OUTSTANDING WORKS SHOWN IN EXHIBIT
Although the art exhibit now in progress at the Art Center under the auspices of the Brush and Pencil club fails to come up to the standard of previous exhibits, many outstanding works are being presented and the show can not, in any respect, be termed a failure.

Much of the work which has been done this year is entirely experimental, artists who formerly have done landscape work have tried their hands at portraiture and others, more skilled in the use of oils, have turned to the field of water color.

Now comes the time for all Northwestern women to take stock of themselves. According to the decision of judges in a recent University of Michigan debate, small women are the most attractive.

With spirits still somewhat running over from Saturday's game it is a chore for the columnist who likes to talk over what happened to write a single paragraph free from reminiscence. However, now that we have the Wildcat fans really turning on in their stands, let's get those cheer leaders to lead instead of coming out a minute or so behind the crowd.

Just one more—wouldn't it have been interesting had the bandmen forgotten their hospitality for a few minutes just long enough to take the Alabama photographer who gave them the Bronx cheer as he passed their platform? Or had the cokes bottle not surprised its owner who thought his aim was true?

Sigma Delta Chi fooled us and put out a good edition of the Kampus Kat, which, according to tradition, is the true high-school publication of the University. It may be that the convention gave them some very good ideas, or it may be that the editors of the rag outdid themselves.

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By JAY LUCIAN

Saturday afternoon on Still field a great Alabama team, perhaps the greatest in the history of the Crimson Tide, met and defeated the Wildcats of Kentucky by what might be termed a top-heavy score. Many of the alumni were there hoping to see their down-trodden alma mater come through and upset the Tidesmen.

Strange as it may seem, however, there is no complaining. The students are backing Wynn and the team to an even greater extent. The alumni, without exception, went home happy with glowing praises for the Kentucky team, Wynn and Johnson's long run. What brought this about is team spirit. When that spirit flares as it did during that second half, it spreads to the crowd and win, lose or draw the crowd is for the team and the school to the last one.

Every pep meeting brings out orators who harangue the students and blame them for lack of school spirit and say that without their loyalty they cannot expect to have a winning team. Editors are written along the vein.

This line of reasoning is somewhat in error. A fighting spirit does not come from the bleachers. They are not on the field playing the game. The will to win must start from the team. If they have the spirit to fight in the face of great handicaps, they will win. It is not the spectators and friends with that great spirit. They say that all the world loves a winner but there are just as many who cheer the underdog, if he fights.

Such was the case Saturday. When the fans saw an outclassed Kentucky team suddenly rear up in the third quarter and go down the field with a power that not even the great Crimson Tide could stop. They went wild. It did not matter that that attack was only good for two touchdowns, and that physical handicaps were too great to bring about a victory. What counted was that that team was fighting to the last bit of its ability and the crowd appreciated it and so they went home happy.

That is what is creating school spirit. Examples are many and close at hand of teams that were beaten but fought so hard that in succeeding years a spirit arose that brought those teams out of the depths to a championship place. The spirit starts with the team and went from there to the student body which eventually brought them a winner. So be it with Kentucky. The spirit has arrived.

Wunderlich, Bush Named Winners Of Stroller's Trophy

Dick Bush and Dorothy Wunderlich were the winners of the loving cups presented Thursday night for their acting in "The Man on the Kerb" and "The Artist," respectively, in Strollers' annual amateur night contest. This will count 75 points toward their membership in the organization.

The skits presented and the characters taking part were as follows: Dorothy Wunderlich and Jess Willmott in "The Artist"; Sarah Slack and Dick Bush in "The Man on the Kerb"; Barbara Smith and Milton Rosenblum, also "The Man on the Kerb"; and Mary Lou Stark and Carol English in "A Good Woman." Strollers' eligibility list for 1934-35 was announced as follows: Martha Ammerman, John West, Ruth Woodrum, Martha Shipp, Martha Vass, Thelma Reno, Robert Moore, Elizabeth Robinson, Capel McNash, Dorothy Moore, Frank Burger, Mary Sugg, Elizabeth "Buddy," John Stuart, Katherine Combe, Virginia Thornington, W. T. Thomas, C. T. Hertzsch, Matilda Denton, and Sara Wells. Membership in Strollers is based on 100 points, with all who made the eligibility list being awarded their first twenty-five points.

What Future Opponents Did Saturday

Southwestern 0..... Firm 5, 7 Tulane 15..... Miss 1, 0 Tennessee 12..... Fordham 13 Kentucky's two major opponents remaining on the schedule found the going a little rough last week and only one of them was able to survive the storm.

