Vols Game, Dances To Highlight Homecoming

Scrap Figures To Be Even As Tennessee Hits Stride

By O. C. Hubbard
Kernel Sports Editor

For the 43rd time since the bitter rivalry began back in 1893, the Kentucky Wildcats will pit their abilities against those of the Tennessee Volunteers on the gridiron, when the two teams gather at Stoll Field for their scheduled two o'clock contest Saturday.

A capacity homecoming crowd of 24,000 will be on hand to witness the struggle between the arch rivals. In the 42 previous encounters, the Vols have finished on the better half of the count 25 times, while the Cats have posted only 17 victories. The remaining six games finished the deadlocks.

For the first time in recent years, the Wildcats will carry a better season record into the game than the Knoxville lads. Kentucky already matched its record setting pace of seven wins last year, and now has a chance to establish its best record in modern grid history. The less fortunate Volunteers' record will be only three wins in eight encounters.

Beat Boston College

Of the three wins only their surprise 38-13 thumping of Boston College last week looks as a major victory. The other two being a 6-7 win over Chattanooga, a 49-0 crushing of Tennessee Tech. They dropped their opener 27-0 to Georgia Tech, and their next engagement 14-7 to Duke.

Alabama beat them 10-0, and two weeks later blanketed Kentucky 13-0, while North Carolina was beaten Tennessee 20-6. Since then the Vols have dropped a 43-13 decision to Mississippi U.

Kentucky's seven wins have been at the expense of Tennessee, 20-0; Xavier, 20-7; Georgia, 26-0; Vanderbilt, 14-0; Michigan State, 7-0; Wake Forest, 14-0; and Syracuse, 26-0. The Cats dropped games to Ole Miss, 14-7, and the Crimson Tide, 13-0.

However, the Kentuckians are entering their big game in probably their worst physical condition since the season began. While from Knoxville the reports are that the Vols are in good shape with fullback Earl Chaney back in top form now following his early season appendectomy.

James May Fair

Wallace "Wah Wah" Jones, Wildcat star and who also underwent an appendectomy, is reported back to practice this week. He was able to participate only in light workouts and engaged in no heavy contact work, making him available for only brief action if any this week-end.

In addition, on the billing list are "The Dopes" Phelps, who has not yet responded to treatment as really helped by the coaches. Chuck Browning, Doc Fanning, and Jack "Bobby" Parris went through the week's heavy work in sweat-soaked pads.

First Football Convocation To Be Held

Members of the 1947 football squad will receive certificates of appreciation at the University's first Football Convocation at 3 o'clock Tuesday.

Ed Danforth, sports editor of the Atlanta Journal, will be the principal speaker.

The United Government Association has voted to present the scrolls to the team in recognition of the impressive record established during the current season.

Claude Sprows, SGA president, has expressed his confidence in the team by recalling the list of new records established by the '47 squad. He also commended SUKY upon their excellent work in providing transportation facilities to the Bowl Game at such reduced rates.

Suky Landed

Classes will not be dismissed during the convocation, University officials said.

Spanish Class To Be Held In Mexico

Dr. Albert Wilson Sever is establishing a summer school for Spanish students in Puebla, Mexico, which will be an extension of the University, Dr. Robert Ryland, head of the Romance Language department, announced yesterday.

Advanced Courses Seated

Dr. Ryland said that the school is expected to open next summer and that all advanced courses in Spanish will be taught in Mexico, while the first two years will be taught here. Tuition and the length of the school term will be the same as here, but actual living expenses are usually cheaper in Mexico than in the United States.

Server To Act As Head

Dr. Sever will act as head of the school and housing facilities will be arranged to students or student homes. Dr. Ryland said that to give Spanish majors the opportunity to study among Spanish people.

SUB Ruling Upheld Again

The Student Union Board's ruling against "commercial concessions" being granted to students or student organizations was upheld for the third time this quarter at a board meeting.

Martha Yates, editor of the Kernel, represented Vague magazine, Old Delta Psi publication, at the meeting, and presented a policy she believed would make it possible for the magazine to be sold in the buildings.

Reasons for the board's decision were (1) allowing some organizations to sell and withholding permission from others would result in unfair discrimination, and (2) limitation of space and facilities and storing commodities in the Union.

Board officials said they are of the opinion that repercussions from exceptions to the policy would create more dissension among student organizations than strict conformity.

UK's 'Best Band In Dixie' Earned Reputation In '20's

By Martha Evans

It was way back in the year 1920 that Ed Danforth, Atlanta College sports writer, first dubbed the University of Kentucky band the "Best Band In Dixie."

In Wisconsin, drum major from 1924 to 1926, recalled the incident last Wednesday afternoon over in the Union, which was a recent hot when the spot on the band was originally ground out of the Cracker's scribble's typewriter. It was back in these same good old days that Dean of Men A. D. Kirwan was playing end for the Wildcats.

Mr. Wiseman, as an old grad and a friend of the University, far outweighs the fact that too few of the old traditions remain on the campus.

The band is a tradition. It started before Danforth's classic statement. There is very little personal glory connected with playing in the band. It is "The Band" collectively. One seldom hears a member mentioned individually.

Too often students and outsiders alike overlook the fact that the band boys are band-sacrificing bunch. Nobody pays them for sloping in the mud or freezing in rain or November winds to put on a good show at the games. And believe me, the long, weary hours of practice are no fun.

The band had gone to Atlanta the year Danforth termed them the Kentucky-Georgia Tech game. Kentucky suffered the expected defeat. But before that, the University's band had paraded on Peachtree Street. Mr. Danforth's grand write-up the next day was limited almost entirely to the impressive and colorful parading of the band, and it was in this column that he referred to them as the "Best Band In Dixie." Band director at that time was Sgt. Jack Kennedy, UK coach during this period included "Wild Man" Johnson and two others; six times will remember a man named Burphy and another named Winn.

It was in those days also, that Kentuckians saw a real, live wildcat at the games. Seen in the basement of the old gymnasium, he came to the game in a cage and was handled with a chain and pole.

But on with the band. Up until the fall of 1925 the band was under the direction of the Military Science department. With the coming of Elmer Sillars, present band of the radio arts department, as band leader, the band became a province of the Music department.

