EUBANKS ASKS THAT NEGROES BE ADMITTED

Says UK Policy Denies Admission Because of Color

Charles Lomont Eubanks 17-year-old Louisville Negro seeking admission to the engineering college of the University, asked the Federal District court Saturday to issue a permanent injunction restraining University officials from "refusing to admit qualified Negroes to the University solely because of race or color."

The court was asked to enter a judgment stating that the University's alleged policy of refusing admission to Negroes solely because of race and color "is a denial of the equal protection of the laws guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution and therefore is unconstitutional and void."

Five thousand dollars damages against Leo M. Chamberlain, registrar of the University, was asked by Eubanks for injuries allegedly suffered as a result of his denial of admission to the University.

Cats Ruin Muskie 'T' Party With Handy 21-6 Trouncing

By JOHNNY CARRICO Kernel Sports Editor

Xavier served up a wet brand of "T" Saturday afternoon on Corcoran field for its homecoming guests but it was the Kentucky Wildcats who did most of the celebrating as they handed the Muskies their first loss of the season 21-6.

The Wildcats scored twice in the second quarter and once in the third. Two of the counters came on passes to Noah Mullins and the other six made by Claude Hammond on a plunge through the line.

YM Discussion Groups Will Begin Tomorrow, Be Held For Six Weeks

21 MEETINGS HAVE SPEAKERS

General Subject Based On Lectures By Arthur Rugh

The annual YMCA discussion group program will begin tomorrow night in all fraternities and several independent groups. Winfred Ellis, chairman of the program committee, announced yesterday.

WINFREDELLIS
Will direct this year's YMCA discussion group program.

The program, members of the faculty and other University officials visit the group assigned to them for a brief informal discussion of religious subjects.

The general subject for this year's discussions taken from a series of lectures, entitled "Can Christianity Win?", given by Arthur Rugh in a Chinese university.

Six meetings are scheduled for each group. A meeting will be held each week, except the week preceding Thanksgiving.

The groups and their leaders, as of yesterday afternoon, follow: Alpha Gamma Rho, Dr. Jesse Hermann; Alpha Sigma Phi, Dr. Harry Best; Delta Chi, Dr. John D. Delt; Phi Delta, Dr. Charles Barkebus; Kappa Alpha, Dean M. M. White; Kappa Sigma, Prof. L. Dantler; Lambda Chi Theta, Prof. H. H. Downing; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Dean H. H. Hill; Sigma Phi Epsilon, Dr. John Muller; Triangles, Dr. Otto Koppfus; east-Corcoran hall basement, Prof. Glenn Clark; Alpha Tau Omega, Dr. William H. Pittman; Breckinridge hall basement, Russell Patterson; and South Breckinridge, J. S. Horine.

Organized in 1929, the discussion group program is original with the college YMCA. The University has maintained its record each year of having the best attendance percentage of any college YMCA discussion group in the south, Ellis said.

Last year, 39 groups were organized and 25 completed the six discussions. An average weekly attendance of 457 of the total enrollment of 699 was recorded.

Mullins made a first down on the four on a pass from Allen to Mullins. On the next play Allen heaved to Mullins over the top. A Kentucky offense nullified Jones' first attempt, but his second try was good.

RELATED DRIVE

With Kentucky reserves moving in and out, Xavier began a belated offensive drive that was halted by Bob Beeler's pass interception of the one. The Muskies came back, however, and within three minutes left Goodrun to the three on three plays. From here Stuskarovich scored over left tackle. Donado's try for the extra point was blocked. Xavier never threatened the Wildcats and was apparently outclassed. The highly-touted T-formation, which had earned them four straight victories, did not function well in the mud, and the Muskies often reverted to the Notre Dame box. The Kentucky defenders found neither formation difficult to solve and, for the most part, held the Muskies back to slight gains.

Kentucky, on the other hand, gained vociferously over the tackles and yardage through the West Virginia fullback also performed capably in backing up the Big Blue line. Good defensive performances were turned in by Bob Beeler, Jack Casner, and Clark Wood.

Jim Arata and Benny Washer were the Muskies' mainstays on the defense. Stan Euse, a sophomore wingback, showed potentialities as a pass receiver.

Mullins Jones, Allen, and Hammond were the Kentucky stars. Hammond, in the starting lineup for the first time this year, showed remarkable drive in making Muskies' tacklers miserable. The West Virginia fullback also performed capably in backing up the Big Blue line. Good defensive performances were turned in by Bob Beeler, Jack Casner, and Clark Wood.

