"IDEAL RURAL LIFE MUST INTERWEAVE SOCIAL, ECONOMIC PHASES" SAYS "AE"

Irish Poet, George Russell, Tells, Kernel Interviewer of His Conception of a Happy Person; of the Accidental Adoption of His Pen Name; and of His Unique Experiences as an Agricultural Editor-Journalist

With which our cities are filled comes from the country and the foreigners, for after the third and fourth generations, these large cities, becomes decadent and sterile," stated AE.

When questioned as to the origin of his pen name, "AE," Mr. Russell smiled broadly, stroked his long whiskers, and answered with the following story:

"At the time that I first began to write, I was a rather shy fellow, and did not wish my identity to become known. So I chose the name of Aelin, as my penname. However, I was never happy in my ability to write, as I am a very bad scribe, so the printers could make out only the first few letters of my name and signed my writings with these initials. Since then 'AE' has been the name which I have used ever since, called, until I often forget that I have any other name."

After AE had expounded his theories on agricultural communities to his own satisfaction and those of his listeners at the interview, a chuckle he related some of his experiences as a journalist and editor of an agricultural paper. Among these were even the lower than usual, so he sold one of his paintings and paid the employees, which he has never again instance of the unusual things which AE has done. He ventured to suggest that he was probably the only journalist who had ever made art support his paper.

Rupp Expects Stiff Game from North Carolinians; Hopes Are High

For the second time in six years the University of Kentucky Wildcat basketball team will leave its lair at 9 o'clock Wednesday night for the first of several teams in the conference to meet North Carolina State for its first tilt in the annual State-University Conference tournament which will begin Friday in Atlanta under the auspices of the University of Georgia.

The Wildcats will arrive in Atlanta Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. During their stay in Georgia the 'Cats and other members of the party, including 'Daddy' Boles, Funkhouser, and freshman coach, Baldy Gibb, will have their headquarters at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

Following a brief rest Thursday morning, the squad will enjoy a day in the Georgia Tech gymnasium for the purpose of limbering up their traveling kinks. Coach Henry 'Daddy' Boles was in good condition and that they were displaying their old time zip and drive. This was sadly lacking on their last southern trip.

The ten men who will make the trip are not yet known but it is thought that they will be as follows: Capt. Carey Spicer, Little McGinnis, George Yates, Charley Washington, Bill Houston, Bill Trott, Ercel Little, Darrel Darby, Ellis Johnson, and Forest Bale. For the second time in six years, treatment given Johnson's injured ankle, the member has failed to break in an easy, steady stride unless the injury, greatly improved before traveling time Johnson will not make the trip.

Members of the 'Cats should win their first game with North Carolina State Friday. According to the odds, North Carolina State is a greatly underestimated team, and despite their percentage of 500 he thinks that they will be one of the strongest teams in the tournament. It would be well to remember that the past two Carolina teams from the Carolinas have won the majority of championships. North Carolina has three consecutive titles.

BRADEN SCORES MODERN AMERICA

University Vespers, Sunday, Is Dedicated to Commemoration of Birthday of George Washington

In keeping with the spirit of the occasion, the university vespers Sunday afternoon were dedicated to the commemoration of the birthday of George Washington. Dr. Arthur Braden, president of Transylvania College, gave an address on "The Spirit of Washington and Modern Life," and the music was also of a patriotic nature.

Dr. Braden pointed out the failure of modern America to live up to the example of its predecessors, and to carry on the noble principles of Washington and other leaders. He scored our age on four counts, namely, character, patriotism, public service, and religion, in all of which he believes we fall far below the standards set by our first president. He pointed out the political corruption of present-day officials, citing the upheaval in Chicago as an example, and in contrast reminded us that Washington served his country for 48 of his 68 years without any pay. Indeed he went further and bought provisions for his soldiers out of his private income.

Roamin' the Rialto with Thomas L. Riley

Well, well, well, and a cistern or so but the rialto is certainly devoid of bright spots this week. With three of the biggest box-office starring names the money should come in but on what pictures!