Roman Holiday

Mr. Wiseman explained that, in the fall of '25, the band was able to make all the trips with the ball around. This was possible because interested persons chipped into a kitty to finance the trips on the theory that football games are a Roman holiday anyway and the spectacle is not complete without the pagentry of a marching band.

In those days, the University outfit had 85 members and was one of the few college bands, especially in the South, to be uniformed. They wore olive drab of the ROTC department. The blue Uniforms came about 1927 when Walter Jones, present manager of Walnut Springs farm, succeeded Mr. Wiseman as drum major.

For the last game that season, with the University of West Virginia, a game played at Charleston, the kitty was running low. So all the fellows chipped in which furnished money for the trip, but not for Pullman. However, there were two fellows who were whole and bought a lower berth for the trip back to Lexington. They were the piano player, one of the businessmen in the band, and the sousaphone player, one of the smallest boys.

Only 35 cents

When the train was split at Ashland on the return trip, their section didn't go with the rest of the train, and they woke up next day.

Touring Unit To Give Play

Eight ex-GI's and former ETO civilian actresses from New York will present "Oscar Wilde's Importance of Being Earnest," in two evening performances at Henry Clay auditorium December 1 and 2.

One of the first traveling theatrical units of the season, Touring Players, Inc., will make their appearance in Lexington under the sponsorship of the University Veterans Club.

Oscar Wilde, poet, playwright and novelist, was one of the most versatile writers of the Victorian period. He wrote his famous comedy of manners, "The Importance of Being Earnest," in 1895 and it has never failed to win enthusiastic applause in the many times it has been revived. In the play, Wilde delights in satirizing the affectations of the dandy, forlorn young men and the superficial, mannered young women.

Amongst the outstanding players in the company who have appeared in New York and Boston theaters, are Timothy Gordon, Michael Meads, P. Murray, Lambert Blake, Florence Stanley and Annie May Ford.

The former service entertainers' production has been highly recommended by the American National Theater and Academy, a non-profit organization whose object is to stimulate and create more and better theatrical productions in America. Their present tour began around New York City, continued through Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, southern Illinois, and after their stops in Kentucky, will again head eastward through West Virginia.

Special tickets are now on sale at the Veterans Club, at the special price of eighty cents. This is the only place reduced tickets for students will be sold before the nights of performance, with regular prices prevailing at the box office.

Dr. Ubben Discusses German Occupation Problems At Meeting

"The aim of American occupation in Germany is to teach democracy," Dr. John H. Ubben, assistant professor of German who visited Berlin recently, said at the German Club meeting Thursday night.

Dr. Ubben said that Berlin, under occupation is a cosmopolitan city with new newspapers, radio broadcasting stations and entertainment than any other city in Europe. He warned that the effort to teach democracy is hindered by the friction between Russian and other occupational forces in their use of these mediums of propaganda.

Dr. Ubben said that food was scarce with a minimum of bread and potatoes the staple food, and that the scarcity of coal necessitated the blackout in sections of Berlin. He also said that black-marketing is so prevalent that the United States has banned the shipment of American cigarettes to Germany, as cigarettes are the main product on the black market.

UK Denies Smoke Nuisance Charge By City Official

A University official Thursday denied that the University is one of the greatest contributors to Lexington's smoke nuisance.

E. B. Parris, head of the division of maintenance and operations, denied a statement published in the Lexington Leader which quoted a city official as saying the University is one of the worst offenders.

Mr. Parris said that "the stoves in the Quonset huts and temporary barracks smoke when first started, but the smoke clears away in half an hour."

"The University is by no means the worst smoke offender," Parris said.

Students commenting on the charge said the University was a negligible factor in Lexington's smoke problem.

Those expressed the opinion that the tobacco installations and railroads were among the worst offenders and pointed out as proof the amount of smoke that pours in on the women's residence halls.

Donovan Addresses Engineering Group

Dr. Herman L. Donovan, president of the University, spoke on "The Needs of the Engineering Profession" at the engineering assembly yesterday in Memorial Hall.

Dr. Donovan, dean of the Engineering College, presided at the assembly.

Sunday, in Cincinnati, with no clothes but their dirty uniforms, their instruments, and 36 cents between them. The Cincinnati station was practically empty. It was almost noon Sunday. Finally they expiated their plight to the ticket agent who bought their tickets to Lexington. Needless to say, first business was to return the money, with thanks to the kindly agent.

Mr. Wiseman recalled the strict military orders of the day concerning practicing drum majors. "This is strictly a military band," was the standing command.

But it was at a game with Tennessee at Stoll Field that Mr. Wiseman said something possessed him and he tossed his baton over the goal post, strictly against orders. By a fluke, the base of the baton hit something in the grass about six feet in front of the drum major, rebounded toward him, and he caught it perfectly on the bounce. The crowd went wild. They thought it was planned. It was not. The ROTC officer in charge of the band at that time was Capt. James E. Taylor.

The fundamentals for a good drum major hold today just as they did then: knowledge of the fundamentals of marching, precision, pluck, rhythm, and alertness. And do mean alertness. A full drum major can well lead the whole band into the end zone fence if he isn't careful because fellows watching their columns and reading their music don't have time to see the yard stripes go by.

Mr. Wiseman presented some of the most logical reasons for not having majorettes that have yet come. He said simply that they aren't in the college tradition—at UK or anywhere else. He likes them with high school bands and American Legion shindigs, but not at college games. And he should know, having lived for years in Chicago with the football extravaganzas of Notre Dame band.

Students At Poll Confused By SGA Campaign Issues

By Joan Cook and Nancy Gaskin

The freshmen, at least, and to many upperclassmen, the issues of the SGA election were confused and vague.

"Even though the party platforms weren't too clearly stated, they seemed to be practically the same. Since I know people on both tickets, I voted for the ones I thought would make the best assemblymen," this opinion, voiced by John Hancock, was that of almost all freshmen who had given the election any thought.

Uninformed

A poll conducted among a cross section of all colleges showed a large number of students to be uninformed and uninterested in the election. Most of the students questioned blamed poor campaigning for the general lack of enthusiasm on the campus.

Typical of the freshman attitude was the report of Gilda Mark, "I don't know nothin' about nothin'."

Betty Nelson, another freshman bewildered by the sudden appearance of campus politics, remarked, "The freshmen really haven't been here long enough to know anything about the SGA. There ought to be more campaigning to acquaint undergraduates with the student government problem."

