

Preclassification, Anyone?

Summer school registration Tuesday gave students a chance to appreciate the preclassification system. Here a perplexed student pauses before the crowded College of Education table.

Activities Under Way

Weekly Forum Begins Tuesday

The first program of an all-campus forum will be presented Tuesday and will continue through the end of summer school.

The series, entitled Contemporary Voices in Religious Thought, will be held in the Y Lounge of the SUB each week at 7 p.m.

A watermelon feast will be held on the lawn west of the SUB Wednesday at 7 p.m. Tickets must be purchased by June 20. They are available in Room 122 of the SUB, Keeneland Hall, Bowman Hall, College of Education, or at the Dean of Women's Office.

Thursday evening a folk dance will be held in the Women's Gym beginning at 7:30. The dance will be a weekly event through the end of summer school.

Two Law Grads Receive Awards

Two May graduates of the College of Law—both recently named to the Order of the Coif, national legal honorary—have been selected as recipients of awards given by United States Senator Thruston B. Morton.

John T. Bondurant, Lexington, and Carl Ray Clontz, Mt. Vernon, will each receive a 13-volume set of the sixth edition of the United States Code. Senator Morton gave the books to UK for presentation to the "Two most deserving law students among the top five in the 1960 graduating class."

Bondurant was graduated first in his class with high distinction. The son of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Bondurant, 108 Wabash Dr., Lexington, he was editor-in-chief of the Kentucky Law Journal and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Phi Alpha Delta, professional legal fraternity.

Bondurant, who will practice in Louisville, received his bachelor's degree from UK in 1956, compiling a 3.97 average on a 4.0 scale as an undergraduate and a 3.7 average in law school.

Clontz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lovell Clontz, Mt. Vernon, was graduated from Berea College in 1954 with an undergraduate standing of 3.35. His academic average in the College of Law was 3.56, ranking him second in his class.

An associate editor of the Kentucky Law Journal, Clontz is a member of Phi Delta Phi, professional legal fraternity, and was graduated with distinction. He will practice in Mt. Vernon.

Membership in the Order of the Coif, the highest honor a law graduate can receive, is limited to the upper 10 percent of a graduating class. Clontz and Bondurant were selected by the College of Law faculty on the basis of their academic records.

The selection committee for the Morton awards was composed of Dr. Frank G. Dickey, president of the University, W. L. Matthews Jr., dean of the College of Law, and Prof. Dorothy Salmon, UK law librarian and associate professor of law.

27 Students Chosen For Honors Program

The first 27 students have been selected to participate in the UK honors program which will begin in September. A few others will be chosen this summer.

The students will be enrolled in the University's honors program, which will be started this fall with more than 30 persons carefully chosen from this year's crop of high school graduates.

Purpose of the program is to attract students of unusual ability and achievement to the University and to provide them with special opportunities for further intellectual achievement, according to its director, Dr. Stephen Diachun.

Students in the program will be designated "Honors Scholars," and each will be given the opportunity to progress individually according to his own special talents and interests.

Special advanced courses will be set aside for them and they will be encouraged to satisfy some course requirements through independent study and examination.

Early in their college career,

Honors Scholars will begin work on independent research projects.

High school seniors with superior records are invited to apply for admission to the program. Final selection is based on scores made on the College Qualification Test, scores on other national examinations, high school records, recommendations from high schools, written work, and personal interviews.

Honors Scholars will come to the University a week in advance of other students in order to plan their programs.

At this time they will be assigned special advisers who will work closely with them in arranging course schedules and advising them on other matters.

Participation in the program is on a voluntary basis subject to the continuing approval of the Honors Program committee. In order to remain an Honors Scholar the student must maintain a grade point average of at least 3.5.

While those participating in the program will not be set aside from their fellow students, they will receive special awards such as financial assistance, use of the library stacks, credit for courses passed by proficiency examination, use of an Honors lounge, better opportunity for graduate scholarships, and the opportunity for better positions after graduation.

In order to graduate in the Honors Program, students must write an acceptable thesis or essay, and pass a comprehensive written and oral examination. Students who fulfill these requirements will have stated on their diplomas "Graduated in the University Honors Program."