The only thing in town that is even worth spending time on is "Dance, Pools, Dance" at the Strand. Joan Crawford (real name Lucille La Bear) is the star. The picture contains many mistakes chief among them being that Cliff Edwards is killed too soon. His is the best acting in the piece. "Dance, Pools, Dance" presents Miss Crawford in a typical role. Roamin' Rens, our adviser, informs us that she wears some very nice clothes which, of course, is always a help. The story is a preposterous one which tells of a pampered girl who suddenly finding herself penniless, achieves fame as a newspaper reporter. The veteran gentleman of the press, after spending years trying to make a living, will probably rise up in horror at this premise. Harry Beaumont directed the Metro release and the supporting cast includes Lester Vail, William Bakewell, and Clark Gable. The last name does well as a gangster chief.

Edmund Lowe has been assigned the leading role in "The Spider" at the Fox lot. This, in our estimation, is the greatest of mystery plays. Warner Baxter was originally slated for the chief spot but you know Hollywood's penchant for changing things.

We're sorry for Nancy Carroll (real name, Nancy La Hill). After starting her in two excellent productions, Paramount released "Stolen Heaven," now at the Kentucky, and it should injure her status. Here, too, is a ridiculous story of a street walker and a thief who form a suicide pact. Phillip Holmes is the crook and a poorer selection was never seen. The role is far too big for him. Perhaps the most serious fault of "Stolen Heaven" is the direction of George Abbott. He tells his story as awkwardly as the first talkies told theirs. Miss Carroll has a part which requires little except boldness and she is satisfactory. "Stolen Heaven" was undoubtedly a good idea at its inception. As a finished production, it misses the mark.

An upset recently took place in the Paramount offices when Ruth Chatterton, George Bancroft, and William Powell, the company's biggest stars, signed contracts with Warner Bros. Each of them has a few more pictures to make on the Par lot before moving.

The other excuse for cinematic entertainment in town is "Body and Soul" at the Ben All. The affair features the flapper's dream, Charles Farrell, Elissa Landi, an importation from Europe, is cast in the leading feminine role. Rena says she likes everything about Miss Landi with the exception of her eyebrows. As we never delve into such mysteries, we will merely state that, if given a good part, she should prove to be an excellent actress. "Body and Soul" tells a story as creaky as "East Lynne" with Farrell enacting a young aviator in the late war with what he takes to be a dead comrade's mistress. They ring in almost every division of movie hokum from spies, sky battles, brotherly love, and drowning one's grief in drink on up, or down, the scale in this Alfred Santell directed Fox production. Our nomination for the very worst sequence of the year is Farrell's drunk scene in "Body and Soul."

Mrs. Holmes Attends Convention of Deans
Mrs. P. K. Holmes, assistant dean of women, returned yesterday from a trip to Detroit, where she attended the national meeting of the deans of women of this country. The conference lasted from Wednesday through Saturday, and closed with a tour and inspection of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.
Among the noted speakers that the delegates had the opportunity of hearing were Dr. John Duncanson of Princeton, Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles of New York, Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, Dr. Ernest H. Wilkins, Ordway Tead, and Mrs. Muriel Masfield, sister-in-law of the noted poet, John Masfield. Mrs. Masfield spoke on the subject, "At Court with Fanny Burney," and gave one of the most interesting talks at the conference. Mrs. Holmes was the only delegate from the university, there being only three representatives from the state of Kentucky.

EDGOWORTH SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of an old burley, with its natural savor, enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive stovewhisk process. All Edgeworths are shown in two forms "Ready-Habbed" and "Plug-Slice." All sizes, 1 1/2 pocket package to pound kumidor tin.

Combining a 40 yard return of punt by Malvin Foster, the Nicholasville Express, with a smashing drive through the center of the field, "Windy" Aldridge checked out a hard earned victory on Stoll field Saturday afternoon. The only threat made by the Blue team was checked on the Red 4 yard line.

The Red offense was led by Foster and Nicholson who broke away on numerous runs, piling up first downs. John Drury, Aldridge, and Foster's return of Bickel's punt, having the way hand, plunged through the line for the Red touchdown, was the climax of the game. George Bickel bore the brunt of the Blue attack, aided by Urbanak and Jack Phipps. Dick Richards, playing his first game at quarterback, showed good generalship and led the way for his halfbacks with one of the best blocking that has ever been seen on Stoll field.

