JULIAN MORTON CARROLL became Kentucky's 58th governor on December 28, 1974, succeeding Wendell H. Ford, who was elected to the U. S. Senate. Carroll then won a full four-year term in the 1975 general election.

Born in McCracken County in 1931, he attended Paducah Junior College after graduating from Heath High School. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1954 and received his law degree from UK in 1956. Before becoming governor, Carroll served three years as lieutenant governor and ten years as a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives.

He is currently chairman of the National Governors' Association, the first Kentucky Governor to hold that post. He is an active member of the Optimist Club and a former Jaycee. He attained the highest office in Kentucky for laymen of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in 1966-77 when he was named moderator of the Kentucky Synod.

The Governor and his wife, Charlann, have four children.

Dr. Otis A. Singletary University of Kentucky President

Now in his ninth year as president of the University of Kentucky, DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY is a Mississippian whose route to the Bluegrass State curled through Louisiana, Texas, North Carolina and Washington, D. C.

He came to Lexington from a position as University of Texas vice-chancellor for academic affairs. Previously, in Washington, he had been director of the U. S. Job Corps in the early stages of its development before moving to the American Council on Education as vice-president. He had gone to the capital in 1964 after three years as chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The UNC appointment terminated Dr. Singletary's first association with the University of Texas, this a seven-year stay that saw him, as a young historian, rise rapidly in rank from instructor to full professor and begin the shift to administrative work, first as associate dean and later as assistant to the president.

The Kentucky president, and his wife the former Gloria Walton, met when both were students at Millsaps College. He later earned master's and doctoral degrees at Louisiana State. The Singletarys have two daughters, Bonnie and Kendall, and a son, Scott.

Cliff Hagan Director of Athletics

"I've been preparing for this all my life," CLIFF HAGAN said before taking over as athletics director at the University of Kentucky in 1975. Hagan succeeded Harry Lancaster as director after serving as assistant director for three years.

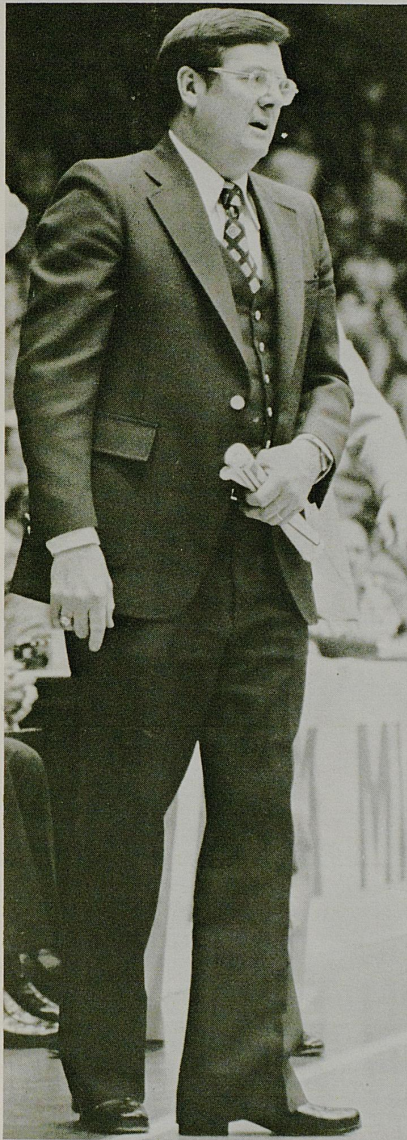

Hagan's path to the athletics directorship began in Owensboro, Kentucky, where he established a then state high school tournament record of 41 points in leading Owensboro to victory over Lafayette in the championship game of the 1949 high school tournament.

At UK, he played on teams that won 86 of 91 games and an NCAA championship (1951). The 1954 team, undefeated in 25 games, elected not to participate in the national tournament.

Under his leadership, the UK athletics department continues to develop success in all areas of endeavor including a strong dedication to the academic well-being of the athletes.

