that the officials would never be used again. Members of the team are all of the opinion that under fair conditions, Kentucky would have beaten them as bad as they beat Chicago. As a consolatory measure the promoters and the New York sports scribes are trying to promote

In a wild battle under the basket Anderson was called for fouling and Rubenstein sank his try to tie the score. Klien was called for fouling Edwards and he missed his try and N. Y. U. took the rebound. One chance at their basket was all they had and the ball went out of Tucker, who missed and Ed baited it in, but Tucker was fouled, getting two shots, both of which he made good, again placing Kentucky in the lead, 18 to 16.

With but a few minutes remaining to play, the play under the baskets resorted to brawling, with Kentucky's superior playing showing to slight advantage. Once Lawrence emerged from flailing arms to score a crip and the score went to 22-18, the last that Kentucky was destined to make. Kentucky's ability to control the tip off was their only advantage against the odds of the officials. Maidman scored a crip and the house broke forth in a deep throated uproar that burst into pandemonium when Gross recovered a loose ball, the result of very active play on the sidelines, and scored a crip without opposition and tying the score.

This placed the officials in a better position to decide the game and decide it they did when in the next moment, with one minute remaining, Big Ed was ejected on personal. This gave N. Y. U. the chance to break the tie and win the game. Gross stood, toed to the foul line, while the crowd roared its disapproval, and sank this crucial score.

On the tip off, for once Kentucky didn't take it. Lewis just failed to get the ball as the game ended 23 to 22 for New York.

WILDCATS BEAT CHICAGO

Apparently bewildered by the rough tactics of their mid-western opponents, Coach Rupp's high school Wildcats were forced to rally in the final half to win their sixth straight victory of the season over the University of Chicago's Maroons, 42-26, on January 2, before a capacity crowd.

In leading the attack on the Windy City team, "Big Ed" Edwards registered 26 points, 12 of which were fouls. The 'Cats led at the half 17-12, and soon after the second period began, turned on the power to draw far away from the scrappy Maroon team.

Andy Anderson displayed mid-season form on the defense and co-captains Dave Lawrence and Jack Tucker were constant offensive threats.

With eight minutes of play remaining in the quarter, Terjesen was ejected on personal fouls when he was caught holding Edwards and Klien went in at center. Ed's foul attempt was good and the score was 16 to 5. After racing the length of the floor with the ball, Edwards was forced out of bounds, losing the ball on the way out, but Tucker recovered and scored a scrip, placing Kentucky in the lead for the first time.

After several exchanges of the ball and no scoring, Big Ed scored his only goal of the evening when he looped an over-head back-handed shot into the basket without even touching the hoop. Within a minute Klien had scored for New York with a crip shot and a minute remained in the half at which time Lewis replaced Edwards. The half ended, the Wildcats leading, 9 to 8.

The second half was started without the services of Big Edwards, Lewis remaining in the game and controlling the tip off just as effectively as did Edwards. Lawrence had a foul called against him and Rubenstein tied the score at 9 to 9. Within a minute Anderson, dribbling low, circled under New York's defense, straightened up suddenly and scored a crip, making it 11 to 8. Lewis was then called for fouling Rubenstein who missed his free throw. Tucker was called blocking and Klien muffed his chance. Then Maidman scored with a crip tying the score at 11 to 11. At this point Edwards replaced Lewis.

The next score was for N. Y. U. when Schulman scored from the side line placing his team in the lead once more. However, their lead was short lived as Lawrence scored. Lawrence repeated on the next play with a shot from the side. Big Ed was fouled and made it good to put Kentucky in the lead 16 to 13.

But then New York scored again.