Don't Forget About The Other Guy

The joke column of a college paper in a nearby state last week carried the following: "How perfectly splendid to think you're one of the heroes who went over there to die for your country."
"Like hell I did man; I went over to make some other guy die for his."
It's funny when you first read it. But it also carries a sobering thought.
War is a funny thing. Each side is firmly convinced that its side alone is clearly in the right.

History has repeatedly shown that wars are the result of governments—a few individuals—rather than concerned acts of whole peoples. This country is edging into war; a majority favor aid to Britain, Russia, etc., against the German and Italian governments.
Up to the present feeling has been directed against governments. But there are appearing now traces of antagonism toward races and nationalities as a whole, just because the people are inhabitants of a particular region.
Governments can be and often are wrong. War is a drastic check, but presumably at times the only possible one. However, may the American people remember that human nature doesn't change, consequently humans are pretty much the same—down inside—the world over.

We as a nation may be in for a war. Can we still save ourselves from the eventual shame of racial hatred?

Aftermath Of An Editorial

Friday afternoon, after The Kernel editorial about Tschaiakowsky's Piano Concerto in B Flat Minor, we are informed, the piece was requested in the Carnegie music room four times. The Romeo and Juliet overture was asked for a couple of times, and in all, Brother T had an exhausting afternoon.
As a result, some of the regular customers of the music room, including several who care not a bit for Tschaiakowsky, have been given their hard status and have asked us to make it known that there are several other writers of classical music.
We are glad to pass this information on.

Behind Scenes With The SGA

Amendment Is No Politician's Toy But An Important Shakeup In SGA

The front page announcement in last Friday's Kernel is probably the first that 90 per cent of the student body at the University has heard about the proposed and much-needed SGA constitution amendment.
But behind the scenes in the story of five months of work and consideration by several persons much concerned with the future of the SGA.
It is the story of recognition of several glaring weaknesses in the framework of the Student Government Association and its honest attempt to do something about them.
It is the story of an amendment undertaken just to pass the time away or to occupy campus politicians during an idle hour.
AMENDMENT NEEDED
For a year now it has been obvious that the SGA is suffering from several ailments, although no one could figure out the best way to cure them.
The tangled-up committee system, decentralizing most of the work of the SGA, was proving a distinct hindrance to the smooth functioning of the body, the groups were cumbersome, hard to get together. Some of them were practically useless, others impotent. (The Liaison Board—whose function is even yet hazy—has never met since the SGA was organized two years ago. Its money shall be expended but not met at all last year.)
The financial set-up has always been a menacing nigger-in-the-woodpile. (Last year the budget of the student monies, supposed to be completed a few weeks after the opening of the school, is not fully drawn up and approved until the second semester. The books, supposed to be completely closed up with a financial report at the end of the year, were not finished until this fall.)

HAZINESS NOTICEABLE
Noticeable through all the SGA's history has been a haziness as to who was in charge of what, who has been responsible for what, how should the budget be carried out?
It has usually ended with the president taking most of the blame for his studies and school work, and to the inefficiency of the work itself. The press has had a hard time. And above all has been the leadership committee set-up, requiring continual election of the president, and time taken from more important duties.
CLEARNESS HOPED FOR
It is hoped that the proposed amendment will help clear up much of the middle complexity with the SGA in the past. It is a sweeping move, almost completely throwing overboard the old committee system and giving much more responsibility to the president. Under the proposed new system, the president will make all appointments of the departments, carrying on the cabinet of the President of the United States. The administrative heads will be responsible to him and he will have a close check on all activities of the SGA.
The new system will do away