No Warning

One junior, a transfer, was interested in the election and wanted to vote, but felt that he shouldn't because he didn't know enough about it.

"This all came without warning," said Ruth Adams, freshman, who felt that the work and organization of the student government should be fully explained to new students before the vote is thrown at them."

Straight Ticket

Most students who were affiliated with the Independents or with a sorority or fraternity voted a straight ticket in support of their party. Few of these students had been told how to vote, but almost all of them had been urged to support the SGA by voting "yes."

Others who belonged to neither the Independents or the Greeks complained that their votes had not been solicited, and that no one had tried to influence them one way or another.

Non-Voters

Who, what, and why? Hundreds of students who went to the polls Tuesday disregarded these questions entirely, and voted either for friends or for the party to which they belonged. Thousands did not vote at all.

HALYARD'S SPORT SIDE SHOW

Featuring Today A Couple Of Problems For The Alums In Their Spare Time

Welcome back to school for the homecoming weekend, you old grads, and now members of the powerful alumni. We certainly hope that you enjoy your visit in the Bluegrass more this time than in recent years, for Kentucky's scrap with Tennessee, has furnished the main homecoming attraction.

And in your leisure moments between tea parties, or after you return home, we'd like to give you a couple of things to think about.

As you all know, the seating capacity of McClure Stadium is far from adequate. At least if you don't know it now, just look around at the game tomorrow and observe the packed stands. Then consider the number of football starved fans that couldn't afford the $20 scalper's price for a ticket to the contest. It has been that way at every game this year with the exception of the Evansville tilt. And if the new stadium hadn't been so threatening more than 15,000 would have turned out for that game.

In addition to playing to capacity crowds in all their other home games, the Cats have either played to full houses when on the road, or have set new attendance records for the stadiums.

We wanted first rate football at Kentucky, and we are well on the way to getting it. Now it becomes apparent that we are fastidiously carrying out a schedule something like Notre Dame only on a lesser basis.

Teams like Alabama who have found Kentucky easy pickings in the past won't take the chance of meeting their records with a new, better capacity crowd of 24,000. If there's a chance of their losing, they want to draw sufficient gate receipts to balance the setback.

Already we have lost Alabama, Michigan State, and West Virginia. And good outside reports have it Vanderbilt will wind up losing to Kentucky next year, and that Ole Miss, Cincinnati, and Georgia are trying to schedule L.S.U. and Navy, but so far they have only Georgia, and Marquette.

Even if they get Navy and L.S.U. on the schedule, in order to keep big teams like that signed to play, the gate receipts are going to be bizzar.

Since Coach Bryant came to Kentucky and started the football machine building, there's been talk about stadium building. But so far only talk has developed. We say the time for action is now, and the people to start the action are the some ones who started the action to rejuvenate the football team—YOU, the alumni.

Kentucky has a football team now, and has just recently received a bowl bid. There's only one thing left to be done—get a new stadium. We do start elaborating the stadium, let's don't fool us like we did on the so-called "new house." And that's the second item we offer you to think about. We are needing two and a half million dollars for our field house, and all we're getting is an elaborate basket ball auditorium and a swimming pool.

And take Michigan State for example. They only spent at the most $1,200,000 for their field house, and it's truly a field house. They have an excellent set-up for basketball with a seating capacity of 13,000, a swimming pool, three regulation basketball floors for practice and classes, plus an enclosed clay court of 172 by 314 feet.

They also have a 220 yards per lap track with 75 yard straight-aways, and facilities for all field events, and it is positioned to have a regulation baseball diamond for infield and hitting practice, and a tennis and golf can also be practiced in the field house in the winter months.

The gymnasium includes such features as: varsity, freshman and college team rooms; lecture rooms; office and equipment rooms; apartment building; swimming, fencing, tumbling, etc.; and every modern convenience for the accommodation of the student.

It's true they built their field house as high as they are now, but prices haven't jumped that much for better and eggs.

Price Boosted On Bowl Trip; Townspeople May Go Now

Tickets for the SUKY-sponsored game between Cleveland and Kentucky Bowl classic Dec. 6 went on sale Wednesday in the Union building at $10.00 each, a price increase of $1.00 over the previously announced price of $9.00. The price increase was announced Thursday or Friday, Dec. 4 or 5. Also contrary to earlier announcements made by SUKY, townspeople may make the trip at the same price as the team.

SUKY requested that everyone planning to make the trip should buy a ticket reserved immediately so that authorities will know how many to plan for before the last minute.

According to Billy Mac Rhoads, SUKY president, the trip was originally intended to be an all-university affair with tickets selling for $15.00. It was believed at that time by limiting the train to students and staff members the trip would be less expensive. However, C&O railroad authorities have since learned from the internal revenue department that the tax must be levied on the $1.50 fare increase and the extra coach for townspeople. Students and townspeople will be placed in different sections.

The student plan organization set 1,000 persons as its goal, but stated that a ticket reserved immediately and cities would be assured to have the maximum number of tickets.

Tickets for the game will be in the $3.00 reserved seat section and will be in the $1.00 section. The $1.00 section will be reserved for the $1.00 per person. Present plans call for every 100 to leave Lexington Friday night for Cleveland and to arrive in Cleveland early Saturday morning. The train will leave Cleveland early Sunday morning Saturday night and will arrive in Lexington early Sunday morning on the return trip.

Fencing Team Coach Holds Daily Practices

This year's fencing team has been taken over by the former UK student and Southeastern Conference champion, Scott Breckenridge. He is recognized as one of the nation's foremost fencers. Coach Breckenridge's father was over 20 years famous in the fencing field, as the older Breckenridge was an Olympic champion.

Eight members of last year's team are practicing under the basketball floor in Alumni gym from 4 to 6 o'clock each afternoon.

Charles Leggett, who started last season in one year became a better-than-average fencer with all three weapons, the foil, epee, and better-than-average fencer with all sabre.

At least six matches will be fought this year with the possibility of more matches. If additional nearby fencing teams are found, two matches each are being arranged with Cincinnati, Louisville, and Charleston, W. Va.

Anyone can try out for the team, and all are urged to. No previous fencing experience is necessary. Those agile persons interested, report to George Christian in the Gym between 4 and 6 any afternoon.

