The Minutes of the Meeting of December 10, 1984, were approved as circulated.

Chairman Bostrom recognized Professor Malcolm Jewell for the presentation of the honorary degree candidates as recommended by the Graduate School. The Chairman asked that the five names be kept confidential because it might be embarrassing to the persons if the names were released. Following Professor Jewell's presentation, the senators voted unanimously to accept the candidates for recommendation to the President.

Chairman Bostrom recognized Professor Bradley Canon, Secretary of the Senate Council, for a motion. Professor Canon, on behalf of the Senate Council, recommended approval for the proposed change in University Senate Rules, Section IV, 2.1.1, Transfer Students. Professor Canon said the proposal was rewording the rule to change the general definition "good standing" and provide that a student transferring to UK must have a cumulative standing of 2.0 or better for all work attempted and have a cumulative GPA of 2.0 or better for all work attempted at the last institution attended. This proposal was circulated to members of the senate under date of January 29, 1985.

The Chairman recognized Dr. Sands, Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, for a proposed amendment. Dr. Sands felt that Part B of the proposal could cause some serious problems. He moved an amendment to delete Section B. He said if a student had a 4.0 average from Stanford after two years and took a summer course and received a "D", the second course would be excluded by UK. He felt the policy applied to students who would have met the University's admissions standards anyway. He added that the 2.0 GPA should be on all college work attempted and not on work attempted at the last institution attended. The amendment was seconded.

Professor Canon said the substance of the amendment had been considered in the Senate Council. He felt exceptions could be made and there was no point in writing rules whereby every conceivable possibility could be covered. Professor Altenkirch felt the situation which Dr. Sands described happened in such few numbers they could be handled on the exceptions basis. He said the numbers were slim and therefore opposed the amendment.

*Absence explained

Chairman Bostrom clarified that the proposed change was only to substitute for number 1 of the present Rule IV, 2.1.1 and only referred to an individual who had not completed twenty-four hours. If an individual qualified under number 2 of the present rule, he/she would be allowed to transfer.

Professor McMahon suggested redoing the proposal because what had been done was taking two permutations and leaving a lot in the middle unanswered. He felt what could happen was to make it more difficult for someone who originally met admissions criteria but later could not transfer. Chairman Bostrom said the intent was to make it more difficult to transfer. Professor McMahon wanted to know the rationale for making it more difficult to transfer. Professor Altenkirch said he did not want to speak on the rationale, and he was not convinced the wording was what the committee originally proposed.

Professor Weil moved to refer the motion and amendment to the Senate Council. The motion was seconded and passed unanimously.

Chairman Bostrom recognized Professor Bradley Canon. Professor Canon, on behalf of the Senate Council, recommended approval of the proposed change in University Senate Rules, Section VI., 1.3 (c) Academic Evaluation. This proposal was circulated to members of the senate under date of January 30, 1985.

The Chairman recognized Timothy Freudenberg, President of Student Government. Student Senator Freudenberg said the proposal was originated by several student organizations to improve the "Student Code." Basically, the point was the three areas: sexual orientation, age and marital status which have no relevance in the relationship between the faculty member and student in the classroom. The intent was to add these to a list of criteria which was not relevant in the grading process. Student Senator Tom Stephens had some problems with the proposal because he did not feel any student should be discriminated against for any reason. He felt it was not necessary to have a list. Mr. Stephens proposed an amendment to strike from "among through affiliations" and add "no criteria other than academic performance may be taken into consideration regarding admissions, financial aid, grading policies or any activities outside the classroom that are unrelated to the course work or program requirements." The proposed amendment was seconded. The proposed change as amended would then read:

"(c) Evaluation determined by anything other than a good faith judgment based on explicit statements of the above standards are improper. No criteria other than academic performance may be taken into consideration regarding admissions, financial aid, grading policies or any activities outside the classroom that are unrelated to the course work or program requirements."

Chairman Bostrom said the rule concerned academic evaluation, and he was not sure about the financial aid statement.