Students selected to participate in the program include James M. Wheeler, Catherine Byrn Ward, Russell May, Yvonne Hunt, Erick Henson, Dick Eckel, James Lee Congleton, Judith Boxley, and Daniel R. Baugh Jr., all of Lexington.

Jean Carver, Russellville; Hazel Evans, Henderson; Sara Sue Richie, Hindman; Glenn Graber, Ashland; Max Jerrell, La Center; Judith Kitchen, Sadieville; Dorothy Baker, Madisonville; Slade Carr Jr., Park Hills; Robert Dunnell, Valley Grove, W. Va.; and Henry Forsyth, Pikeville.

William Jones, Maysville; Rita Price, Cynthiana; Francis Roberts, Richmond; James Sims, Yancey; Michael Sneider, Bowling Green; Glynda Sue Stephens, Williamsburg; Robert Stokes, Ravenna; and Lawrence Waldman, Winchester.

Other participants will be announced later.

Four UK Debaters Appear On 'Rebuttal'

Four members of the UK debate team were invited by Columbia Broadcasting System in Chicago on June 5-6 to participate on two programs of televised debates entitled "Rebuttal."

The UK team was selected for the programs on the basis of its outstanding record this year, Dr. Gifford Blyton, coach of the team, said.

The programs will be televised in major cities in the United States and WHAS-TV Louisville will carry the program later in the summer, Dr. Blyton said.

WHAS is the only station in Kentucky with facilities to use the filmed shows, he explained.

John Williams, Paducah, and Gary Wright, Bedford, competed against debaters from George Washington University. The UK team debated the negative on the question: "Resolved that federal income tax deductions should be granted to those paying college tuition."

In the second program, Kathleen Cannon, Hopkinsville, and Deno Curris, Lexington, argued the affirmative on the question: "Resolved that the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist Government of China."

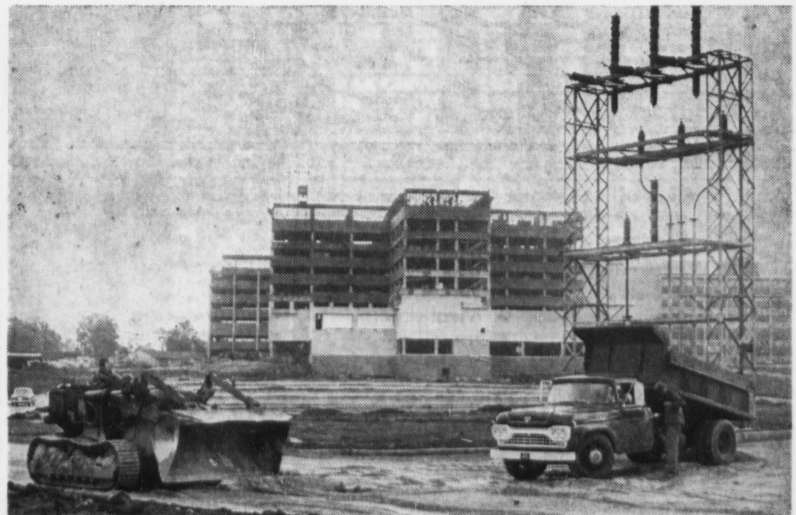

Northwestern University was the opposition.

Opera Tryouts

Tryouts for the comic opera "Die Fledermaus" (The Bat) by Johann Strauss will be held tonight in the Guignol Theatre.

Tryouts for principal parts will be at 7:30 p.m. and for chorus members at 9 o'clock.

The annual summer opera is produced by the Guignol Theatre and the Music Department Opera Workshop.

Construction continues in the Medical Center area in preparation for a late-summer dedication.

Jesse Stuart To Speak At Summer Conference

Jesse Stuart, Kentucky author and educator, will be principal speaker at the 10th annual UK Summer Conference on Moral and Spiritual Values to be held June 27.

The lecture will begin at 10:30 a.m. in Memorial Hall.

Stuart is the author of a number of books, including "Man With a Bull-Tongue Plow," "Taps for Private Tussie," "The Thread That Runs So True," and "A Penny's Worth of Character," written for young people in 1954 and concerned with moral and spiritual values.

He received an A.B. degree from Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tenn., and attended Vanderbilt University and Peabody College. He has received honorary degrees from Lincoln, Peabody, UK, Marietta College and Baylor University.

