That's What I'm Talkin' About

By Helena Handbasket

I have heard people say, “Save the drama for your mama.” Well, I don’t know if I’d go that far, but you have heard ME say “Honey, keep the drama on the stage where it belongs and out of my face.” I just get annoyed when people create unnecessary drama. Maybe that is just a symptom of me getting older, but Mamaw ain’t got no time for that!

Drama that I DO have time for—actually make time for—are the shows that my other half and I have season subscriptions to attend and have for several years now. I am talking about the shows produced by Pandora Productions in Louisville. If you are unfamiliar with what I am talking about, this article is for you and just may change your life—or at the very least, enhance it.

Pandora states on their website that their vision is “Profound relatedness and belonging by and for our diverse human community.” Their mission is one of inclusivity: believing in the transformational power of theater. They say, “To fulfill our vision, we will, with the curiosity of Pandora herself, seek to:

- Entertain, engage, and inspire our audience, our community and the greater human community by presenting bold, cutting edge, and unique theatrical pieces that speak to the Gay, Lesbian, Bi-Sexual, Transgender, and Questioning community.

- Reveal the commonality of all people while investigating the diversity of human nature and particularly the nature of sexual orientation through artistic expression.

- Examine our individual and collective accountability for our society and community, exposing the beauty and dignity of all people and finally

- Ignite and celebrate the unfailing hope and triumph of the human spirit.”

The theater company originated from humble beginnings back in 1995. By 1999, Michael Drury stepped in. “I had dreamed of having a theatre company that presented theatre of social relevance,” Michael recalled. “I struggled for a while trying to make Pandora fit a broader mission, that of social issues, when really all she ever wanted to be was a GLBT-themed theatre.” Over the years she has had several homes. The company moved to the Bunbury Theater for its 2007–2008 season, and then had to move in 2010 to Actors Theater. Two seasons later Pandora happily returned to the old Bunbury, which had been renamed the Henry Clay Theater.

They have five amazing shows planned for this year’s upcoming season and you can purchase a season subscription for $80 (for those challenged with math, that is only $16 per show), or you can buy a single show ticket for $18 in advance or $20 on the day of the show. This year’s line-up will include Passion (music by Stephen Sondheim), Casa Valentina (written by Harvey Fierstein), Choir Boy, The Children’s Hour, and then

closing the season with Psycho Beach Party, by Charles Busch. (Mamaw can't wait... just sayin'!)

Pandora's next production will run from May 14 through May 24, and is called YANK!—it's an old-fashioned musical that is a love song to Hollywood's "it takes one of every kind" platoon flicks and to 1940's Broadway.

Take my advice... attend at least one of these shows. Or better yet, buy a season subscription, because these shows are some of the most professionally produced productions and always feature an outstanding variety of actors.

We have never walked away disappointed after attending a Pandora show. So... hope to see you there!

You can get more information about Pandora Productions by going to www.pandoraprods.org. And when you call for reservations or a season subscription... tell them Helena Handbasket sent you and get DIVA pricing! Pandora is happy to extend a special price on tickets for YANK! (use coupon code: DIVA1) so you can see what you are getting before you buy a subscription. But if you are a new subscriber, never having subscribed with them before, they will reduce the already low regular price of $80 per subscription down to $75 for a regular subscription, $65 for a senior/student early bird price, and for each new subscription (use coupon code: DIVA2), you will receive a ticket to YANK! That's quite a deal. But only if you tell them you are a friend of Helena's! (Discount codes active only for the month of April). Hope to see ya there!

Until next month... love ya'll!!!

I would love any comments or suggestions you might have.

Imperial Court of Kentucky News

By Christina Puse

Greetings, everyone! Between our last big snow, March Madness, and the ICK's fabulous events, it has been a crazy month! If you missed out on some of the opportunities to join the Imperial Court of Kentucky, here's a look back at what we've been up to.

On March 1, Kali Dupree hosted her Candidacy show for her run as the next Empress for the Imperial Court of Kentucky. With the show being entitled, "Our Past, Present, and Future," this was an event for the record books! So many familiar faces and new faces joined us and the community came together to show their support for such an amazing individual. Thank you to everyone who came out to show their love and support!

