Spring Moving Day

WISE . . . and otherwise

By BOB AMMONS

Fan me with a cross, Hemingway, Spring is here!

That rare old season when the gnats make their joyful arrival and the crab-grass springs reborn from the steaming earth...

This is the time of year when the sap rises in the trees and college students make their peep-eyes at each other on the lawn in front of the Union building.

And so today, friends, we are going to do our bit to help things along. We may not be much on the old park bench, but when it comes to writing poems and songs we have our head to no man.

LOVE IN THE SPRING

Love in the spring, love in the spring, girl and boy, song I sing of the spring.

Love moon above, love moon above, still.

Two hearts together, springtime forever.

Of course, everyone is not affected by spring the same way. There was, for instance, one of the Phoenix hotel boys who had a brief conversation with Lois Odgen the other day, while the campus was dusted with mid-April snow.

Lois was amping her way across the campus when she met one of the mappers croaking his finger at her. Surely there must be some mistake, she thought, and kept right on going.

But she glanced up again, and the soldier was beckoning again. Well, it being spring and all, you know, and the manpower situation being what it is, you know, you thought this might bear looking into.

"IS THE GODDAM WEATHER LIKE THIS ALL THE TIME?"

As our contribution to the list of Unimpaired Discoveries of the Week, we would like to mention that in the reference room of the library there is a book called Bibliography of Bibliographies on Psychology.

There is also a Handwritten book Der Naturwissenschaften in case you want something useful to ruminate on during your lunch period.

Some of the wise ones are leaning toward Eddie "Rochester" Anderson's burnt cork as a good tip for the Derby. And here we already had some nifty gags thought up about the appropriateness of Rochester's nag being a dark horse.

A New Constitution For SGA

(Editor's note: Norma Weatherspoon, member of the committee which drafted the new Constitution for the Student Government Association, explains here the workings of the new legislation. Miss Weatherspoon points out the places in which the new Constitution differs from the old.)

Student government at the University is this week taking one of the most important steps in its history. You, the students, are accepting or rejecting the document which is to regulate student affairs on this campus.

You individually have been asked or will be asked to sign a petition which will make its adoption possible. If 350 of you are willing to sign the petition, if the student legislature passes the document, and if the Faculty approves it, you will be governed by it indefinitely.

You take the first step when you sign or refuse to sign the petition. Before you make your decision, read the complete Constitution as it appears in this issue.

Perhaps the most noticeable change is the simplicity and brevity of the new document as compared with the one now in effect. The new was designed to be a more flexible, more workable instrument. It does not bind the hands of future legislators. It can be easily changed to fit current problems and situations.

Actual changes are most apparent in the provisions for officers and members of the Assembly. Under the old document, a president, a men's vice-president, and a women's vice-president formed the executive branch.

Simplifying the executive division, the new document provides for a president and a vice-president, who shall serve when the president is unable to assume his duties.

The Assembly, which succeeds the Legislature, is larger than the present governing body. Twenty-nine student members, apportioned according to enrollment by sexes and colleges, will compose the voting personnel of the Assembly.

The New "Lost Generation"

There is in this country today a new version of the lost generation. It is lost in the perplexity of mind caused by a "double standard" government.

The group to which we refer is that of the eighteen, nineteen, and twenty-year-olds who are required to perform all the duties of mature citizens and are yet denied a voice in government.

A person below the age of twenty-one is considered an "infant" in the eyes of the law. On the other hand this same person is considered capable of supporting himself. He is no longer an income tax exemption.

Recently into the lives of these young people living in a legislative no-man's-land has come a new development. After lengthy and careful consideration Congress decided that males between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one were armed and capable to become members of our army services.

The most that can be demanded of a citizen, that he be willing to sacrifice his life for his country, is being demanded of these youths.

Non-voting members of the Assembly include the presidents and secretaries of the Upsilon Board and the House Presidents' Council of Women Students, heads of all administrative departments created by the Assembly, and three faculty members selected by the University Faculty.

Criticism has been offered that providing for three faculty members will give the University administration control of the Assembly. However, since these members have no vote, they will serve only in an advisory capacity.

Indicative of the increasing power of the SGA, is the provision for a stronger and more effective Judiciary committee, which is a combination of the old Judiciary committee and the Committee on Student Standards. Neither of these organizations have been as effective as the SGA.

Efficiency is provided for in the new Constitution by a section creating a Planning committee to prepare a constructive program for the Association at the beginning of each fall quarter.

Virtually unchanged are the Publications and Finance committees. Other committees are not specifically required by the Constitution but the Assembly has power to create these when it is necessary.

It is imperative that the Student Government Association adopt a new constitution if it is to continue to function. The one now being offered to you has been prepared by a special committee which has studied and worked since last fall.

But the final decision is up to you. If you want the Constitution, sign the petition which will make its adoption possible. If you dislike it, do not sign, fight it, and offer criticism and recommendations which will enable the Association to draw up a document which better fits the students' needs and desires.

The greatest reward that a government can offer to a citizen, the right to determine who shall administer that government, is being denied them.