The Kentucky scouls report that with some fair blocking, Hal Laidford, Bob Land, Ronald Greig, meier, Hubert Becker, and several other fast stepping Vol backs can be counted on for steady gains on the ground. And in the air Tennessee is even more potent as was proven last week. Sophomore J. F. Proctor's pitching was almost uncanny in the Vol's win over Boston college.

Coach Mike Baltaris, who has seen him in action in all eight Tennessee games this year, ranks Proctor a close third to Alabama's Harry Gilmer, and Mississippi's Charley Conner.

Seri Captain

Wash Serini has been designated as captain for the Wildcats for the Tennessee game. The big 215-pound tackle from Tusculum, N. Y., will be facing the Vols for the fifth time, and will still be trying for his first win. In his freshman year the two teams met twice to make up a 1944 deficiency. The Vols took the first game, the first 26-13 in Knoxville, and the later 27-7 here. In '45 Kentucky dropped a 14-0 decision to Tennessee on Stoll Field, and last year it cut it to a 7-0 margin in Knoxville.

Back in 1935 is the last date the Kentans came on claim on their side of the ledger. That was a 27-0 triumph. And the Cats edged out by three points 23-20 win. So they are well over on their ten-year cycle, and probably for the first time in many years will be listed as favorites some time.

Cat Clippings

The most dangerous runner on the Tennessee team this season has been a regular end in 1944 and 195-pound sophomore from Bristol, Tenn. "Mr. Strivel Hipp," as he is called down Knoxville way, excels in punting and passing as well. Little-known, also kicks most of the Volunteers' extra point attempts.

Tennessee's 55-year-old coach, Bob Neyland, is finishing his 16th year as head grid tator at the Orange and White. He was born in Greenville, Texas, and later was an outstanding athlete at West Point. Neyland won his letter in football there as a regular end in 1914 and 1915, but his most notable athletic achievements were in baseball and boxing. As a star pitcher for Army, the Texas won 35 games, losing only six, and went 20 straight games before being defeated by Fordham.

Soon after graduating from West Point, Neyland came to Tennessee, and served as a captain in the U. S. Army during World War I. Twenty-three years later, in May, 1941, he was again called by the army. During World War II, Neyland served in the Virginia, and later went to Okinawa, and then to other posts in the CBI theater.

In the 15 years that Neyland has coached at Tennessee, only six games have been lost by the Orange eleven on Shields-Walkins field, and the team has won 119 games. Last 21 and tied eight in those 15 years. This is the first season the Volunteers have lost five contests in one season since they became coach at "The Hill" in 1926.

Returning to Lexington after the Vanderbilt victory, Wash Serini, UK's star, remarked that he was the first time that Kentucky had come back from the south a winner, in all his time with the Wildcats.

On checking the record book, it was found that since 1931, UK has won only three games in playing south of the Blue Grass. In 1932, UK trimmed Georgia Tech, 12-6, in Atlanta. Then in 1934, Kentucky whipped Southeasters in Memphis, 33-0.

The last Southeastern conference game that Kentucky won in the lower south—previous to the recent Vanderbilt win—was the Crimson Tide of Alabama. Harry Gilmer, as usual, is leading the big Red Eye phant toward a possible bowl bid on New Year's Day. If Bama can take UK's conference crown next week, they will almost certainly offer a couple of bids.

Alabama, football, and Hurlin's Harry Gilmer have been springing their net in Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky, but have been an 18-year-

Wildcats Win 36-0; Kittens, 27-0

A game but outclassed Evansville eleven fell before the rugged Kentucky Wildcats, 36-0, last Saturday, on Stoll Field, as 15,000 people saw the Blue and White team capture their seventh victory of the 1947 season.

The purple-shirted visitors from the Hooser State never penetrated beyond the Wildcats' 30-yard line. In fact, Evansville drove into UK territory only three times in the topped contest.

Meanwhile, three Britains in the 1947 season.

With Genito, Jim Howe and Jammerson, lugging the pigskin, aided by a pass from Blanda to Ben Zantrunk, Kentucky scored again at Genito ran the final nine yards for the TD. Blanda converted, KENTUCKY 14, EVANSVILLE 0.

Right Halfback Dick Martin, who slightly set up the third tally with a 26-yard run to the Evansville 19, Odvick, recently converted from a center to a fullback, took over, and three plays later he dashed across with four minutes left in the first half. Blanda again booted the placement, KENTUCKY 21, EVANSVILLE 0.

Shortly before the first half ended, UK made it 27-0. Norm Klein returned a punt from the Evansville 32 to the 49. On the next play, he moved it to the UK 27. Odvick picked up ten more yards. Blanda then flipped a 27-yard pass to Ed Dick Hensley in the end zone with less than a minute remaining.

Blanda's attempt for conversion was blocked.

After failing to score in the third period, the Lexington Lynxmen plunged through the line to score on a quarterback sneak. Bill Leskovar converted and the score at the first quarter was Kentucky 7, Cincinnati 0.

Two TDs in Third

After the intermission, Kentucky returned to the field full of pep and rarin' to go. John Chumley and Bill Leskovar took charge of the ball and carried it down the field until Kentucky was again in scoring position. Leskovar plunged over for the second Kentucky touchdown. He converted and the score stood 14-0.

In the latter part of the same period, Thomas, Leskovar, and Chumley took the ball into Cincinnati territory and placed the Kittens in scoring position.

Chumley took the ball from the Cincy 3 yard line and did a beautiful job of quick springing through the Cincy line to roll into pay dirt for Kentucky. The attempt for the extra point failed and the third period ended with Kentucky leading 20-0.

In the latter part of the final canto, Thomas passed to Larry Flamm who juggled his way over the double line marker for the last Kentucky score. Leskovar again converted and Kentucky led 27-0.

It was the running, passing, and kicking of John Chumley, Odgen Thomas, and Bill Leskovar to whom the victory was attributed. These boys, as well as the entire Kitten team, showed up especially well against the Cincy gun.

Michigan State will begin a home and home series with the University of Hawaii on November 29, when the first win, in his freshman year, the two teams met twice to make up a 1944 deficiency. The Vols took the first game, the first 26-13 in Knoxville, and the later 27-7 here. In '45 Kentucky dropped a 14-0 decision to Tennessee on Stoll Field, and last year it cut it to a 7-0 margin in Knoxville.