Proposed Amendment

The proposed amendment follows:
Articles 1, 2, 6, 9 and 9 are hereby abolished, and the following articles shall take the place of 1 and 2:
ARTICLE I
1. The SGA shall have the power to regulate the financial matters of the student body.
2. A budget shall be adopted by the Student Legislature for the expenditure of all SGA funds, and all other funds under its jurisdiction, which shall go into effect as soon as approved by the President of the University. No money shall be expended unless approved by the Student Legislature, either in the budget or in a special appropriation.
3. Expenditures shall be made upon the approval of the Student Treasurer and the President of the Student Body or his representative.
4. All student organizations having accounts in the Organizations Fund shall deliver audits and accounts of funds into the hands of the President of the Student Body or his representative, with the expenditures and financial condition of the SGA, shall be published at the end of each semester.
ARTICLE II
1. The SGA shall have the power to regulate the social activities of the student body.
2. The legislature shall have the power to create and abolish administrative departments, the officers of which shall be appointed by the President of the Student Body with the approval of the Student Legislature and shall be responsible to him.
3. Any officer of any administrative department, upon the request of the members of the Student Legislature or its committees to answer questions pertaining to his office.
4. Heads of departments shall be allowed to debate, but not to vote, on any question pertaining to their respective departments which may arise in the Student Legislature.
5. Nothing contained herein shall hinder the Student Legislature from appointing committees to advise and investigate any department or tributary of the SGA. (On each such committee shall be a representative of the Student Body or his representative with the rank of Associate Professor or above.)
ARTICLE XIII
Any person holding any SGA office shall be removed from office upon a 2/3 vote of all the members of the Student Legislature.

Musketeer Shoots A Blank

College journalists are often wrong; often too glib on subjects about which they know nothing, often confused and confusing, often mistaken in their facts and often guilty of bad logic.
They write for the world's most critical reviewers, and they expect criticism, sometimes even bitter criticism.
If they can't take it, if they get mad about it, if they muffle their tongues because someone is offended they'd better either turn their attention to newspaper make-up and quit banging a typewriter, switch to fashion reporting or just throw it all to hell and transfer to another college.
The better ones, however, don't do this. They hold their tempers and stick with it, rise out of their successes and profit by their mistakes.
They are, as I say pretty immune to the jibes and gripes of their reading public. About the only term you can brand them with and make them furiously flaming mad is 1941's foremost witch-word—'radical.'
That libelous brand they abhor. It doesn't brand them, really; it brands its user as a petty cheap, unoriginal, lazy thinker who ought to be out digging a ditch or washing dishes for a ditch-digger. Instead of wasting the time of his readers and professors, who are trying honestly to teach and to learn to be leaders and scholars, the funny thing about it is that this great, lethargic mass of people

In Which Furiosity Almost Kills A Cat

CONFUSCHIA SAY BY JOSEPHINE BELL
The new Guignol production, "Philadelphia Story," seems to have in the cast two shooting stars, an irresistible force. Though Mr. Fowler was reticent, he did say that the irresistible Mr. Leslie Betz, who plays the part of Sandy Lord in the production, has no belief in architecture strikes about the stage, walking through immovable objects without any sense of frustration whatsoever. Just walks through a wall same as a doorway. Ah, what a wonderful thing it is to be free!
As for the shooting stars, every one with any powers of observation knows that Messrs. Dantler and Dupre can move faster than any other two members of the faculty. Mr. Dantler can shoot into his office and write down a "C" before you could say "South Carolina Beans!" And Mr. Dupre has been seen by the dean's early light shooting into the library with such rapidity that one wondered if he weren't oversteering the general load.
We are trying our best to be mean about this because one Mr. Dantler threw up his hands in despair and said he couldn't teach us anything.
"You argue too much!" he said. "You evidently believe," leered our husband, when we asked for sympathy, "in stating the obvious with conviction. Husbands are rude!"
And did Mr. Dupre have to be so waddy, waddy, confident, the day we were feeling abashed-minded, because, of course, it was pure abashed-mindedness. We're not going to admit it.
"You've read that book, Mrs. Bell?" he asked. "And how did you find it?" he asked.
"Oh, answered Natalie Personified, "in the Frankfurt Library." "Ye gods! A plague on the Frankfurt Library!"
We can think of nothing to be furious about concerning Mr. Betz; in fact, we seem to remember that was once, long years ago, really very nice to us at a dance. But we sort of wish he hadn't been. It's so much more fun to be furious!
We can guess what you're thinking, Mr. Betz:
Furiosity killed a cat!