Professor Harris pointed out while he could see the desirability of not adding restrictions endlessly, there was a problem for some graduate programs where there were considerations to a person's ability for a particular field that had little to do with the grading in a purely academic course. He felt the amendment had some far reaching implications for decision making that would have to go on in the future for the graduate programs.

Professor Canon felt the amendment was out of order as it was written because the proposal was dealing only with the awarding of grades and the proposed amendment concerned admissions and financial aid. He felt the amendment should not be considered at all or reworded to cover only grades. Student Senator Stephens agreed to reword the amendment in order that it might be proper. The person who seconded the amendment also agreed to delete the words admissions and financial aid.

Professor Rea reminded the senators that the proposal was dealing with class grades. Professor Davis said there was a logical problem with the last clause because the proposal originally pertained to areas for no discrimination and now seemed to be used in an area in which discrimination could happen. Student Senator Stephens said that was the intent.

Parliamentarian Blyton pointed out the statement might be that anything other than academic judgment on an academic matter is improper. Student Senator Freudenberg's feeling was that the impetus of the proposal was the University felt in the past a list of irrelevant considerations were important. He questioned if the list was important once, why was it not still important.

Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs, Dr. Zumwinkle, said the Student Code Committee had received a proposal for a code in respect to sexual orientation and that the committee probably would not resolve that question for a week or two. He pointed out that admissions and financial aid are provided for in the "Student Code."

Student Senator Stephens said the reason he proposed the amendment was to make the statement perfectly clear. He felt no student at UK should be discriminated against for unrelated activities to course work. Professor Wood said in the past the feeling was that it was important for those students who had suffered an injustice an extra impetus would be given so they would not be discriminated against. She did not follow the logic of the statement in pointing out just specific areas of discrimination.

Professor McMahon said listing the most important areas in which discrimination might occur served a function. In the context of the senate he felt it was important to list the items. Professor Olszewsky opposed the amendment and said the purpose of the list was to give exemplars and that was made clear by the phrase "irrelevant consideration."

Professor Belmore moved the previous question which was seconded and passed unanimously. In a hand count the amendment failed. There was no further discussion and the motion carried. The proposal as presented by the Senate Council reads as follows:

Proposal: (new portion is underlined)

VI., 1.3 (c) Evaluations determined by anything other than a good faith judgment based on explicit statements of the above standards are improper. Among irrelevant considerations are race, color, religion, sex, national origin, sexual orientation, age, marital status, and political affiliations, or any activities outside the classroom that are unrelated to the course work or program requirements.

Background:

The proposal was submitted to the University Senate Council by the Student Government Association on behalf of the following groups: GALUS, Socially Concerned Groups, UK Young Democrats, Emergence, and NOW. The proposed change was reviewed by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and the Senate Council, and is recommended to the Senate for approval.

Implementation Date: Immediately

Chairman Bostrom recognized Professor Emmett Costich from the Oral Surgery Department for an information statement dealing with the current state of affairs in the College of Dentistry. Dr. Costich's remarks follow:

"My purpose in being here is to ask the Senate to evaluate the academic effects of the University of Kentucky-University of Louisville sharing agreement for the College of Dentistry. I believe it needs immediate investigation by the body responsible for the academic program of this University, for it has serious implications for all of you. With that in mind I will provide this background.

The Commonwealth has been confronted with serious financial problems. At the same time, concerns for the quality of education have increased. This has culminated in wide public discussion regarding funding for all levels of education, resulting in some improvements in elementary and secondary education but higher education continues to be severely stressed financially.

In seeking solutions to funding problems, the Council on Higher Education (C.H.E.) has shown particular concern for "duplication" of programs. There are duplicate programs in many fields, but the health professions, law and engineering stand out because they are expensive. In late 1982, the Council engaged the services of MGT of America, a Jacksonville, Florida consulting firm, to look at professional education. Apparently due to budgetary and time constraints, the study was done quickly with little on-site investigation or data collection. Thus, unfortunately, the MGT report contains many inaccuracies. It is apparent that the report was written with fundamental misunderstandings regarding the purpose and scope of programs and the sources and amounts of budgets.