Wash Serini, center, who has been appointed captain for the game. Wash has two points to his credit for play. Jay Rhoads, center, who played made him All-American in the conference, and who has scored one touchdown this year. Lee Yarus, guard, sometimes referred to as "The Little Tiger," who has a menace to many opponent backs. Bill Mosley, fullback, whose courage and desire to play football has more than made up for his size as a fullback. He has bucked over 24 punts. Jack Farris, halfback, better known as "Babe," is another one of those determined players. With an average of seven yards per try he has scored one touchdown this year. Second, left, right: George Segel, end, nicknamed "Think," has been a steady at the left end slot both on offense and defense, and has caught three aerials for 27 yards and one TD. Matt Lair, guard, from near by Paris, Kentucky, has pushed his 190 pounds through the line too often to please opposing backs. Announcement from the National Student Association?

'YES!' ... Says Stephenson

By Howdy Stephenson
Bertie Stephenson, newly elected president of NSA, attended the Constitutional Convention of the National Student Association in Chicago, Illinois, on December 15-16, 1947. Stephenson also worked with the Chicago Conference in December and served on the Preparatory Committee for the Kentucky Regional Conference of NSA sponsored by UK SGA last March.

Stephenson's report on the NSA is that he will profit by affiliation with NSA. He definitely does not wish to form his personal opinion on the NSA. He is not sure of the actual affiliation with NSA, but he is very much in favor of the NSA and all members of the UK SGA who have had a chance to read the constitution and the program of activities contemplated by NSA.

American students saw Europe last summer. Several thousand college and university people worked, studied, and attended organizations in Britain and on the Continent. Next summer, if the United States National Student Association (NSA) has its way, at least 10 ships, providing special low fares for students and teachers, will cross and recross the Atlantic. Student representatives from practically every college and university in the U. S. will be given opportunities to study and work abroad.

In addition, NSA, the national organization of American college student governments, will work with the national unions of students in European countries to provide inexpensive, student-organized tours of France, England, Denmark, Italy and other areas.

In a discussion with several members of UK SGA recently, Bill Welsh, Berea College Senior and first president of NSA, explained the program of NSA will be largely dependent on active support of student-governing groups on American campuses.

Affiliation Question Now
Whether or not SGA acting for the UK student body should affiliate with the National Student Association is now clearly before the entire UK student body. Although the vast majority of the student body hearing about NSA for the first time, the idea of affiliating with American students has been discussed by student leaders in all parts of the U. S. for over a year. In NSA has grown rapidly since December, 1946, when 707 student delegates, representing 100 colleges and universities, met at the University of Chicago. The delegates actually agreed to the need for a truly representative and effective American student government.

Pror, Howard Bowles and I reflected UK SGA at the Chicago Conference. The Chicago Conference had been called by the 25 American delegates to the World Student Congress which took place in Prague, Czechoslovakia, in August, 1946. The World Student Congress established the International Union of Students. Although the American delegates were not representative group, the members realized fully their inability to speak authoritatively for the local American student community.

On the UK campus, SGA brought together representatives of 19 different organizations of the UK-Tenn. region, SGA leaders stimulated interest in the subject and laid plans for participation in the coming Constitutional Convention. It was at the UK meeting that Bill Welsh, now NSA president, was elected chairman of the UK-Tenn. region, replacing Howard Bowles who had worked hard for a greater UK participation in NSA. This UK student leadership played a vital role in the formative stages of NSA.

Describes Convention
Finally, the results of a year's hard work by hundreds of American students were to be seen. The challenging tasks confronted the 751 student delegates, representing 1,200,000 students in 351 colleges, who met in early September on the campus of the University of Wisconsin, Madison for the NSA Constitutional Convention.

Several factors operated to make the Madison convention significant and complete. First, the fact that almost every conceivable shade of American student political, religious and regional opinion was represented made it certain that there would be no difference of opinion as various as in America. They found agreement in certain common principles and in an effective program of action to implement these principles.

Notable in this all-inclusiveness is the strong Catholic participation in NSA. Catholic students from Catholic Colleges and State Universities represented approximately 30 percent of the voting strength in the Convention.

St. John Praises
Second, despite the complexity of issues, these things were determined to thrust things out. Robert St. John, noted foreign correspondent, characterized the manner in which students with widely divergent ideas sat down together and worked out a fundamental statement of student principles which is a blend of factiousness and idealism is top news. The NSA convention "could serve as a lesson to the United Nations and the world," St. John said.

List Practical Values
The kernel editors have asked the 64 question about UK SGA affiliation with NSA. Of what practical value will this affiliation be to University students? Here are a few practical measures NSA will undertake: (1) NSA through SGA's will conduct nation-wide polls to determine facts concerning student wages, and their employment opportunities, and attempt to establish regional standards for the determination of fair wages for student employees. (2) Already underaken by NSA, through SGA's, is a program of "student-government clinics," designed to gather and disseminate ideas for more effective student government. (3) A program of cultural exchange, instituted by NSA, will give student musicians, artists and actors the chance to display their talents to other colleges. (4) An NSA vocational guidance plan, attuned to the immediate needs of students, will coordinate information on problems and opportunities of post-college jobs and graduate studies. (5) The National Commission of NSA will analyze legislation affecting the housing of students and will make its reports available to campus SGA's for their action. (6) American students will be invited to American student demands, will represent students wherever legislation directly affecting students is being enacted.

Examples: NSA, as the voice of the American student community, will advocate a program of federal aid to the individual student who is scholastically qualified but financially unable to secure a higher education. NSA will encourage increased contributions to scholarship and loan funds by organizations as well as individuals; will encourage individual colleges and universities to adopt more liberal scholarship policies; will work to increase the amount of educational fees the U. S. State Dept. has granted NSA a seat on the IUS Commission for UNESCO. The whole validity of NSA is based on the concept of co-operation, of association of student governments sharing problems and solutions for the betterment of education and student welfare.

Other important questions have been used to their action. (6) gain control of NSA through clever methods and highly trained students, largely from purporting to represent the student organizations such as American Youth for Democracy, were at Madison, it is likely representative to note that they were decisively beaten on all issues.

Extreme Leftists probably represent less than 10 percent of the total voting strength in the convention. Plans whereby individual campuses would benefit from such a union and a Communist domination was set up to draw up a constitution and a program of activities according to all recommendations made by the convention.