JOE B. HALL

*Joe B. Hall
University of Kentucky Wildcats
Head Basketball Coach*

JOE B. HALL is beginning his seventh season as mentor of the Wildcats, coming off a year in which his senior dominated team captured the 1978 NCAA Championship. Since becoming head coach in 1972, succeeding the legendary Adolph F. Rupp, Hall has accumulated a record of 135 wins against 42 losses. His eleven year coaching record stands at 211-98. Broken down, it shows a 57-50 five year mark at Regis College, a 19-6 record at Central Missouri, and a 135-42 record at UK.

Hall became Rupp's top assistant in 1969 when Harry C. Lancaster was named athletics director. His record as freshmen coach was 60-15, including an undefeated (22-0) season (1971-72) which resulted in the Kittens being crowned National Freshmen Champions by Basketball News.

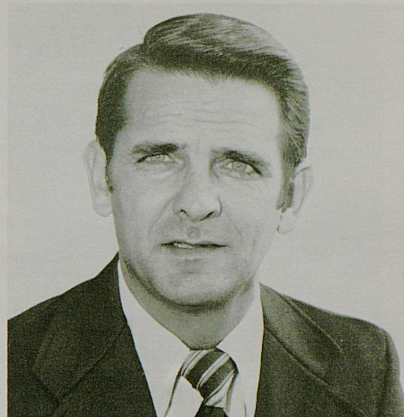

A popular personality on the clinic and convention circuits, Hall also has had much international exposure. In addition to the Globetrotters tour in 1951, and the "Down Under" tour in 1974, he has helped conduct basketball clinics for the U. S. Army in Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska (1968) and at Ramstein Air Base in Frankfurt, Germany and the RAF Base at Mildenhall, England in 1975. He also was Olympic Trials coach under Hank Iba at the Air Force Academy in July 1972 and was a member of the 1976 Olympic Basketball Committee. In 1978 he coached the U.S.A. team that hosted the first International Invitational Tournament.

LEONARD HAMILTON is beginning his fifth year at Kentucky after serving three years as assistant coach at Austin Peay. An outstanding recruiter with seemingly tireless energy, Hamilton has contributed heavily to maintaining a high level of young talent at UK. Specializing in coaching defense, Hamilton has had a positive impact on Wildcat defensive

JOE DEAN, JR., played against the Wildcats for three years at Mississippi State University, before serving as Bulldog assistant coach while earning a masters degree in physical education. An outstanding student, Dean was named to the 1976 Academic All-SEC second team. A native of Baton Rouge, philosophy. A native of Gastonia, N. C., he lettered three years in football and twice in basketball. An outstanding collegiate player, he starred at Gaston Community College in Dallas, N. C., and at University of Tennessee-Martin. He is married to the former Claudette Hale. They have a son, Lenny, 7.

La., he attended Baton Rouge High School where he earned letters in basketball and football. In addition to regular coaching duties with the Wildcats, Dean's primary responsibilities will be recruiting and scouting. He is married to the former Ellen Elizabeth Anger of Jackson, Miss.

DICK PARSONS

DICK PARSONS, in his seventh year as Joe B. Hall's No. 1 assistant, returned to the University as baseball coach in 1969. Before giving up his position to join the basketball staff on a full time basis, he molded a baseball team (1971) which established or tied 15 school records. He is a graduate of UK where he played guard under former Coach Adolph F. Rupp.

Parsons came to the University in 1958 after an outstanding career as a four-sports star at Harlan High School, where he had a three-year basketball scoring total of 1,276 points.

He was a two-time (1960-61) recipient of the coveted A. B. Chandler award, given annually for the player best exemplifying the qualities of leadership, scholarship, character and ability. Only four other Wildcats have twice been so honored since the award was originated in 1951.

He is married to the former Celia Cawood of Harlan. They have a daughter, Kathy, and a son, Ed.

FRANK HAM Assistant Director of Athletics

FRANK HAM became Assistant Director of Athletics in July 1975 soon after Cliff Hagan succeeded Harry C. Lancaster as Director of Athletics.