On Sunday, March 8, the ICK held its annual Falsie Awards at Bogart's Lounge, although this year was a little different. Every year the ICK has held its voting at the annual Coronation Ball; except this year, voting took place at the Falsie Awards. Many of our community's individuals were nominated for awards such as Best Bartender, Emperor and Empress Awards, and many more. Congratulations to all of the recipients of these awards! Before that event began, the community was able to cast their votes for Reign 34's Board of Directors and for the next Empress of Kentucky. On behalf of the Imperial Court of Kentucky, we'd like to congratulate Kali Dupree, your new Imperial Crown Princess and Monarch Elect for Empress 34! From here, Kali will then step up to be crowned as Empress 34 at the annual Coronation Ball which will be held on June 7. Please watch for more information to be released on this event.

Wednesday, March 25, Countess to Reign 33, Diva Lilo, hosted her event for the ICK entitled, "50 Shades of Gay: Sex Edition," at Crossings Lexington. Joining the ICK that evening was AVOL. As Diva Lilo and Empress 33, Christina Puse, asked a panel of drag entertainers questions about sexual situations and sex in general, AVOL was there to educate the community on the importance of practicing safe sex and the risks of HIV/AIDS. Thank you to all who attended that fabulous night!

The ICK has more events coming up and you will not want to miss out on all the great opportunities to help support and give back to our wonderful community! If you haven't already, please join the ICK on Facebook and please our website at www.imperialcourtkentucky.org to stay updated on future events and dates.

“Well, that’s an unusual name for a woman!”

“Like the pine trees lining the winding roads I’ve got a name, I’ve got a name...movin’ ahead so life don’t pass me by”

I got a Name by Jim Croce

Almost everyone knows me as Tuesday. As I began to come out as transgender to my friends and family, it was important to me that people know and recognize the name that fits me best. I spent many years (and several false starts) picking the name that matched not only my gender but also my personality. At the time I came out, I spent a lot of thought about the best way to explain my name and gender, but I did not spend a lot of time thinking about all the places that my name would need to change.

Last fall, I took several trips by air which caused me no small amount of anxiety thinking about everything that could go wrong. The airplane could crash, we could have bad weather, I could miss my connection, and the security agent could select me for “extra screening” because of my identifications. My picture looks like me, but at the time I had not changed by legal name from the one my parents’ gave me (hint: it’s a boy’s name). Although I had no troubles with any of the above, as I was traveling, a businesslike TSA agent glanced at my picture ID and made an offhand comment, “Well, that’s an unusual name for a woman.” At that time, I just smiled and said, “I think my parents were hoping for a boy.” But, that offhand comment started me thinking about a legal name change.

The legal process of changing my name was fairly straightforward. I printed a form from Court of Justice website, took it to the Circuit Court clerk, and then I got a court date. Emotionally, changing my name had some different effects on me that I had not considered. I had always been proud to carry my family name and the name my parents gave me. Changing my name was not meant to disrespect my mom and dad. All of my up and downs throughout life made me the person that I am today. I worked hard and tried to be fair and honest with people and they associated those attributes with my name. Would changing my name erase all of my history, would people think that I was not all of the good things that I had stood for in my life. I was never an unhappy person so I thought “why should I change my name anyway?” I knew that I had to be true to myself, and that meant changing my name.

I still have a lot of work to do with my legal name change. There are so many documents, identifications, accounts, and there may be some things that I have not even thought about, and I am in the process of taking care of all of that now.

You may write me at tmeadows828@gmail.com or follow me on twitter Tuesday G Meadows. Now Tuesday is gone with the wind.

It Gets Better, edited by Dan Savage and Terry Miller

Reviewed By Amy Jo Retucci

The message of this book is a simple one: it gets better. Geared towards youth, the book's series of essays show that life will get better and become something worth living. These are powerful and often much needed words to teens who are questioning. The teenage years are never easy. Add questions about sexuality or gender to the mix and life can seemingly become hell. Issues like bullying, religion, culture, and generally unsupportive families are all addressed by the essay's authors and give teens something to identify with. More importantly though, they show authors who have adjusted and created a life they are happy with. They show it really has gotten better, thus creating a trail of breadcrumbs for teens who want to follow in their footsteps. Copies of this book can be found under the call letters YA, SELF, IDEN or SELF, IDEN in the adult collection.

April Showers Bring... Keeneland, Farmers' Market And Plenty Of Spring Fling!

By Ranada West-Riley

April has always been one of my favorite months. It's like crawling out of a dark hole into the beautiful colors and sounds that scream freedom! In Lexington, April means Keeneland and all the fun that goes along with it. If you have never tailgated at Keeneland, well, you're missing out on a vital part of Lexington's heritage. Keeneland means a day to feel like the uber rich, a day to bring out spiffy clothes and hats and feel damn good while spending money and feeling like a handicapper (this is a person who "plays the ponies" and knows what the hell is going on).