Attended Convention
This represents a summary background of the organization and its objectives up to the time of the Constitutional Convention, which I attended this year at the University of Wisconsin from Sept. 1 to 5. During the panel sessions relating to student governments, to which I was assigned, I had the opportunity to talk to the various representatives of the various parties in the future. In this manner, I was able to secure various opinions and criticisms to be compared with my own.

Charges Disunity
In all the panel sessions which I attended, the most noticeable element was the realignment of the north and south, the larger schools against the smaller. Lobbying by the various parties was rampant during the plenary sessions. It is my contention that no strong organization can be built as long as such disunity exists within its own ranks.

The tenor of the National Student Association at present is anti-Communist. However, there was particularly strong Communist element present from Eastern universities and as official representatives of the Communist party in America. This element was working hard to gain control of the organization through party discipline. The element will continue to function and grow as past actions of such a group have so clearly indicated.

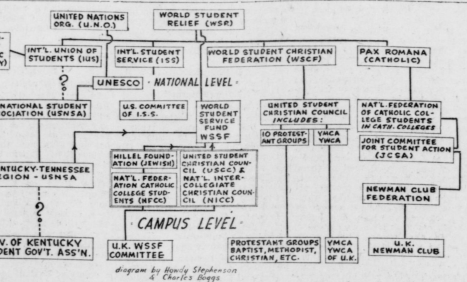

Any organization which can become a channel of information to the large body of American students is a tempting prize for propaganda organizations.

IUS Question
To further emphasize this danger, I should like to discuss the body's move with regard to the International Union of Students.

The report of Panel III on International Activities of the Constitutional Convention of the NSA, Article II entitled "Agreement of IUS Affiliation," Section 6, which reads: "Effectiveness of this agreement and its contingencies," subsection (a) "Subject to the conditions herein-

ference to the copy turned in on Monday.
We would like to offer our praise as members of the Association of Independent Students to the members of the Student Government Assembly for not voting immediately on the issue of affiliation with the National Student Association. Such an action is truly commendable. It is to be hoped that in the future all individuals and all groups will take time to weigh in points brought up in a fairly truthful, impartial, quietly conducted discussion, before reaching any positive conclusions.

By Claude Sprows

The idea for a national student organization was conceived by the 25 United States delegates to the Constitutional Convention of the International Union of Students at Prague in the summer of 1946. At this meeting, the purpose of which was to establish a formal bond among the students of the world, the Americans felt that they could not speak as actual representatives of American students, but only a small section of them. The Prague delegation called together the students of America to see what they thought of the idea of forming some kind of union to create a real American student voice.

From Dec. 28 to 30, 1946, representatives from 300 colleges met at the University of Chicago. They thought the proposition a good one, but, feeling that the purpose of the body need not be speaking for all, they stressed the possibility of such a union here at home. They gave their attention to plans whereby individual campuses would benefit from such a union and a Communist domination was set up to draw up a constitution and a program of activities according to all recommendations made by the convention.

Attended Convention
This represents a summary background of the organization and its objectives up to the time of the Constitutional Convention, which I attended this year at the University of Wisconsin from Sept. 1 to 5. During the panel sessions relating to student governments, to which I was assigned, I had the opportunity to talk to the various representatives of the various parties in the future. In this manner, I was able to secure various opinions and criticisms to be compared with my own.

Charges Disunity
In all the panel sessions which I attended, the most noticeable element was the realignment of the north and south, the larger schools against the smaller. Lobbying by the various parties was rampant during the plenary sessions. It is my contention that no strong organization can be built as long as such disunity exists within its own ranks.

The tenor of the National Student Association at present is anti-Communist. However, there was particularly strong Communist element present from Eastern universities and as official representatives of the Communist party in America. This element was working hard to gain control of the organization through party discipline. The element will continue to function and grow as past actions of such a group have so clearly indicated.

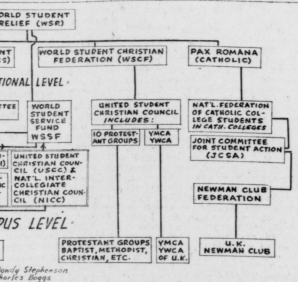

Any organization which can become a channel of information to the large body of American students is a tempting prize for propaganda organizations.

IUS Question
To further emphasize this danger, I should like to discuss the body's move with regard to the International Union of Students.

The report of Panel III on International Activities of the Constitutional Convention of the NSA, Article II entitled "Agreement of IUS Affiliation," Section 6, which reads: "Effectiveness of this agreement and its contingencies," subsection (a) "Subject to the conditions herein-

ference to the copy turned in on Monday.
We would like to offer our praise as members of the Association of Independent Students to the members of the Student Government Assembly for not voting immediately on the issue of affiliation with the National Student Association. Such an action is truly commendable. It is to be hoped that in the future all individuals and all groups will take time to weigh in points brought up in a fairly truthful, impartial, quietly conducted discussion, before reaching any positive conclusions.

will have to be provided by the students enrolled in the University as well as the expenses for delegates to regional conferences. Combined with national dues, students at the University of Kentucky will have to pay at least $1,000 annually to participate in the minimum amount of support of the organization. The only ones on the campus to be benefited materially will be those who personally attend the convention.

Solve Local Problems
It is my contention that our problems are local and are immediate and that we have the caliber of students within our University who are capable of recommending and working in the solution of our campus problems as are the students in any of the other colleges in the country. Our own Public Relations Committee can seek out problems on our own University of Kentucky.

Objects On Fee Basis
I further disapprove of NSA fees to be used in its support. Unless the NSA becomes incorporated whereby any financial liabilities be assumed by any of its participating member institutions will be specifically limited, to the extent of its own contribution, the entire project may be legally determined to be a partnership, a joint venture, or an association for which each member institution may be liable for any and all debts of the organization as a whole.

The National Headquarters of the NSA has been established by the Convention at Madison, Wis. The employed officers of the organization, including its president and vice president, department affairs, and its secretary, are to operate out of Chicago; its treasurer out of Buffalo, and its president in charge of international affairs out of Hartford. Then, where and in whose name are all funds of the NSA to be deposited and who is to be authorized to sign all the checks withdrawing any money from the treasury of the NSA? And, exactly upon whose specific written approval and authorization will bills of the NSA be paid?

Not Isolationists
I, in no sense of the word, advocate isolationism. On the contrary, we are daily exchanging ideas with other student government groups and organizations in other universities throughout the United States. Our Public Relations Committee has been set up exclusively to promote the activities of SGA and its endeavors with other universities. We are receiving encouraging results from the work of this committee which will dispense any talk of isolationism.