A native of Scranton, Pa., Ham came to the University in 1969 as Administrative Assistant to football coach John Ray, and was reassigned to the Athletic Director's staff in 1972 when Ray resigned.

Ham graduated from high school at Niles, Michigan, and completed his undergraduate work at Olivet College. He did graduate work at Indiana University and coached high school football and track at John Adams High in South Bend in 1944-46 and then returned to Olivet as athletic director and head football and basketball coach.

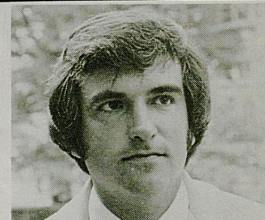

In 1951, he became assistant to the president at Olivet, with responsibilities in public and alumni relations. He was in private business from 1954 until 1968.

University as a graduate student in 1970, was named assistant director of campus recreation in 1972 and director of women's athletics in 1974.

Feamster graduated from Franklin County High School where she was an outstanding tennis player and athlete. While in college she earned letters in tennis, field hockey, basketball and track from Indiana University and Kentucky State University, where she earned her B.S. degree and graduated with honors.

Will Denote Rupp, UK Basketball

Public Donations To Build Museum To House Memorabilia

Adjacent to the entrance to Rupp Arena in the Lexington Center will be located the Adolph F. Rupp-UK Basketball Museum.

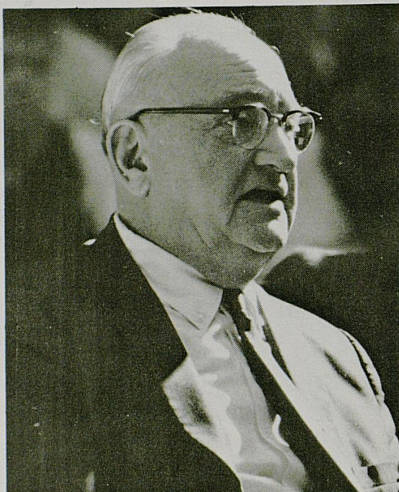

The purpose of the museum is to re-live some of the past Wildcat teams' exploits and those of its great players. Included in the museum will be photographs, trophies, tape recordings, films and other memorabilia reflecting on past Kentucky teams.

"We have a unique opportunity to perpetuate the legend of the late Adolph Rupp and the rich basketball tradition that has been established by the University of Kentucky," commented DeWitt Hisle, chairman of the museum. "The museum will give basketball fans everywhere a fascinating insight into what this game has meant to followers of the UK Wildcats."

Rupp coached teams compiled an 880-190 record. He guided the Wildcats to four NCAA titles, an NIT championship and 27 SEC crowns.

The museum will cover Kentucky basketball teams from the first season in 1903, when the team recorded a 1-2 record, through the most recently completed season.

A small theatre area will be located in the museum and used to show films on the changing style of basketball over the past 75 years.

The material found in the museum is coming from the official archives of UK, Memorial Coliseum, the family of the late Adolph Rupp and from the public.

"Obviously one of the major advantages we have in establishing this museam is the fact that we can build it around a central figure, the late Adolph Rupp, whose 41 seasons as UK head coach resulted in some of the greatest accomplishments in the history of collegiate basketball," said Charles Atcher, archivist of the University of Kentucky.

Atcher says one of the guiding principles in planning for the Rupp-UK Basketball Museum is that the museum will show the continuing history of basketball at UK, which means the museum will be capable of expanding to display accomplishments of future teams.

The UK tradition is being continued by Joe B. Hall who replaced Rupp as head coach beginning with the 1972-73 season. In six years, Hall has led the Cats to four SEC championships, an NIT championship, the 1978 NCAA title and an overall 135-42 record.

Costing an approximate $200,000, the projects' funding will come from tax-deductible donations from the public. Operation of the museum will be funded by a small admission charge, "not to exceed $1," according to Hisle.

Donations to help establish the museum may be mailed to: Rupp-UK Museum, P. O. Box RUPP, Lexington, Ky. 40512.