Sneers Snickers Scandal

By WILLIAM ARDEBY THE GIRL WITH A ROSE We have decided that there are a great many of our ettes who have never been properly rewarded for their beauty, their charm, or their wisdom. We believe that we are the logical persons to make the awards.

EVERY Woman Should Know We are sorry that some of our ignorant eds and ettes were under the impression last week that our head, "Women Should Know" referred to Horace Miner. We were merely making a feeble effort to imitate the Pinkham advertisements.

Ordinary Occurrences It occurs to us that we are growing older and older every day... that we are still quite young... that it would be a wonderful thing for this university if the enrollment were cut down to 300... that if it were we would probably be one of the first to go...

Parties and People Line of the week to our kid brother... "If there had been any nice people there would have been a mixed crowd."

We Are More Than Appreciative That the Trillededellias have that finer insight, that higher appreciation of values, that clarity of vision, and that considerate which is noticeably lacking in the make-up of the Kappas, was evidenced by our bid to their formal on the back of which was inscribed, "Compliments of the Chapter."

Advertisement One of the Alpha Delta Thetas asked why they were not given more publicity in this column. We asked her if her sorority did not pledge more ettes than any other lodge on the campus... and she said, "Yes, but that doesn't have anything to do with it." We would.

Intramural Scores Must Be Turned In

Several students who are interested in the intramural basketball tournament which is now in progress have complained to The Kernel that stories of the games are not published. The sports department of The Kernel has made every effort to procure this information but lack of uniformity and inaccuracies in the records have made this impossible.

Every team which competes in the tournament has a score which is supposed to turn in the score his team makes to the head of the intramural department. Many of these scores have kept the scores on torn slips of paper and many of them have not turned in the scores at all. In other cases the results which have been turned in are hopelessly inaccurate.

Both The Kernel and the intramural department ask that in the future the scores for the various teams handle the results more carefully, and turn in all the future the scores to C. W. Hackensmith immediately following the games.

U. K. DEBATES CINCINNATI

Upholding the negative side of the subject, "Resolved that Unemployment Insurance is Indesirable," the university forensic team debated a team from the University of Cincinnati at 8 o'clock Monday night, in room 111, McVey hall. The university team was composed of Phillip Frankenstein, Frederick Schell, and John Kane, while the affirmative side was defended by Phillip Frankenstein, Frederick Woodbridge, and Ben Turpin.

Net Team to Leave For Tourney, Feb. 25

(Continued from page one) tively, and North Carolina State won the next year. It is highly probable that the dopesters are "counting their chickens" just a little too soon when they make Kentucky a sure winner over a team from a state that has a decided habit of running off with southern conference championships.

The Wildcats will be entertained in Georgia by members of the Kentucky Alumni club, which in the past has made Wildcat teams very comfortable on their stay in the capitol city. Coach Rupp stated that on his last trip there, he was informed by club members that this year would be no exception, and that numerous forms of entertainment had been provided, among which would be eight-seating trips through the city and nearby places of interest, banquets and other such forms of amusement.

A victory over North Carolina State Friday afternoon will pit Kentucky against the winner of the Duke-Clemson tilt. Lexington basketball fans will remember that Duke eliminated Kentucky in the semi-finals last year, so it is possible that in case both Kentucky and Duke come through with victories Atlanta fans will have the opportunity to witness a grudge game with the Kentuckians doing their best to eliminate the team that put them out of the tournament last year.

Kentucky has a splendid position in the tourney brackets this season if Duke can be used. The teams in the upper bracket in which the Big Blue is a member, have won 49 games and lost 40 in conference competition, for a percentage of 551. In the lower bracket the teams have won 56 games and lost only 31 for a percentage of .694. It is easy to see that the Wildcats have received their first break in their bid for the southern championship.

The sports department of The Kernel has made every effort to procure this information but lack of uniformity and inaccuracies in the records have made this impossible.