Despite the haste with which it was researched and written and despite its many inaccuracies which are widely known and easily substantiated, the MGT report is being used by the C.H.E. as the guide for designed programs of interinstitutional cooperation in dental education. Although the report contains recommendations about professional programs in medicine, dentistry, law and engineering, only those pertaining to dentistry are being acted upon by state educational planners and governing bodies.

Both Drs. Singletary and Swain have worked hard to comply with the spirit of this inadequate, incorrect study without seriously compromising dental education in the state. In response to the MGT recommendation to merge the two schools at one site, i.e., to close one school, the presidents have proposed a plan to retain both institutions as separate entities but to reduce operating expenses by sharing resources including specialty programs and faculty. The presidents' plan also includes provision for a 'blending' of curricular programs at pre- and post-doctoral levels, common recruiting and admissions procedures, similar tuition and for combining continuing education into a single unit. There has also been a permanent committee formed to monitor the state's dental personnel needs and to make recommendations on total enrollment. The presidents' plan was submitted to the C.H.E. in September of 1983 and was heralded by both the Council and the press as the dawn of a new era in interinstitutional cooperation; an agreement that could serve as a prototype for all types of future cooperative efforts in higher education.

The faculties of both colleges met in Louisville with Dr. Swain in early December, 1983, following which committees were formed to study and develop ways for sharing and managing a cooperative plan. The time and effort of a large number of faculty was expended in development during the Spring semester of 1984. Implementation of a portion of the plan began in June although a large component, primarily concerning pre-doctoral education, has yet to be finalized and put in operation. Parts which were implemented include agreements made by the presidents concerning shared chairmen, distribution of speciality training programs, and creation of a unified continuing education program. Negotiations continue on common admissions policies and procedures. No action has been taken on a variety of academic issues.

It is time to step back and assess the impact that the agreements for shared chairmen, speciality program distribution and unified continuing education are having on our college. With experience, we have become wiser and problems that were not apparent as we all worked to implement the presidents' proposals are now emerging. What has been gained by this experiment to date?

The dental colleges at both Universities, in their efforts to carry out the agreements made by the presidents and to help solve some of higher education's financial problems, have gone through a very serious introspective study. It has given us the stimulus and opportunity to develop a data base and thus to look seriously at our efficiency. This introspective study is about the only positive result to date. This period of introspection has been accompanied by in-depth comparisons between the two institutions. These comparisons have revealed that there are fundamental philosophical differences in the approach to dental education at our college and the School of Dentistry of Louisville. Both schools produce educated, qualified practitioners but by very different approaches. Our philosophy and curriculum were developed in the early sixties based on recommendations of the Committee on Curriculum of the American Association of Dental Schools and the Kentucky Conference on Dental Curriculum. Those efforts brought about an innovative, diagonal curriculum that served as the model for curricula in the many new dental schools that followed UK. Our college has continued to be innovative and continues to lead in pre-doctoral curriculum development. Louisville, on the other hand, has maintained a more traditional approach, that is, two years of primarily academic activity followed by two years of predominantly clinical activity. These fundamental philosophical differences preclude close coordination of the two institutions unless one or the other modified dramatically its approach to dental education.

What specific problems have resulted from this agreement?

There are now three shared department chairmanships. Two are chaired by UK faculty and one from UL. The three gentlemen receive an additional $5,000 per year plus travel and living expenses. All three appointments immediately filled preexisting vacancies in chairmanships - 2 at UL and 1 at UK. The two departments at Louisville were in disarray when the joint appointments were made. As a result, the Kentucky chairmen have spent extra time in Louisville (one in excess of 40% F.T.E.) and have taken other faculty and graduate students with them to get the teaching done there. At the same time both have had to recruit new faculty for Louisville which has an accreditation review in the Spring of 1985. Administrative problems at Louisville had not only created faculty and departmental problems but had delayed efforts to prepare for accreditation. The Kentucky joint chairs have been making a great effort to prop up the Louisville program in preparation for accreditation but at a very great price in teaching and patient care here at UK.