'Cawood' Helps Listeners SEE Wildcats

Editor's Note:

Art Jester is a staff writer for the Anniston, Alabama Star and a transplanted Kentuckian from Danville. When the Wildcats were playing in Tuscaloosa this season, he interviewed Cawood Ledford and wrote the following feature article. The story is reprinted with permission granted by Jester and the editorial staff of the Anniston Star.

By ART JESTER
Staff Writer
Anniston Star

Kentucky had just won its fifth NCAA basketball championship last March when I called the Blue Grass State for some exclusive post-game comments.

"Mom, did you watch the game?" I asked, as if I didn't know the answer to that one.

"Well, I watched the television," she said, "but I turned down the sound and listened on the radio to Cawood Ledford."

She didn't have to tell me any more.

NBC had its four horsemen: Enberg, Packer, Cowdy and McGuire. But to Kentucky fans like my mother, that made no difference. When it comes to listening to basketball, they know what a good thing they've got.

And for 26 years — long enough to transform mere habit into an almost sacred ritual — Kentucky fans have been tuning in to the man they simply and affectionately call "Cawood." Listening to Cawood isn't just a matter of parochial pride.

For Ledford's mellow, authoritative voice, dramatic flair, unparalleled descriptive power and change of pace delivery that ebbs and flows with the tempo of a fast-paced game have made him, in many minds, the nation's finest basketball announcer.

"WHEN CAWOOD LEDFORD calls Kentucky basketball," a Louisville radio station has touted, "you don't hear it, you SEE it."

"My only reason to be there is for the listener," Ledford said recently in Tuscaloosa, relaxing a few hours before Kentucky played Alabama. "I'm not there to please the coach or the players. I've got to tell the listener the way I see it."

When the Wildcats play, fans from far away "see and hear Kentucky basketball through the eyes of Cawood Ledford," as another radio spot suggests.

There are fans like "Tombstone Johnny" of Algona, Iowa. Each game day, "Tombstone Johnny" — he sells grave markers for a living — calls Kentucky coach Joe Hall to wish him good luck. Later, as the night turns cold and wintry, "Tombstone Johnny" joins Kentucky fans everywhere by snuggling up to the radio for the cozy sound of Cawood calling the action.

With rare exceptions, picking up night games is no problem in places like Algona, Iowa — and Anniston for that matter. With more than 90 affiliates, the University of Kentucky basketball network is the nation's largest. It is also one of the most powerful. The 50,000-watt signals of Louisville's WHAS (840) and Cincinnati's WCKY (1530) beam Ledford's voice deep into the South, Midwest and East.

As a result, Ledford's popularity has been regional and even national. And it seems that with the 52-year-old broadcaster at the peak of his career, he may become even better known.

Next month, for example, the Lexington public relations firm that broadcasts Kentucky's games will begin a contract to broadcast the semifinals and finals of the NCAA basketball tournament on NBC radio. Who will do the play-by-play? Cawood Ledford, of course. —

BY MAY, WHEN the sun always shines bright on the Old Kentucky Home, horse racing will be in full bloom. That means Ledford, who follows the ponies as adeptly as he does the fast break or the 1-3-1, will be in his familiar role of calling the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness on CBS radio.

THEN BY FALL, Ledford will be back in the broadcast booth, calling Kentucky football games. He's as skillful with that sport as with basketball and horse racing. But, as might be expected in Kentucky, the latter two have brought him greater renown.

"I really like the change," he said, as he finished off one pack of cigarettes and fished for another. "I love football, but by the time your feet start getting cold, it's time to go indoors for basketball. I like the change."

Because he likes his regimen, Ledford has never been lured from Kentucky, though there have been temptations from bigger places, including an offer last year to become the announcer for the National Basketball Association's Chicago Bulls. There was no chance he would accept.

"Nobody's going to pay me what it would take for me to do professional basketball," Ledford said. "I wouldn't touch that. Those guys are in San Francisco one night and Chicago the next and

"WHAT YOU SEE IS WHAT WE'VE GOT?" NOT HERE!