America Firsters! Should Be Arrested For Carrying Concealed Weapons

I WITNESS BY BOB BAKER
It is agreed that one of Hitler's most effective weapons in this conflict is the insidious and subtle one of propaganda, and any secret communication to enemies, or cooperation under the bank of a senator or congressman is no less than the bearing of concealed weapons. Under most laws, it is punishable.
In a national emergency the passing of laws under the cover of the table by individuals who are openly opposed to every policy of the government, while they are quietly quelling Fascism and Communism why should they not be willing to support the administration, can and should be interpreted in only one way. In the last few weeks the ranks of America First have swelled a radical number. The government has taken up their baggage and left hurriedly since investigations of their activities are disclosing anti-Semitism and open fascist actions on the part of many of its members.
Many of the sympathizers who have ridiculed the idea that the isolationists might have a serious idea of opposing the government, are deserting the fold since Mr. Lindbergh, who consciously or unconsciously is following the inexorable pattern of constructing a fascist movement made his speech at Fort Wayne. He indicated that if President Roosevelt would preserve his "dictatorship" by insinuating plans to do away with the free elections. This was so predictable as this is so ridiculous that it does not warrant discussion. Such an outlandish and grotesque prediction as this is so ridiculous that he attempted to do it. If the present folks of those who themselves would like to promote the abolition of free elections. This was accompanied by other hints, jokes, and talk of unjust suppression carried out in a holy air of martyrdom.
He seems to be looking for some excuse to precipitate whatever violence his Hitler Jr. groups are preparing. He even goes so far as to speak of resorting to the spirit that built America to flame upon the government dares to suppress them. The spirit that he refers to is—revolution!
In fact he was further supported in this statement by one of his newspaper allies who said plainly that he attempted to do it. If the president calls off the election it is our belief that there will be an attempt on an actual revolution. If such statements as this are proclaimed openly it is childish to imagine that their privately circulated material of less revolutionary nature.
Serious is defined as the excitement of discontent against the government or conduct which tends to treason but falls short of it for want of an overt act. Freedom of speech does not give them the right to preach revolution, oppose every governmental action and by pro-fascist propaganda, incite to action a minority that can promote great damage through sabotage and other un-American activities.
The real issue we believe is not over the principle of freedom of

Writer Sets Record Straight, Questions 'Super-Patriots'

To the Editor of the Kernel:
The two "Voltaire" answering Bob Baker in the October 17 issue of The Kernel have the right idea but seem to be meshed in the coils of their own uncertain rhetoric. To assume that thoughtless role of a pedantic iconoclast, Voltaire did not say "I do not agree with a word you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." This little gem was paraphrased by E. Beatrice Hall from one of Voltaire's more prosaic statements: "Think for yourself and let others enjoy the privilege to do so too" from his Essay On Tolerance.
Offhand I cannot recall more than two or three instances in which this charming epigram was not trotted out to bolster a dissertation on free speech. In fact the quotation in question has assumed such legendary proportions that today Voltaire's chief claim to fame in the eyes of the American bourgeoisie is his statement concerning free speech: "A democrat" (with a small d) to "sure" appears to have swallowed the party line of the Lindbergh-Wheeler Axis without noticeable signs of indignation for which I must express my profound regret; because the writer has the markings of an intelligent man—a species which, I am sorry to say, is found but rarely on this campus. (John Ed Parzey was one, by the way. Have I missed the Kernel's usual yearly editorial on freedom of the press, Mr. Ammons?)
He shows dillegent bludgeoning "super patriots" and that ubiquitous breed known as the 100 per cent American. God only knows the definition of the latter, but in common parlance it apparently includes anyone from a Klu Kluxer to a lilywhite politician so long as he refrains from telling the truth.
There is one statement of Mr. Baker's for which he has not received sufficient kudos—his rapping and which is hard for even a professing democrat such as myself to understand. It refers to the generalality about the American people being sensible and discerning as "has been proven time and time again." If a proposition was as palpably absurd as this one I do not know where it could be found, unless on second thought it could be the fifteenth amendment to the Bill of Rights of the Constitution of the United States.—The right of citizens of the United States to be tried shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."
I may be misinformed but my spies tell me that this amendment has not yet been read by the inhabitants of the Bible Belt.

'41's War Short On Music

In spite of the recent attempts of the song-writers both here and abroad to create a tune that would reach the popularity of those of the 1941 vintage, no such song has yet been written. No real duty has come out of this war and there is doubt that any will.
All the great songs of other wars, "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie" and "Taps" are all making songs. This war which has been much on the mechanized side does not have as much footwork as other wars and if any music is to be written, it must suit the 1941 vintage, no such song has yet been written.
No song, however could fit such an irregular pattern, not even "Calypso Joe" or "Hut-Sut Ralston." The real rhythms of this war are the cadences of machine guns, air-raid sirens, scattered bursting of bombs, clatter of rumbling tanks and the whine and throb of wings and motors.
These will be very difficult to capture in a smooth catchy beat that the public will take to their phonographs and throats. But if it is to be written at all it is sure to come from this era in which we are still able to sing and dance.