For me, I used to go to Keeneland all the time, especially after I won quite a bit of money once. Once. I certainly lost a whole lot more than I ever won, over time. But, I was bitten by the bug and felt like I had a kindred connection with the horses (always the gray one) and the jockeys (none of whom I even know anymore), and had my favorite bartender and mutuel teller. Usually, about the sixth race I realized I had spent my budget and could bet on one more race, or buy one more drink. The latter would always win out. I should've just stuck to the tailgating. It was always so much more fun! Tailgating on "the hill" is a fantastic experience. Food trucks, music, and fun.

As I've grown a little older... I find myself at the Farmers' Markets more. Weekends seem to be spent working at the diner or working at home. Luckily, the Farmers' Market is just right down the street from our diner and is filled with farmers and produce and all things fun and good. Nothing pleases me more and (shows my age!) than strolling through the market and finding the day's fresh produce for new specials. This is what I proudly find fun these days... Yes, mom, I'm growing up, I guess.

I've included a couple fresh and fun springtime recipes, whether you're tailgating or just looking for something fun to make with fresh produce from our local Farmers' Market.

Strawberry Caprese Salad

- 3 tablespoons white balsamic vinegar
- 1 tablespoon light brown sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1/3 cup chopped fresh basil
- 1 (8-oz.) tub fresh small mozzarella cheese balls
- 4 cups halved fresh strawberries
- Thinly sliced fresh basil for garnish
- Combine all ingredients and serve by itself or with on toast points

Classic Mint Julep

- Leaves from 4-5 mint sprigs
- 2 sugar cubes or 1/2 ounce simple syrup
- 2 1/2 ounces bourbon whiskey
- Mint sprig for garnish
- Place the mint leaves and simple syrup or sugar into a julep cup or Collins glass.
- Muddle well to dissolve the sugar and to release the oil and aroma of the mint.

2015 Lexington Pride Festival

The Lexington Pride Festival is on Saturday, June 27th, 2015
held in Downtown Lexington

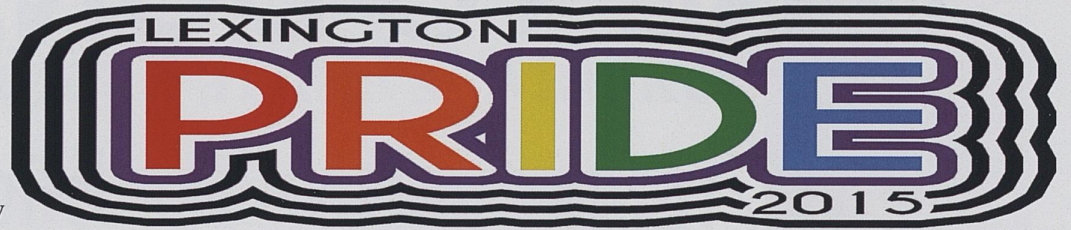

By Chad Hundley
2015 Lexington Pride Festival Chair

Spring has sprung, and the shorts and t-shirts are starting to be spotted all around town. You know what this means, right? The Pride Planning Committee members are finalizing all the plans for the upcoming Pride Festival to be held on Saturday, June 27, 2015!

This month we will be preselling our 2015 Pride packs online. The Pride packs will include: an official Pride t-shirt, 3 selected Pride buttons, Pride koozie, Pride poster, and wristband all placed in an official Lexington Pride Festival polyester drawstring backpack for the low price of $25. So please be sure to place your order during the month of April for this special Pride deal at www.lexpridefest.org. Our limited edition Pride coffee mugs will also be on sale at the Pride events, GLSO Pride center, and Third Street Stuff. There will be a limited amount, so these are guaranteed to sell out as well.

We are pleased to announce SoundBar and Kettle One Vodka as Rainbow sponsors for this year's festival. SoundBar will also be hosting a couple of fundraisers for the Pride committee in May, so be on the lookout for more information about those! We are pleased to welcome SoundBar and Kettle One back as sponsors this year. Without our sponsors this festival would not be possible, so please be sure to support those who support us!