If we were a permanent group, like the faculty, and not constantly changing, then I could understand how a strong group of students could be organized similar to those groups, with the power to achieve national recognition and respect.

What good will each student derive from NSA? What structure assures the permanence of such an organization? The answer to these and many other questions relating to NSA is "nothing." I therefore denounce the U. S. National Student Association and recommend that the Student Government Association of the University of Kentucky abstain from affiliating with this group on basis of the aforementioned principles.

Back The Band!

Is the Best Band In Dixie going to go to the Great Lakes or not? It's up to you.
 Because neither Stok, the band, nor the Athletic Association can manage to send the band to Cleveland, your Student Government Association is sponsoring a drive among students and friends of the University to create the necessary funds. Fifteen hundred dollars is the minimum needed. Collections will be made between halves at the Homecoming game with Tennessee tomorrow afternoon, and individual contributions will be welcomed at any other time by SGA officials.
 It is inconceivable that Kentucky would go to the Bowl without the appearance of the Band stepping smartly on the field at halftime. This is the opportunity to prove your support of the team and the University.
 Back the Best Band In Dixie for the Bowl!

Welcome Home!

The Kernel welcomes all the graduates and friends of the University who have returned to the Alma Mater for the traditional Homecoming. Students and alumni groups have scheduled dances, meetings, and prize-giving competitions for the best decorations of housing units and downtown merchants' windows to entertain you before and after the game.
 The University is humming now more than ever before. You who are returning for the first time in several years will probably sense the difference more than those nearer and more closely associated. It is expanding, trying to answer the demands put upon it by a state which is attempting to pull itself up by the bootstraps.
 The alumni began its post-war aid program by helping the University build a strong and promising football team. Your efforts will be rewarded tomorrow when you will see the rejuvenated Cats swamp their traditional rival, the Volunteers.
 This is an illustration of our contention: The University of Kentucky can be head and shoulder above the rest, once it decides to act. You as alumni and friends are, in the final analysis, the action-getters in the state. You have a more balanced conception of what the University needs and the practical approach which is best in the obtaining of these things.
 The budget which the University has drawn up for the coming biennium is a minimum one.

Message From The President

To the Student Body, University of Kentucky:
 No one should be more conscious of the welfare of the University of Kentucky than the students who are in attendance. The quality of their education depends in a large measure upon the quality of the University. You will naturally be interested in seeing that your Alma Mater ranks high among the institutions of higher education in this country. It is right that you should know something about the University's budget request for 1948-50.
 For instruction, research, buildings, and essential services to the people of the state, $6,927,791 is being asked for 1948-49 and $6,713,108 for the following year. A deficiency appropriation of $1,700,000 for completion of the auditorium-feldhouse also will be requested.
 The proposed budget was based on 7,200 students, but 7,715 are enrolled this fall quarter. This is twice as many students as were enrolled before the war. To teach them 100 additional teachers are needed, and to house them additional residence halls and classroom buildings must be constructed. About a thousand girls looking to enroll this quarter had to be turned away because of lack of dormitory facilities.
 Kentucky once ranked as high educationally as any state in the nation. Today Kentucky has fewer college graduates than any other state in the Union except Arkansas alone. Kentucky will remain forever a poor state if we continue to neglect the education of our citizens. It will become a wealthier state when it educates more men and women for the professions and for business, agriculture, and industry.
 You cannot have a great state without a great state university. That is the message we are endeavoring to give the people of Kentucky. That is the message I want to leave with you.
 H. L. DONOVAN
 President, University of Kentucky

Compared with other states which are building, it is a ridiculously small sum. But to secure even such a budget, action and interest by the student body and alumni is essential.
 You have the chance to point out to the state that education does in truth create wealth and that a great university is necessary if the state is to be great.

Meet The Colonel

The Kernel presents with pride the new mascot of the University of Kentucky, The Kentucky Colonel.
 He's a real Kentucky mountain wildcat, with emphasis on the first syllable. He has all the spirit and fire needed to spurn the University to victory tomorrow and at Cleveland Dec. 6. We just couldn't go to Cleveland without a mascot. Villanova's Wildcat mascot, Count Villain III, will be there to meet the Colonel.
 The obtaining of the Colonel is a fine example of alumni interest and action. Special thanks of the student body should go to Attorney Glenn Denham of Williamsburg and Frank Phipps of Frankfort of the State Game and Fish Commission. Their efforts brought the cat to you in time for the two big pigskin events of the season.
 Well, Cats, your fellow students, your alumni, your band, your University—and your mascot—are all behind you. Make this homecoming a day to be remembered!

Election Time

Another Student Government Association election of delegates to the Assembly has come and gone. The Kernel extends its heartiest congratulations to the ten newly elected student representatives and lauds those who have worked with the group and are now stepping out of office.
 Some of the problems facing the Assembly this year seem to be of a more serious nature than usual. To the new members we urge careful consideration of issues at hand and fearless but sensible representation.
 The Kernel admires and respects the Assembly, both as individuals and as the embodiment of the ideal of representative government. We have found much to criticize, of course, as well as much to praise, and have endeavored to present these issues and events in news and editorial comment as we see them.
 And, while we're on the subject: It is unfortunate that the parties in the Assembly are split according to social affiliations. To the Kernel this seems the source of many bitter and unnecessary feuds which lead only to hatred and prejudice. Such a rivalry never accomplishes anything of a constructive nature. Student government would be undeniably strengthened if this Independent-Constitutionalist party system could be scrapped and another be instituted.
 BUT, that's just the problem: On what reasonable permanent and sound basis could other parties be founded? The problem has been considered by most students sooner or later, and thus far little has been advanced. Possibly discussion would clarify the issue and suggestions might be ventured which to this point have been overlooked. Have you any ideas?