Senior Engineers Are Mechanical, Even In Speeches

By CELIA BEDERMAN

"Front seat driver" is probably the most apt name for a device used at the senior mechanical engineering seminar which does everything but the victim of its direction.

Created by Prof. James May, associate professor of heating and ventilating, the Dale Carnegie substitute stands in front of the rostrum and flashes directions of "articulation, audience, expression, loudness, pausing and stance" at student speech-makers.

The two-by-one-foot mechanism is operated by the professor in charge who sits in back of the room and pushes buttons wired to the machine which light up the desired signal. It was made five years ago by engineering students under the direction of Professor May.

A recording apparatus which allows the student to note improvement in his speech from one semester to the next is also located in the sound-proof seminar room on the third floor of the building.

A moving picture projector and a black board which are used by speakers to illustrate their subjects complete the equipment.

Three Future Foes Lose As Alabama Defeats Vols

Fordham Downs West Virginia 27-0 Vandy Beats Tech

By JIM BROWN

Of the five teams remaining on the schedule, only two turned in victories Saturday while three were going down to defeat.

West Virginia, 27-0, defeated Alabama 7, Tennessee 2, Georgia Tech 7, Vanderbilt 14 in a game involving two of the outstanding teams on the Cat schedule.

Alabama won its first game from Tennessee in four years when they turned back the Vols 2-0 before 28,600 spectators at Knoxville. It was a clear case of Alabama superiority from the opening whistle as the Tide led by Nelson and Salls, swept to the Vols' 14-yard stripe while the game was barely underway. The Vols stiffened, and George Hest sent the Tide to the fore with a field goal.

Shortly after the kickoff the Tide roared down the field for another tally. Salls carrying it over from the four yard line, Tennessee made only one serious scoring threat driving to the Alabama four before being halted. Their two points came when Johnny Bunkley's long punt was grounded on the Tide seven yard line, after which Nelson fumbled behind the goal line and recovered for a safety.

West Virginia, Cat Saturday opponent, added another crushing defeat to its list of numerous losses this year by dropping a 27-0 encounter to the mighty Fordham Ramsday.

Vanderbilt, which handed the Cats their first drubbing of the season, took Georgia Tech into camp by a 14-7 margin. Although the score indicates a close game, Vandy was by a superior team. Tech picked up 17 first downs to 9 for the Commodores, and outgained Vandy 209

Cage Cats Start Net Drills As 20 Candidates Report

Ruppmen Open Card With Miami; Frosh To Report

Basketball practice was opened officially yesterday when 20 candidates reported to Coach Adolph Rupp and Assistant Coach Paul McBrayer.

Of the reporting candidates, three are seniors, nine are juniors, and eight are sophomores. Included among these are three veteran forwards, two seasoned pivot men, and three guards who have seen plenty of service. Listed among the sophomore additions are enough promising performers to insure the Cats a wealth of capable reserve material with which to tackle probably one of the hardest schedules even arranged for the Big Blue. Practice during this week will consist mainly of shooting, dribbling, and passing drills, and brushing up on other fundamentals.

Two Cat mainstays were not in uniform for yesterday's opening workouts. They are Jim King, all-conference center, and Ken England, a veteran guard, both of whom are recovering from colds.

THOSE DRILLING
The 20 men who took part in yesterday's initial drills are White, Tico, Ramsey, Mathewson, Elston, Smith, and Splane, forwards; Brewer, King, Lander, Watts, and Weber, centers; Slaker, Akers, England, J. S. Robertson, L. Robertson, Boehler, Bach, and Adams.

The Cats open their schedule December 8, with Miami, a newcomer at home. Other newcomers to the Cat card are Ohio State, annually a power in the Big Ten, Texas A&M, Washington & Lee, and Georgia. Freshmen practice is set for 7 p.m. Wednesday, it was announced by Coach Paul McBrayer, who handles the yearlings.

KERNEL SPORTS

Sporting Way

—BY JOHNNY CARRICO

It's come to the point, men, where the experts shudder when the time comes to forecast the outcome of a Kentucky game. The Wildcats have become the Mae West of pigskinery, so often have they done 'em wrong.

When the Wildcats opened against VPI, the experts predicted a defeat for the men of Kirwan. The Gobblers, however, were served up to them a king. Then the experts climbed on the Blue and White bandwagon and proclaimed loudly what the Wildcats would do to Washington and Lee. The Wildcats took a holiday and the prognosticators looked sheepish and hastily re-checked their figures.