If you've ever had to sort through a dozen or so packages of meat to find the exact size or price cut you'd been looking for, then "given up" in disgust when it wasn't available, you owe it to yourself to visit FOODTOWN (and check out our meat cases).

We proudly cut and package only U.S. CHOICE meats and poultry, and our meat department personnel naturally try and anticipate the cuts and sizes most folks want. Detroit the night after that. They live in airports. I don't need the hassle."

So the native of Harlan, Ky., in the Appalachian coal country, has remained in his home state. His devotion to his listeners has been returned many times over.

Among Kentuckians, Ledford has emerged as "a sort of folk hero," in the words of Billy Reed, the sports editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Fans buy records with excerpts of Ledford's broadcasts. Bookstores around the UK campus sell color posters with cameos of Kentucky's current football and basketball stars, plus Hall and football coach Fran Curci. And on one side, with microphone before him and earphones perched atop his balding head, is none other than Cawood Ledford.

"HE IS THE essence of the Wildcats," is the way Ledford was described to the Courier-Journal's Reed by Jim Host, the Lexington businessman whose firm broadcasts Kentucky's games.

Ledford soon will leave his position as sports director of WHAS Radio-TV, where he has worked since 1956. He is moving from Louisville to Lexington to start his own company, Cawood Ledford Productions, in which he will be a partner with Host.

Next summer, Ledford will begin outlining a book he plans to write about Kentucky sports. When completed, it will join a book Ledford has written about sports broadcasting.

Despite these changes and plans, Ledford seems secure as the "Voice of the Wildcats." That means Kentucky fans will still enjoy his solid professionalism, which is founded on thorough preparation.

"After all these years, I would be so utterly scared to death if I came in here and did nothing to prepare," Ledford said, looking toward an Alabama basketball brochure on a table a few feet away from where he was stretched out and propped up by pillows on his bed.

He spends only three to four hours studying for a basketball game because, as he said, "there's not much memory work in basketball."

Football takes much longer. In autumn, Ledford will prepare two nights during the week, Friday night, and Saturday morning before the game.

Getting ready for the race track is sheer memory work — and more.

"HORSE RACING is so quick," he said. "It's the hardest thing to do. You have to identify 12 to 20 horses by color (of the silks) and you can't get any help. There's no room to make a mistake. It's over too quickly. You either get out at the gate right or you don't."

Some announcers overdramatize boring games, apparently believing their unrestrained talking keeps listeners tuned in. Ledford, on the other hand, does not try to cover up dull or sloppy playing in his vivid depictions of the game's quickness and delays create a drama all their own. And when the action is fast and furious, his controlled, rapid-fire narrative keeps pace with the ball's every movement.

"Basketball was made in heaven to broadcast," he said. "It's the stalls and the slowdowns that are the dogs to broadcast."

When the tempo slows, Ledford lowers his voice, keeping the tension and suspense alive. At those moments, his almost confidential asides make the lis-

Vanderbilt University

Nashville, Tenn.

Vanderbilt's basketball team is coming of age in the Southeastern Conference, and a key force behind the maturing of the Commodores is head coach Wayne Dobbs.

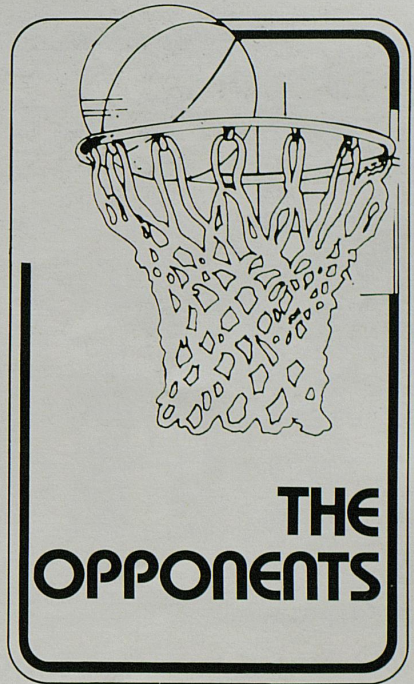

Dobbs, 39, served as an assistant coach under Roy Skinner for six years prior to his promotion to the head coaching job. In two seasons as the VU mentor, Dobbs has led his team to a 20-33 record.