A second problem that has arisen concerns the distribution of dental specialty graduate programs between the two institutions. Before the agreement, UK had post-doctoral programs in pediatric dentistry, periodontics, orthodontics, oral surgery and general practice. The programs in periodontics and orthodontics both offered an M.S.D. through The Graduate School in addition to the certificates awarded by all five specialties. As a result of administrative decisions that are still unclear, our strong, nationally-known, M.S. and certificate program in orthodontics has been eliminated. All graduate education in orthodontics is now based at Louisville. So far as we know, this program was traded without any concurrence by faculty in our college or by the Graduate Faculty or the University Senate. Louisville had three post-doctoral programs and now has a total of five post-doctoral programs as a result of the distribution agreement. We have four, a net loss of one. There does not appear to be any academic basis for these decisions.

Finally, the combined Continuing Education program is in financial trouble. What had been an independent, self-supporting C.E. program at UK is being dragged through red ink as a result of the integration mandated by the cooperative agreement and negative reaction from the practicing community. The combined C.E. program has also required additional administrative effort by a UK chairman who serves as Director of the combined program, thus diluting his time for departmental responsibilities at UK. This is another example of the combined program being substantially less than that which had existed at UK before merger.

In the opinion of many of us who have to work daily with their effects, these changes have done little to strengthen our college and, in fact, are compromising our nationally recognized, innovative dental curriculum. Our strength is being slowly but inexorably drained by the physical and psychological effects of an agreement that many of us see as entirely too one-sided. We have yet to see, nor can we foresee much to strengthen our program. UL has already reaped benefits in terms of infusion of leaders from UK at the administrative and teaching levels and by the acquisition of sole rights to the prestigious, lucrative orthodontic graduate program. UL is also benefitting from the efforts of President Swain to boost faculty morale and to upgrade the school image by earmarking $750,000 to refurbish their physical plant over the next three years. This money will undoubtedly soften the effects of the C.H.E. mandated $600,000 reduction in state money for both ULSD and UKCD.

While we realize that the agreement forged by the presidents was done with the intent to preserve both Colleges of Dentistry, many of the arrangements were worked out rapidly, with little study and, unfortunately, with little consultation with University academic bodies like the Senate which the Governing Regulations of the University gives responsibility to, (i) determine the broad academic policies of the University and make regulations to implement these policies, (ii) approve all new academic programs, curricula and courses and (iii) recommend to the President on the establishment, alteration and abolition of educational units in the University.

There is talk of other colleges having shared programs. The press and the public are watching the dental school sharing experiment as a prototype for other shared programs. It is time for the Senate in its role as representative of the entire faculty to evaluate the project before it proceeds further.

You need to determine: 1) the effect of shared chairmanships on the quality of educational programs, 2) the impact of shared chairmanships on faculty development and research, 3) What it has cost in real dollars and quality of programs? 4) What it has cost in faculty morale and it would also be instructive for you to assess the potential impact a similar model would have on teaching, education and research in your own colleges?

The University of Kentucky has been identified as the Flagship University with a statewide mission. As such it has the responsibility to provide programs that are deemed necessary to meet higher education needs. The University is looked to for the comprehensive programs to carry out education, research, and service for the Commonwealth. The Albert B. Chandler Medical Center of this University meets the challenges in health care. The College of Dentistry has met that challenge and has striven to accomplish its state-wide mission. The Senate Council in an October, 1983 letter to the Executive Director of the Council on Higher Education identified the quality and breadth of the College of Dentistry programs and their contribution to the University of Kentucky. The Council went on record stating that it '...strongly support the position that the College of Dentistry remain an integral college with the University of Kentucky.'