With the approach of the Vanderbilt affair, most of them waxed cautious and picked the Commodores—pointing out, however, that the score would be very, very close. Some few even chose Kentucky.

The Xavier tilt is easy, they thought. "The Musketeers will win by two touchdowns." One swam named the margin as nine points in favor of Xavier. Again the experts are weeping.

While waiting for the dope on the Kentucky-West Virginia tussle this week, we'd like to make a prediction on the predictors. If things run true to form, the Mountaineers will be installed as 'hot favorites, with little likelihood of Kentucky upsetting them.

Last Saturday a new face appeared in the Wildcat starting lineup. It wasn't really a new face because it was a face that had been around for three years. It was just unfamiliar one that dropped in now and then, when things were pretty well decided one way or the other as far as Kentucky was concerned. The face belonged to Claude Hammond. The West Virginia boy had had a long wait but the time finally came. He'd toiled steadily through the days as understudy to Dutch Ishmael, the Pikeville Plow. He'd worked hard even when "Rough Robert" Herbert was being socked-in as the best fullback prospect in the South.

Claude was bothered by a shoulder injury last season which kept him out of most of the games. But in the closing minutes of the Tennessee game last year, it was Hammond who was hitting the Tennessee line like a tornado and was picking up yardage with the regularity of a mule.

LONG RUNS HELP Z-CLUB WIN 47-0 FROM SOLDIERS

Bell Scores Three In Game Saturday At Fort Knox

Long runs were the feature of the University of Kentucky Z-club's tilt with the Fort Knox post eleven at the army camp Saturday, which the Z-club won, 47-0.

Tommy Bell, who led the Z-club attack with three touchdowns, scored once on a 70-yard dash after a pass had been intercepted, and again on a 40-yard jaunt. Bell scored his third tally on a 10-yard end run.

Randall Hammer contributed a 30-yard sprint and Ben Kessinger, on a spinner, raced 65 yards to score. Kessinger accounted for his second tally on a short plunge and Hammer passed to Tommy Ewing for another. Ewing and John Sandy kicked two extra points and Pete Triplett one.

The Z-club counted 14 points in the first quarter, added six points in the second, and made two markers in each of the final quarters. The Soldiers' attack was held practically at a standstill by the hard-charging Z-clubbers.

Fifteen first downs were chalked up by the Z-club to the Soldiers' 3, most of the latter's coming on penalties.

The Z-squad was handled by Eddie Fritz of the Wildcat coaching staff.

Movies of the Nova-Louis bout were considered dull that only flashes of the knockdown will be shown throughout the country.

Phi Delt Defeat Kappa Sigma To Lead Touch Football Loop

Unbeaten AGRs Lose To SAE; Independents Win

The Phi Delt took over the lead spot in the intramural touch football league last week with a 6-0 win over the Kappa Sigma. Henton scored early for the winners, but the usually high-scoring Phi Delt were kept in check for the remainder of the game.

The Alpha Gamma Rhos, unbeaten in three other starts, were dropped from the lead in league 1 by a determined bunch of SAEs. The SAEs, who had beaten the Phi Sigs earlier in the week pushed across a lone touchdown, and kept the AGRs in check.

Carrigan's Independents climaxed their regular season Friday with a close 2-0 win over the SAEs to run their winning streak to four games. A misinterpretation of the rules caused the referee to call the SAEs the winner, but C. W. Hackensmith, intramural head, awarded the game to the Independents.

DELTA CHIS WIN
The Delta Chis annexed win number three when the Triangles, forfeited in their last three starts, beat the first game of the season to the Phi Delt, ran their win column to three straight with a 4-0 win over the Gamma Tau Alpha team.

SEASON TO CLOSE
The regular season is scheduled to close tomorrow with six teams finishing regular season play. Hackensmith announced that the tournament to decide the campus champion will start Thursday with about eight teams competing.

The tournament will be a double-elimination affair. Each team will have to lose two games before being eliminated from the tournament.

Sports Whirl

By WINDY
On the first play of the Kentucky-Xavier game, Mullins ripped off 16 yards and you could have heard a pin drop on the Musketeer side of the field. Before the half was over, you could hear homecomers drop.

Before the game, one had a little trouble distinguishing the Kentucky and Xavier fans, because they both wore blue and white. It wasn't any trouble after the game. The Musketeer fan looked "bluer."