A firm disciplinarian and a student of the defensive game, Dobbs began his coaching career at Southwest DeKalb High School in Decatur, Ga. As a teacher and a coach, Dobbs was once selected Coach-of-the-Week by the Atlanta Journal.

WAYNE DOBBS
Head Coach

As athletic director and a head coach at Brewton Parker Junior College, Dodds co-authored a book, "Basketball's Stunting Defense." While at Brewton Parker, he was named Georgia JUCO Basketball Coach-of-the-Year. Dodds also coached at Belmont College and George Washington University.

DR. ALEXANDER HEARD
Chancellor

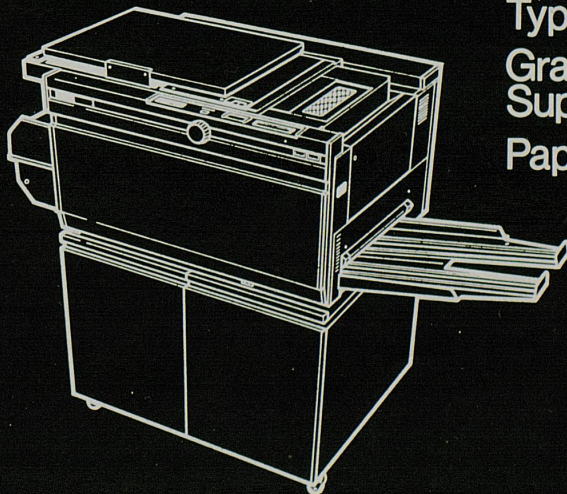

For a century, Vanderbilt has offered Nashville, the region and the nation a University that develops responsible, dedicated, and creative men and women. It has a tradition of academic excellence and is well known for its research.

The only member of the Association of American Universities in the Central South, Vanderbilt is currently under the chancellorship of Alexander Heard. Chancellor Heard earned a A.B. from the University of North Carolina (1938) and an M.A. and Ph.D. from Columbia University in 1948 and 1951 respectively.

Before coming to VU in 1963, Chancellor Heard wrote extensively on southern politics and the financing of political campaigns. He has served as president of the Southern Political Science Association and vice-president of the American Political Science Association.

'Cawood'

tener feel as if he is sitting at the announcer's side.

"KENTUCKY'S NOT SHARP," Ledford said in his typical brisk fashion after Tennessee hauled down a rebound in a recent game. "If they get out of this one, it's going to be a lot of luck. Tennessee is just outhustling Kentucky."

Later, things were no better.

"Kentucky just doesn't have any movement in there," he said. "It's just like a street game." Kentucky lost by 11.

Because Ledford has called Kentucky games for so many years, the glasses he wears when sitting at court-side at times seemed tinted blue. Though understandable, his partisan tendencies directly relate to his biggest drawback: helping the referees call the game.

Some fans think Ledford's "officiating" mars his otherwise impeccable style. Other fans have urged Ledford to keep "blowing the whistle." They want to know if their beloved Wildcats are being robbed.

"Every year I try to cut down on this a bit," Ledford said with a laugh and a broad smile, acknowledging the habit that has been called to his attention again and again. "It's probably my biggest fault."

Perhaps the chiding of players and officials is what Ledford meant when he said, "I'm a fan," that afternoon in Tuscaloosa.

"Of course, fans are coaches — all of us," Ledford reminded his listeners during the Tennessee game.

The question persisted that day in Tuscaloosa, as it has in other interviews with Ledford: Why have you stayed in Kentucky, when there were lucrative offers from elsewhere? The first part of the answer came without hesitation.

"YOU FEEL LIKE you've been accepted there," he said. Then he paused, drawing on his cigarette.