When our constitution was formulated, it was decided arbitrarily that twenty-one was the proper age at which one could take an active part in government, and accept the responsibilities of the citizen.

It is not for us to argue whether or not eighteen-year-olds have sufficient interest in government to vote intelligently. Congress has decided this question. It would certainly not send individuals out to fight for a government in which they took no interest.

We believe that this "lost generation" of youths should go forward to fight this country's battles with the knowledge that its government will reward their sacrifices as citizens with the privileges of citizens.

SGA Moves To Eliminate Faults In Constitution

We present here a complete copy of the proposed new Constitution for the Student Government Association, which was approved by the University Faculty.

Preamble: We, the students of the University of Kentucky, aware both of our rights and responsibilities as members of the University community, and wishing to provide an organization through which our energies may most effectively be directed, do hereby adopt this Constitution of the STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY.

It's Moving Day At The Men's Dorms

The war profile of the University is undergoing another change. It is moving day for the men's dormitories. By 6 p.m. Saturday morning in all the halls must be vacated.

As the civilian students pack their bags and seek for quarters elsewhere, rumors have already started the round of the campus as to the identity of the future occupants of the dormitories.

What Goes On There . . .

"The Vanderbilt Hustler" went into great detail last week concerning spring which they are evidently having in Tennessee. One rare hat carried in breakfast fashion with a gravy well priced at $3.00 was seen in a local headgear shop.

The effects of too much sunbathing are already causing trouble at the University of Texas, and because of the sudden attempt to get all the sun possible in one day several cases of sunburn have been treated.

The seemingly dead bodies lying about the University of Oklahoma campus were discovered to be merely live victims of the first aid classes who were demonstrating their skill on the day of final exams.

From the "Wesleyan Pharos" one let's specifier to match her word of moon jokes so . . . Said the first moon: "I don't know who I am. I was left on a doorstep."

Said the second moon: "Maybe I'm a bottle of milk." Vanderbilt boasts of an average American girl who does not give up her classical language study to become a lady riveter.

Student Regrets Resignation Of Miss Van Meter

To the Editor of The Kernel: With a feeling of being lost and bewildered that we acknowledged the resignation of Miss Van Meter, social director of the Student Union.

As long as the clock keeps faithful time it is easy to overlook the one who winds it. Those who are a part of the active machinery, those of the Student Union Board and its committees, fully know it was Miss Van Meter who kept the cogs of the wheels in order.

In her role as adviser and director she attended all Union functions regardless of the hour. Sundays were no exception. Any problem which arose could be depended upon to help solve. As supervisor she got things done through the power of suggestion. Suggestions would even be the promotional ability. Her ideas were always sought, for they always clicked.

Besides managing the social activities at the Union, her service in the war effort is outstanding. The Sunday afternoon open houses and many dances held for soldiers at the University have been under her direction. Christmas letters to University students in service were distributed through her, and recently she was also instrumental in the distribution of questionnaires designed to find the University women's place in the war effort.

Along this line, she brought to the campus a Cafeteria course which has resulted in many of the women doing voluntary work at the Shop-or-station.

No matter how capable any future director may be, there is not a question of filling Miss Van Meter's shoes in the war effort. Along this line, she brought to the campus a Cafeteria course which has resulted in many of the women doing voluntary work at the Shop-or-station.

DORIS JEAN ALDRIDGE. But that staff's old-fashioned, you say. "Room" has taken the place of "home" in the modern woman's vocabulary.

Submitted to the editor of the "Virginia Tech" was this unusual attempt at poetry: Roses aren't red yet. Violets aren't blue yet. Spring ain't here yet. But, hell, we can wait!

A revised edition of the "Bee Geese," student paper from Bowling Green, Ohio, completely overwhelmed its readers several weeks ago when the entire front page was devoted to what the students would like to see. One story with the headline "Juke Box and Elevators Add New Library System," told of the sweeping changes in all rules. Besides the automatic elevators which were to be installed, a complete set of razor blades and scissors would be placed in the reading rooms for the convenience of those students who wished to clip things out of the magazines and newspapers.

The VMI Cadet says that in France there are no papers, no athletics, no glue clubs, and no fraternities. It would be a sad how for an American college man to go there, because all he could get was an education.

Placed in the Field house at L. S. U. was a "pooon barrel" in which all of the 2,000 spoons which have been "carried away" during the past eight months were expected to be thrown. Students were advised to look back in collections of souvenirs and into lockers to find the missing silver, and until it was found the new spoons recently purchased were withheld from the fountain in the Field house.

Weather Halts 'Fitness Week'

Rain! Cold! Snow! Rain! The Women's Physical Fitness program is definitely at odds with the weather. Lack of sunny days has held up softball, tennis tournament play-offs, and calisthenics on Jewell roof. Badminton is still going on, and students participating in the badminton tournaments are urged to play their games and record the scores in the Women's gym.

Monday morning at 6:45 in the first week of the program found forty enthusiastic girls on Jewell roof ready to bend and stretch. Since that time, rain, snow, and just plain cold weather have discontinued the early morning exercises. It is hoped that much enthusiasm will be evident again this coming week when the calisthenics are resumed. For the last two weeks emphasis was placed on "Heads High" and "Lullaby Sleep." This week "Hips, Hips Away" will be the theme for the third in the series "Faithful Five For Fitness."