Although the Green Wave of Tulane was apparently the better team, it was hard pressed to demonstrate its superiority over a stubborn Mississippi defense that consistently worried the Greensies. It was not until late in the third period that Tulane was able to score after Bryan had run 80 yards to the 1-yard line and Simons took it. Joe Loftin raced 41 yards in the final quarter for the second touchdown.

Tennessee handed its second defeat of the year when they were beaten 12-12 by Fordham in one of the principal games of the day. The Vols outplayed the New York Rams in every department and were leading until the final period. Sarasky, Ram halfback, opened the last cant to with a 61-yard dash for the second Fordham score. He had already covered the first extra point but missed his second try, but it proved unnecessary.

IVORY TIPS

By NORMAN GARLING

The favorite story of Bernie Bierman, Minnesota football coach, relates how Ted Cox scouted Schooley Rowe, when the Tiger pitcher was one of the best high school ball backs in the south. . . . He hadn't dreamed of a major league baseball career at the time. . . . Cox was interested in getting Rowe to enroll at Tulane, where Bierman was coaching, but Rowe declined because he was afraid he would have difficulty learning out of books and would not be eligible to play. . . . West Point sent out cadets to ride the Army mule and smoke the peace pipe with Hliniwek, the traditional Illinois Indian, who marches ahead of the band, for the game at Illinois Saturday. . . . Ken Willard, former Northwestern diving star, is now varsity swimming coach at California Institute of Technology where he is an aeronautical engineer.

Pittsburgh's victory over Southern California was more one sided than the score showed. . . . Moving pictures of the game showed that Pitt scored a touchdown which was disallowed by the officials. . . . Mike Nickick's touchdown in the second quarter, ruled illegal because Referee Hackett said that Weisenbaugh had touched the ground with his knees before the three-point lateral pass, actually was deserved. . . . Weisenbaugh did not touch the ground until after he had thrown the ball. . . . Jay Berwanger's full name is John Jacob Berwanger. . . . His teammates call him "The Dutchman." After considering engineering and medicine Jay has settled on law as a career. . . . His hardest course this year is legal accounting. . . .

At a testimonial dinner the other evening the Rev. John O'Hara, C. S. C. president of the University of Notre Dame, said, "All the Deans are not with St. Louis." He then introduced the deans of the five colleges of St. Benedict's (Kansas) college had two teeth driven into the roof of his mouth in the first quarter of the game with Hastings. . . . He was rushed to a dentist and while being examined a radio announced that Hastings had tied the score. . . . While decried that the teeth be pulled without an anesthetic, which was done. . . . He then returned to the field and scored two touchdowns, winning the game with his last two normal steps. . . .

KYIAN STAFF MEET IS SCHEDULED TODAY Regular work will be begun this afternoon on the 1935 Kentuckian with a staff meeting at 3 p. m. in room 54 McVey hall, according to Cameron Coffman, editor of the publication. It is essential that every member of the staff be present at this meeting this afternoon. Anyone who fails to attend will be dropped from the staff. . . . It was also announced that anyone who has not had his picture made, may do so by going to the Lafayette studio, West Main and Mill streets, during the next day or so. . . . When the final group of pictures are received from the studio no more pictures will be made. The first group of photos was received yesterday by the staff.

Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois always takes a nap for an hour or two after lunch, arising just in time to go to football practice. . . . Michigan has copyrighted its squad roster and playing numbers to curb bootleg football programs. . . . Irving Jaffe, holder of three Olympic skating championships, will have a layout with the New York Americans hockey team this season. . . . Fielding Yost of Michigan says that in his opinion the Warner double wing back is the weakest system football has developed. . . . Notre Dame and Michigan are the only football systems that consistently use the balanced line.

When Michigan played Georgia Tech last Saturday, it was the first time since 1923 that the Wolverines had played a southern eleven. . . . Charles Goodwin of West Virginia is considered one of the best ends in the Dixie and the nearest thing to Dixie Dean in college football. . . . Greasy Neale, his first coach at West Virginia, disciplined Goodwin in his freshman year by making him walk around the campus for a week carrying a sign reading: "I'm still cocky." . . . The next week Goodwin carried another sign of his own design reading: "I'm still cocky." . . . Thirty-three percent of the members of the National professional football league are from the middle west. . . . There are only three players in the organization without collegiate background, Mose Kelsch, and Harp Vaughan of Pittsburgh, and Dick Lachman of Philadelphia. . . . The list does not include John "Bull" Doehring, the Bears' southpass passer, who is a holdout. . . . Eddie McGroarty, sophomore center at Marquette, is the best punter on the squad, but isn't used in that capacity because of his position. . . . Bo McMillin, Indiana football coach, is a natural optimist. . . . After his team had won from Ohio university, he said: "That's one more game than we expected to win this season." . . . Captain Russ Fisher of the Iowa football team has a six-months-old son. . . .