"Maybe it's the fear of not being accepted in another market," he went on. "But I've always made pretty good money. And I still really enjoy what I do. I look forward to this and I still really like it."

He paused again, puffed again and added quickly, "There aren't many play-by-play jobs better than the one I've got."

Even given that, it is remarkable an announcer could become one of the many legends in the realm of "Kentucky basketball," a tradition as rich as the Bluegrass soil.

For 42 years, of course, that realm was ruled by Adolph Rupp, the scowling yet outrageously funny "Baron of Basketball." Under Rupp's command, the Wildcats won the NCAA four times, the Southeastern Conference 27 times and 82 percent of all their games.

"You can't compare anyone to him," Ledford said.

During the last years of Rupp's career, Ledford did a post-game show with the inimitable Baron. Those interviews were among the best entertainment any time, anywhere, at any price. Often they were better than the games themselves.

"If the team played poorly, that's what he wanted to talk about," Ledford recalled. "Sometimes I'd ask him a question and he'd get three or four words out and then he'd say what was really on his mind. Then he'd end all that by saying, 'Now, what was it you asked?'"

GRINNING, LEDFORD ADDED, "Sometimes I forgot."

In the 1965-66 season, the hearts of an entire state were captured by "Rupp's Runts," whose tallest starters were 6-foot-5. Dazzling passing and shooting carried Rupp's Runts all the way to the NCAA final. Ledford said that was his favorite Kentucky team.

"They were so little and they weren't picked to go anywhere," he said. "They

The Call of the Wild

WILDCAT RING

Kentucky fans can now, for the first time, respond to the call of the wild with our new exclusive collection of Kentucky Wildcat Rings.

Superbly crafted, they are the creation of FRAKES & SONS, inspired by the enthusiasm of the Kentucky Fans. Certain to become a classic, nowhere else can you find our original WILDCAT RING.

This stunning tribute to Kentucky (shown above) is now on display with two smaller designs soon to come (including a feminine version for the spirited ladies) all in 14 K Gold. In two designs the eyes sparkle with your choice of diamonds or genuine blue sapphires, giving the ring an exciting yet elegant look.

Available only at FRAKES & SONS.

were the greatest passing team I've ever seen. They could really make that ball sing."

He stopped, reflecting, and added, "That's a lost art — passing. Now it's a power game."

When Rupp's Runts lost the NCAA championship to Texas Western, the heartbreak was shared.

"I guess that was my lowest moment," Ledford said.

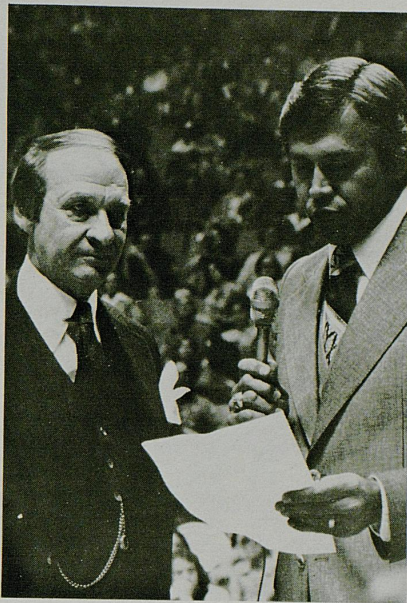

Rupp's successor has been no slouch. Since taking over in 1972, Hall has won more than 75 percent of his games. With Hall, Kentucky was the 1975 NCAA runner-up, the 1976 National Invitational Tournament champion and SEC champion four times. Last year, as Hall stepped out from under Rupp's imposing shadow, Kentucky won its first NCAA championship in 20 years.

"I think Joe is a fantastic coach," Ledford said.

As Hall's team marched last year toward its national title, Ledford was completing his 25th year of calling Kentucky's games.

It was fitting somehow that as Givens, Robey, Macy and Lee were enshrining themselves in the pantheon of Kentucky stars, the Wildcat faithful paused in their dreamy nostalgia to honor Ledford's silver anniversary at the mike.