Editor, The Kernel:
 In checking the November 14 issue of the Kernel for the denial and rebuttal to my charges of discrimination against the Independent students which I was told would follow its submission I saw with amazement that itself to normal intelligence that disgraced page one, the "notarized story." Since when, may I ask, have notaries begun notarization without signatures—or at least, since when has such notarization amounted to more than the paper on which it was written? You may as well have notarized your personal calling card for all the effect it would have had. If you wanted a notary's fee on that fraud, he saw you coming.
 In the first place, my letter accused you of nothing. Check it again. You mentioned something about the implications that might be gained from my letter. May I direct your attention to the article written by two of your staff on the SGA meeting which was covered in that article:
 "Stephenson 'labeled' Sprovis' remarks," he declared.
 "Howard Bowles, siding with Sprovis' . . . 'emphasized' and 'urged'."
 But, Charles Boggs (Independent student) "emphatically declared," "rebuking," and "in a short, passionate harangue, he violently censured" SGA and branded Sprovis' report as "prejudiced."
 I could take some "lessons" from your staff in the matter of implications.
 For the editorial covering the story, I have shown that the notarization did not prove beyond a shadow of a doubt, anything but the gullibility of someone, or the bad hopes of that someone, that the readers of that article were exceptionally gullible. As for calling a member of the staff by his fraternal affiliation, I think I was referred to by my party affiliation—as an "Independent Student," which if I apply immaturity of my part, certainly does no more for the author of that article.

 As for my failure to distinguish between honorary and social fraternities, my apologies to the honoraries. But the purpose is this: There are students on this campus who by reason of non-affiliation with any organization may not participate in the arrangement and planning of any social activities. That is the purpose of the Independent organization, to permit non-affiliated students to plan their own social activities in their own way, at the time, place, and under the circumstances desired by them. My reference was to all organizations who did not so provide, although I did not name all such organizations for obvious reason, lack of space, which the editor should certainly have understood. With the apparent subtlety used by the editor in the "notarizing" story, I think there is reason to believe that there may be something behind it. I recommend a continuation of the investigation which was instituted last year and stopped at the behest of person or persons unknown to this writer. I think that some of the facts brought out in that investigation will be interesting to the student body. That advertisement has to be argued. I think that the fact that the paper will net $2,500 over and above expenses per annum, without an advertiser so regularly crowded in among the scanty news, I wonder what the purpose of the telegraph in the journalism department is? I never see any articles in the Kernel from that source.
 Well, I don't want to appear over-critical, but do get these nasty matters straightened out, please.
 "THE HECKLER"
 Cover SGA
 Editor, The Kernel:
 Well, what do you know—an innovation in reporting. The Kernel has at last seen fit to print a news story about the activities of our Student Government Association. Not only that—the editor has even written an editorial about the Nov. 10th meeting of the Assembly.
 We have recently taken a casual poll on the campus and find that more than 25 percent of the students who are heard of here at SGA, and that most of the others interviewed have only a vague idea of what SGA is!!
 What is the reason for this appalling lack of information? The only answer: Because the Kernel is the only answer. Because of the size of our student body the Kernel is the only logical medium for the dissemination of information of general interest. Why has the Kernel almost totally neglected the activities of the SGA? We sincerely hope that the news story and editorial of last week's Kernel is just the beginning of the coverage to be given this important phase of our University's functioning.

 ROGER DONALDSON
 Editor, The Kernel:
 Shades of Henry Watrous—Can it be that the Kernel is really a non-partisan paper printing only the news that is print fit? (No typographical error!!!) Then: Orehids: to the Kernel for the first issue of said paper I have ever enjoyed reading.
 Orehids: to SGA for giving National Student Association a fair go. Orehids: to those clowns who write only negatively about SGA instead of trying to build-up the organization to the Student Body.

Boggs Relates IUS-NSA Tie
 By Charles Boggs
 The issue of NSA affiliation with the International Union of Students has been brought to the attention of UK student leaders in a strangely amplified manner. The IUS-NSA affiliation has been lifted from the context of conditions and statements of clarification. It gives the impression that the American student leaders present at Madison voted to endorse big admissible Communist-oriented IUS without consideration of political consequences. This is so far from fact that a few brief statements will suffice to tell the story simply to UK students.
 I attended sessions of the IUS Council in Prague during the summer and understand very well the caution with which NSA deals with the affiliation issue. And I agree with the NSA analysis of IUS as being an organization "with a far-leftist complexion." I watched American students who were delegates to Prague state the case for American students before that international group. The reports of these students were well received at the convention at Madison and resulted in cautious and tentative plans for possible affiliation of NSA with IUS.
 The official report of NSA contains nearly seven pages of explanation of the issues involved. A long reaction clearly states, above all else, that even though conditional affiliation with IUS is authorized, it is "subject to ratification by two-thirds of member schools of NSA, with provisions which will prevent NSA from being bound by the political actions of the international group."
 NSA decided to join the IUS only on an educational, non-political level, saying that "although at present there are fundamental differences between NSA and IUS, American students are desirous of whole-hearted and fullest cooperation with students throughout the world." The resolution, with all its strings attached, passed with a vote of 429 for, 25 against.
 Thus, American student leaders, conscious of the necessity for maintaining at least a nominal contact with students of the rest of the world, decided to withhold large decisions on the issue until more information could be gathered, until at least a year had passed in which time NSA can get the full story to American students.
 NSA grants that American students need contact with the world of college people. Therefore, it sees three advantages of working with IUS in the realms of educational and student exchange, national and international tours, exchange of publications (I remember how the French students begged for information about American college life last summer), world-wide sports events, student relief, reconstruction and study of educational facilities, faculty conferences, etc. That is the story that the NSA four-man negotiating team is taking to IUS in Prague. NSA will seek a really autonomous affiliation with IUS.
 In the final analysis, American students will decide the exact nature of NSA-IUS affiliation.

Advertisers Help

The Kernel wants to thank the local merchants for the relinquishing of usual advertising space so that adequate coverage of homecoming events can be given.
 Lands Groups
 Editor, The Kernel:
 In re: last week's editorials: BRAVO! We've been looking for editorial life in the campus rat since way back before the war. It looks like issues are facing both the Kernel and SGA now that are more serious than "Should We Allow the New-Look To Invade Our Campus?" or "What Shall We Have: A $2,400 Name Band or a $2,500 Name Band?" We recall the Kernel-SGA feud of last year and realize that both campus organs are serving with a little more distinction.
 Now that SGA has something substantial to consider we know that the Kernel will keep track of developments and report the facts to a deserving student body.
 One note: We doubt if the "long-winded, inconclusive, out-of-order session of SGA" as reported by your reporter occurred only in an advertisement of the meeting. The revelation of personalities and principles at that session was, we think, an extremely important thing for SGA.