The conference is being held in connection with a workshop in "Teaching Moral and Spiritual Values," which will be given here from June 15-July 8 by Dr. Ellis Hartford, chairman of the Division of Foundations of Education, and Dr. Charles Manker, College of the Bible.

Ten Will Join UK Staff At Indonesian Universities

Ten staff members who will be joining the University of Kentucky contract teams in Indonesia this summer are undergoing orientation on the UK campus.

All members of the group will leave the United States by early August to become members of the faculties at Bandung and Bogor. Many will be accompanied by their families.

The nine-day orientation period, conducted by the Kentucky Research Foundation, which administers the contracts UK has with the International Cooperation Administration to provide technical aid to the Indonesian institutions, is designed to familiarize the group with the country's geography, language, religion, and culture.

The members will also hear talks concerning the economic problems of underdeveloped countries, historical and political background of Indonesia, and the country's system of education.

Joining the University of Indonesia faculty at Bogor will be Miss Betty Allison, Lexington, technical secretary; Dr. Charles Titkemeyer, veterinary anatomy, and Dr. Raymond F. Johnston, veterinary physiology, both of Michigan State University; and Dr. Fred F. McKenzie, veterinary obstetrics and artificial insemination, Oregon State College.

Traveling to the Bandung Institute of Technology will be Dr. Lee W. Gildart, physics, and Robert

C. Duncan, metallurgy, UK; Dr. Robert H. Miller, botany, University of Wichita; Dr. Robert C. Barnett, biochemistry, ICA, El Salvador; George A. Hinds, architect-city planner, Philadelphia; and Thomas L. Wilborne, administrator, UK.

The new group will bring the number of staff members UK has at Bogor to 12 and the number at Bandung to 19. Five new members will be added to both the Bogor and Bandung staffs by fall.

UK faculty members have been assisting the Indonesian institutions for five years. The aid is expected to continue for another three or four years.

The new staff members will stay in Indonesia for two years. The orientation period ends today.

Nursing Service Workshop Opens

The University of Kentucky College of Nursing offered its first service to nursing administrators on a state-wide basis, when it opened a Nursing Service Workshop yesterday at the UK Medical Center.

The workshop is planned for directors and assistant directors of nursing service only, and enrollment is limited.

The College of Nursing faculty will give presentations and lead discussions on problems in nursing service and methods for meeting these problems.

Miss Jane Kennedy, assistant professor of nursing, recently visited various Kentucky hospitals to learn about problems in nursing administration. Miss Kennedy, who is director of the workshop, said several other workshops would be given throughout the coming year, based on these problems.

The workshop staff includes Dr. Robert Straus, coordinator of academic affairs for the Medical Center; Dr. Marcella Dake, dean of the College of Nursing; Dr. E.D. Pellegrino, chairman of the Department of Medicine; Miss Sue Kern, director of nursing services for the University Hospital.

Football Players' Off-Season Jobs Vary Widely

If you are seeking a Kentucky football player this summer, it will be necessary to literally look high and low.

Although there still remains a great demand for off-season employment, most of the Wildcats and prospective gridders who will enroll next fall will be widely scattered this summer in part-time jobs ranging from work on bridge jobs to toil in a coal mine.

The things that the players do to pick up a little spending money and stay in top physical condition between the end of the school year and the start of fall practice also include construction work of all types, farm work, lifeguarding at swimming pools, truck driving, selling, recreation supervision, baseball, and boat building to mention only a few.

Del Bond, a Stuart, Fla., prospect will build boats for a firm in Miami. Another dozen or so are to be doing highway work or employed by associated firms such as the Lexington Concrete Products Co.

One of the most unusual summer occupations will find end Max Walton working with his father in a coal mine.

Prospect John Yates will sell shoes in his hometown of Bradenton, Fla., while fellow Floridan and future Wildcat Jim Heaton will be a mechanic in a garage.

Kenton Barnett, sophomore tackle from Cynthiana, will work on the farm with his stepfather to keep in shape.

Halfback Don Carson is planning to work at a creamery in his hometown of Oneida, Tenn., while end Ray Schrecker of Louisville has found employment with an ice company.

Quarterback Pat Counts plans to play baseball in a summer league in South Dakota or work in his hometown of Wauchula, Fla.