Mr. Chairman, I urge you and the Senate to direct the Committee on Academic Organization and Structure to immediately study the presidents' agreement and to direct the Committee to report to the Senate and the entire faculty the impact of that agreement on the academic policies and programs of this University. It is imperative that this be done before July, 1985 when another chair at UK may be lost based on the plan generated by the Presidents."

Chairman Bostrom thanked Professor Costich and said he appeared as a result of a petition from approximately twenty senators. The Chairman made it clear that Dr. Costich's statement was for information only and no action was contemplated immediately.

The floor was opened for questions and discussion. Professor Thomas Mullaney read an excerpt from the Administrative Council Minutes. The statement follows:

"The College of Dentistry's Administrative Council supports the College's Academic Council in its internal review of the effect of the cooperative agreement between the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville. In addition, the Administrative Council supports Dr. Emmett Costich's request for the Senate to participate with the academic arm of the College in the continued review and evaluation of the effects of the cooperative agreement as it is implemented." (The membership of the College's Administrative Council consists of the Dean, Assistant Deans and Department Chairmen.)

Dean Packer said the Colleges of Dentistry had been into an agreement since last June and several people had put forth a lot of effort. He said the Academic Council was very supportive of the report. He added that as information came into the administrative "pipeline" corrections would be done to insure continued quality of the program and be supportive of the cooperative agreement.

Professor Applegate was surprised to learn that programs had been discontinued, moved, and modified without coming before the University Senate. His understanding was that there had been significant academic decisions and modifications made and none of these had been brought forward. The Chairman said there was a technicality in that the post doctoral programs may not be the purvey of the senate.

Professor Applegate moved that the Senate Council become actively involved in the process of reviewing the changes that have been made in the dental program at the University of Kentucky as requested by Dr. Costich. He did not object to waiting for a report from the Academic Council of the College of Dentistry. Professor Belmore seconded the motion.

Professor Rea felt it was particularly important that the University Senate and the Senate Council keep their "eyes on" the dental school merger since there was further discussion concerning merger between the two universities on a much larger scale.

Professor Drummond, Chairman of the Academic Council in the College of Dentistry, said the Council supported Professor Costich's efforts to bring the report to the attention of the senate. The Council is in the process of looking into the matter themselves and should have their report in about a month.

As a matter of information, Professor Canon said the Senate Council has formed an ad hoc committee to advise on merger and to draft a statement to the Board of Trustees' committee relating to merger. He was not sure the University Senate, Senate Council and Committee on Academic Standards ought to take up an investigation of the particular details of how the merger is affecting the dental school. Professor Canon felt the Senate Council should wait because he did not feel the senate knew that much about dental education.

Professor Applegate's understanding was that the dental school's report would not be available for a month, and he hated to see the senate wait and wanted to begin immediately. Professor Stanhope supported Professor Costich's efforts. "The College of Nursing shared a dean with the University of Louisville for two years," she said. While it was a favorable arrangement with the college administration she was not certain of the effects it had on the College of Nursing faculty and programs. She was in favor of a committee beginning work very soon. Professor Weil felt the Committee on Organization and Structure could look into, without waiting for the Academic Council's report, better procedures for handling moving, ending, and continuing academic programs. Professor Rea did not feel the original motion had anything in it about how quickly work should begin and obviously the sooner the better but was not part of the motion and probably did not belong in the discussion. The Chairman said Professor Rea's point was well taken and debate ought to be confined to the merits of the motion and not when work should be done.

The motion to direct the Committee on Academic Organization and Structure to begin work on the issues raised in Professor Costich's statement passed.

The meeting adjourned at 4:15 p.m.

UNIVERSITY SENATE COUNCIL

TO: Members, University Senate
FROM: University Senate Council
RE: AGENDA ITEM: University Senate Meeting, Monday, February 11, 1985. Proposal to change University Senate Rules, Section IV., 2.1.1 (f) Transfer Students.