Our Entertainment committee, under the new direction of Mark Johnson, has been working hard finalizing contracts for our performers. We are pleased to announce a couple of them now to you all! Our afternoon headliner will be the amazing soul/jazz/reggae musician Nhojj. A native from the country of Guyana, Nhojj returns to Lexington after performing at our 2010 Lexington Pride Festival and is excited to be back! He was the first queer indie artist to reach #1 on the MTV Hive chart with his same gender loving video, Love, receiving a feature on Advocate.com. In late 2009, Nhojj opened doors when he became the first black male to win an OUTMusic Award: The LGBT Academy of Recording Arts voted Love R&B/Soul Song of the Year. To hear and see more about Nhojj, visit his website at www.nhojj.com.

Our main headliner this year, taking the stage at 8 p.m., will be the all-female band Sick of Sarah. Sick of Sarah is a rock band based out of Minneapolis and has been featured in the popular local lesbian web series Girl/Girl Scene. Now in their tenth year, Sick of Sarah has an extremely busy tour in 2015, and we are so glad that they are making the Lexington Pride Festival one of those stops! You can see and hear more of Abisha and the rest of the girls at www.sickofsarah.com.

We have a couple of exciting fundraisers coming up during the month of April for Pride, and would love to see everyone out for these events. Lexington Diner (one of our proud sponsors) will be hosting a Dine to Donate fundraiser on Friday, April 17, from 7 a.m. until 3 p.m. The address is 124 N. Upper Street in downtown Lexington, and the food is absolutely yummy. Ranada West-Riley, the owner/chef, is also a writer for LinQ. Please make sure you swing by to dine in or carry out on that day.

We also have our annual Mr. and Miss Lexington Pride Pageant being held at Bogart's Lounge in The Campbell House on South Broadway. Our current royalty, Mya St. James and Colton Bacall, will be crowning new representatives that evening, with some amazing entertainment planned. If you are interested in entering the competition, please email pridepageant@lexpridefest.org for the complete application. The doors will open at 7 p.m. and the pageant will start at 8 p.m. The audience will have a part in the pageant, as they get to decide Mr. and Miss Congeniality.

So as you can see, we are nearing the grand celebration day and encourage you to come out and help us by signing up to volunteer for the day of and even before at the events we host. Remember, if you haven't liked up on Facebook and aren't following us on Twitter and Instagram, make sure you do so to keep up with the latest news!

Time For Annual 401(k) Review?

Once you've started contributing to your 401(k) plan and funded it with investments that are appropriate for your needs, you might think you're in good shape and that your 401(k) is now on "autopilot." But that type of thinking can actually be counterproductive, because to get the maximum benefits from your 401(k), you'll need to revise it over time to reflect changes in your life and in the investments that make up your plan. That's why it's a smart move to review your 401(k) holdings annually — and when this year is winding down is as good a time as any to see what you've got, where you've been and where you might be headed.

What should you look for when you review your 401(k)? First and foremost, make sure you're saving enough to help reach your retirement goals — or that you're at least putting away as much as you can possibly afford. Next, evaluate whether your investment mix is still suitable for your individual goals, risk tolerance and time horizon. You might be surprised at how much your holdings can "evolve" without your having done anything to them. For example, during long bull markets, the value of your 401(k)'s stock-based accounts may have risen substantially, and you might find that these accounts now make up a greater percentage of your portfolio than you had originally intended. As a result, you're now taking on more risk than you'd like. Conversely, during a bear market, the percentage of conservative investments in your plan — such as bonds and other fixed-income vehicles — may grow to such an extent, relative to your stocks, that your 401(k) may not be providing you with the growth opportunities you need to pay for the retirement you've envisioned. To prevent either of these scenarios, you may need to periodically "rebalance" your 401(k).

Your life's circumstances provide you with another reason to review your 401(k)'s investment mix. When you begin your career, you may decide to invest more aggressively in your 401(k) because you have many years to go until you retire. Consequently, you have time to potentially overcome the "down" markets that will inevitably occur. But as you get closer to retirement, you obviously have fewer years to make up for lost ground, so you might decide to lower your risk level by shifting some of your assets out of stock-based accounts into more conservative ones. Still, you could be retired for two or three decades, so you will still need some growth elements in your 401(k) to help stay ahead of inflation.

As you review and rebalance your 401(k) over time, become familiar with the rules governing your plan. Your 401(k) might allow you to reallocate your investment dollars as often as you like, but if you change investments too frequently, you could be charged redemption fees. If you rack up a bunch of these fees, you may well end up lowering your overall rate of return.

So, review your 401(k) at least once a year and make changes whenever necessary — but don't go overboard. By making the right moves at the right time, you can help ensure that your 401(k) will be a key element of your retirement savings.