Several charts remain at the Union desk to be picked up by the house managers for exhibiting in houses. These charts are to be picked up each Friday at 1:00 for the coming week.

The Sporting Way

By ROY STEINFORT

What about football next year... Now, friend, if you have the answer to that question we will be only too happy to ship you sixty-four smackeres.

This much can be said at this time with risking the fall of a limb on my head. If it is at all possible, Kentucky will play.

That appears to be the policy of the Southeastern Conference.

Batts Rounds Country

Wally Butts, the original round man at Georgia, is scouring the countryside for some ivory. That shouldn't be hard, despite the war, for Wally.

He's armed with ninety-nine grand. Rose Bowl money. Who is that mug that talks about a thorn with every rosy?

Down at Knoxville John Barnhill has led the press to believe that he'll try football.

Alabama, always a great Southern power, ain't muttered as yet. But you can bet on this—If Tennessee plays and Georgia plays, Alabama will be in the midst of the battle.

Mississippi and Mississippi State had a hard time last fall. Inferior Brand On Tap

At the present time, and after all that's all we can speak for, it appears that football will be played. Naturally, it will be of an inferior brand.

It seems very plausible that the coaches will recruit some high school boys this summer. The practice season may be moved back from the present Sept. 1 date.

That would mean that the mentors would concentrate practice into several summer months. The result: a high-powered prep school eleven with several veterans in the lineup to give it stability.

The Army certainly couldn't object to colleges attempting to supply the sports fans with this type of football. After all, they grab off the boys in a few months, rugged and tough from a scrappy gridiron season.

Baseball probably will survive the war. It only takes five men and you don't have to travel so far. And Adolph says he'll play. That seems to be the best reason Kentucky will have a hoop team next winter.

Baseball made its entrance this week in auspicious manner, as usual. The big wigs of the major never did get the green light from the government directly, but apparently somebody high up told them to go ahead with the season.

Baseball men are business men primarily. They wouldn't be associated with a venture that wasn't profitable.

The Kreenland season has arrived and now it is almost gone. It's true that the students who have a hankering to bet on the gee ges didn't get to go to Louisville every day. They go to the next best thing downtown, however.

The University has but 17 athletes on scholarship now. That's about the smallest number since football originated here.

University of Minnesota students called into service before earning their degrees are given individual certificates.

No civilization is complete which does not include the dumb and docile of God's creatures within the sphere of charity and mercy—Queen Victoria.

Wildcat Nine Plays Marshall Today

Two Games Set For This Weekend

The Kentucky hickory swingers, twice out, will attempt to get in twice this week-end on Stoll field when the Marshall university line comes to town for two games.

Losers in their opening pair of games to Vanderbilt, the Wildcats will don their fur jackets this afternoon shortly after 3.

Deacon Bernie Shively yesterday hadn't decided whether he would start Bob Herbert or Vernon Jones. In all probability, however, Jones will receive the nod this afternoon.

The lineup will be juggled from the Vanderbilt game. Clyde Parker will be moved to the outfield from his catcher's post.

Gas Green, the regular left out-fielder, will move behind the plate. The reason: Green has a better arm.

Bill Jones will be in right and Parker will patrol the center field garden. The rest of the lineup will remain intact.

MI Theo, the new captain, will start this series, however. The death of his father caused him to miss the Vandy tilt. He will take his usual position at first with Frankie Bauer on second, Phil Cutchin on short and Noah Phillips on the hot corner.

Wintry blasts and an oozy field has kept the Kentuckians inside for the past two weeks. Errors aplenty might result from their lack of outdoor practice.

Kentucky defeated the Marshall team last year on Stoll field when they rallied in the ninth to eke out a 5 to 4 decision.

The revised schedule follows: April 23-24—Marshall, here April 30—Cincinnati, here

May 5—Fort Knox, here May 8—Cincinnati, here

AGR's Beat KA's In First Game Of Intramurals

After two weeks delayed caused by unsuitable weather, the Intramural softball league got under way Friday afternoon with the AGR aggregation soundly trouncing a group of KA's by the score of 34-3. Two other games scheduled for Friday were cancelled because of wet grounds. Also, the three games carded for Monday were postponed for the same reason. The new dates for the play-offs of the postponed games have not been announced yet.

This afternoon the Commandos meet the AGR's and DTJ tangles with SAE at University High, while the DTJ's meet AC's on the Intramural field. All games are slated to begin at 4 p.m.

Members of the University geology department will attend the annual business meeting and election of officers of the Kentucky Geological Society at the University of Louisville tomorrow.

The group will go to Louisville today at the conclusion of a field trip in that vicinity. After the meeting, the field party will visit Button Mould Knob and other points.

Any members who wish to join the party may do so at 2 p.m. today at the Silurian-Devonian exposures in the road cuts about a mile south of Prospect on highway No. 42. It was announced by Prof. David M. Young, secretary of the group.