Section IV., 2.1.1 (f) of the University Senate Rules describes procedures for admission of transfer students. The rule presently reads:

IV. 2.1.1 Transfer Students

Students at other colleges or universities, including UK Community Colleges will be permitted to transfer to the University of Kentucky if they meet one of the following criteria:

1. A student who would have been accepted automatically at UK at the time he/she entered another institution will be allowed to transfer at any time to UK provided that he/she is in good standing at the other institution.
2. A student who would not have been automatically accepted but has completed 24 semester hours and achieved a cumulative GPA of 2.0 at another institution will be allowed to transfer to UK.

The proposed changes were developed by the Committee on Admission by Exception, and approved for recommendation to the Senate by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and the University Senate Council. It is recommended to the Senate that number 1. above be changed to read as follows:

1. Students who would have been accepted automatically at UK at the time they entered the first institution attended will be allowed to transfer at any time at UK provided that they (a) have a cumulative GPA of 2.0 or better for all college and university work attempted, and (b) have a cumulative GPA of 2.0 or better for all work attempted at the last institution attended.

of your first institution where 12 or more hours have been attempted

Page 2
Senate Agenda Item
IV., 2.1.1 (f) Transfer Students

Rationale:

1. Different institutions interpret "good standing" differently. We should define specifically what we interpret good standing to be so that all transfer applicants know exactly what out requirements are.
2. The criteria are written as if a student attended one other institution before applying to UK as a transfer student. This is usually not the case, and the criteria should be rewritten to reflect clearly what standards a transfer applicant who attended one or more "other institutions" must meet to be accepted at UK.

Implementation Date: Summer Session, 1985.

Dear Dr. Bostrom:

I have received a copy of the proposal of Dr. Robert A. Altenkirch for a change in the criteria for transfer student admission. The proposal makes some desirable clarifications of the policy.

I wonder though if more consideration ought to be given to the weight attached to the student's record at the last institution attended. As the proposal now reads, we would not admit a transfer student who had two years at Stanford with a 4.0 average, followed by a single course with a D at Morehead State. Perhaps a statement could be added indicating that the Committee on Admission by Exception will consider special circumstances for students with good records overall. For example, the following sentence could be added to the criterion for students who would have qualified originally for automatic admission:

"If the student's cumulative GPA is 2.0 or better for all college and university work attempted but below 2.0 at the last institution attended, the student may be considered for admission by the Committee on Admission by Exception, which may take into account any special circumstances of the case."

Dear Bob:

I have the copy of Dr. Sand's letter dated 5 December 1984 that you sent to me. Sands of course is correct in one aspect of his contention; we should not reject the applicant whom he describes, i.e., the student who attended a prestigious institution for a period of time and accumulated an exemplary GPA only to take a course or two afterward at another institution and not muster a 2.0 GPA. But, the number of such students, I suspect, is few and far between. We should not attempt to write rules for essentially situations that do not exist. If such an applicant does emerge, he can of course appeal for admission as can any other applicant who is rejected. The admissions office may point out this option to the applicant in their communications to him. I urge the Senate Council not to get in the habit of attempting to write admission rules for every possible type of applicant without regard as to whether or not such applicants exist and if so how many.

It might be a good idea to change the language of Rule IV 2.1.1(d) Admission by Exception to indicate more clearly that any applicant rejected can appeal, i.e., those not automatically acceptable, those not chosen from the rank-order pool, transfer applicants rejected, etc. Also, the positioning of IV 2.1.1(d) should be after IV 2.1.1(g) so that it appears after the last admission criterion listed. Such a change would in some sense accommodate Dr. Sand's point, but I think it would be a mistake to add the specific language that he suggests. There are simply too few students of this type about which he is worried; they are best handled on an individual basis as we now handle handicapped applicants, veterans, non-traditional applicants, etc. without specific reference to them appearing in the Senate Rules.

Sincerely,

Robert A. Altenkirch
Chairman