One of my former colleagues, Charles

Cawood Ledford listens as Cliff Hagan reads plaudits.

Hollis, now with the Birmingham News, grew weary last winter of my singing hosannas to Cawood Ledford. But Charles was tapped to cover the Kentucky-Alabama game, and was in Lexington's Rupp Arena the night Ledford received his plaque — and a roaring ovation.

THE NEXT DAY, I stopped Charles in the office hallway, and asked, "What about it?" knowing he knew full well what I meant by "it."

"Those people love their basketball and," he shook his head as his voice rose, "they love their announcer."

If I had any doubts about his analysis, they were erased recently in Tuscaloosa. Minutes after Kentucky lost to Alabama, I by chance started talking to a fan decked out in a royal blue nylon jacket with "KENTUCKY" emblazoned in white letters on the back.

The fan was Brick Warden, a Huntsville tennis pro, who said he hasn't missed a Kentucky game since 1939. If he hasn't been there in person, he has watched on television or — naturally — listened to the radio.

So, standing in the paper-strewn hallway, I asked this fan what he thought of his team's announcer. It took him no time to reply.

"I think Cawood Ledford has become an institution in Kentucky basketball alongside Coach Rupp and Joe Hall," he said.

He waited, looked off in the distance, then continued.

"I know he won't be there forever," he said, "and that makes me really sad. It will almost be like Rupp leaving."

Before a crowd of 15,500, Vanderbilt defeated the University of Kentucky on Feb. 8 in Memorial Gym, 68-58.

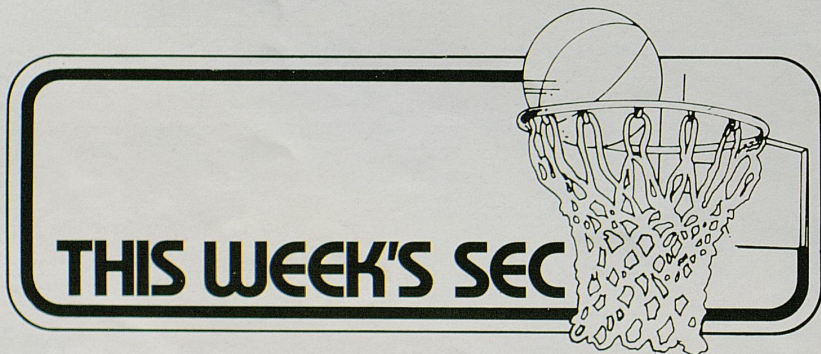

The Commodores controlled the game after taking an early 9-2 lead. Kentucky came no closer than five points of the winners.

Forward Charles Davis led the Vandy attack, hitting a record 13 of 15 field goals and scoring 31 points. Mike Rhodes followed with nine points.

"We lost the ball game in the first five minutes," conceded Kentucky coach Joe Hall. "We missed some easy shots and gave up five layups."

The Wildcats also placed only one player in double figures, Kyle Macy, who tallied 24 points. Macy hit on nine of 21 shots from the field.

A Year At The Top

A Year
At The Top
Kentucky Wildcats '77-'78

by John McGill and Walt Johnson, photography by Walt Johnson

This book is not just about basketball nor just about Kentucky basketball. In 144 pages, including 45 color and 170 black and white photographs, you can follow the Kentucky Wildcats from the beginning of the 1977-78 season to the finals of the NCAA Basketball Championship in St. Louis. Many inside stories reveal the pressures associated with being the nation's #1 college team from the start of the season to the end. Only once in the weekly polls was Kentucky ranked below #1 and proved in March that they deserved this ranking by winning the National Championship. It was truly a great year for the players, coaches and fans. You can relive these exciting moments in "A Year at the Top." Also available, our new 33 1/3 LP album, "Wildcat Basketball '77-'78". The highlights of the '77-'78 basketball season are recalled with exciting play-by-play excerpts from Cawood Ledford's game broadcasts and comments by Coach Joe Hall.
